BAYONET IS SLAVS' LAW

Bolsheviki Ruling by Terror.

Half a Million Allies Needed to Defeat Reds Within Six Months.

Tchaikovsky Sees no Hope for Russia Unless Men and Food Furnished.

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 6 (via Paris, Jan. 11)—"It probably will take [illegible] Allied soldiers six months to [illegible] the present Moscow government and set up a stable authority [illegible] Russia," President Tchaikovsky [illegible] the provisional government said [illegible] in an interview today.

"Only by the Allies' strong force can Russia be saved from almost [illegible] destruction," he continued. "Left to our own weakened resources it would take us years to bring peace and in the meantime the Bolsheviki would have destroyed the personal and state property and, more tragic, the finest brains and men in Russia. "Bolshevism today is simply an inversion of the old order, and terrorists from the bottom of society are taking the place of the despots of [illegible]."

The grand old man of what once was Russian radicalism was speaking with bitterness of the conditions within the country. For almost half a century he has been the leader of [illegible] revolutionary movements and has paid the price for his beliefs in exile and in prisons. However, Bolshevik radicalism has swept [illegible], and today, like others of his [illegible], instead of fighting the reactionary powers, he is fighting the ex[illegible].

WATCH ON SINN FEIN

Irish Parliament to Meet Tuesday.

British Confer on Action to be Taken Against Republic Agitators.

Probably will Permit Meeting, Punishing Intimidation or Violence.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

DUBLIN, Jan. 18.—Sinn Fein officials announced today that the meeting of the Irish republican parliament next Tuesday will be open to the press and public on presentation of tickets obtainable at Sinn Fein headquarters.

Representation will be confined to elected members of the parliament, but the unsuccessful candidates and men occupying government positions will participate.

A conference was held in Dublin Castle today, at which the Lord Lieutenant, the Lord Chancellor, the commander of the forces, the Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General considered the situation.

Differences of opinion are believed to exist as to whether it would be wiser to ignore Tuesday's assembly and proceed only against acts of intimidation or violence or whether the assembly should be suppressed as illegal.

A majority of the people expect the former view will prevail.

BAN ON INFLAMMABLE PICTURE FILMS ASKED.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS CHARGE SAFETY FEATURES IGNORED IN EXCHANGES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Engineers of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, in a report on motion-picture film fires in which lives have been lost and much property destroyed, warned against possible repetitions "in countless cities throughout the United States."

Attention was called to recent film fires and instances cited in which "practically all recognised safeguarding features in connection with the storage of films were utterly disregarded."

Elimination of the inflammable nitro-cellulose film with the substituation of the noninflammable acetate film, the report says, is not possible now, but the engineers urge "the enactment of laws prohibiting the further printing of motion pictures upon nitro-cellulose films." Meanwhile, it says, every effort to reduce the fire risk should be thrown around inflammable films.

Recommendations in the report, which aim to avert future disasters, provide for "better housekeeping" by the employees of film exchanges; a reduction in the amount of film exposed to a minimum consistent with the actual operation of the business; protection by automatic sprinklers of all film in rooms or vaults; ample vents to carry film gases from buildings to the open air and the use of easily workable fire doors that normally stay closed.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Mitau, the capital of Courland, has been occupied by the Bolsheviki, according to a German wireless dispatch received here today. The Germans were obliged to leave behind numerous guns and supplies of ammunition.

After the Germans evacuated Mitau, fire broke out, destroying a great number of houses in the center of the town.

TAFT 1920 BOOM FOR PRESIDENCY FORMING.

FRIENDS THINK HIM LOGICAL CANDIDATE; PROGRESSIVES SAY OTHERWISE.

By Robert B. Armstrong.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A carefully planned and strongly backed movement is under way to secure nomination for William Howard Taft, according to reports current in Washington today.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, though not actively encouraging the Taft boom, is said to be entirely sympathetic with it.

Taft leaves shortly on a speaking tour of the country to arouse popular sentiment in behalf of the league of nations plan. His itinerary includes Chicago, Minneapolis, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Salt Lake City and St. Louis.

Taft boosters are said to be planning to take advantage of the opportunity to place the former President before the public in the light of being the most available man for the Republican nomination.

Taft's services as joint chairman of the War Labor Board in settling wage disputes and strikes which imperiled the successful prosecution of the war are being urged as a strong reason in favor of his availability. His forceful advocacy of the league of nations idea, it is urged, would put him in a strategic political position in the event that the peace congress establishes a league.

Leaders of the progressive branch of the Republican party have apparently not been consulted in the organizing of the Taft movement and they are not likely to give it any encouragement.

Those willing to express an opinion say frankly that Taft would be impossible as a Presidential candidate and that his boosters will only make themselves ridiculous.

With the taint of his 1912 defeat upon him, Taft, even if nominated, would be certain to drag the reunited party down to disaster in 1920, they say.

MOLDERS LOSE EIGHT HOUR DAY DEMAND.

WAR BOARD DISMISSES AN ATTEMPT TO START TROUBLE IN FOUNDRIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Complaints by the International Molders' Union against seventy-three foundries in Boston and vicinity, asking that the War Labor Board establish an eight-hour day in the industry, were dismissed today, the board holding that the case was brought in an attempt to force an eight-hour day upon an industry "in which, so far as the record shows, there was no existing labor difficulties."

Rights of steel-plant employees to an eight-hour day and to the establishment of shop committees to present collective grievances were declared by the board.

Demands for high wages and better working conditions, filed by employees of Chicago hotels, restaurants and clubs, were dismissed. The board said:

"The cases involve disputes which do not come within activities in fields of production necessary for the effective conduct of the war."

MANCHESTER (N. H.) Jan. 18.—Beginning next week the Amoskeag mills, employing 15,000 textile workers, will be operated five and one-quarter hours a day, said an official announcement today. General trade conditions due to readjustments were given as reasons for the curtailment.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18.—William Jennings Bryan made the following statement here today concerning the statement made in a letter written by J. J. Dickinson to George Sylvester Viereck, purporting to give the reasons for Mr. Bryan's resignation as Secretary of State:

"I do not care to discuss letters written by other people, or their opinions," Mr. Bryan said, "but in regard to the incident referred to, I will say that all that I have seen so far in the Dickinson letters refers to things that took place after my resignation, and therefore, could not explain the resignation. My letters to the President and his reply explain the reasons for my resignation."

FOOD BILL IS HALTED.

Opposition Delays Vote on Relief.

Supporters in Senate of $100,000,000 Famine Fund Hope for Passage Tomorrow.

Borah, Kenyon Flay Hoover in Attack on Measure Requested by President.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—After many hours of debate the Senate failed tonight to reach a vote on the bill, already passed by the House, appropriating $100,000,000 for European famine relief, as urged by President Wilson.

Despite the outspoken opposition of some of the members, Republican and Democratic leaders expressed the belief that the measure would be put through Monday. They had hoped to pass it before adjournment tonight.

Democratic Leader Martin and Senator Lodge spoke in favor of the measure, while Senators Borah of Idaho and Kenyon of Iowa, Republicans, led the opposition. Senator Myers of Montana, Democrat, also said he could not give the bill his support.

The opposition largely was based on alleged lack of authority by Congress to appropriate money, raised from the people by taxation, for European charity and also because, it was asserted, sufficient information justifying the appropriation had not been submitted to Congress.

Objection to feeding peoples of enemy countries also was raised and the Senate adopted an amendment by Senator Lodge, adding Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, besides Germany, to the countries which shall not share in distribution of the funds. The Lodge amendment provides, however, that it shall not prevent food distribution to the peoples of Armenia, Syria, Greece and the Christian and Jewish people under the yoke of enemy governments.

HOOVER IS ATTACKED.

During the debate, Herbert Hoover, American food administrator, was sharply attacked by Senators Borah and Kenyon, who charged that his administration had favored the meat packing interests. Senator Borah also asserted that Mr. Hoover's work had been carried out without thought of the interests of American taxpayers. Under Mr. Hoover's administration, Senator Borah said, the packers had made larger profits in 1917 than ever before and he demanded that the President have the European work placed in the hands of someone more responsive to taxpayers' interests.

Opposition developed immediately after Senator Martin called up the bill. Senator Myers demanded to know under what constitutional clause Congress could raise money by taxes and then "practically give it away to foreign people."

Senator Martin said special relief appropriations had been made many times and cited a number of precedents, including the appropriation of $800,000 for Italian earthquake sufferers in 1909.

WOULD WITHDRAW ARMY.

Senator Kenyon declared he did not believe it proper that the people of this country should be compelled to give to a charity fund for the aid of foreign nations and that the relief should be carried out through private subscriptions. He contended that Congress had no right to take the money of the people by taxation for charity outside the country. Statements intending to show why the bill should be passed, he said, were indefinite, and declared that President Wilson got his information only from Mr. Hoover.

"Perhaps this is the result of secret diplomacy in Europe," the Senator said. "I wish the President would serve notice that if the foreign nations insist on the secret diplomacy now going on at Paris that he and his staff will return to this country and also withdraw our army from Europe and let Europe do it alone."

Referring to President Wilson's statement that food would stop Bolshevism, Senator Kenyon declared:

"You will stop the Bolsheviki, not by feeding them, but by removing injustices."

Before giving relief to Europe, the situation in the United States should be considered, Senator Kenyon said, adding that 200,000 men are out of employment in the United States, and that there are inadequate hospital facilities to care for the returned wounded soldiers.

BORAH'S OBJECTIONS.

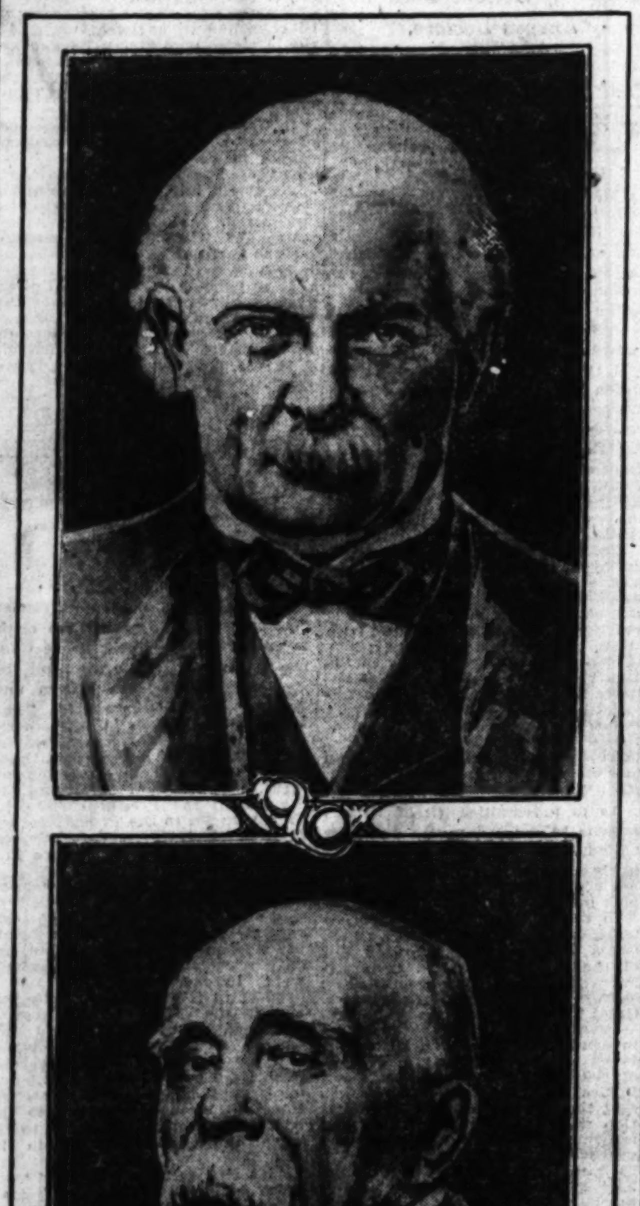
Senator Borah said it was impossible for him to support the bill because of the connection Herbert Hoover would have with the disposition of the funds.

"Hoover's viewpoint is such," he said, "that I can't agree to turn over this money to him."

Senator Borah said investigation showed that "the vast monopolies that control the food supply have directed and controlled the food administration since he has been in charge." By this, he said, he did not intend to say that Mr. Hoover had benefitted in any way, but that it was Hoover's viewpoint that permitted this to be done.

While press dispatches have described sufferings at home for lack of food, the Idaho Senator said the packers admitted that their war profits were 47 per cent. on capital invested. Passage of the bill, he asserted, would increase packers' profits. He contended it would be unjust to hold the President responsible for proper relief distribution, as he would not know how the money was spent.

Two Deans of the Peace Conference.



Lloyd George and (below) Clemenceau.

At the first formal sitting of the world conference yesterday in Paris, M. Clemenceau, the French Premier, unanimously was chosen chairman of the congress by the delegates of the assembled Allied powers. He was nominated for this position by President Wilson, whose nomination was seconded by Lloyd George, the British Premier.

WILSON LAUDS FRANCE, NAMING CLEMENCEAU.

DECLARES MEETING TO BE SUPREME CONFERENCE IN HISTORY OF MANKIND.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Following is the address of President Wilson at the opening session of the Peace Conference:

Mr. Chairman:

It gives me great pleasure to propose as permanent chairman of the conference M. Clemenceau, the president of the council.

I would do this as a matter of custom. I would do this as a tribute to the French republic. But I wish to do it as something more than that—I wish to do it as a tribute to the man.

France deserves the precedence, not only because we are meeting at her capital and because she has undergone some of the most tragical suffering of the war, but also because her capital, her ancient and beautiful capital, has so often been the center of conferences of this sort, on which the fortunes of large parts of the world turned.

It is a very delightful thought that the history of the world, which has so often centered here, will now be crowned by the achievements of this conference—because there is a sense in which this is the supreme conference of the history of mankind.

More nations are represented here than were ever represented in such a conference before. Fortunes of all peoples are involved. A great war is ended, which seemed about to bring a universal cataclysm. The danger is passed. A victory has been won for mankind, and it is delightful that we should be able to record these great results in this place.

It is more delightful to honor France, because we can honor her in the person of so distinguished a servant. We have all felt in our participation in the struggles of this war the fine steadfastness which characterized the leadership of the French in the hands of Mr. Clemenceau. We have learned to admire him, and those of us who have been associated with him have acquired a genuine affection for him.

Moreover, those of us who have been in the recent days in constant consultation with him know how warmly his purpose is set towards the goal of achievement to which all our faces are turned. He feels as we feel, as I have no doubt everybody in this room feels, that we are trusted to do a great thing, to do it in the highest spirit of friendship and accommodation, and to do it as promptly as possible in order that the hearts of men may have fear lifted from them and that they may return to those purposes of life which will bring them happiness and contentment and prosperity.

Knowing his brotherhood of heart in these great matters, it affords me a personal pleasure to propose that Mr. Clemenceau shall be the permanent chairman of this conference.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO BE FIRST PEACE TOPIC.

Clemenceau is Chosen Chairman on Wilson's Motion at the Premier Session of Conference.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The peace congress, destined to be historic and on which the eyes of the world are now centered, was opened this afternoon in the great Salle de la Paix. The proceedings, which were confined to the election of Georges Clemenceau, the French Premier, as permanent chairman of the conference; an address of welcome by the President of the French republic, Raymond Poincare, and speeches by President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and Baron Sonnino, were characterized by expressions of lasting friendship and the apparent determination of the representatives of the various nations to come to an amicable understanding with respect to the problems to be decided by the conference.

When President Poincare spoke, the entire assembly stood, and the fact that, according to custom, no applause greeted his utterance, gave greater solemnity to the scene.

M. Clemenceau's acceptance of the presidency of the congress was both a feeling expression of personal gratitude and a definite outline of the great questions immediately ahead. Three of these larger general subjects, he defined as responsibility for the war, responsibility for crimes during the war and international labor legislation. The league of nations, he declared, was at the head of the programme for the next full session.

"Our ambition is a great and noble one," said M. Clemenceau. "We wish to avoid a repetition of the catastrophe which bathed the world in blood. If the league of nations is to be practicable we must all remain united. Let us carry out our programme quickly and in an effective manner."

Referring to the authors of the war he said he had consulted two eminent jurists on the penal responsibility of the former German Emperor, and each delegate would receive a copy of the report.

SEVENTY-TWO SEATS.

In all, seventy-two seats were provided for the opening session of the Peace Conference. On the outer side of the great horseshoe were arranged the Japanese, the British and colonial delegates, and the seat of the fifth British delegate. A chair for the fifth American delegate also was reserved immediately to the right of the table of honor.

The Italian, Belgian, Brazilian, Cuban, Haitian, Peruvian, Portuguese, Serbian, Czecho-Slovakian and Uruguayan delegates sat in the order named. Across at the left wing of the table sat the Siamese, Rumanian, Polish, Liberian, Hedjaz, Guatemalan, Ecuadorean, Chinese and Bolivian delegations.

As the delegations arrived they were met by fanfares of trumpets and accorded military honors by the troops. The Japanese were among the earlier arrivals and were followed by the Siamese and East Indians in picturesque turbans.

President Wilson's arrival at ten minutes of three was the signal for a demonstration from the crowds. The President passed into the antechamber, where M. Pichon, the French Foreign Minister, awaited and conducted him to the council room.

Already the chamber was crowded with delegates, who greeted President Wilson warmly as he passed toward the table of honor. Here he was joined by Secretary Lansing, Mr. White and Gen. Bliss, and exchanged greetings with the British and many other delegates.

OPENS AT 3:03 P.M.

Just at 3 o'clock a ruffle of drums and blare of trumpets announced the approach of M. Poincare. The French President was escorted by the group of premiers to the head of the table, while a hush fell upon the assemblage as the moment arrived for the opening of the congress.

It was exactly three minutes past 3 o'clock when M. Poincare began his address and the peace congress came into being. The entire assemblage stood as the President spoke. President Wilson stood immediately at his right and listened attentively. M. Poincare spoke in an earnest, easy manner, without declamatory effect, and following usage, there was no applause or interruption.

M. Poincare spoke in French and when he had concluded an interpreter read the discourse in English.

As M. Poincare closed he turned to receive the congratulations of President Wilson and Lloyd George and then withdrew, greeting each delegation as he retired.

President Wilson rose as M. Poincare made his exit. "It gives me great pleasure," he said, "to propose as permanent chairman of the conference Mr. Clemenceau."

President Wilson spoke in conversational voice, which, however, carried throughout the chamber, as he paid eloquent tribute to the French Premier.

Premier Lloyd George seconded the nomination of M. Clemenceau, speaking earnestly of the distinguished services which the French Premier had rendered in war and peace.

Baron Sonnino, the Italian Foreign Minister, added Italy's tribute, whereupon the election of M. Clemenceau as presiding officer was made unanimous.

CLEMENCEAU RESPONDED.

In a feeling address M. Clemenceau acknowledged the honor conferred upon him. He turned first to President Wilson and bowed his thanks, then to Mr. Lloyd George for the tribute he had paid him. It was not alone a tribute to him, he said, but to France.

"We have come together as friends," he exclaimed. "We must leave this hall as friends."

Referring to the League of Nations, M. Clemenceau declared it was already in the way of being achieved by the gathering of this conference. He turned to the programme of the conference which, he said, covered the following main subjects of general order:

First—Responsibility of the authors of the war; second—responsi-

PROTEST RETURN OF LOOT.

Germans Talk of Mental Suffering if France Gets Machinery Back.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Chiefs of departments in the German government, especially the ministers of commerce and of trade, protest against acceptance by the German delegates of the latest armistice conditions, fulfillment of which, they declare, "means for Germany the organized preparation of starvation."

The Minister of Commerce and Labor, according to the Tageblatt, declares Germany will be unable to replace the agricultural machinery taken because Germany lacks necessary metals, coal and trained laborers. He says German agriculture will be crippled if the machines are delivered to the Allies.

The Boersen Courier says Food Minister Wurm declared he first learned of the conditions through the press and that he could not accept responsibility for the consequences. The Tageblatt asks in an editorial:

"Where are justice and humanity which were to dictate peace? We behold always force and only force and the German people, after such great physical and mental sufferings, are delivered over to destruction."

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A German government wireless message says Phillip Scheidemann, the Foreign Secretary, announced today the government had decided to convoke the national assembly, February 16.

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—"Liebknecht and Luxemburg fell as victims of their own terrorist tactics," said Phillip Scheidemann, Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the Ebert Cabinet, in a speech at Cassel, today.

The Socialist Newspaper Vorwaerts, while condemning the lynching of the Spartacan leaders, also sees in their death the natural result of the victims' appeal to the lowest passions and violence.

While the Independent Socialists of Bavaria and other parts of Germany are endeavoring to consolidate the two Socialist parties independent of Greater Berlin, in their two newspapers they appeal to the workingmen for a general strike as a protest against the "domination of military anarchy."

CHINA TROOPS IN RUSSIA.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A German government wireless message received today says: "Starving workmen are parading the streets of Petrograd and many riots have occurred. These were suppressed by troops from China and Korea, who were welcomed by the Bolsheviki as 'pioneers of the oriental internationale.'"

ORGANIZE SLAV VOLUNTEERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Russian Embassy received word today from Archangel that the political situation in the northern regions was developing very favorably, although economic conditions were difficult.

Peasant volunteer detachments were said to be forming successfully to fight the Bolsheviki.

An Omsk message to the Embassy said a Red Cross organization had been established there and its activities officially recognized.

bility for the crimes committed during the war; third—legislation in regard to international labor.

All the powers represented would be invited to present memoirs on these three questions. The powers having particular interests, M. Clemenceau, continued, would be asked to present further memoirs upon territorial, financial and economical questions.

"The League of Nations will be placed at the head of the order of the day of the next full session," M. Clemenceau announced, as he concluded his address. He paused for further suggestions of business; as none was made, he declared the session adjourned.

It was 4:30 o'clock, and the opening session had lasted one hour and a half. No exact time was fixed for the reassembling of the full session of the conference, as that awaits the call of the supreme council of the five great powers, which probably will meet Monday morning.

CROWDS WATCH GATHERING.

The Foreign Office was the center of interest, as the crowds gathered and the final preparations were made for the opening. Along the Quai d'Orsay the crowds gazed at the tall windows of the Salle de la Paix, where the congress was about to meet. Toward midday the troops called out for the occasion began to take their assigned positions confronting the Palais Bourbon and the Foreign Office, with a guard of honor drawn up in the court leading to the entrance to the Foreign Office. The guard took the form of a double file of soldiers, through which the delegates were to pass.

President Wilson arrived at the Foreign Office at ten minutes to 3. He entered by the main door. All the other delegates used a side entrance. He was preceded a few minutes by Premier Clemenceau.

The delegations began to arrive at the Foreign Office soon after 2 o'clock. First came representatives of Japan, India and China, then Marshal Foch, who was followed by Secretary Lansing, Gen. Bliss, Admiral Benson and Commander Carter of the American commission.

DELEGATES HOLD MEETINGS.

All the peace delegates held final meetings this morning before the assembling of the peace congress this afternoon. The American delegation met at 10 o'clock, but President Wilson did not attend, remaining at the Murat mansion throughout the morning to rest.

The congress is expected to devote itself single-mindedly to the creation of a league of nations. A study of the methods by which the league can be organised will be committed formally to an inter-Allied commission, sitting contemporaneously with the congress, which will present the result of its labors for ratification at the close of the congress.

All questions at issue, of whatever kind, will be settled before the enemy delegates arrive.

As regards Russia, it is stated that the five leading powers have agreed that her representation by any Russian element is impossible for the moment.

PLAN OF PROCEDURE.

As to the other questions before the congress, territorial, financial and economic, the order of their consideration will be indicated in the rules of procedure to be read by Premier Clemenceau as president of the congress.

It is understood that the method of work will be such that each delegation will record its opinion on each question in a memorandum which it will hand to the general secretaries. The five great powers, the organizers of the conference, will deliberate on these memoranda, either making a decision at once or inviting the delegates of the countries especially affected by the question at issue to come and discuss it with them. Thus, the twenty-five representatives of the great powers will act, in a way, as the arbitrators of the conflicting claims of the small nations. By this method, there will be few plenary sittings, there being no reason for holding them except when the question is one of ratifying an entire category of decisions affecting the assembled states as a whole and, above all, when the future organization of the world, that is to say, the question of the league of nations, is dealt with.

ASSEMBLY HALL.

First to catch the eye of the plenipotentiaries entering the Salle de la Paix, a statue of Peace, holding aloft the torch of civilization, has been placed. This heroic marble figure stands directly behind the chair of Premier Clemenceau of France, the presiding officer.

In front of the statue is spread the council table, covered with the traditional green baize of diplomacy. This table is in the form of a huge horseshoe. Across the upper end are nine seats of honor, for the presiding officer, the vice-presidents and premiers. On each side of the two arms of the horseshoe there are fifteen seats, making sixty seats, besides the nine at the head of the table.

Each delegate's chair is upholstered in bright red leather, and before each place is a complete equipment of writing materials. The fittings of the room are in white and gold, with a frescoed ceiling bordered by dancing Cupids. Four great luster chandeliers hang from the ceiling, while five large windows, looking out over the Seine River, cast a flood of light over the sumptuous apartment.

Leading from the council room is another large chamber overlooking the gardens. To this room the delegates can retire for consultations. The large table at one end is suggestive that refreshments would be served there to the delegates.

Further on is a gorgeous state dining-room, where luncheon and dinner may be served to the delegates in case protracted sessions are held.

The whole suite of rooms is suggestive of elegance and beauty and the artistic taste of the French.

EXPORT OF COTTON TO ENEMIES URGED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Ten members of Congress from cotton-growing States sent a cablegram to President Wilson today urging that all embargoes against cotton exports to nonenemy countries be lifted at once and the shipments to Germany and Austria be permitted as soon as possible.

URGES LEAGUE TO BAR UNREPENTANT HUNS.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The admission of Germany to the league of nations is the subject of numerous discussions. Leon Bourgeois, French authority on the league, thinks it must be composed at first exclusively of the associated nations and those neutral states which since 1917 have adhered to the rules of the second Hague conference. Later, M. Bourgeois feels, Germany may prove her title to membership.

"Opinions differ," he says. "My own is that a league of nations tends to become universal, but, owing to the very object which we are trying to achieve, it can only be instituted among free nations which are true to their word and which are ready to give all the guarantees which are legally and materially necessary. Germany can join the league when she fulfills these conditions.

"But the mere upsetting of her military government cannot be sufficient proof that she has turned over a fresh leaf. The danger lies not only in the military government alone, but in the very soul of the German people.

"The destruction of militarism, therefore, is necessary, but this political revolution must be accompanied by a moral revolution as well.

"In any case, besides the military guarantees that will be imposed by the peace treaty, besides the fulfillment of all just reparations, besides the punishment of all those guilty of crimes against human laws, Germany must accept and submit to all the rules of international control to which the other nations will have consented voluntarily."

WILSON PEACE TERMS IS GERMANY'S STAND.

BASEL, Jan. 18.—The German government, according to a dispatch from Berlin, has appointed Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Foreign Minister, and Philipp Scheidemann to head the German delegation to the Peace Conference. The government has decided on the policy which the German delegation "must follow."

The German delegation, the dispatch says, will oppose demands of the Allies which go beyond the programme outlined by Wilson, and will seek immediate suspension of all economic measures against Germany.

The German delegates, according to the dispatch, will declare Germany's readiness, in common with other states, to disarm on land and sea and in the air. Germany, it is declared, already has realized the greater part of her disarmament through the armistice, and it is claimed that this fact renders unjustifiable the retention of prisoners by the Allies.

The Berlin dispatch adds that Germany will demand return of her colonies and will argue that the right of self-determination should be applied to Germany as it was before the war, especially Alsace-Lorraine.

The German delegates will support the league of nations as proposed by President Wilson.

SUNDAY "TIMES" AGAIN SUBMERGES OTHER NEWSPAPERS

In its superb edition of many sections which was published January 12, 1919, the Sunday Times once more demonstrated its superiority as an advertising medium.

The following tabulation is significant of its popularity with advertising patrons in this territory:

Total amount of advertising printed on above date in Los Angeles morning newspapers	24,207 inches
Total advertising printed in THE TIMES ...	12,577 "
Total advertising printed in second newspaper	7,454 "
Total advertising printed in third newspaper	4,176 "

The Times "want ads" continue to give extraordinarily good results, judging from the following tabulation:

THE TIMES printed 3398 inches "want ads."
Second newspaper, 1550 inches "want ads."
Third newspaper, 456 inches "want ads."

From the above figures it is shown that The Times printed 947 inches more than the other two newspapers combined in the aggregate, and 1392 inches more "want ads" than the other two newspapers combined.

Quantity-quality circulation has been found to be most profitable to regular advertisers. By reason of that fact many firms and individuals in Southern California place their advertising exclusively in The Times.

BRITISH PEACE AIMS OUTLINED.

Friendship of United States Held Most Important.

League of Nations Desirable, Envoys Declare.

Pool of Indemnity Claims by All Nations Suggested.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Friday, Jan. 17.—Careful investigation here has made it possible to give more concretely an outline of the war claims of Great Britain and her general desires regarding the making of peace.

The British aims, the unofficial representation of them shows, are regarded as in general coinciding with those of the United States delegation at the peace conference. There are some minor differences of opinion between Great Britain and America regarding the final adjustment of the world's affairs, and these differences remain to be reconciled. On the whole, however, the aims of the two nations are considered by British commentators as identical.

Great Britain believes first, it is declared in these sources, that a league of nations is desirable and attainable, and that none of the British war aims will be considered practicable unless they conform with the tenets of such a league as is contemplated to realign and govern the affairs of the universe. She also believes that things should be so adjusted that the war aims of every country will conform with those of the others—in other words, that there should be a compact of give and take.

POOL INDEMNITIES.

As to indemnities, Great Britain expects to enter a pool with other nations. Her claims are comparatively small, it is said, but she wants her air raid damage and her shipping losses paid for.

In addition to the league of nations, one of the great things which Great Britain hopes will grow out of the peace conference, it is apparent, is a thoroughly good working agreement with the United States. Great importance is attached to this.

Great Britain, it is declared by the interpreters of her views, has no interest on the continent of Europe other than that permanent peace and justice be maintained. She thinks that the principle of self-determination should be given full play and freedom of transit both by rail and waterways. She desires, it is stated, to see countries such as Switzerland given access to the sea, this not only in the interest of the trade of Great Britain, but of that of the world, and she holds that there are numerous ports which should be made free, including Constantinople.

FREEDOM OF SEAS.

As to the freedom of the seas, Great Britain, it is maintained, will, in the future as in the past, aim at securing the greatest possible freedom for commerce to all nations in times of peace. This, it is said, is what she means by the freedom of the seas. The question of the rules of warfare by sea she considers quite separate and as requiring discussion, but she hopes that the causes of war will be removed.

Great Britain desires the greatest freedom of trade on land and sea and she expects a league of nations to guarantee this, it is stated. Before the war, it is pointed out, British colonies were open to the world.

The British consider that Germany abused the privileges offered and that each German tradesman was a potential spy and Great Britain has no desire to return to this condition of affairs. She wants to rid trade of the political element which Germany injected into it.

Great Britain does not want to become a protectionist power, it is declared, but she does not wish free trade to put her at a disadvantage. Unless the Peace Conference eliminates the objectionable features existing before the war, it is probable that Great Britain would be forced to defend herself by special laws.

IN NEAR EAST.

In Asia Minor, notably in Arabia and Mesopotamia, Great Britain has certain commitments. In Arabia the people asked her for protection against the Turks and requested that they be not left under Ottoman control. Assurances of protection were given by Great Britain. The expedition into Mesopotamia was due partly to the same condition, it is added. In this part of the world there are French, Italian, British, Russian and Turkish interests to consider. Great Britain is prepared for an amicable adjustment with her allies and expects the league of nations to act as a steadying power.

As far as Arabia is concerned, Great Britain will be largely guided by the wishes of the inhabitants. Arabia was recently recognized as a sovereign belligerent power, and Great Britain desires the principle of self-determination to work itself out as far as possible in these districts. Undoubtedly, it is said, she expects to supervise affairs in some parts of Arabia and this is also true of Mesopotamia, where Great Britain is represented as feeling that she should hold the rudder.

BAGDAD RAILWAY.

The question of the Bagdad railway must be disposed of and whether it be regarded as a state railway or not is a matter for the Peace Conference to decide. Much of this railway was built with what might be called cosmopolitan money and Germany did not have the share in its construction that many attributed to her, it is claimed. A part of the railway may be internationalized, it is suggested, but the part toward the Persian Gulf, terminating at Basra, should, it is felt, remain in British hands.

The presence of delegates from India at the Peace Conference has its significance in connection with the disposition of Mesopotamia. Should the Peace Conference approve, it is possible that the greater part of this territory would be placed under the supervision of the Indian government.

In considering the return of German colonies, it is declared, the interests and desires of the British dominions must be taken into account. Australia is deeply interested in the disposition of certain islands close to Australia and is said to oppose return of islands which might give Germany airplane and submarine bases.

IN FAR EAST.

In the Far East Great Britain wants nothing except stable administrations and maintenance of the open door. Her affairs in the Far East, it is said, must be considered in conjunction with Japan and China and she is naturally interested in future relations of China with Germany, in view of English settlements like Shanghai.

The welfare of the natives must be consulted in any adjustment of the African question. As far as Southwest Africa is concerned the South African government at Cape Town, it is said unofficially, will demand its retention.

In German East Africa the claims of Great Britain, it is pointed out, cannot be considered apart from those of Portugal and Belgium. India also is interested and then the French claims in Africa must be considered. There must be a revision of the treaties concerning the partition of the Congo basin, it is held.

It is possible that the United States will be asked to co-operate with Great Britain in the trusteeship in Africa outside of German Southwestern Africa. Great Britain, it is said, does not desire to administer Africa by herself.

CLEMENCEAU UPHOLDS WILSON'S PROGRAMME.

IN ACCEPTING CHAIR OF PEACE CONFERENCE PREMIER COUNSELS UNITY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Premier Clemenceau, upon taking the chair to rule over the World Peace Conference today, in reply to the speeches of President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George said: "You would not expect me to keep silence after what the two eminent statesmen, who have just spoken, have said. I cannot help expressing my great, my profound gratitude to the illustrious President of the United States, to the Prime Minister of Great Britain, and to Baron Sonnino for the words I have just heard from their lips.

"Long ago, when I was young, as Mr. Lloyd George has recalled to you, when I was traveling in America and in England I always heard the French reproached for an excess of courtesy, which sometimes went beyond the truth. As I listened to the American statesman and to the English statesman I wondered whether they had not caught in Paris our national disease of courtesy. Nevertheless, gentlemen, I must say that my election is necessarily due to the old international tradition of courtesy to the country which has the honor to receive the peace conference in its capital.

"I wish also to say that this testimony of friendship, if they will allow to me the word, on the part of President Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George in particular, has touched me deeply because I see in it a new strength for all three of us to accomplish, with the co-operation of the entire conference, the arduous work which is entrusted to us. I gather from it a new confidence in the success of our efforts.

"President Wilson has special authority to say that this is the first time in fact that the world has ever seen assembled together a delegation of all the civilized nations of the earth.

"The greater the bloody catastrophe which has devastated and ruined one of the richest parts of France, the greater and more splendid must be the reparation—not only the material reparation, the vulgar reparation, if I dare speak so, which is due all of us, but the higher and nobler reparation of the new institution which we will try to establish, in order that nations may at length escape from the fatal embrace of ruinous wars, which destroy everything, heap up ruins, terrorize the populace and prevent them from going freely about their work for fear of enemies which may rise up from one day to the next.

"It is a great, splendid and noble ambition which has come to all of us. It is desirable that success should crown our efforts. This cannot take place unless we all have firmly fixed and clearly determined ideas on what we wish to do.

"I said in the chamber a few days ago, and I wish to repeat here, that success is not possible unless you remain firmly united. We have come together as friends; we must leave this hall as friends.

"That, gentlemen, is the first thought that comes to me. All else must be subordinated to the necessity of a closer and closer union among the nations who have taken part in this great war and to the necessity of remaining friends. For the league of nations is here. It is yourself. It is for you to make it live and to make it live we must have it really in our hearts.

"As I told President Wilson a few days ago, there is no sacrifice that I am not willing to make in order to accomplish this, and I do not doubt that you all have the same sentiment. We will make these sacrifices, but on the condition that we endeavor impartially to conciliate interests, apparently contradictory, on the higher plane of a greater, happier and better humanity.

"That, gentlemen, is what I had to say to you. I am touched beyond words at the evidence of good will and friendship which you show me.

"The programme of this conference has been laid down by President Wilson. It is no longer the peace of a more or less vast territory, no longer the peace of continents; it is the peace of nations that is to be made. This programme is sufficient in itself. There is no superfluous word. Let us try to act sanely and well."

HARADA CASE AGAIN.

State's Attorneys Argue Motion for New Trial at Riverside.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 18.—A motion for a new trial in the celebrated case of the State of California against Jukichi Harada, charged with the violation of the anti-alien land law through the purchase of property here, was filed today and argued in the Superior Court by Assistant State Attorney-General Joseph L. Lewinson and former State Senator Miguel Estudillo. The court recently ruled for the defendants on the ground that Harada's children, to whom the property was presented as a gift, were American born.

Wilson Stands Beside Speaker During Address.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The Peace Conference was formally opened this afternoon with a speech by President Poincare of France, who thanked the Allied nations for having chosen Paris for their important work and praised the valor of the Allied armies which had preserved the capital of France from the enemy.

President Poincare closed his address at 3:25 o'clock. President Wilson stood beside him as he spoke.

As soon as the French President concluded, an interpreter reread the address in English.

The President's speech was as follows:

"Gentlemen: France greets and thanks you for having chosen as the seat of your labors the city which for more than four years the enemy has made his principal military objective and which the valor of the Allied armies has victoriously defended against unceasingly renewed offensives.

"Permit me to see in your decision the homage of all the nations that you represent toward a country which more than any other has endured the sufferings of war, of which entire provinces have been transformed into a vast battlefield and have been systematically laid waste by the invader and which has paid the human tribute in death.

ENORMOUS SACRAFICES.

"France has borne these enormous sacrifices although she had not the slightest responsibility for the frightful catastrophe which has overwhelmed the universe. And at the moment when the cycle of horror is ending, all the powers whose delegates are assembled here may acquit themselves of any share in the crime which has resulted in so unprecedented a disaster. What gives you the authority to establish a peace of justice is the fact that none of the peoples of whom you are the delegates has had any part in the injustice. Humanity can place confidence in you because you are not among those who have outraged the rights of humanity.

"There is no need of further information or of special inquiries into the origin of the drama which has just shaken the world. The truth, bathed in blood, has already escaped from the imperial archives. The premeditated character of the trap is today clearly proved.

"In the hope of conquering first the hegemony of Europe and next the mastery of the world, the Central empires, bound together by a secret plot, found the most abominable of pretexts for trying to crush Serbia and force their way to the East. At the same time they disowned the most solemn undertakings in order to crush Belgium and force their way into the heart of France.

UNFORGETABLE OUTRAGES.

"These are the two unforgetable outrages which opened the way to aggression. The combined efforts of Great Britain, France and Russia were exerted against the man-made arrogance.

"If, after long vicissitudes, those who wished to reign by the sword have perished by the sword, they have only themselves to blame. They have been destroyed by their own blindness.

"What could be more significant than the shameful bargains they attempted to offer to Great Britain and France at the end of July, 1914, when to Great Britain they suggested: 'Allow us to attack France on land and we will not enter the channel,' and when they instructed their Ambassador to say to France: 'We will only accept a declaration of neutrality on your part if you surrender to us Briey, Toul and Verdun.' It is in the light of these things, gentlemen, that all the conclusions you will have to draw will take shape.

"Your nations came one and all to the help of threatened rights. Like Germany, Great Britain had guaranteed the independence of Belgium. Germany sought to crush Belgium. Great Britain and France both swore to save her.

STRUGGLING IDEAS.

"Thus, from the very beginning of hostilities, there came into conflict the two ideas which for fifty months were to struggle for the domination of the world—the idea of sovereign force, which accepts neither control nor check, and the idea of justice, which depends on the sword only to prevent or repress the abuse of strength.

"Faithfully supported by her dominions, Great Britain decided she could not remain aloof from the struggle. Japan, in her turn, only decided to take up arms out of loyalty to Great Britain, her great ally, and from the consciousness of the danger in which both Asia and Europe would have stood of the hegemony of which the Germanic empires dreamed.

"Italy arose against an age-long foe only to answer the call of oppressed populations and to destroy artificial political combination which took no account of human liberty.

"Rumania resolved to fight only to realize that national unity which was opposed by the same arbitrary force. Abandoned, betrayed and strangled, she had to submit to an abominable treaty, the revision of which you will exact.

"Greece, whom the enemy for many months tried to turn from her traditions and destinies, raised an army only to escape attempts at domination.

"Portugal, China and Siam abandoned neutrality only to escape strangling pressure.

GERMAN AMBITIONS CAUSE.

"Thus, it was the extent of German ambitions that brought so many peoples, great and small, to align themselves against the same adversary. And what shall I say of the solemn resolutions taken by the United States in the spring of 1917, under the auspices of its illustrious President, Mr. Wilson, whom I am happy to greet here in the name of grateful France and, if you will allow me to say so, gentlemen, in the name of all the nations represented in this room?

"What shall I say of the many other American powers which either declared themselves against Germany—Brazil, Cuba, Panama, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Haiti, Honduras—or at least broke off diplomatic relations—Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Uruguay? From the north to the south the New World arose with indignation when it saw the empires of Central Europe, after having let loose the war without provocation, carry it on with fire, pillage and massacre.

"The intervention of the United States was something more, something greater than a great political and military event. It was a supreme judgment passed by the lofty conscience of a free people on the enormous responsibilities incurred in the frightful conflict.

AMERICA RESCUES MOTHER.

"It was not only to protect itself from the audacious aims of German megalomania that the United States equipped fleets and created immense armies, but also, and above all, to defend an ideal of liberty over which it saw the huge shadow of the imperial eagle encroaching farther every day. America, the daughter of Europe, crossed the ocean to rescue her mother from thraldom and to save civilization.

"The American people wished to end the greatest scandal that has ever sullied the annals of mankind. Autocratic governments, having prepared in secrecy a mad programme of universal dominion, let loose their packs at the time fixed by their genius for intrigue and sounded the horns for the chase, ordering science (at the very time it was beginning to bring men closer and make life sweeter) to leave the bright sky toward which it was soaring and to place itself submissively at the service of violence, debasing the religious idea to the extent of making God the complacent auxiliary of their passions and the accomplice of their crimes—in short, counting as naught the traditions and wills of peoples, the lives of citizens, the honor of women and all those principles of public and private morality which we have endeavored to keep unaltered throughout the war and which neither nations nor individuals can repudiate or disregard with impunity.

CAPTIVE NATIONS AID.

"While the conflict was gradually extending the clanking of chains was heard and captive nationalities from their age-long jails cried out to us for help. Yes, more, they escaped to come to our aid.

"Poland came to life again and sent us troops. The Czecho-Slovaks won their right to independence in Siberia, in France and in Italy. The Jugo-Slavs, the Armenians, the Syrians and Levantines, the Arabs, all the victims, long helpless or resigned, of the historic deeds of injustice; all the martyrs of the past, all the outraged in conscience, all the strangled in liberty, turned to us as their natural defenders.

"The war gradually attained the fullness of its first significance and became in the full sense of the term a crusade of humanity for right, and if anything can console us, in part at least, for the losses we have suffered, it is assuredly the thought that our victory also is the victory of right.

"In the interest of justice and peace it now rests with you to reap from this victory its full fruits. In order to carry out this immense task you have decided to admit at first only the Allied or associated powers and in so far as their interests are involved in the debates, the nations which remained neutral. You have thought that the terms of peace ought to be settled among ourselves before they are communicated to those against whom we have fought the good fight.

PLEADS FOR SOLIDARITY.

"The solidarity which has enabled us to win military success ought to remain unimpaired during the negotiations for, and after the signing of the treaty. It is not only the governments but free peoples who are represented here. To the test of danger they have learned to know and help one another. They want their intimacy of yesterday to assure the peace of tomorrow. Vainly would our enemies seek to divide us. If they have not yet renounced their customary maneuvers, they will soon find that they are meeting today, as during the hostilities, a homogeneous block which nothing will be able to disintegrate. Even before the armistice you reached that necessary unity under the aid of the lofty moral and political truths of which President Wilson has nobly made himself the interpreter, and in the light of these truths you intend to accomplish your mission.

"You will, therefore, seek nothing but justice, justice that has no favorites, justice in territorial problems, justice in financial problems, justice in economic problems. But justice is not inert, it does not submit to injustice. What it demands first when it has been violated are restitution and reparation for the peoples and individuals who have been despoiled. In formulating this lawful claim it obeys neither hatred nor an instinctive or thoughtless desire for reprisals. It pursues a twofold object—to render to each his due and not to encourage crime by leaving it unpunished.

PUNISH THE GUILTY.

"What justice also demands, inspired by the same feeling, is the punishment of the guilty and effective guarantees against an active return of the spirit by which they are prompted, and it is logical to demand that these guarantees should be given, above all, to the nations that might again be most exposed to aggression.

"What justice banishes is the dream of conquest and imperialism, contempt for national will, the arbitrary exchange of provinces between states, as though peoples were but articles of furniture or pawns in a game.

"The time is no more when diplomatists could meet to redraw the map of empires on the corner of a table. If you are to remake the map of the world it is in the name of the peoples, and one condition is that you should faithfully interpret their thoughts and respect the right of nations, small and great, to dispose of themselves and to reconcile with this the equally sacred right of ethnical and religious minorities—a formidable task which science and history, your two advisers, will contribute to assist and facilitate.

"You will naturally strive to secure the material and moral means of subsistence for all those people who are constituted or reconstituted into states, for those who wish to unite to their neighbors, for those who reorganize themselves, for those who divide themselves according to their regained traditions, and lastly for all those whose freedom you have already sanctioned or are about to sanction. You will not call them into existence to sentence them to death immediately because you would like your work to be fruitful and lasting.

"While introducing into the world as much harmony as possible, you will, in conformity with the fourteenth of the propositions unanimously adopted by the great Allied powers, establish a general league of nations which will be the supreme guarantee against any fresh assault upon the right of peoples. You do not intend this international association to be directed against anybody in the future. It will not, of a set purpose, shut out anybody, but having been organized by the nations that have sacrificed themselves in the defense of right, it will receive from them its statutes and fundamental rules.

"It will lay down conditions concerning present or future adherence, and as it is to have for its essential aim the prevention as far as possible of wars, it will, above all, seek to gain respect for the peace which you will have established and will find it the less difficult to maintain in proportion as this peace will in itself imply the greater realities of justice and safer guarantees of stability.

ASPIRATIONS OF HUMANITY.

"By establishing this new order of things you will meet the aspirations of humanity, which, after the frightful convulsions of the bloodstained years, ardently wishes to feel itself protected by a union of free peoples against the ever possible revival of primitive savagery. An immortal glory will attach to the nations and men who have desired to co-operate in this grand work in faith and brotherhood and who have taken the pains to eliminate from the future peace causes of disturbance and instability.

"This very day forty-eight years ago—on the eighteenth of January, 1871—the German Empire was proclaimed by an army of invasion in the chateau at Versailles. It was consecrated by the theft of two French provinces. It was thus a violation from its origin and, by the fault of its founders, it was born in injustice. It has ended in oblivion.

"You are assembled to repair the evil and to prevent a recurrence. You hold in your hands the future of the world, I leave you gentlemen to your grave deliberations and declare the conference of Paris open."

LLOYD GEORGE HAILS CLEMENCEAU'S YOUTH.

DECLARES HE IS FITTING PERSON TO GUIDE PEACE OF WORLD SETTLEMENT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Following is the address of British Prime Minister Lloyd George at the opening session of the peace conference:

"I count it not merely a pleasure but a great privilege that I should be expected on behalf of the British empire delegates to support the motion of President Wilson. I do so for this reason which he has so eloquently given expression to, as a tribute to the man.

"When I was a schoolboy, Mr. Clemenceau was a compelling and a conspicuous figure in the politics of his native land, and his fame had extended far beyond the bounds of France.

"Were it not for that undoubted fact, Mr. President, I should have treated as a legend the common report of your years. I have attended many conferences with Mr. Clemenceau and in them all, the most vigorous, the most enduring and the most youthful figure there, has been that of Mr. Clemenceau. He has had the youthfulness; he has had the hopefulness and the fearlessness of youth. He is indeed the 'grand young man' of France, and I am proud to stand here to propose that he should take the chair in this great conference that is to settle the peace of the world.

"I know of no one better qualified, or as well qualified, to occupy this chair, than Mr. Clemenceau. And I speak from my experience in its claim. He and I have not always agreed. We have very often agreed. We have sometimes disagreed and we have always expressed our disagreements very emphatically because we are ourselves.

"But although there will be delays, and inevitable delays, in the signing of peace, due to the inherent difficulties of what we have to settle, I will guarantee from my knowledge of Mr. Clemenceau that there will be no waste of time. And that is important.

"The world is thirsting and hungering for peace. There are millions of people who want to get back to the world work of peace. And the fact that Mr. Clemenceau is in the chair will be proof that they will get there without any delays which are due to anything except the difficulties which are essential in what we have to perform.

"I have another reason. During the dark days we have passed through, his courage, his unfailing courtesy, his untiring energy, his inspiration have helped the allies through to triumph, and I know of no one to whom that victory is more attributable than the man who sits in this chair. In his own person, more than any living man, he represents the heroism, he represents the genius of the indomitable people of his land.

"And for these reasons I count it a privilege that I should be expected to second this motion."

STRIKE THREATENED BY GARMENT WORKERS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, with a membership of 35,000 in this city, today authorized calling a strike next week unless in the meantime the employers grant demands for a 15 per cent. wage increase and a forty-four-hour working week.

The result of the vote was announced at a meeting held late today in Madison Square Garden. It was greeted with cheers by thousands of men and women. The poll showed 12,721 members in favor of a strike and only 105 opposed.

At one time it appeared as if the meeting might turn into a Mooney demonstration, for while Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, was denouncing the employer class, a woman cried out:

"What is the A. F. of L. going to do regarding Mr. Mooney?"

Morrison replied that the federation intended to do everything in its power to obtain a new trial for the union men convicted of murder in connection with the Preparedness Day parade outrage in San Francisco.

BY WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—The correspondents at the Versailles congress are very much troubled because the sessions of the congress are not open to them. They desire to hear and report all the discussions of the delegates on every one of the many issues coming before the congress. They are insisting to the President that this is a violation of the first of the fourteen points which he laid down as essential to the welfare of nations. We have some suspicion that the bursting storm of indignation over this action of the conference derives its explosive character more from the professional necessities of the correspondents than from the concern over the danger to the world that it threatens.

The constitutional convention of the United States in 1787 and the Quebec conference in which the fundamental principles of the Dominion of Canada were agreed upon were held behind closed doors. This has been the custom with most world congresses.

Full and frank discussion of races and nations is apt to make assertions of facts and motives which may give unnecessary offense to the peoples under consideration if made public. It would seem wise, therefore, that reports of proceedings should be edited to avoid creation of a bitterness prejudicing domestic acquiescence in the treaty. There are always preliminary conferences between leaders in such congresses and after important decisions are reached in these which are only formally given effect in the congress.

If the congress is open, there will be a disposition on the part of its members to do all the real business in such private conferences and to meet in the open sessions merely to register what has been agreed upon elsewhere.

The argument that secret sessions of the congress are inconsistent with open diplomacy stated as one of the objects to be achieved by the war has nothing in it. That first point was directed against secret alliances whose terms were known only to the nations parties to them. They are, of course, objectionable in a family of nations seeking justice as a group, desirous of defeating secret conspiracies against the peace of the world and the liberty and independence of small nations. But it is a far cry from such an object and requirement to a rule forbidding secrecy in the discussions leading up to the adoption of treaties.

The framers of the constitution usually had a good reason for the various provisions of that instrument as well as for those they omitted. They left it to the discretion of the Senate to maintain secrecy in their deliberations over treaties. The Senate, from its very first session when it had at its call the knowledge of men like Madison and John Adams who had been in the constitutional convention, had consistently refused to make the discussion of treaties open. If this is the rule with us in case of treaties, when all other legislative business is done under the eye and the ear of the public, a fortiori should it be the rule in a congress like that at Versailles. In no country is publicity of public business [illegible] red the principle as with us, and this emphasizes the wisdom of the exception which a century's practice has sustained.

BORAH'S PLAN.

Senator Borah, during the last Congress, introduced a resolution to change the rule requiring an executive session for the discussion of the embryo treaties. He relied on the President's first point declaring for open diplomacy and called upon the President's followers, to support the resolution. But he was met by a letter of the President that the open diplomacy he had in mind did not apply to or include discussions of treaties by the Senate. Obviously the same reasoning would exclude discussion of the great treaty in the congress at Versailles from the injunction of publicity in the first point.

All the nations concerned in making the treaty except Germany are represented in the conference. They are all advised as to the proceedings and discussions. Publicity is not needed to prevent any delegate from betraying his principal.

The American correspondents should possess their souls in patience. They have had experience with the injunction of secrecy upon the [illegible] sessions of the Senate. They know that if anything of real interest or importance having news value occurs in such sessions they have been able promptly to report it for the next morning's issue of the [illegible] tribune of the people [illegible] serve.

In the outset at Versailles the sources of information [illegible] dried up and guarded by the honor of the members of the congress will gradually begin to run again. Their [illegible] what is taking place in the congress will probably be as accurate as if they had been present. Such [illegible] have the additional interest to [illegible] their readers attaching [illegible] from the Tombs. Moreover, they will offer to the delegates whose remarks are reported verbatim, the inestimable privilege of indignant denial when it seems desirable. Meantime the official account of the proceedings put out by the officers of the congress will make clear the progress made.

TAFT DEFENDS SECRET PARLEY.

Frank Discussion Impossible in Public, He Declares.

Executive Sessions Approved in Forming Treaties.

Closed Doors are Necessary, Asserts Professor.

BY WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—The correspondents at the Versailles congress are very much troubled because the sessions of the congress are not open to them. They desire to hear and report all the discussions of the delegates on every one of the many issues coming before the congress. They are insisting to the President that this is a violation of the first of the fourteen points which he laid down as essential to the welfare of nations. We have some suspicion that the bursting storm of indignation over this action of the conference derives its explosive character more from the professional necessities of the correspondents than from the concern over the danger to the world that it threatens.

The constitutional convention of the United States in 1787 and the Quebec conference in which the fundamental principles of the Dominion of Canada were agreed upon were held behind closed doors. This has been the custom with most world congresses.

Full and frank discussion of races and nations is apt to make assertions of facts and motives which may give unnecessary offense to the peoples under consideration if made public. The argument that secret sessions of the congress are inconsistent with open diplomacy stated as one of the objects to be achieved by the war has nothing in it. That first point was directed against secret alliances whose terms were known only to the nations parties to them. They are, of course, objectionable in a family of nations seeking justice as a goal and desirous of defeating selfish conspiracies against the peace of the world and the liberty and independence of small nations. But it is a far cry from such an object and requirement to a rule forbidding secrecy in the discussions leading up to the adoption of treaties.

The framers of the constitution usually had a good reason for the various provisions of that instrument as well as for those they omitted. They left it to the discretion of the Senate to maintain secrecy in their deliberations over treaties. The Senate, from its very first session when it had at its call the knowledge of men like Madison and John Adams who had been in the constitutional convention, had consistently refused to make the discussion of treaties open. If this is the rule with us in case of treaties, when all other legislative business is done under the eye and the ear of the public, a fortiori should be the rule in a congress like that at Versailles. In no country is publicity of public business so sacred the principle as with us, and this emphasizes the wisdom of the exception which a century's practice has sustained.

BORAH'S PLAN.

Senator Borah, during this Congress, introduced a resolution to change the rule requiring an executive session for the discussion of the embryo treaties. He relied on the President's first point declaring for open diplomacy and called upon the President's followers, to support his resolution. In the outset at Versailles the sources of information dried up and guarded by the honor of the members of the congress will gradually begin to run again. Their reports of what is taking place in the congress will probably be nearly as accurate as if they had been present. Such reports will have the additional interest for their readers attaching to voices from the Tombs. Moreover, they will offer to the delegates whose remarks are reported not verbatim, the inestimable privilege of indignant denial when it seems desirable. Meantime the official account of the proceedings put out by the officers of the congress will make clear the progress made.

Workmen Beat Spartacans Preaching Treason.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17. — Spartacan …are causing disorders in various parts of Germany. A number …Spartacans today attacked the …Vogner at Breslau, where the …bureau of the German …cratic party was located. After …demolishing the interior, they …attempted to set the hotel on fire, …were dispersed by government …

…Spartacan leaders identified …the recent rebellion in Spandau …shot dead last night while attempting to escape.

HAMBURG, Jan. 17.—The Bolshevik republic of Cuxhaven has collapsed after an existence of five days. The end came when Spartacan rulers failed to answer an ultimatum from citizens, teachers and …and national officials who …ordered a strike.

…stopped completely and after …a mass meeting the citizens visited the Soldiers' and Workmen's …Council and compelled it to revoke …decree establishing a republic.

…, Jan. 17.—The workmen in …district are beginning to revolt …against efforts of the Spartacans to …strikes. At several places, …including Krupp's, the agitators were …by enraged workmen.

…Duisburg the Spartacans demanded that the government be …handed over to them. The demand …refused and the Spartacans were …disarmed and ejected from the …office of the Volkstimme. Order …prevails there.

…, Jan. 18.—Independent …at Berlin assert that Dr. …Liebknecht, who was shot and …killed Thursday, did not attempt …to escape from an escort of troops, …but was shot through the forehead …at a few paces distance by soldiers, …according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

The Freiheit of Berlin is calling on workers there to begin a general strike, it is reported.

BERLIN, Jan. 16. — More loyal troops entered Berlin today and occupied the whole center of the city, as well as the north and northwest sections.

Systematic search for Spartacans continues.

Hanover dispatches report a clash between authorities of the majority Socialist movement and the Spartacan and Independent Socialist government in Brunswick. The Soldiers' and Workmen's Council, which, in connection with the Brunswick state government, has been using all means to prevent the dispatch of troops to protect Germany's eastern border, gave notice that any troops passing through Brunswick railway stations would be disarmed. The Hanover council thereupon sent strong forces which occupied a railroad station in Brunswick territory.

The Brunswick council protested, saying that this act was "provocation to bring bloodshed and battle to the free states of Brunswick."

The Hanover council replied that all Brunswick troops belong to the Tenth Army Corps of Hanover.

Former Spartacan War Minister Schreiner of Stuttgart is reported under arrest, with fifteen other Spartacans. The Spartacan coup at Stuttgart is said to have cost seven lives.

The Executive Committee of the Central Soldiers' and Workmen's Council has telegraphed to councils at Muelheim-am Ruhr, Hamburg and other places, requesting that the councils order their own immediate reconstitution by new elections carried on by the proportional system.

REDONDO MORAL CITY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, Jan. 18.—That Redondo Beach is one of the cleanest cities morally on the Pacific Coast was the report made today by Investigator Rice of the Moral Efficiency Commission to Joseph V. Cullen, industrial manager of Redondo Beach. This is the result of an exhaustive investigation conducted in this city by the Moral Efficiency Commission, Mr. Cullen stated. "All talk of blind pigs in Redondo Beach," Mr. Rice is alleged to have stated, "is groundless, as the Moral Efficiency Commission has found the contrary to be the truth."

The investigation was requested by some of the Redondo Beach ministers because of insistent rumors that booze was being "peddled" freely.

PLAN JOB DRIVE FOR NORTHWEST

States to Offer Work to Soldiers on Landing.

Hundreds of Millions to be Spent on Land Projects.

Proposed State Measure to Provide Farms.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 18.—Plans for a "job drive" throughout Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and other States for positions for the men of the Ninety-first Division are being made by Lawrence Wood, Seattle, Federal director for Washington of the United States employment service.

"We hope to be able to offer jobs to the men as they step from the transports on the east coast," Mr. Wood said today. "This cannot be done, however, until the employers of the division's home States come forward with positions."

STATES BACK LANE PLAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 18.—Representatives of seven Western States, gathered in conference here today, gave impetus to the movement launched by Secretary of the Interior Lane for settlement of soldiers and sailors on public lands, particularly in the West.

Contemplating the probable expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars, the deliberations of the conference were extended over to tomorrow, when the full scope of the matter became evident. A committee was appointed to prepare resolutions indicating to what extent the Western States represented were behind the Interior Department movement.

The committee was requested to include in its report a section favoring action by all sitting legislatures in consonance with a tentative draft of a law for co-operation between the State and the Federal governments, providing means for settlement of soldiers and sailors on public lands and the creation of settlement funds by all States.

Former Gov. Spry of Utah was elected permanent chairman of the conference.

The Committee on Resolutions includes: Judge Otis J. Baum, Arizona; Francis Cuttle, California; E. W. Griffith, Nevada. George Albert Smith, president of the National Irrigation Congress, was made a member of the committee as a courtesy to that organization.

States represented at the conference are: Nevada, Wyoming, California, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico and Utah. Arizona's delegation consists of F. S. Selew and Joseph R. Baum; California, J. S. Nickerson, A. E. Chandler and Francis Cuttle; Nevada, Seymour Case and E. W. Griffith.

LAND BILL UP TOMORROW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 18.—A measure to provide land for the returning soldiers and sailors will be introduced Monday at the resumption of the sessions of the Forty-third California Legislature. It will be in the form of a bill to provide for the extension of the State's land settlement plan and to provide for Federal co-operation. Senator Breed will introduce the bill, according to Prof. Elwood Mead, head of the Land Settlement Board.

Provision will be made to give preference to the soldier and sailor in consideration of applications for farms in the various tracts which it is proposed to develop.

An appropriation of $1,000,000 for the purchase, subdivision and development of new tracts will be asked. The bill also may include a proposal to issue $10,000,000 in bonds to finance the operation of the board. The financial methods adopted in the handling of the project would make provision for the interest and principal on these bonds, according to Mead, and no general tax levy would be necessary.

The method of Federal co-operation would be through provision to have the Federal government develop a tract of between 200,000 and 300,000 acres of government land in the Imperial Valley on a plan similar to that being pursued by the State.

Under the present plan of the State the land is prepared for immediate cultivation, houses and outbuildings are constructed and the farms are sold to settlers on a basis of a cash payment of 10 per cent. of the principal and the balance in payments over a period of twenty years at a low rate of interest.

The measure was discussed at a conference of Prof. Mead and other State officials with Gov. Stephens, at which the Governor was represented as urging immediate action.

JUDGE COX FINES, ALSO WEDS SPEEDER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 18.—Herman R. Ascher of San Diego was in a hurry to get married to Miss Mary A. Seymour, also of San Diego, and they thought the Courthouse closed at 4 o'clock. Lieut. Roy C. Roberts was with them.

A county motorcop picked them up at thirty-eight miles, speeding toward Santa Ana.

Ascher, in Justice Cox's court, inquired for the marriage license bureau and exhibited a speed tag at the same time.

"Business before pleasure," thought Cox, whose business is fining speeders and whose greatest pleasure is performing the marriage ceremony. "Let's settle the speed business first." A ten spot did it.

At the license desk Ascher inquired for another justice to do the marrying, but Cox was the only one about and Ascher was still in a hurry to get to Los Angeles, so they returned to the court room and Cox tied the knot.

Cox gave it an extra twist to show he didn't hold the speeding against the couple, and Ascher, just to show he wasn't really peeved about the fine, gave the judge a real fat fee.

Baldness

—is rapidly increasing — says Prof. John H. Austin, Chicago's bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of 40 years' practice—and is in many, many cases directly or indirectly caused by —A very common scalp trouble.

Alopecia Pityrodes—

—It starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, called "dandruff," sometimes abundant — producing thick, grayish white, dry or greasy scales—which leads to falling of the hair.

—At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated, and the germs multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly, and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald. Both men and women of all ages of life are subject to Alopecia Pityrodes, but particularly those between the ages of 20 and 35 years.

—If your hair is falling out, if your scalp itches, or if you have oily hair, gray or faded hair, dry and brittle hair—you should call at Hamburger's and take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION of the hair and scalp by the Professor Austin Method—this will show the cause and the right treatment will be suggested.

—Prof. Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

—During the past four years Prof. Austin has made thousands of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp of Hamburger's patrons—and they enthusiastically appreciate this service.

—Both men and women should take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS this week in his private offices on the Second Floor of Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 and 2 to 4 daily.

ward, and if they had a sufficiently strong force in the Archangel district which could push south and east and meet their brothers in arms it would mean that the granaries in Siberia would be opened. There would come a peasant uprising along the Vologda-Perm railroad, where the Bolsheviki are trying to take grain from the farmers.

"If given the proper help a wave of determination will spread over Russia, linking the elements and districts against terrorism and break it down. Let the Allies send several hundred thousand men—say, 500,000 all told—to different parts of Russia and we will be able to reform our own armies.

"Immediately when the present government is crushed me can call a constitutional assembly and decide exactly what form of government for the new Russia to take."

This is the opinion of the big anti-Bolsheviki, from a man who is a valiant revolutionist. The Archangel district is under the protection of the Allies and the facts are undisputed that there has been little enthusiasm among the Russians to enlist and fight the Bolshevik armies.

DRAFTING AN ARMY.

Today, among the 600,000 population, there are less than 2000 actual volunteers. When the Allies first came, in August, the Slav-British legion was formed with the idea of making an international fighting force. But there were so few enlistments among the Russians that early in September it was decided to form a draft Russian army.

This is going on slowly. There has been some trouble among the mobilized troops. The forming of volunteer peasant bodies has been more successful. The groups of fighting volunteers have organized in villages near the front and have done good work, but comparatively they have been very few in numbers. It has been hard to recognize that Russia has suffered terribly from the great war and the people are war-weary.

"But it is their country and their quarrel," our soldiers insist.

There are varying reports regarding the actual size of the Bolshevik forces facing the Allied troops. The Archangel district probably has 30,000. Altogether, the Bolshevik army probably is between 500,000 to 750,000 men. A considerable proportion were drafted, but the larger number are volunteers.

The best fighters are from the Baltic province below Petrograd. The most part of the Bolshevik armies are promoted noncommissioned officers and former officers of the old army, but the high commanders have Bolshevik commissaries who check everything. There are a number of desertions, particularly among the officers of the old army.

The troops are well fed and are receiving two pounds of flour and fish rations daily. While the population of Central Russia is virtually starving, the army gets good food. At present, despite the lack of food, the general discontent in the Bolshevik army is said to be stronger than ever.

Ex-prisoners of war passing through the central government on their way home from German and Austrian prison camps are offered high wages of $50 a month and bonuses to enlist. If they decline they are permitted to go through the lines and large numbers are constantly sifting through and returning to their native villages. Many have been walking for three months through the cold. They tell stories of desperate food conditions in the central districts, but say they are treated fairly by the Bolsheviki.

YOUR LANDLORD'S FURNITURE

It seems strange that sane, sound minded people will pay rent on a few rooms of furnishings—month after month, year in and year out and in a lifetime actually pay thousands of dollars for the use of stuff that could be bought outright for a couple hundred of dollars. And it is even more remarkable when we add the statement that we offer the necessary articles to furnish a place at a price and credit terms that will scarcely be missed, even from a small income. ARE YOU A FURNITURE RENTER WHO HAS BEEN IN A FURNITURE RENTING RUT FOR YEARS? If so, we urge you, for your own good, to carefully study the offer below.

KANSAS CITY NEWS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—The demobilization of the entire Tenth Division at Camp Funston, Regular Army men excepted, was ordered today. Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, commandant of the Central Department and of Camp Funston received the word from Camp Funston today while he was addressing a city club luncheon in Kansas City.

Gen. Wood said today the demobilization would begin Wednesday and the soldiers would be sent home as rapidly as the railroads could transport them. They will be released at the rate of 1000 to 1500 a day, it was said.

Walter L. Lampkin, Kansas City Fuel Administrator, was appointed receiver for the Missouri Midwest Oil Company, a corporation with a capital stock of $1,500,000 in the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon. The suit against the oil company was brought by Atty.-Gen. Frank W. McAllister in the name of the State of Missouri.

Funeral services for D. B. Rudy who died last Saturday in a hospital at Los Angeles from injuries he sustained in an elevator accident at that place, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the Stine and McClure chapel. In his will Mr. Rudy provided $2000 of an estate valued at $18,000 to the Mercy Hospital, $1000 to the Independence - boulevard Methodist Episcopal Church, $1000 to the George H. Nettleton Home and $1000 to a brother.

The removal of the government price-fixing power next February 1 and the abolition of the present zoning system as announced yesterday at Washington will permit again the shipment of Illinois coal into the local market and probably will result in a decline of prices.

Thirty-three lawyers met today in the corridor in the Court House in an attempt to settle thirty-five mechanic lien claims against dwellings in the course of erection on the old Gordon and Koppel athletic field. One of the lawyers failed to agree. So the thirty-three will go into the Circuit Court, January 27 to present their claims.

Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood will be the speaker at the Roosevelt memorial in Convention Hall February 9. He accepted the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce on his arrival here today. Plans for the memorial, which had awaited word from Gen. Wood, were begun immediately after his arrival today.

Herbert C. Jones of Childs & Jones has accepted a re-election as president of the Real Estate Board.

The educational campaign of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Kansas City, which will precede a campaign throughout the country in churches of that denomination to raise $35,000,000 for construction and missionary work at home and abroad, will be launched at the Central Methodist Episcopal Church Eleventh street and the Paseo, Sunday and continued throughout Monday. Several noted speakers will appear at the various sessions.

Twenty-nine of the largest transcontinental highway associations, with roads traversing every State in the Union except Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, have agreed to send representatives to the good roads meeting here next Tuesday at the Hotel Muehlbach. The meeting was called to form a league to work for Congressional aid in building transcontinental roads. An appropriation of $1,000,000,000 will be asked of Congress to hard-surface important inter-State roads.

Accuse Juror in Sykes Case.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—The charge that an unnamed juror violated his oath in the trial in which Joshua W. Sykes, apostle of the Church of the Living God, Berkeley and Denver, and three others were convicted in the United State District Court of violation of the espionage law was made today when Sykes and others were up for sentence.

The money-making opportunities that will be exploited in the Midwinter Number of The Times, out January 28th, 1919, will be many and varied.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

A small bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now — it costs but a few cents—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and luster, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits every one who tries this.

VESSELS BEING BUILT IN WORLD TOTAL 2189.

UNITED STATES LEADS WITH 997; GREAT BRITAIN CONSTRUCTION LEAPS UP.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 17.—(British Wireless Service.) During the last quarter of 1918 there were begun in Great Britain 424 ships having a tonnage of 1,979,952 compared to 395 ships, with a tonnage of 1,866,591 during the same quarter in 1917, according to authoritative figures.

Ships now actually under construction in the United Kingdom have a total tonnage of about 233,000 greater than during the quarter ending in September. The large majority of these vessels are between 5000 and 6000 capacity. Ships constructed for other than mercantile purposes, as well as ferro-concrete vessels and those of less than 100 tons, are not counted in the totals.

In Allied and neutral countries there were under construction, when last available figures were compiled, 2189 merchant vessels having a gross tonnage of 6,921,980. Of these 1722 were building in countries other than Great Britain.

The United States led with 997 ships, with a tonnage of 3,647,919. The figures for other countries are: Canada, 195 ships, 273,711 tons; Japan, 116 ships, 278,140 tons; Holland, 113 ships, 212,512 tons; Italy, fifty-six ships, 133,010 tons; Sweden, seventy-six ships, 99,639 tons; Spain, thirty-five ships, 77,597 tons; Denmark, fifty-one ships, 72,143 tons; Norway, seventy-one ships, 67,738 tons, and France, twelve ships, 51,690 tons.

Grand total includes fourteen ferro-concrete ships having tonnage of 26,270.

SENATOR IS ACCUSED UNDER ELECTION LAW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A letter from Ann Martin of Reno, Nev., unsuccessful candidate for Senator last November, charging excessive expenditures in the election of Senator Henderson, Democrat, was laid before the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee today by Chairman Pomerene. No action was taken.

In the Ford-Newberry Michigan Senatorial election contest the Senate elections committee decided today to have the Senate sergeant-at-arms take possession of all ballots, poll books and other documentary evidence to be held for future examination. An immediate investigation is not planned.

FOCH SAYS HUN FAMINE IS REAL

Marshal will Break Off Armistice if Unfulfilled.

Has no Fear of Reds Invading France Via Germany.

Teuton Ships Taken to Carry Troops, Food.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Marshal Foch, according to the Matin, will immediately break off the armistice with Germany if the conditions of the armistice are not fulfilled.

The Allied commander-in-chief, the newspaper adds, does not believe that the Germans exaggerate when they cry "Famine."

Populations of Austria and Prussia, the marshal is quoted as saying, are near the starvation point.

Germany still possesses an army, the marshal declared, but the Allies hold the Rhine, which constitutes a formidable strategical barrier.

Marshal Foch is said to have declared that he did not believe that a Bolshevik invasion through Germany, of France, was possible.

The Allies have received formal assurance, it is declared in an official note, that, December 1 there were no German prisons, fortresses, prisoners' camps or any other place in which officers and soldiers of the Entente were kept shut up or from which they were forbidden to send news of themselves. Since the armistice no Allied subject remains in prison either as a penalty or to await trial.

TAKE GERMAN SHIPS.

All the more important German passenger steamers, including the huge Imperator, may be used to transport American troops homeward, under the extension of the armistice signed at Treves. The German mercantile fleet is placed at the disposal of the associated governments. Only smaller steamships are left to the Germans and are for Baltic coastal traffic.

The allotment of steamers among the associated powers will be governed partly by their respective needs and partly by suitability of the vessels for particular routes. The giant liners like the Imperator are too deep in draft for the Suez Canal. Hence Great Britain will take the moderate-sized steamers for the Australian service.

Remuneration to be paid to Germany will be applied on payment for foodstuffs furnished to Germany under another part of the agreement. These supplies include 70,000 tons of pork and 200,000 tons of cereals. For part of this latter item condensed milk may be substituted.

The shipping arrangement was elaborated at meetings apart from the regular armistice commission and formed the first civilian deliberations between Germans and the representatives of the associated governments. They were marked by a less formal spirit than the strictly military deliberations of the armistice commissioners.

Edward N. Hurley, head of the American Shipping Board, presided. Philip Heineken, of the North German Lloyd Company, was leader of the German delegation of ten. Another meeting is to be held later in the month.

The associated governments proposed that the Germans furnish the coal and the ships' stores. The Germans protested that this was impossible, specifying lubricants particularly. It was finally arranged that the Germans furnish the coal and stores and take the steamers to ports designated by the Allies, who will then man them.

The Germans stated that the steamers had been kept in repair by skeleton crews maintained aboard them during the war.

TRUCE RENEWALS ALLOWED.

The agreement for the renewal of the German armistice signed by Marshal Foch, Admiral Browning and the German armistice commissioners Thursday provided for the renewal of the armistice from time to time after the month for which the extension runs, until the conclusion of peace, subject to the approval of the Allied governments.

The principal terms of the renewal are substantially as has been reported. In addition, there is a clause by which the Allied command reserves the right to occupy that part of the Strasbourg defenses comprised by the forts of the eastern bank of the Rhine and a strip of territory from three to six miles beyond. Other clauses provide for the substitution for supplementary railway material, large quantities of industrial and agricultural implements and give control of Russian prisoners in Germany to Allied and associated delegates for repatriation.

The naval clauses provide that all submarines must be turned over, including all submarine cruisers, mine layers, sweepers, salvage ships and floating docks for submarines. They also stipulate that the building of all submarines must cease and those on the stocks must be dismantled or destroyed under Allied supervision.

Germany undertakes to turn over all Allied ships still detained in German ports. The clause providing that Germany shall place her mercantile marine at the disposal of the Allies in return for food supplies says that the agreement in no way affects the final disposal of those ships.

EXTEND OCCUPIED ZONE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 18.—The commander of the neutral zone east of the Rhine in the region of Duisberg, Rhenish Prussia, announces that Allied troops will occupy the harbors and landing places on the right bank of Rhine. Duisberg will be occupied by two companies of troops.

MIDWEST NEWS.

ST. LOUIS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18.—Plans were made today by citizens' referendum league and the civic league to probe charges of crookedness in the United Railway new franchise grant and mill tax agreement. Sensational exposures are forecast involving high officials.

Suit for $20,000 alleging breach of promise was filed here today by Della Madden against Alois J. Beine, wealthy business man who has just returned from army service.

One thousand men will start early next week with petitions calling for the recall of Mayor Kiel. The 33,000 necessary are expected within ten days.

SCHOOL IN THE OPEN.

Monrovia has Novel Plan to Keep Classes Going During Epidemic.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 18.—With the sanction of the board of health, the Monrovia grammar schools yesterday began a novel method of conducting school sessions, imposed by the renewal of the flu ban. From 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. the children, in groups of not more than three, were heard by their respective teachers, who dismissed them immediately, and the next group was called, by a definite schedule arranged by A. R. Clifton, superintendent of schools, who originated and planned the system whereby the school work will not be interrupted by the closing order.

Practically all the lessons were heard outdoors in the bright Southern California sunshine, which was recommended by Capt. Edward H. Kelly, chief medical officer at the Arcadia army balloon school, as being the best remedy for the flu. The group system of teaching will begin at the Monrovia High School on Monday.

HIGH-GRADE CONSTRUCTION THROUGHOUT. This instrument represents the most substantial manufacture. The durable veneers are laid in a most careful way, to retain their beauty. The composition keys represent part of your saving in price and are far preferable to an inferior quality of ivory. They will give service and retain their appearance. The action represents the higher point in manufacturing efficiency. It is durable, finely adjusted, and will give the best of service.

PRICE VALUE. The Lexington Piano is made in the big new daylight factory of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co. The low price at which this instrument is sold is made possible only by the large cash resources of the company manufacturing it, buying every piece of material for spot cash in huge quantities, making this instrument complete in its own wonderful efficient daylight factory, and distributing it at a minimum expense through a vast selling organization.

A REMARKABLE OPPORTUNITY. This concern has been in the business of making pianos—the best pianos that can be made—for the past seventy-six years.

The handsome instrument shown here, Style 95 Lexington Piano, represents a rare piano opportunity for the home of limited means. Saving has been effected at every point in the making where the true musical worth of the piano would not be impaired.

For example: The case design is simpler than other models; the finish less expensive; composition keys are used in place of ivory. These details, while not materially affecting the appearance of the instrument, represent appreciable saving in manufacturing cost. But the heart of the piano rings true. The same beautiful tone which characterizes the other instruments of this make is to be found in this home model.

GUARANTY. This instrument is guaranteed by the Hallet and Davis Piano Co., whose guaranty is so simple, so strong, so complete that there is no possibility of misunderstanding, no attempt to evade or befoggle their responsibility. It represents to you the best piano insurance you can obtain, backed as it is by not only the tremendous cash resources of the Hallet & Davis Co., but by the same spirit of merchandising which for 68 years has dominated this country in the high-grade piano field.

HOWARDS

Of nothing in the whole world of mechanics are Americans more justly proud than of the Howard Watch. Invented and made in America by Americans, it has for nearly one hundred years maintained its reputation as a Class A timekeeper against the best of foreign watches. Today, with its hard-tempered balance, its precise and permanent adjustment for temperature, isochronism and positions and its refinement in cases and finishes, it stands without a peer.

From a complete stock, we illustrate three models.

GERMANS ARM AGAINST POLES.

Government Organizes Two Armies to Resist Invasion.

Paderewski Ministry Lacks Only Socialist Approval.

Polish Cabinet Gets Big Loan from Posen Bankers.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Friday, Jan. 17.—The German government is reported organizing two armies to counteract an invasion by the Poles threatening Brandenburg. Forces in West Prussia will be under Gen. Von Quast and in Silesia under Field Marshal Woyrsch.

WARSAW, Friday, Jan. 17.—The Polish ministry formed by Ignace Jan Paderewski apparently meets the approval of all parties except radical Socialists. They have threatened a general strike if the Paderewski ministry holds office until the elections to the national assembly, which are planned for the middle of February.

The new Cabinet represents most of the parties in German, Russian and Austrian Poland. Bankers of Posen, of German Poland, have loaned it 100,000,000 marks.

M. English, a banker of Posen, assumed office today as Minister of Finance. Paderewski will take charge of the Foreign Office tomorrow with the assistance of five undersecretaries. Food Minister Minkee of the old Cabinet remains at his post.

The new Minister of Public Works is M. Pruchniki of the peasant party. M. Thugut, who was regarded as representing semi-Bolshevik opinions in the old Cabinet, has been replaced as Minister of the Interior by M. Wojciechowski.

Paderewski is almost exhausted by his strenuous efforts of the last few days. Today he said:

"At least 95 per cent. of the people of the three Polands are with me. The others constitute a grave danger."

Last midnight, when Gen. Pilsudski, who remains at the head of the government and in command of the army, signed the agreement for reorganization, there was an affecting scene between Paderewski and his wife, who had been constantly at his side.

"May God preserve Poland!" she exclaimed as the sentries fired the usual shots announcing midnight.

In a note to the Polish people on accepting office, M. Paderewski said:

"In a moment of danger nobody has the right to refuse public service. In a democratic state the only men able to govern are those obedient to the people. The new government will not be a party one. We further declare that to succeed the Polish people must be considered as an ally of the Allies.

"Our programme is: First, call a parliament; second, defend the frontiers; third, help the working classes; fourth, secure food and other supplies; fifth, rebuild the cotton and woolen mills; sixth, the regulation of finances and the securing of internal and foreign loans; seventh, to establish order."

M. Paderewski informed the correspondent that before coming to Warsaw he had offers from foreign banking syndicates to make any necessary loans for bringing in raw materials with which to give work to the thousands idle in manufacturing centers like Lodz. In view of high prices existing here and in Russia, it is believed certain that Poland will quickly make up the losses due to German robbery and destruction of Polish factories which were intended to give Germany the entire market here and in Russia.

One of the first steps of Minister of Railways Eberhardt will be to establish a Paris-Warsaw express. It is believed the Czecho-Slovak government will not raise too great objections to this plan. To reach Poland, the express train would have to traverse Bohemia and part of Austria.

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Volunteers are joining the colors in great numbers at Koenigsberg to protect the boundaries of East Prussia from Bolshevist aggression and against the Poles, according to reports received here.

Declaring that the eastern frontier will soon be lost unless the Germans awake to the danger, the Lokal Anzeiger declares that 800,000 Germans in Posen are being prevented by the Poles from arranging for elections to the National Assembly.

Proclamations regarding the "advancing Polish army" are being issued by the Poles, who also have regular war reports.

At a meeting at Breslau it was reported that the Czechs have an army of 500,000 men on the border and threaten an invasion.

Polish troops numbering eighteen divisions are said to be about to invade Upper Silesia. Lemberg reports state that the people of the threatened districts have formulated an appeal to President Wilson asking for protection against the Czechs. The appeal points out that their country has been overwhelmingly German since the thirteenth century. Mr. Wilson is asked to prevent the forcible annexation of their country by the Czechs, saying that such an annexation would be in violation of the principles of elementary justice and "would help sow the seeds of a new war."

SERBS REPORT MISERY.

Distress of Country Pictured in Bureau's Statement.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The official bureau of information of the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes made public today a dispatch from Belgrade giving a picture of the great misery which prevails in liberated Serbia. The dispatch, dated January 15, says, in part:

"Belgrade today presents the aspect of a convalescent after a serious illness. The population, which before the war numbered 100,000, is now reduced to half. Certain streets, and even certain quarters, are still deserted. A very great number of houses have been destroyed, wholly or in part, by the bombardment. There is a want of material to reconstruct them.

"Trade is dealing only in goods of prime necessity. All other merchandise is available in very small quantities. The prices, in consequence, are extraordinarily high. A suit of clothes costs $200; a pair of boots, $50; hats, $10 to $14; shirts, $20, and stockings, $6. In the provinces the state of things is still worse. All the children are anemic and infant mortality is great.

"Some foreign relief missions have begun to work and are doing good.

"All communication between Belgrade and Saloniki is interrupted. It also is impossible to pass the Sava River, the great bridge being destroyed. As a consequence, Serbia is practically isolated from the world. The population, whatever their social position, are completely without underclothing and are forced to wear ill-fitting and worn clothes. Some are even in rags.

"The prevailing misery is terrible. It is impossible to apply the most elementary measures of hygiene, as there is no means of taking baths or washing linen. A kilogram (two pounds) of very inferior soap costs $4."

EXPORTERS OF COAL TO RECEIVE LICENSES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The War Trade Board announced today that applications would be considered for licenses to export coal to Argentina and Uruguay and to all destinations in Europe.

Shipments to countries contiguous to Germany will be limited, however, to the amounts prescribed under the rationing agreements with those nations.

EDITOR RUMELY GETS HABEAS CORPUS WRIT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Edward A. Rumely, former publisher of the New York Evening Mail, was held today by a United States commissioner for removal to Washington to answer indictments in the District of Columbia growing out of his alleged purchase of the Mail with German government money. Immediately afterward he obtained a writ of habeas corpus preventing execution of the order.

Dr. Rumely claimed that removal would deprive him of his constitutional right to a speedy trial here on a charge of concealing from the alien property custodian the alleged German interest in his newspaper enterprise.

OVEASEAS ARMY TO BE REDUCED.

Only Small Force to be Kept in Europe, Says March.

Less than Thirty Divisions to be Maintained.

All Units in United States Ordered Demobilized.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—American forces in France and in the occupied territory of Germany are to be reduced to the minimum strength "consistent with our national obligations," Gen. March said today. He added that Gen. Foch had been informed of this policy by Gen. Pershing.

What strength is to be maintained is under discussion now by American military officials and the Allied military leaders. No report has been received indicating the number of divisions to be supplied by the United States, but Gen. March was positive that it would be far less than the thirty divisions given in unofficial reports as the probable American military contribution.

The American force for the occupied zone was fixed by international agreement at the time the armistice was signed. Gen. March said Marshal Foch undoubtedly would refuse to permit a reduction of his total strength to a point where it would be inadequate to handle any possible disturbance.

GENERAL DEMOBILIZATION.

Demobilization of all army units in the United States has been ordered, Gen. March announced, with the exception of the Regular Army regiments needed for camp guard purposes and various detachments necessary to continue the demobilization process. The total now listed for demobilization is 1,177,000.

Troops actually returned from France for demobilization now number 104,000. This gives a grand total ordered discharged of 1,281,000, of which 763,626 men and 51,593 officers have been discharged to date. The rate of discharge again is nearing the maximum capacity of 1000 men per camp per day after an interruption by the holidays.

In addition to the regular regiments, the exceptions from the blanket demobilization order include the cavalry on the southern border, coast artillery troops in the coast defenses, detachments at ports and the medical personnel. This last force now numbers 95,000, but Gen. March said it would be reduced gradually as the number of men it had to care for was reduced.

FRENCH DIFFICULTIES.

Gen. March called attention to the fact that the French army was being demobilized by service classes, the only priority given being according to the number of children dependent upon the soldier.

Newspaper comment in France, Gen. March said, indicated that the French government was having the same difficulty with public opinion over slow demobilization as had been experienced in England.

Surgeon-General Ireland's attention having been called to a published report that wounded soldiers undergoing reconstruction instruction were forced to purchase raw materials upon which they worked, Gen. March emphasized that the government paid for all such material. He also denied another published report that the War Department was holding up reports of casualties.

TACOMA, Jan. 18.—The demobilization of the entire Thirteenth Division, Camp Lewis, was authorized in orders received today.

This order involves 10,000 men. An order was received a week ago to demobilize 8000 men, and, as this has not been completed, it was stated at camp that the execution of the new order will not be begun before ten days.

AMERONGEN (Holland) Tuesday, Jan. 14.—William Hohenzollern's illness, which manifests itself principally in the form of chills, is being aggravated by his constant worriment, the effects of which are plainly visible.

The former German Emperor looks to be perhaps fifteen years older than when he crossed the frontier of Holland. Although he is only about to complete his sixtieth year, his appearance suggests a man of seventy. He wears a short grayish beard and a drooping mustache, and his hitherto firm flesh is now sagging.

The ex-Emperor, who had always been accustomed to smoke a considerable number of cigarettes daily, now has become a greater consumer of tobacco than ever. As soon as one cigarette is finished he starts another.

Hohenzollern's meals with his wife are of the simplest possible sort. Water is the only beverage taken at table, but in the forenoon the ex-ruler drinks a small glass of light red wine and in the evenings a half-glass before going to bed.

WHICH is the more DEADLY ?

The Centipede, an inhabitant of the dry desert areas. At the end of each of its legs is a point as sharp as a needle. Clinging to whatever it attacks, it transmits its deadly poison by sinking these points into the flesh, and through them emitting its venom into the blood of its victim.

Here is shown a microscopic enlargement of pneumonia germs. These germs, or the germs of influenza and other deadly diseases often take hold and develop in the mucous membranes of the nose and throat which become inflamed and made sensitive by "common colds."

The very sight of a centipede strikes terror to the mind. It is one of the most feared of the earth's "crawling things"—yet it is no more deadly than the germs of pneumonia, and not as dangerous. You can see the centipede and can keep out of its way, but the pneumonia germ takes lodgment sometimes when you least expect it—and when its presence becomes known it is too late. "Common colds" inflame the mucous membranes and provide a fertile breeding place for the germs of pneumonia, influenza and other diseases which often prove fatal.

WAR RISK INSURANCE MADE MORE LIBERAL.

GOVERNMENT'S POLICY TOWARD SOLDIERS' DEPENDANTS HELD SEVERE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A more liberal policy in determining whether parents or others only part dependent for support on soldiers are entitled to government family allowances to supplement the soldiers' allotment of pay, has been adopted by the War Risk Insurance Bureau under the supervision of the new director, Col. Henry D. Lindsley.

Under the former management, the War Risk Bureau notified thousands of parents and other relatives of soldiers that after investigation it had been found that they were not dependent on the soldier, and that consequently the government's allowance as distinguished from the soldier's pay allotment, would be cut off.

In many cases restitution of payments already made was asked. This policy is considered too severe by Col. Lindsley, who indicated today that investigations hereafter would be limited mainly to actual fraud cases, and that if allowances had been wrongfully cut off they would be restored and back payments probably made. The decision in each case must depend on individual circumstances.

Payment of life insurance to the beneficiaries of men who have been killed or died in the service, does not depend in any way on dependency, it was explained.

Life insurance payments will be made in monthly installments soon after certification by the War Department of the death of the soldier or sailor, regardless of whether the person to whom the insurance is payable was dependent on the man in service.

There is no law nor regulation to prevent a soldier's beneficiary receiving both government compensation, given automatically for the death of a soldier, and also payment under the voluntary life insurance policies which most soldiers have taken out, it was stated.

Col. Lindsley has recommended to Secretary Glass that Congress be asked to adopt a resolution validating the payment of life insurance on the death of men in service, without waiting to ascertain definitely whether monthly premium payments have been made. This policy has been pursued in the past, but the comptroller of the Treasury recently raised a question concerning its legality.

CHIEF DEFENDS "Y" WAR WORK.

Canteens Operated at Loss, is Chairman's Report.

Articles Distributed Free are Valued at $1,400,000.

Paris Secretary in Statement Upholds Organization.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The extent of the free distribution of canteen supplies by the Y.M.C.A. is disclosed in a statement given out by William Sloane Coffin, chairman of the National War Work Council, based upon a cable message from E. C. Carter, chief secretary of the organization in Paris. Mr. Coffin said that the Y.M.C.A. had distributed free to soldiers canteen supplies to the value of $1,400,000. Besides this, the loss on operation of post exchanges overseas, exclusive of soldiers' stores in Great Britain, amounted to $332,181. This total, he explained, does not include the post exchange deficit for November and December. The figures do not show all the organization's free service, but, he said, they are an emphatic answer to the charge that the Y.M.C.A. has been profiteering.

"The loss of $332,181 on canteen service up to October 31, 1918, does not take into account the vast cost of operating post exchanges," he said. "Every business man knows how his expenses are increased by the items of rent and clerk hire. These items have been contributed by the 'Y' to the operation of 1500 post exchanges as a part of its programme of war service. In other words, entirely aside from the cost of operations, the Y.M.C.A. conducted its canteen service at an actual loss in spite of the fact that our arrangement with the army provided that this service should be conducted on a cost basis. The army has always made it plain to us that it preferred to have canteen service run on a cost basis, as it did not wish to have the soldier feel that he was being pauperized."

FREE DISTRIBUTION.

Referring again to the free distribution of canteen supplies by the "Y," Mr. Carter states that his figures are "undoubtedly substantially below actual distribution." His totals include only the giving away of sweets and smokes and hot drinks to men in the trenches, to prisoners of war returning from Germany and to soldiers who had not been paid for some time and were without money.

By actual figures he shows that the total value of supplies distributed free up to October 31 by the "Y" was $532,110. His November estimate is $186,486. To this combined total will be added the very large expense entailed by the elaborate Y.M.C.A. Christmas programme. The War Work Council authorized the distribution to every fighting man overseas of a gift that included two packages of cigarettes, a can of tobacco, a package of gum, five Christmas cards and a bag of candy. Consultation of latest price lists from overseas shows that these gifts could not have been assembled at a cost of less than 30 cents a man, or $600,000. Transportation difficulties in spots delayed, but did not prevent, the achievement of this programme. The grand total is obtained by estimating the December free distribution at $100,000 exclusive of the cost of Christmas gifts.

As illustrating the extent of the Y.M.C.A. free service, Mr. Coffin mentioned the free use of athletic supplies, valued at $829,499; the providing of amusements, and the stationery upon which millions of letters have been written home. The soldiers in the home camps wrote 14,089,305 letters on red triangle stationery in November alone. Some time ago the War Work Council appropriated $1,600,000 for stationery, estimating that the supply would last six months.

"There are very few branches of the Y.M.C.A. war service programme which are not free to soldiers and sailors," said Mr. Coffin. "In every one of those few branches where some charge is made the Y.M.C.A. is operating at a loss."

At the annual dinner of the West Side Y.M.C.A. at the Yale Club, Mr. Coffin supplemented this statement and devoted the greater part of his address to a defense of the organization. He referred to recent articles on the attitude of the men in France toward the Y.M.C.A. and declared that criticisms aimed against the organization were often untrue in detail and generally unfair by inference. Reciting the programme of the Y.M.C.A. among the soldiers, Mr. Coffin said:

"When you think of the enormousness of the Y.M.C.A. programme, you gasp at its audacity, forgive its errors, and thank God it has made 50 per cent. good."

The speaker denied that extortion had been practiced, and asserted that it would require a fund of $40,000,000 to enable the organization to give everything away. In defending the salaries paid the secretaries, Mr. Coffin pointed out that unlike the soldier the workers had to pay their own board, which he said was very high in any part of France.

The Y.M.C.A. has met with the approval of men such as Premier Clemenceau and Gen. Petain, he said, the latter asking him recently to arrange to put the "Y" hut in every French camp.

Taking up the personnel of the Y.M.C.A., the speaker asserted that it averaged higher than similar organizations.

"You must remember," he said, "that we had to pick 7000 men out of every walk of life. In that number you had many untrained men. Unquestionably there are a number of freaks and idiots. That is not at all surprising."

The complaint will allege, according to Bell, the resolution was not read three separate times in the Legislature, as provided by the law.

Gov. Stephens has been served with the notice of the amended complaint. Last Tuesday, he was served with an order temporarily restraining him from signing the prohibition amendment. A hearing on the original and amended complaint will be held Monday.

CALIFORNIA SOLDIERS DISCHARGED IN TURN.

CAMP LEWIS DENIES DISCRIMINATION IN DEMOBILIZING TROOPS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CAMP LEWIS, TACOMA (Wash.) Jan. 18.—Replying to charges made by Chairman Crombie Allen of the Military Affairs Committee in the California Legislature that California soldiers were being held here while Washington men were given the preference in the discharges, division officers today said it was untrue.

War Department orders, issued for the demobilization of the men, they pointed out, are that men from this State, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and as far east as Minnesota will be discharged here and given travel pay to the point wherefrom they were inducted at the rate of 3½ cents a mile.

There are two demobilization points in California, at the Presidio, near San Francisco, and at Camp Kearny, near San Diego. The demobilization orders from the Adjutant-General of the army are that men from California will be discharged at these two points and will be sent from here, so far as practicable, in troop trains.

If there are fifty men from Washington, Oregon or any of the States in the Camp Lewis demobilization area to be discharged on the same day that a similar number from California are ready, those from the Camp Lewis territory are discharged while, according to the War Department order, those from California must go there before being released.

The difference in the time is the number of days it takes to reach the California discharge stations and two days thereafter of the necessary clerical work to be done there before the men can be released. Officers were vigorous in their assertion that Tacoma had nothing to do with the discharge of the men.

UNIONISTS IN ENGLAND DEMANDING SHORT DAY

SOME INSIST ON HIGHER WAGES WITH LESS HOURS OF WORK; TROUBLE FEARED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 18. — Industrial unrest, prevalent throughout the country, is causing serious anxiety, not only to large employers, but to conservative labor leaders. The labor leaders taking this attitude include J. H. Thomas, general secretary of the Railway Men's Union, who yesterday warned a meeting of postal workers, who were demanding a forty-two-hour week, more holidays and curtailment of night work, that "the industrial and economic position of this country gives cause for alarm."

The postal workers are only one of many trade unions which are demanding shorter hours with the present or better pay.

The attitude of the miners has caused most comment, as coal and its price more directly affects the public. It is estimated that to grant a 30 per cent. increase in wages would send the price of coal up at least a dollar a ton.

Beside the miners, shipbuilding employees on the Clyde and other districts are agitating for a forty-hour week with a daily wage of £1. Dock laborers are demanding a forty-four-hour week.

The carpenters are asking a forty-seven-hour week. Dockworkers are agitated over the shortage of beer and the poor quality of that beverage, and during the week there has been much slackening, particularly at Liverpool, from this cause. There has been a temporary shortage of beer at some shipping points, due to a strike of brewery employees, who also complain of long hours.

All these unions are strong numerically and well organized and from the tone of speeches at their meetings the members apparently are prepared to go to extremes in their efforts to have conditions of labor improved along the lines laid down in their resolutions.

There also have been minor troubles in the labor world. One of these affected the crew of the liner Adriatic. The sailing of the vessel for New York with a full list of American passengers has been delayed several days and there is no indication of a settlement.

EXCESS PROFITS TAX AGREED BY CONFEREES

EIGHTY PER CENT. LEVY FOR WAR CONTRACTS GAIN FOR 1920 ACCEPTED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Senate rates for taxing war excess profits of corporations in 1920 and thereafter, estimated to raise about $1,600,000,000 annually, were agreed to today by conferees on the war revenue bill. A decision on the 1919 rates was deferred.

Senate conferees agreed to extension of the 80 per cent. war profits levy in 1920, applicable only to war contracts which still may remain.

The Senate rates for 1920 provide for taxes of 20 per cent. on corporations net income in excess of credits allowed and not in excess of 20 per cent. of invested capital, plus 40 per cent. of the amount in excess of 20 per cent. of invested capital.

BARRAGE OF FLOWERS WELCOMES GRIZZLIES.

CALIFORNIA TROOPS ARRIVE AT SAN FRANCISCO TO BE DEMOBILIZED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—Barrages of roses and carnations greeted the One Hundred and Forty-fourth Field Artillery, the "Grizzlies," as they marched up Market street today returning to their homes from France. Thousands of people lined the sidewalks greeting the soldiers as they moved toward the Presidio, where they will be demobilized.

On arrival at the Ferry Building from Oakland, the soldiers each received a carnation and were welcomed by Mayor Rolph and a committee of 150. A copy of the Mayor's official welcome was handed to each soldier, as was also a message from W. G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, who is resting at Santa Barbara.

Behind a platoon of police, the Mayor and his special committee, a detachment of French Siberian expeditionary forces and the one-minute girls of the War Camp Community Service, the Grizzlies began their march up Market street. At the Mothers' Arch, erected in honor of the returning soldiers, the one-minute girls dropped out of line and pelted the marching forces with flowers.

Four bands in the parade or along the line of march aided the citizens in extending a welcome to the artillerymen. The regiment, organized in San Francisco, contains men from various parts of California, and is commanded by Col. Thornwell Mullally.

At the civic center the artillerymen were reviewed by Mayor Rolph, and then were granted an opportunity to greet their friends and relatives. From the Civic Center the artillerymen marched to the Presidio, having refused the offer of the War Camp Community Service to furnish automobiles.

OAKLAND, Jan. 18.—Arriving at Oakland mole from the south at 1 o'clock this morning in a special Santa Fe train in four sections, San Francisco's volunteer regiment, the Grizzlies, left for San Francisco aboard a special ferry at 9 o'clock. An hour before departing, the regiment was served hot breakfast at the Red Cross canteen on the mole. An Owl boat from San Francisco at 3 o'clock in the morning brought a delegation of one-minute girls, under Maj. Peggy Wilmeth, who took telephone messages for the home folk through the car windows.

SPOKANE, Jan. 18.—The Three Hundred and Forty-sixth Field Artillery, the first unit of the Ninety-first Division to return from France, will be welcomed to Washington during a two-hour stop here January 23, it was announced by the Chamber of Commerce today. The regiment, which comprises men of the Western States, left New York Friday.

MEMORIAL SESSION.

In Washington the joint session of Congress will be convened at 3 o'clock to pay tribute to Mr. Roosevelt's memory. The members of the Supreme Court, the President of the United States, the members of the Cabinet and all the members of the Diplomatic Corps have been invited. Joseph G. Cannon, veteran member of the House and Speaker of the House of Representatives during the administration of Col. Roosevelt, will preside.

Henry Cabot Lodge, senior Senator from Massachusetts, leader of the Republican party in the Senate and lifelong friend of the late President, will deliver the principal eulogy. Other tributes will also be spread on the rolls of Congress by distinguished public men and at the same moment the hundred million Americans will offer such a memorial as few men in all the world have had and certainly no American's memory will have been more honored or revered.

STATE ASKED TO SHARE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—The State Council of Defense today received a telegram from the National Council of Defense urging all State, county, community and municipal councils to do everything possible to make successful the nation-wide Roosevelt memorial exercises to be held simultaneously on February 9, the date selected for exercises in Congress.

The telegram is signed by Grosvenor B. Clarkson, director of the National Council of Defense.

PROFITS OF PACKERS TREBLED DURING WAR.

EXPERT ACCOUNTANT SWEARS FOOD BOARD REGULATIONS DID NOT BENEFIT PUBLIC.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. — Food Administration regulations neither regulated profits of the meat packers nor benefited the public, Stuart Chase, an expert accountant employed by the Federal Trade Commission, told the Senate Agriculture Committee today, presenting figures to show that profits of the five big packing concerns had doubled and trebled during the war.

Mr. Chase, testifying at hearings on the Kendrick bill providing for government supervision of the meat industry, said no one knows accurately what the packers' earnings are because their methods of bookkeeping have the effect of covering up their profits. He declared, however, that examinations by the commission of the books of Armour & Co., Morris & Co., Swift & Co., Wilson & Co. and the Cudahy company showed their aggregate profits in 1912 were $18,715,000, and in 1917, $95,639,000.

Based on capital stock, Mr. Chase said, Morris & Co.'s profits in 1917 were 267.7 per cent. and Armour & Co.'s profits in 1916 were 114.2 per cent. Because of a later increase in capital stock the percentage for Armour & Co. dropped to 27.1 in 1917. Swift & Co.'s profits in 1917, on the same basis, were 63 per cent., while those of the Cudahy company in 1917 were 23.2 per cent., based on capital stock and surplus. Wilson & Co.'s earnings for 1917 were 29.6 per cent. on capital and surplus.

The witness said Thomas Wilson, president of Wilson & Co., receives an annual salary of $125,000, and Vice-President Valentine of Armour & Co., receives $50,000 salary annual with a bonus of $35,000. He said he thought Vice-President White receives the same amount, while President Morris of Morris & Co., is paid $50,000 salary with $25,000 additional for being president of the stock yards company.

Senator Norris of Nebraska sought to ascertain from Mr. Chase as to whether the packers' books showed any expenditures made for influencing legislation. The witness said he recalled seeing entries in Armour & Co.'s books showing payment of legal fees to attorneys, principally in State capitals, for services in introducing bills and watching legislatures. He said he did not believe the whole amount would exceed $50,000.

The hearings will be resumed tomorrow with Francis J. Heney again on the stand.

DENIES YANKEES TOOK SIDES IN LUXEMBURG.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Friday, Jan. 17.—General headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces officially denies the story printed in some American newspapers that the American army on its entry into Luxemburg suppressed a movement directed against the existing government.

When the troops entered Luxemburg, Gen. Pershing issued a proclamation setting forth the reasons for the occupation and assuring the inhabitants that the American army would not interfere in the internal affairs of Luxemburg.

The entire spirit of the proclamation, it is declared, has been carried out by the army during its stay on the soil of the grand duchy.

BOLSHEVIKI ASK PEACE PARLEYS

Proposals for Negotiations with Entente are Made.

Reds Demand Amnesty for Crimes and to Keep Loot.

Distress at Moscow Increased by Rigor of Winter.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Foreign Minister Litvinoff of the Russian Bolshevik government has made several proposals on behalf of the soviet regime, through the medium of a friendly emissary, for the opening of peace negotiations with the Entente, according to the Evening Standard today. None of these propositions has been substantial enough to receive serious consideration either in Paris or London.

The main contentions of the Bolsheviki are that their regime be maintained intact, with amnesty for all crimes committed in their name, and that their confiscation of property and money be recognized as lawfully-enacted measures.

NAME NEW GOVERNOR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 17.—Lieut.-Gen. Eugene Karlovitch Miller today was appointed Governor-General of the Region of the North and ex-officio commander-in-chief of Northern Russian troops. The active troop commander will be Gen. Harushevsky.

These and other changes in the government here were made in connection with the departure next week to Paris of Nicholas Tschaikowsky, provisional President of North Russia.

N. B. Luboff will be president of the ministry, with the portfolios of agriculture and public instructions. Gen. Miller will supervise foreign affairs. As a compromise between the conservative and Socialist groups, M. Ignatieff, who leans to the Socialists, has been appointed Minister of the Interior.

President Tschaikowsky delayed his departure for Paris to await the arrival of Gen. Miller.

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—Viscount Uchida, Foreign Minister, last night dined with party leaders of the lower house for the purpose of anticipating interpellations in the Diet. The Foreign Minister showed no desire to reveal complete details of plans concerning the Siberian railways, pending a decision as to their practical operation, but assured the gathering that a complete understanding had been reached with the United States regarding Japan's proximity, and as to relations with Siberia, towards which Japan stood in the same position as the United States toward Mexico.

Since Alexander Kerensky's tenure of office as Russian Premier the relations of the Americans toward the Siberian railways have been of the closest, Viscount Uchida said. The complete organization and the supplies of the United States had been most advantageous to the Allies. The Chinese Eastern Railway rights will be returned to Russia, the Minister declared, but will be exercised under an Allied committee, on which American and Japanese representation will be the largest.

The radical question, not affecting Japan alone, must be referred to the Peace Conference, he concluded.

Press comments on Viscount Uchida's address to the party leaders were favorable.

HEARING IN VENTURA SCHOOL CASE ENDED.

SUPERINTENDENT ASKS LAW TO STOP CRITICISM OF STATE INSTITUTIONS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VENTURA, Jan. 18.—After two days' hearing in this city, the taking of testimony in the case of the administration of the California School for Girls here was completed, and tonight the members of the State Board of Charities and Corrections who heard the case went to San Francisco. A verdict is not anticipated for at least ten days, according to information given out by the members of the board previous to their departure.

The first witness today was Dr. Grace Fernal. She emphasized the fact that in the testimony in Los Angeles she did not mention the name of any girl. Mrs. Weymann, superintendent of the school, continued her testimony from yesterday of charges made against the school. She said that these were from discharged employees of the institution in most cases. Mrs. Weymann insisted that these witnesses had an animus against the school and were willing to testify because they were disgruntled. She presented affidavits without names, showing that some of the matrons who had left had not been loyal to the policy of the school. She had read into the record letters showing that many cases which came to the school should really have been hospital cases.

She admitted that water was used in certain hysterical cases and in times of riotous behaviour, but declared that no water treatment has been given since 1917.

Mrs. Weymann then presented to the board a remarkable letter which, if the recommendations in it were carried out, would forbid all criticism of the school here through the press without much preliminary red tape. Her communication reads:

"There have been charges preferred against the California School for Girls, a State institution. These charges were made by a group of people who are apparently neither familiar with the problem of delinquent girls or the conduct of said institution.

"The State of California, through legislation, has established certain boards who are authorized and empowered to investigate the conduct of all State departments and institutions. Serious injury results from publicity given to unofficial judgment passed on institutions such as the California School for Girls. In consideration of these facts, I hereby earnestly request and urge your board to immediately prepare and present to the Legislature of California, now in session at Sacramento, a bill providing for the prosecution of any person or persons who may attack a State department or institution without first appealing to and permitting the boards appointed by the Governor of the State, having constituted authority in such matters, to first investigate and report.

"Very respectfully yours,
[Signed]
"MRS. C. M. WEYMANN,
"Superintendent California School for Girls."

NEWS CORRESPONDENTS REPLY TO PROPOSALS.

AMERICAN PRESS REPRESENTATIVES ACCEPT WITH RESERVATION OFFERS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The first formal session of the Peace Conference was opened free to the press of all nations. How many of the succeeding sessions will, by decision of the conference, be held in camera has not been indicated, but the American newspaper men, and probably also the British and Italian, are preparing to reopen the question of publicity if they should decide that the flow of news is impeded by rules of secrecy.

In a formal communication to the conference the Americans assumed that the rule forbidding the delegates to discuss the doings of the conference with the correspondents would not be enforced. While no announcement on this subject has been made, it is learned on the authority of delegates that the rule does still obtain.

What action the correspondents will take will probably be developed next week, when the exact character will be determined.

Following is the text of the communication sent by the American newspaper men to the supreme council:

"The American press delegation acknowledges the reply of the Peace Conference to the resolutions addressed to them. The delegation notes that the decision 'that representatives of the press shall be admitted to the meetings of the full conference' is an acceptance of the principle of direct press representation for which the press of America, Great Britain and Italy and smaller nations have contended.

"The value of this principle, however, turns on the extent and frequency of its limitations in practice. The Peace Conference announces its intention to limit it to the extent that on necessary occasions the deliberations of the conference may be held in camera.

"Without assent on our part to this limitation, we trust that if ever it is applied, the public will be advised through the press at the outset of each session in camera of the subject to be discussed and the name of the delegate or delegation making the motion to go in camera and at the close of the session the conclusions of agreement reached.

"In view of the fact we have not been advised to the contrary, we assume that any rule designed to prohibit communication between individual delegates and the press on the subjects of the conference has now been abrogated and that the press is to have access to the verbatim records of proceedings.

"We call the attention of the Peace Conference to our request for not fewer than five direct press representatives at each session of the conference and we submit that because of the manner in which the several press associations serve the newspapers of America and because of the attendance upon the conference of numerous individual press representatives the American newspapers cannot carry on their business of informing their vast public with fewer than five representatives."

After Influenza-What Then?

OH, MY BACK!

After this Spanish influenza has swept the country almost like the "black death" did in Europe in the Fourteenth Century, after the storm has passed, we are confronted by the wrecks of men and women who have been left in a weakened condition, with pale faces and feelings of general lassitude and weakness. It is a fact to be borne in mind that the effort on the part of nature to throw off the poisons during the attack of Spanish influenza results sometimes in nephritis, or inflammation of the kidneys.

In view of the seriousness of this disease as a result of toxemia, it is most essential that treatment be directed towards prompt elimination of the toxins (poisons) from the body. This means that the excretory organs—the bowels, skin and kidneys—should be excited to their best efforts to throw off the poisons. Send to the drug store and get castor oil, or a pleasant laxative such as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, which are made of May-apple, aloes and jalap, and take these every other day. This will excite efficient bowel action. At the same time, if you suffer from backache, irritation of the bladder and the kidneys, shown by the frequent calls to get out of bed at night, considerable sediment in the water, brick-dust deposit, perhaps headache in the morning, you should obtain at the drug store a simple tablet which expels the uric acid and the toxic poisons from the system. This is called "Anuric" (anti-uric), and was first put up by Dr. Pierce. By its action on the bladder and kidneys, it expels these toxic poisons.

To build up the strength and improve the blood—because after the influenza there are fewer of the white blood corpuscles and too few red blood corpuscles—take an iron tonic such as "Irontic" (to be had in tablets at drug stores), or some good herbal tonic such as one that has served the greatest usefulness for the past fifty years, namely, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made from wild barks and roots, without alcohol, and sold in tablet or liquid form.

BETTER CONDITIONS BETTER HOMES

Last week we quoted President Wilson's wonderful idea of "Good Will the Fundation of Business."

This week, we emphasize the broad vision expressed in a recently-published interview with Samuel Gompers, in which he said:

"The wage-earners of modern times have a larger and broader vision of individual responsibilities and of civic duties than their fathers had.

"Their children now go to school until they are at least fourteen years old.

"To a greater extent than ever before, wage-earners are giving their children the benefits of higher education.

"—making them accomplished in music, art and literature.

"—having them trained for professional careers.

"—dressing them better.

"—housing them better.

"Working men are entitled to something more than a bare living for themselves and their dependents.

"They are entitled to the comforts and refinements of life.

"—to be presentably dressed.

"—to go to concerts and lectures.

"—to have a home library stocked with good books.

"—to have a piano in the house.

"—to have a daintily furnished parlor for their daughters to entertain company in.

"Such things are NECESSARIES of life."

SOUTH WILL GET MORE SENATORS

Los Angeles to Benefit from New Apportionment.

Increase Expected in Number of Assemblymen.

Northern California's Majority to be Reduced.

BY HORACE W. KARR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 18.—When the new apportionment of Senators and Assemblymen is made at the forty-fourth session of the Legislature, Southern California will benefit more than any other section of the State, according to estimates made today by Secretary of State Jordan. Instead of only twenty-three Assemblymen, the seven southern counties will have thirty-two, and the number of Senators will be increased from eleven to fifteen, or possibly sixteen. The apportionment will be based upon the census for 1920, which it is estimated will show a total population in California of 3,500,000 and in the seven southern counties of 1,250,000. Of course, the biggest increase in the south will be in Los Angeles county, which ten years ago had a population of 504,131. Next year the population in Los Angeles county will be nearer 800,000.

There are eighty Assemblymen and forty Senators, and upon a basis of a total population of 3,500,000, the new apportionment for Assemblymen will be one for each 40,000 population and for Senators one for each 80,000 population.

LOS ANGELES BENEFITS.

There are now fifteen Assemblymen in Los Angeles county and the new apportionment should give us about twenty Assemblymen. There are now seven Senators in the county, and in the event the population jumps to 800,000 there will be ten Senators.

It will be hard for the northern counties, who have had an overwhelming majority in both houses, to give the south the added strength which the new apportionment assures. That an attempt will be made to hold off the apportionment as long as possible is more than probable. The law says that the apportionment must be based upon the Federal census, which is taken every ten years. It does not make it mandatory, however, that the apportionment be made every ten years. If it is not, however, the Constitution provides that the old apportionment shall stand.

Co-incident with the probable legislative action in 1921, Congress will reapportion the United States and this should give Los Angeles county three, instead of two, Congressmen. Congressmen are chosen upon a basis of 231,000 population. If the prognosticators are correct the county will get four Congressmen.

RANDALL AFFECTED.

This will be of considerable interest to the people of the present Ninth District, who feel they are misrepresented by Charles H. Randall. By the new apportionment his district, which has grown more than the Tenth in the past ten years, must be cut up and there will be a chance of fixing the lines so as to reduce Randall's strength to a minimum.

While the population of the seven southern counties has increased more rapidly than it has in the north and notwithstanding that at least one-third of the population is south of Ventura, our end of the State has been receiving less than 10 per cent. of the State patronage. It is estimated that about 90 per cent. of the State jobs are held by men living north of the Tehachepi. Of course, the Governor can change this unfair condition to some extent, but if he is backed by a larger representation in the Legislature the task will be made that much easier.

TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 18.—A proposal to seek a solution to the winter unemployment problem in California will be introduced next week by Senator Benson in the form of a resolution recommending the creation of a legislative committee to investigate the advisability of the State operating cement mills, rock quarries and similar plants where unskilled labor, usually active during the summer and fall on farms and in orchards of the State, could be provided with work in the winter months. Benson said he regarded the unemployment problem in California to be largely the outgrowth of seasonal conditions. "There are times in the planting and harvesting seasons when it is almost impossible for the growers to obtain sufficient labor, while in the winter there is no demand for these workers," Benson said.

Gov. Stephens's recommendation for action looking toward a revision of the State constitution was carried into effect by the Legislature this week with the adoption by both houses of a resolution submitting a proposal for a constitutional convention to a vote of the people at the next general election in November, 1920.

The Sutter by-pass controversy of other sessions may reappear, it was said by Legislators today. The Assembly drainage, swamp and overflowed land committee today approved a bill, providing that the State shall buy warrants of the Sacramento and San Joaquin reclamation district aggregating $300,000 to assure continuation of construction work on the east levee of the by-pass, and suggested the measure be rereferred to the Ways and Means Committee. The State reclamation board's levy of $10,500,000 for the work was opposed by residents of the district extending northeast from the by-pass to Yuba City who contended the building of the canal, designed to carry off flood waters of the Sacramento River and to reclaim large tracts southwest of the by-pass, brought a flood menace to their property.

ROCHAMBEAU REPORTED HEADED FOR HALIFAX; FOUR ARRIVE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HALIFAX (N. S.) Jan. 18.—The French liner Rochambeau, which left Bordeaux, January 8, with 883 American soldiers on board and which was reported at Hoboken today to have put in to Halifax on account of bad weather and poor fuel, had not arrived here up to 6 o'clock tonight. No word had been received here from the steamer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Coast artillerymen from Connecticut and scattered States and aero construction troops from Pennsylvania, Iowa and Oklahoma who reached port today on the armored cruiser South Dakota went through a storm two days out from Brest described by naval officers on the warship as one of the most tempestuous they had ever experienced.

Mountainous waves buffeted the vessel and one demolished the pilot house, injuring Capt. Luby, Commander Caldwell and a number of officers and sailors on duty. Commander Caldwell was disabled for a week and his companions were badly cut and bruised.

In the midst of the storm, with waves at times running forty feet high, two army surgeons performed an operation for appendicitis upon a soldier aboard the South Dakota.

When the condition of Corp. E. O. Williams of the Fifty-sixth Coast Artillery was pronounced dangerous the war vessel lay to in order to facilitate the operation. Lashed to the table, the surgeons accomplished their delicate task between lurches of the ship, and today the artilleryman was removed to a hospital on the way to recovery.

Troops aboard the President Grant, which also arrived today, included the headquarters company of the Eighth Field Artillery Brigade, two officers and forty-one men and the following field artillery regiments: Second, thirty-two officers, 1434 men; Eighty-first complete; Eighty-third, twenty-three officers, 1371 men; Co. H, Three Hundred and Forty-seventh Infantry, four officers and 207 men, also was aboard. All these troops are regulars.

Aboard the President Grant also was the One Hundred and Thirteenth Trench Mortar Battery consisting of nine officers and 121 men.

The United States cruiser Montana arrived today from Brest, carrying 71 officers and 1294 men. These troops comprise the Third Trench Mortar Battalion, 25 officers and 662 enlisted men; the Fourth Trench Mortar Battalion, 29 officers and 632 enlisted men, and 17 officers from the Fifty-sixth Regiment of Coast Artillery.

NEWPORT NEWS (Va.) Jan. 18.—The transport Hudson, bringing 2490 soldiers, arrived here today. Aboard her were Companies I, F and K and a medical detachment of the Fifty-sixth Engineers; casual companies composed mainly of southern troops. The Three Hundred and Fourth Field Hospital Company of the Thirty-first Sanitary Train; the Second Heavy Mobile Ordnance repair shop, and nineteen casual officers and 420 sick and wounded.

Departure from French ports of the battleships New Jersey and Nebraska and the transports Haverford, Maui and Zeelandia, with returning troops, was also announced. The battleships with the Zeelandia are scheduled to arrive at Newport News; the Haverford at Philadelphia, and the Maui at New York. The vessels are scheduled to arrive on and between January 25 (Maui) and January 30 (Haverford.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Assignment to early convoy home from France of units comprising 250 officers and 6500 men was announced today by the War Department. The units include the Eleventh Engineers, complete; Three Hundred and Seventy-second Infantry, Medical Detachment and Second Battalion; Three Hundred and Seventy-first Infantry; Fifteenth and Sixteenth Engineers, and Third Evacuation Ambulance Company.

MENTIONING WHIPPLE AS ATTORNEY-GENERAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Sherman Whipple of Boston, a lawyer of national reputation, is being mentioned here in administration quarters as likely choice for Attorney-General to succeed Thomas W. Gregory, whose resignation from the Cabinet becomes effective March 4.

Some of the friends of Senator Lewis of Illinois, who retires from the Senate, still insist that he has a chance for the Attorney-Generalship and that he will be named if it is decided to award the appointment to the Middle West. Senator Lewis does not talk about the matter.

ELECT BANK DIRECTORS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALIPATRIA, Jan. 18.—The stockholders of the two banks here this week elected their boards of directors for the coming year, as follows: The Farmers' and Merchants' National re-elected the members of the old board. They are Fred B. Mills, W. A. Kennedy, D. D. Brownell, A. T. Moore, A. J. Erichsen, C. E. Guest and O. K. Thomas. The First National Bank elected W. B. Coberly, Ira Aten, J. A. Godwin, W. E. Young, V. R. Sterling, W. T. Dunn and H. H. Foulton. The three last named were re-elected.

PACKERS PLANNED TO CARD INDEX CONGRESS.

HENEY TELLS OF SCHEME TO KEEP TAB ON EACH MEMBER'S ATTITUDE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Francis J. Heney, counsel for the Federal Trade Commission in its meat-packing inquiry, told the Senate Agriculture Committee today of plans which he said the packers had discussed for a joint office in Washington, with a card index on the attitude of Congressmen toward legislation. He said the scheme was outlined by John Eversman, former secretary of the National Republican Congressional Committee, and included arrangements for contributions by the packers for Congressional campaigns.

Letterheads of the Republican committee, Heney said, were used by Eversman in correspondence in behalf of the packers. Senator Gronna of North Dakota stated he understood Mr. Eversman had not been in the employ of the committee for two years.

Senator France of Maryland inquired about relations between the packers and the Food Administration, declaring it improper for Food Administrator Hoover to "arrange meat prices behind closed doors" with the packers.

"Do you think it was proper for Mr. Hoover to retain in his office men on the pay rolls of the packers?" Senator Gore of Oklahoma asked.

"It was absolutely improper," replied Heney, who said he thought Mr. Hoover's efforts were directed toward "taking care of the middleman."

Senator Gore said that "with salaries of $1 a year from the government and $10,000 from the packers, there isn't much question of where the interest lay of men employed by the Food Administration."

Senator Norris of Nebraska said that he thought producers had been treated very unfairly by Mr. Hoover.

Heney said Mr. Eversman wrote V. D. Skipworth, vice-president of Wilson & Co., that he had "arranged with a representative of one of the largest press associations," who had the privilege of the House floor, to get advance information on legislation. Heney said the letter did not state what press association was meant and that he did not know its identity.

Alleged practices of the packers in boycotting railroads were described by Heney, who said abandonment of the M. K. & T. stock yards at Fort Worth, which competed with Swift & Co.'s yard, resulted from an agreement of the packing concern to route a certain percentage of its business over the M. K. & T. lines.

Asked by Senator Norris of Nebraska if this was not "a clear violation of the anti-trust law," Heney replied that "if not of the anti-trust law at least of the Clayton act." He added that the matter had been placed before the Department of Justice.

After today's hearing, Mr. Eversman said when the charge that he had arranged with an employee of a press association to get information on legislation first was made a year ago, he wrote to the chairman of the standing committee of correspondents at the capital, explaining he had asked his cousin, a young reporter, to give him the numbers and titles of bills pertaining to food after they had been introduced. He said he was told a mountain was being made of a molehill. The reporter in question was Willis J. O'Brien, who at that time and for a short time afterwards, was employed by the United Press Association.

Everett Brown, president of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, testifying before the House Interstate Commerce Committee today, said that government operation of stock yards would result in the packers buying direct from the producers, and that they would apportion districts among themselves, and the chances were that only buyer would go to each. Mr. Brown, and W. B. Tagg, president of the National Live Stock Exchange, who followed him, favored government supervision "along sane business lines."

LABOR BOARD AWARDS SUPPORTED BY NAVY.

BETHLEHEM COMPANY DISPUTE IS DISCUSSED BY TAFT AND DANIELS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Every power of the Navy Department will be used to force the acceptance by companies with which it has contracts of awards made by the War Labor Board, Secretary Daniels said today, after a conference with Joint Chairman Taft of the board, on the situation growing out of the Bethlehem Steel Company's refusal to put into operation one of these awards.

Mr. Daniels said he was taking up at once the question of how the department should proceed. It appeared, he said, that the Bethlehem company had agreed to permit collective bargaining and the establishment of shop committees among its employees, but as soon as the armistice was signed "the company lost interest."

Mr. Taft announced later that the War Labor Board would defer for ten days its decision on the complaint of Bethlehem Steel Company employees that the company had not lived up to the terms of awards.

BELIEVES HER SON LIVES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, Jan. 18.—Mrs. George Young of No. 713 Bay street, this city, believes her soldier son is alive, notwithstanding a telegram from the War Department briefly stating that her son had been killed in action on October 27. She has had letters from him as late as December 11 and 16. In one he mentioned being in the hospital with a throat affection. He wrote nothing about having been wounded. The young man was in Company E, Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., before he enlisted and went to Camp Kearny. Over in France he has been in a replacement battalion, it is said, and has seen service at the front.

NEITHER WILL GOOD.

FAIRBANKS'S LAWYER HERE FOR FILM WAR.

"BIG FIVE" WILL HOLD ANOTHER MEETING TOMORROW TO PERFECT PLANS.

Dennis F. O'Brien, attorney for Douglas Fairbanks, arrived last evening from New York, was met by Mr. Fairbanks and taken to the Fairbanks home at Beverly Hills. Mr. O'Brien is here to work out with Mr. Fairbanks and the other members of the "Big Five" combination of motion-picture stars the plans for their independent booking organization—the United Artists' Distributing Company.

Miss Mary Pickford hopes that she will be sufficiently recovered from influenza to take part in the conference, which will be held tomorrow between the stars. It is believed that the names of the executives of the new organization will be announced soon and a statement issued to the exhibitors as to the method of distribution of the "Big Five" films direct to the exhibitors in the open market.

Most of the prominent figures in the film industry greeted friends in the lobby of the Alexandria last night and discussed the latest attacks and counter-attacks in the great film war. There were reports that Charlie Chaplin, also present last night at the Alexandria, had been offered and had refused a large sum of money by the First National Exhibitors circuit to break away from the other four stars and sign a contract for more pictures with the First National at huge figures. Mr. Chaplin would say nothing about the matter, except that he stood by his signed agreement. Another report was that William S. Hart had weakened and had succumbed or was succumbing to offers from the camp of Field Marshal Adolph Zukor. This was also denied flatly by Mr. Hart's representatives, who stated that Mr. Hart is most enthusiastic over the new plan.

W. P. WHITSETT, Van Nuys.

UNION MENACES CITY H

Threats from a walking delegate of the Metal Trades Union, who said that unless a man "walked off" the job on the City Hall tower the union would "put it on the blink," caused Chief of Police Butler last night to assign two uniformed policemen to watch for possible acts of violence at the City Hall.

First intimation that the local Metal Trades Union intended to begin a course of "frightfulness" became known yesterday noon when an employee of Emil Brown & Co. of No. 114 East Ninth street, which is doing the metal work on the City Hall tower, reported to Mr. Brown that a man had approached him and stated that unless he "walked off" the job and held out for $5.50 a day, his organization would "put the job on the blink." Mr. Brown immediately got in touch with J. J. Backus, chief of construction for the city, who immediately visited police headquarters. Chief Butler's

COL. NEWTON HEARING IS NEARING A CLOSE.

ONE OF THREE COUNTS IN AFFIDAVIT CHARGE STRICKEN OUT BY COURT.

One of the three specifications making up the charges that Col. Harry H. Newton made a false statement in connection with an exemption affidavit filed by George Hess, an employee at Fort McArthur, was stricken out yesterday by the court-martial board conducting the hearing. This action was taken after objections were made by Attorneys Frank Dominguez, Paul Schenck and Col. Adna Clark, representing Col. Newton.

The striking out of one of the three specifications leaves two that are said to be of a similar nature. These will be taken up at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the court-martial board meets in the Central Building. The charges in connection with the alleged irregularities connected with the handling by Col. Newton of guarantee funds deposited by contractors during the construction of Fort McArthur buildings have been heard and a decision reached by the board. The findings were sent to Washington for approval.

This leaves only the charges in connection with the Hess affidavit, Attorney Dominguez said last night.

DIES SUDDENLY WHILE VISITING SICK FRIEND.

W. F. Loggins of No. 1303 East Twenty-seventh street died suddenly yesterday afternoon while visiting a sick friend in a hotel at No. 618½ West Sixth street. The Coroner declared the death from natural causes and ordered the body removed to the parlors of E. E. Overholtzer.

Officer Who Served with Custer Dies.

I am Sincere! Stop Calomel! I Guarantee Dodson's Liver Tone

Listen to me! Calomel sickens and you may lose a day's work. If bilious, constipated or headachy read my guarantee.

Liven up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel, because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury, or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents under my personal money back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning, because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

CHANGE IN CHARTER, PLAN AT PASADENA.

PROPOSED PLATOON SYSTEM FOR POLICE, FIRE DEPARTMENTS, ALSO PENSIONS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Jan. 18.—Beginning Monday petitions will be circulated calling for submission to the voters a charter amendment, providing for the installation of the two platoon system in the fire department and for a pension fund for the police and fire departments.

Under the terms of the proposed amendment, there would be created a Fire and Police Pension Board, consisting of the chief of the fire department, the chief of police department and three others from these departments. It would be their duty to designate the beneficiaries of the fund and otherwise administer it.

The amendment provides that when a member of either department has served twenty years and has attained the age of 55 years he shall be retired upon a pension equal to one-half his salary for the remainder of his life. In case the man pensioned should die, his widow would be paid one-third the amount of his salary during the remainder of her life, or until she remarried, and in case of her death this amount would go to the children until they reached the age of 16 years. Provision also is made for death before a man reaches 55 years of age, and for sick and accident benefits.

The two platoon system proposed would call for firemen to work not more than ten hours on the day shift and not more than fourteen hours on the night shift, the shifts to alternate week by week. At present the men are on duty twenty-four hours daily.

SITUATION BETTER.

The influenza situation is improved today. Only sixty new cases were reported. Under the ordinance adopted yesterday the wearing of masks begins at 5 o'clock today. Throop College will be closed the next two weeks because of the influenza. There are fewer cases at the hospitals today than for ten days past. At one hospital, thirteen were discharged and only two applications for admission were received.

FIFTY PER CENT. JOIN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, Jan. 18.—In the membership campaign just closed, Thomas McCall, the chairman of the drive, turned over $5640.61 to the local Red Cross chapter. This was declared to be a remarkable showing, as it means that 50 per cent. of the population here joined the organization.

VENTURA SOLDIER IS HONORED IN FRANCE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, Jan. 18.—Lieut. Paul W. Penland of this city has been signally honored by being selected as one of the aides to President Wilson's party while in Paris.

Lieut. Penland is attached to the aviation service, and has won honors on various other occasions. He was one of the first California young men to leave for the battle front, going as a member of the ambulance unit from the University of California long before America entered the war. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Penland, well-known ranchers of the Las Posas district.

DRASTIC STEPS TO OUST FLU.

Long Beach Commission Stops Auditorium Meetings.

To be no Crowds While the Epidemic Prevails.

Officials Threaten to Close Places of Business.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Jan. 18.—Public gatherings of every description will be suspended during the present influenza epidemic, if the request to be issued Monday by the City Commissioners is complied with.

Ninety-three new cases of influenza and pneumonia were reported today, forty-nine of which were cases of school children between the ages of 4 and 18.

At today's conference of the commissioners further meetings in the municipal Auditorium were prohibited and the band concert schedule was postponed indefinitely. The bandmen, according to present plans, will be utilized as special officers to patrol the public market and keep the purchasers scattered and moving. The reading-room of the Public Library was also closed today. The schools were closed yesterday. Next week, it is believed, will see the lid clamped on this city more strictly than during the previous closing, and probably more stringent regulations issued than in any other city in the Southland thus far. Churches and Sunday-schools will not be interrupted this Sunday, but further public gatherings will be prohibited thereafter, it was declared.

"What we must do is to stop the crowds," said Commissioner of Public Safety Williams. "If we can get the public to stop voluntarily, well and good, but we can't compel them to do so without an ordinance forcing all business to close."

One of the problems to be worked out at the next meeting of the Commissioners, if business is not suspended entirely, is a plan of patroling the mercantile establishments to prevent the congregation of customers.

APPEAL FOR HELP.

The home service department of the local chapter of the American Red Cross today issued an urgent appeal for help. Housemaids, nurses and cooks especially are needed at this time, the appeal stated.

"DADDY" GREEN DIES.

Funeral services for Frank A. Green, more familiarly known as "Daddy" Green, for the past ten years district representative of the Southern California Edison Company, with headquarters in Long Beach, will be held Monday afternoon at St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Rev. Arnold G. H. Bode, pastor of the church, will officiate. The body will be escorted from the Mottell funeral parlors to the church by local Masons and Elks.

Mr. Green, who died suddenly at the California Hospital, Los Angeles, Friday night, had been suffering for the past year from heart and stomach trouble. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Lola Irene Fisher of No. 969 West Forty-second street, Los Angeles. He had just recently completed plans for a three-months' trip to Honolulu with his daughter.

The deceased was a well-known railroad man of the Middle West, superintending the construction of the first electric line in the West at Omaha, Neb., in 1889. For fifteen years he was connected with the legal department of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Consolidated Street Railway Company. He was a member of the Masonic, Elks, Woodman of the World, and Fraternal Union; also of the Chamber of Commerce, Business Men's Association, Taubman's Bible class and St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Interment will be made in the Inglewood mausoleum.

PLAN NEW BUILDING.

It was announced today the Long Beach Young Men's Christian Association would launch a week's campaign on April 8 to raise $250,000 for a new building at Sixth street and American avenue. Ground for the site of the building has been acquired from the Bixby estate for $15,000.

FLU GERMS QUIETING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 18.—At a meeting of the Board of Health here today with citizens of the city, the influenza situation was canvassed and it was found that conditions are rapidly improving. It was decided that there is no necessity for closing the schools or forbidding public meetings. It was also found that more cases have developed in the private social gatherings than in big meetings.

REDLANDS OVER TOP AGAIN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 18.—Redlands went over the top in the Armenia-Syrian relief, for over $3625, the local quota, was subscribed. Mayor A. E. Brock was in charge of the drive and was assisted by Raymond Hornby and E. J. Tripp. E. M. Cope put the city over the top when he gave his check for $500. Not all of the teams have reported and it is believed that the local subscriptions will be close to $4000.

EIGHTH PIPE ORGAN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 18.—The eighth pipe organ to be constructed in this city has been completed and given its try-out in the new $50,000 Loring Theater, which will open for its premiere next Wednesday night. The instrument is considered the peer of any so far installed in the city, with the exception of the cathedral organ of the Mission Inn.

BURGLARS INFEST TOWN OF IMPERIAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

IMPERIAL, Jan. 18.—Imperial last night was visited by a gang of professional burglars, according to reports made this morning to the City Marshal. Three gold watches disappeared from as many homes, a Ford was stolen from in front of a rooming-house on Main street, a purse containing $10 was taken from A. C. Nichols of San Diego, who is visiting his daughter, Mrs. C. E. Reynolds; and about $100 in cash was missing from the register in one of the business houses.

In the Adams and Brewer realty office several drawers were open in two desks, but nothing removed. One of the desks had $10 in change and the other a number of Liberty Bonds of large denominations.

PASTOR GIVEN CHOICE; LEAVE OR GO TO JAIL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, Jan. 18.—Rev. J. A. Stout, pastor of the Bethel M. E. Church, was found guilty in the Police Court this morning of displaying a weapon, the evidence showing that Mrs. E. H. Hurd, a leading member of the colored church, had been in a dispute with her pastor over letters he is alleged to have written casting aspersions on the character of her daughter.

It was asserted by several witnesses that Rev. Stout stopped on the way to church one morning and in the heat of the argument flourished a pistol of ancient vintage. This he denied, but the weight of testimony was against him. There was also evidence that the pastor owed Mrs. Hurd for laundry work.

Rev. Stout was given a ninety-day jail sentence, which was suspended on condition that he leave the city.

FILLMORE TO HAVE GAS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, Jan. 18.—That the city of Fillmore, situated in the rich oil region of Ventura county, will soon have a plant for the manufacture and distribution of gas for domestic purposes made from crude oil, seems practically assured. The matter was discussed at a meeting recently by Mayor Tighe and the City Trustees with a representative of an engineering firm.

As for the old-time palaces of the Demon Rum, they are fast going the way to salvation. One or two of them are now Bible halls, others will be shortly, it is said. Across the bar of one you now get, in place of the full schooners of other days, a flood of song and a windburst of pamphlets.

IN OLD BARRELS.

At another place, the bar is gone, and up-stage sit sundry women who, like the Lorelei of old, entice with song. They sit around the gospel table with its flood of literature, in a series of rocking chairs more or less creaky and uncertain. Perhaps six women and four men hold church. They talk among themselves, get interested and start to sing. They gather a crowd on the outside, and proceed to pass out the pamphlets. Then the meeting begins.

So it goes, new wines of salvation in old barrels of damnation; and the devil on the run.

HENRY FORD HERE TO REST, NOT TO TALK.

MOTOR KING'S SON, EDSEL, TELLS CALLERS DAD'S NOT TO BE SEEN.

Henry Ford arrived in Pasadena unexpectedly, yesterday, from his Michigan home and took a two-months' lease on a furnished house at Santa Rosa avenue and Alameda street. He was accompanied by Mrs. Ford, their son, Edsel Ford, 24 years old, who recently was made president of the Ford Motors Company at a yearly salary of $150,000, and the latter's wife. Henry Ford refused to see anyone yesterday.

"Come around in a couple of weeks and I think he will be ready to talk," said Edsel to a caller yesterday. "Just now he is resting and cannot see anyone."

"You will do very well as a substitute," remarked one eager interviewer. "Do you think there is any possibility of automobiles being further reduced in price this year?"

"I absolutely refuse to talk on anything for publication," came the answer.

The Fords have rented rather an unpretentious, but attractive house containing ten rooms, high enough up so that it overlooks the San Gabriel Valley.

One of Henry Ford's first acts on arriving in Pasadena was to call on John L. Simmons, a friend of long standing, who lives on a ranch at the mouth of Millard's Canyon.

COUNCILMEN BETTER.

Not Well Enough Yet to Pass Flu Legislation, However.

Councilmen Conaway and Farmer, who are victims of influenza, were reported last evening, as much improved, and members of Councilman Cleaveland's family, with whom he has been quarantined, as on the road to recovery.

The City Council will be enabled to secure a quorum for its business session tomorrow morning, but there will not be the required number of members to pass any emergency ordinance, and special legislation desired to aid in handling the influenza situation will have to await the assemblage of at least seven members of the Council.

Y.M.C.A. CONVENTION.

Seventh Annual Assemblage of "Y" Workers to Convene at Azusa.

The seventh annual county convention of Y.M.C.A. workers will be held at the Masonic Hall in Azusa on the 30th inst., and many sections of Los Angeles county will be represented.

This county ranks as one of the three leading counties of the United States in Y.M.C.A. work, and it is striving to take the lead in this trio. The Los Angeles county Y.M.C.A. had more than 1000 men and boys connected with its work during the past year.

EXTEND BIBLE LAND DRIVE.

At a meeting yesterday of the Executive Committee of the Armenian and Syrian Relief organization, it was announced that reports from all parts of Southern California are optimistic of the success of the drive. A report received from San Bernardino stated that that county is already over the top. Imperial and Riverside counties have raised above 75 per cent. and expect to be over by tonight. The city of Claremont is 200 per cent. over and is "still going," and town of Bell has gone 300 per cent. over. Inglewood and Covina are both considerably over the top, it was stated.

In the Los Angeles city district sickness has handicapped the workers, and they have been unable to turn in their reports. Through a concerted action in all the churches today it is believed they will add a considerable amount to what has been raised. The many large Catholic parishes throughout the city will make their solicitations today. The Southern California Baptists now in session in Hollywood have indorsed the work.

It has been found necessary to continue the drive through this coming week on account of the inability of some of the workers who have contracted colds. The Executive Committee therefore officially extended the drive until Sunday night, January the 26th and an intensive campaign will be conducted during this week by the hundreds of workers in an endeavor to raise the quota of $300,000 before Wednesday.

PAINTING WINS PARDON.

Drawing of Christ on the Cross Brings Robber Freedom.

That the recent commutation by Gov. Stephens of the sentence of Ramon Garcia, Mexican robber, was directly due to a picture of Christ on the cross, which Garcia drew on the walls of the County Jail at San Bernardino, where he was confined before being sent to San Quentin, became known yesterday.

The fame of the picture, drawn in March, 1917, spread and caused five judges of the State Supreme Court and the board of pardons to join in urging a pardon for Garcia. They were supported in the appeal by Judges Dewhirst and Curtis and Dist.-Atty. Duckworth of San Bernardino.

TO WATCH LEGISLATURE

City Attorney Goes to Sacramento on Municipal Business.

City Attorney Stephens left last night for Sacramento to remain until the Legislature gives its official approval to the city charter amendments adopted at the last city election. Mr. Stephens will also interview members of the State Railroad Commission for the purpose of ascertaining the status of the grade crossings and union terminal investigation, and the prospect of securing a complete report.

City officials feel that the determination of the Railroad Commission regarding the union terminal will have a vital effect in considering the location of the proposed civic center, and that it is useless to proceed on any plans for a new city hall until these factors are decided.

TO ENLARGE NORMAL SCHOOL.

President Moore of the Los Angeles State Normal School spoke before the City Club yesterday on the proposition to enlarge the scope of work of this school and make it really a branch of the State university. A special committee of members of the City Club presented a report indorsing the plan, and this was forwarded last evening to the State Legislature.

READING MATTER WANTED.

Mrs. Cora Lee Harris, wife of I. Henry Harris, the attorney, is very much interested in the County Hospital. She makes frequent trips to the hospital and her cheery presence is welcomed by the lonesome patients. The leper ward appeals to her. The patients are isolated and time hangs heavy. Mrs. Harris believes that reading matter sent to the lepers would make time hang less heavily on their hands.

FIND BIG PLOT TO LOOT CARS.

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Goods Stolen.

Three Suspects are Arrested; Others are Involved.

Hearing Tomorrow may Bring Startling Disclosures.

When Albert Volk, or Woelke, appears before United States Commissioner Long tomorrow afternoon, on a charge of shipping drugs from San Bernardino to Provo City, Utah, he will face two other prisoners and testimony will be introduced, it is said, to show a wholesale plot to loot the baggage and express cars of the Santa Fe in this part of the country.

It is estimated by the Federal officials here that thousands of dollars worth of goods shipped over the Santa Fe have been stolen within recent months. Express messengers and employees of the railway are implicated with Volk and others in the charges.

The case of Volk, or Woelke, on the charge of violating the Harrison anti-narcotic act was called before Commissioner Long yesterday, but a continuance until tomorrow was asked by Assistant United States District Attorney Lawson. An effort by counsel for Volk to obtain a reduction of the $1500 bail was denied by the court.

CONFESSION ALLEGED.

The other prisoners who will appear with Volk tomorrow are Eugene Stroup of San Francisco and A. Matot, an express messenger of the Santa Fe running from Colton east. These men will be brought here in the custody of deputy United States marshals. It is asserted that Matot has made a confession implicating Volk and others in the alleged looting. The stuff stolen is said to include expensive clothing, furs, jewelry and other valuable articles.

For some time goods have been missing from the express and baggage cars, and a watch was set with the result that Stroup and Matot were taken into custody, while Volk was arrested here on the drug shipping charge. It is said that the suit case containing the "dope" also carried a fine suit of clothes which it is said had been turned over to Volk by his confederates.

Special Agent Frank Johnson of the United States Treasury Department said yesterday that the full story will reveal a gigantic looting conspiracy.

When Volk was taken before the United States Commissioner yesterday, Mrs. Helen Fauser, who, in 1914, was charged, with Volk and others, with smuggling opium into the country, called on him and supplied him with half a dozen boxes of cigarettes. On her shoulders she wore a fine silver fox set of furs, said to be worth $500.

Volk is said to have operated with what is known as the Fauser gang of alleged smugglers, for some years. It was this gang that got Attorney Frederick M. Shepard in trouble, resulting in his disbarment and conviction on a charge of smuggling, Judge Bledsoe giving him a term in the Federal penitentiary at McNeil Island, which was afterward commuted by President Wilson to six months in the County Jail.

NINE AUTOS IN THIS ESTATE.

Widow and Son Named Beneficiaries of Twelve-thousand-Dollar Property.

Nine automobiles are listed in the $12,000 estate of Henry M. Mathews, whose will was filed yesterday for probate.

The beneficiaries under the will are the widow, Mrs. Ida R. Mathews of Los Angeles, and Mount H. Mathews, a son, of Fresno. Henry Mathews died at Fresno on January 12, last.

CALIFORNIA AVOCADO TREES FOR ORIENT.

The first avocado trees to be planted in China and Japan will go from Duarte, near Monrovia, early in March and are intended for the gardens of the Emperor of Japan and the President of China. This is announced by W. A. Spinks of Duarte, who says that with the trees will go a quantity of choice fruit.

Mr. Spinks's orchard was selected by a representative of the United States Department of Agriculture.

HELPS ARMY TO LAUGH.

Los Angeles Newspaper Man Director of Humorous Service Publication.

That a considerable amount of humor is essential in the entertainment of soldiers engaged in active duty is shown by the unusual amount of wit injected into the various soldier publications. Hundreds of "sheets" and pamphlets make their appearance in the American Army in France. These papers are usually edited by former newspaper men, and the humor in many is of a high standard.

Among these publications is "The Co-ordination Weekly Blade," edited by John M. Gallaghan, a former Los Angeles newspaper man. Two translations of a French letter describing the marriage of Mlle. Toute de Suite, illustrate fine Irish humor, the French point of view, the difficulties of translating and the manner in which the soldiers amuse themselves where shows are scarce. One translation is supposed to be an American. Here are some extracts:

"You will be happy to know that the marriage of the leader of the Charwomen's Social League was pulled off without a hitch last week in the presence of a large and representative bunch of people. The man of her choice was an American soldier of the "Buck" variety, hailing from the east side of New York, and answering to the name of Luke MacLuke. In civil life this gentleman devoted his time and talents to the transportation and delivery of ice. In the army he was attached to the general staff of the kitchen police, holding the responsible position of permanent 'pot walloper' with distinction.

BLUSHES PAINTED ON.

"Mademoiselle was dressed in the heighth of fashion, and looked very bewitching. The blushes, without which no bride would be complete, were painted with exquisite taste, though slightly overdone on the starboard side. Around her swanlike neck was a string of costly diamonds, which entered into friendly competition with the merry twinkle in her eyes.

"The top part of her tout ensemble was a petite bonnet of a delicate ginger color, with brilliant flashes of red, white and blue running fore and aft. The waist was of a pale pink flannelette, with sleeves made of cerise crepe de chine. This color scheme was selected with a view to camouflaging the result of a continuous mopslinging, and very effective from a distance. The skirt was a marvelous work of art. The color effect was taken from a field clerk's conception of a barrage fire by night. The cloth was a pongee silk, pleated five times to the square inch. The belt was made of Persian wolfskin with mauve and yellow stripes. She wore a pair of pale green stockings, encased in dainty tennis shoes. Madame offered to give me a complete list of the garments that composed her trousseau, but being a single man, and I hope a gentleman, I declined to accept it.

"The bride was given away by her father with great enthusiasm."

The second translation, allegedly written by a French interpreter, starts thus:

WITHOUT A RENT.

"You will be happy to knowledge that the marriage of the Charwomen's Social League manageress has gone without a rent, the last week, in the presence of a great rogue representative. The man of her choice was an American soldier of the variety of the goat breed, come from the east of New York, and answering to the name of Luke MacLuke. In civilian life, this gentlemen devoted his time and his parts to the bearing and confinement of ice. In the army, he was tied to the G. H. Q. of the kitchen police, keeping the permanent posture of the pot boiler with a distinguished spirit.

"His miss was decked according to the latest fashion and breathed a very seductive air. Blushes, without which no bride would be finished up, were farded with exquisite taste, though slightly too much on the starboard. Around her neck of swan was a collar of dear diamonds which entered into friendly concourse with the happy hopping of her eyes.

"The higher part of her whole was a little cap of a delicate gin color. The bodice was of rose flannel with brilliant lightings, blue, white and red, running here and there. The sleeves were made of Cherry China pancakes; the assembly of colors was carefully chosen to camoufle the result of the work of a continuous broomstick. Her petticoat was a marvel of art. The effect of the color was taken from the idea of a secretary night barrage fire. The stuff was in silk pongee five times folded in each square; the waist was made of the hide of a Persian wolf with mauve and yellow grooves. She carried a pair of pale green stockings and small tennis shoes. The total result was very charming."

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of leftover waste, toxins and ptomain-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Adler-i-ka Again!

"Adler-i-ka is the only medicine for gas on the stomach. I never had so much relief with any medicine. I would not take $25.00 for the relief one bottle of Adler-i-ka gave me. I cannot get done recommending it." (Signed) H. L. Hicks, Ashley, Ill.

Adler-i-ka expels ALL gas and sourness, stopping stomach distress INSTANTLY. Empties BOTH upper and lower bowel, flushing ENTIRE alimentary canal. Removes ALL foul matter which poisons system. Often CURES constipation. Prevents appendicitis. We have sold Adler-i-ka many years. It is a mixture of buckthorn, cascara, glycerine and nine other simply drugs. Dickinson Drug Co., Third and Main streets.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows

Prepare Now to Withstand the Crisis.

Do not anticipate with a shuddering dread the beautiful event of childbirth. You can avoid discomfort during the period and strain at the crisis by preparing your system and putting yourself in splendid condition to meet the time.

For just this purpose women all over the land, in every walk of life, have used for over half a century the time-honored and famous remedy, Mother's Friend. It is prepared to give the mother-to-be that direct help she needs. The muscles, nerves, tendons and cords are made and kept soft and elastic. Thus strain is avoided, and as a result nervousness, nausea, bearing-down and stretching pains are avoided.

The abdominal muscles expand easily and gently when baby is born. Naturally, pain is less and the hours are fewer. The system is prepared and the crisis is one of much less danger.

Write the Bradfield Regulator Company, Dept. M, Lamar Building, Atlanta, Georgia, for their helpful Motherhood Book, and obtain a bottle of Mother's Friend from the druggist today. It is just as standard as anything you can think of.

And remember, there is nothing to take the place of MOTHER'S FRIEND.

SPLENDID WORK FOR DISABLED SOLDIERS.

DOCTOR GIVES LOS ANGELES FRIENDS INSIGHT INTO AMERICAN WORK.

Dr. John W. Nevius, now a first lieutenant, located at the United States General Hospital No. 21, at Denver, in a letter to Los Angeles friends gives some interesting facts on what the United States is doing for the disabled soldier.

"I cannot help feeling glad that I am having a part in this great work here," writes Lieut. Nevius. "I doubt if ever before any nation has attempted such great things for its soldiers. Here is this immense tuberculosis hospital, the largest one in the world, I am told, located in this high, dry, sunny Colorado, supposedly the best location in the country. The men are brought here and given the very best care and the most scientific treatment that modern medicine can prescribe—not only without cost to themselves, but they are even being paid to take the cure.

"There are said to be some 17,000 cases so far discovered, and most of them can get well.

"A very large and complete school of reconstruction is being built, wherein the boys can study almost any subject desired. It is going to be a great thing for these boys, many of whom have never had an opportunity of studying anything before along these lines."

TELLS OF ARMY TREK.

Los Angeles Soldier Describes Yanks' Homeward March.

The homeward trek of the conquering hordes of Yanks now headed for ports of embarkation in France is entertaingly described by Harrison Saudek, a Los Angeles man with the hospital corps at Longres, France, in a letter to his uncle, Bernhard Fanta of this city. He says in part:

"Every day thousands of soldiers pass through this city bound for somewhere, but one knows very little what is going on in the army until he reaches the place he is sent to. The French seem to me about a thousand years behind the times.

"The woman who does my washing identifies it by sewing a little red thread of some peculiar design in it and she sews on a different one every time. They wash the clothes in an old-fashioned way, by beating them on rocks. One thing they do very well, and that is to charge. The French soldier receives only 25 centimes per day (about 5 cents) and the Americans with their $1 per look pretty good to the natives. I guess after the Americans leave all the shop-keepers will retire.

"I would like to send you all some kind of a souvenir but these are war times and the assortment is small and the prices really prohibitive. The women have taken the places of men in all of the occupations and they sure deserve a lot of credit.

"Here are some of the articles they sell and the prices they charge: Eggs, $1.15 per dozen; bananas, 16 cents each; nuts, about 50 cents per pound; old-fashioned molasses cake without any sugar on it, one pound, 65 cents. The natives drink very little water; with them it's nothing but wine, and when the American soldier comes with water in his canteen the French fill theirs up with vin blanc (white wine) and they sure do enjoy it."

LETTER DEPICTS RUIN OF RHEIMS

Wanton Destruction by Huns is Told by Angeleno.

Gurney Newlin Would Leave Cathedral Untouched.

Would Stand as Monument to Futile German Creed.

Among the most interesting letters written from the European war zone to persons residing here are those of Gurney Newlin, well-known Los Angeles attorney and Red Cross worker, to his mother, Mrs. T. E. Newlin. Mr. Newlin is now a major of the American Red Cross, and is deputy commissioner of that society to France. He is also chairman for the Paris zone of the American Red Cross.

Perhaps no more graphic description of the wanton devastation wrought by the Huns in France has been given than is contained in one of these letters of Mr. Newlin. Excerpts telling of a visit to the famous cathedral city of Rheims in latter November are as follows:

"The scene in Rheims is sad almost beyond description. Rheims was, before the war, a city of 100,000 inhabitants. It is now absolutely and totally destroyed. There is not in it a single building that is habitable, and all of the civilian population have vacated.

"Of course, naturally, our main objective was the cathedral. The beauty and texture of the cathedral has not been, try as the Huns would, destroyed. It has been very sadly marred, but the cathedral still stands intact, and all of the long-distance shelling and all of the bombing which the Germans deliberately directed against this greatest type of Gothic architecture in the world has been fortunately in vain.

DAMAGE OPPRESSIVE.

"From a distance the cathedral does not show the great injury it has suffered, although here and there one notices that a gargoyle or spire is missing, and upon reaching it and examining the wonderful beauty of every detail of its construction and ornamentation, the damage wrought becomes most apparent and almost oppressive.

"Here are a series of gargoyles missing, there are statues of saints badly disfigured. In another place an entire buttress has been blown away. The beautiful tracery of the stone carving on the doors and on the facade is pitted here and there by shrapnel from exploding bombs.

"Inside the destruction is almost more apparent than it is from the outside. In the perfectly stupendous nave of the church there are tremendous piles of debris, caused by shells and bombs falling through the roof. There was in one place a 305 shell that failed to explode, lying exactly where it fell, immediately below a tremendous hole in the stone roof.

"The windows are, of course, all broken to pieces, many of them torn out entirely, others hanging in shreds. The great rose window, the most beautiful in the world, has, I believe, been preserved, all of the glass having been removed prior to the bombardment. Some of the statues were removed, others have been dislocated and practically destroyed, while a few that were covered have remained, fortunately, intact."

NO POSSIBLE EXCUSE.

"The front of the cathedral has been damaged not nearly as much as has the rear, for the sole reason that the German guns were never able to reach the front, but only the rear and both sides, but every possible damage was created to the front of the cathedral by bombing from airplanes.

"There could have been no possible excuse for the damage and the attempted destruction of this cathedral. It stands by itself, and certainly never housed troops and was never used for military purposes. The archepiscopal palace, immediately adjoining, is completely destroyed, and it would appear that in trying deliberately to destroy the cathedral the bombs did not fall exactly where intended, and instead destroyed the palace.

"It seems to me that I have seen nothing in connection with the horrors of this war that has kept recurring constantly to my mind as has this violation of the cathedral, this destruction of beauty, for which there was no necessity, which cannot be reproduced and which was a monument that would have been, without its destruction, preserved forever to posterity.

TO SERVE AS WARNING.

"What France will do with regard to the repair of this cathedral I do not know. It can be repaired so that it will be kept intact, but it seems to me that it should be kept always, so far as the outside is concerned, in its present condition, because it shows in full the beauty there once was; it shows the beauty that still exists and shows more than all the destruction of that beauty, and it should be kept as a perpetual monument to German devastation and to German destruction, so that for all time all people may know what was attempted to be done and what was done by a people who believed only in might and whose sole creed was cruelty, and that it may thereby be forcibly a lesson for all time to all peoples who are inclined to readopt this creed, of its futility.

After leaving Rheims, we went along the Chemin des Dames and drove for a couple of hours through a section that has been a battlefield for four years. The country is absolutely pock-marked with shell holes. Piles of ammunition lie in all directions, French in some instances, German in others. There is not a town left as far as one can see. There is not a tree left that is not scarred and dismembered. There is not a field that could be cultivated. There is not an acre that does not show the effect of battle. There is not a half-mile in which there is not at least one, and often many crosses, some of them square, with German script showing the burial place of the Huns; others bearing the tricolor showing the resting place of the defenders of France, and others, far fewer in number, with the red, white and blue of our own country's marking, showing those who come to France from America to defend liberty.

"We went through, not once, but many times, the streets of what had once been prosperous, homely villages. In some of them were still a few walls standing. In a few of them even the four walls, although scarred, were left, but in most of them there was not a single wall of a single dwelling left intact.

"Before the war, the town of Craonne was a good-sized village of considerably over 1000 people. It was prosperous, the center of a population that prospered through agriculture. There is today no evidence whatsoever that there was ever a town there except a huge mass of sticks and stones. There is literally and actually not one single stone standing upon another. There is literally and actually no evidence of where any building stood or where any street had been. It looks merely like a tremendous dump, just a mass of rocks and sticks rising a little higher than the road that passes through it."

FOR IMPROPER ENTRY?

Eveidence Heard in Government's Suit Against Stookey, et al.

Register Groves and Receiver Mitchell of the local Land Office yesterday heard evidence in the action brought by the government against Byron P. Stookey, Lucy T. Powell, Louise B. Stookey, Harry L. Stookey, A. Halden Jones, Adele S. Jones, Margaret P. Stookey and Lyman B. Stookey, involving about 800 acres of land in the vicinity of Tehachepi, entered by the defendants under what is known as the Timber and Stone Act of the national land laws.

Special Agent Ira Lentz, representing the government, alleges that the entries were not made in good faith. The land is of a nonagricultural character, is rocky, and it has been the intention of the defendants to start a hog ranch on the premises, it is averred. Strenuous denial is made by the defendents that there has been any violation of the laws.

COULDN'T GO OVER, BUT HE GIVES BLOOD.

PRIVATE LONG VOLUNTEERS TO AID PNEUMONIA PATIENTS AT GENERAL HOSPITAL.

Self-sacrifice is shown on the part of Thomas O. Long, in a letter received yesterday by his father, United States Commissioner Long.

Young Long enlisted as a sailor, for service on the Waupum, at San Pedro, last July, and served before the mast on the voyage from that port to Chilean ports, where a cargo of nitrate was taken on, thence through the Panama Canal, to Philadelphia, where the load was discharged.

Here he quit the ship, enlisted and was sent to Camp Johnson, Jacksonville, Fla., then being transferred back to Washington, D. C., where he was made a guard at the Walter Reed General Hospital at Potomac Park, and was on duty at that establishment when the wounded soldiers began to pour home from France.

A week ago, a call was made for volunteers willing to supply their blood to be transfused into the veins of sick men, and young Long was the first man to rise in his place.

It is needless to say that Commissioner Long is proud of the boy. "He didn't get to go across," said he, "but he is doing the next best thing, by giving his life blood for the benefit of the pneumonia-stricken boys."

WITH POWER COMPANY.

Lieut. Noel Pike of the Ninety-seventh Engineers, who recently returned from Camp Leach, D. C., left yesterday for El Centro to take a position in the electrical department of the Southern Sierras Power Company.

CARRIED FAMOUS FLAG.

Sergt. Webb Took to Camp Lewis Standard Made by Forty-eight Patriotic Mothers.

That the "mothers' flag," the tribute of forty-eight patriotic mothers to their sons, sent by district board No. 17 to army cantonments, and which was flown in Belgium when a number of men of the Ninety-first Division were decorated with the Croix de Guerre, was carried to Camp Lewis by Sergt. Charles W. Webb a year ago, became known yesterday.

Sergt. Webb, who before joining the colors was district manager of the California Corrugated Culvert Company, is now in France with Co. B, Three Hundred and Sixteenth Ammunition Train. His work consisted largely of conveying ammunition to various points near St. Nazaire, where he is now located.

Sergt. Webb is 26 years of age and is a native of Oakland, where his family resides. He made this home in this city for a number of years with Mr. and Mrs. George H. Force of No. 1311 Crown Hill avenue. Mr. Force is chairman of the board of directors of the culvert company.

He is the author of the book, "Inside Facts of the Young Men's Christian Association in France," now being published. He has two sons in the army."

DID BEST WORK.

Rev. Dexter strongly defends the Y.M.C.A., and praises its work in France.

"Of course, some of the criticism directed against this organization is justified," he said, "such as playing into the hands of the tobacco trust by selling tobacco and cigarettes, the creeping in of politics into its government, and the inefficiency of some of its secretaries, I have no brief for the Y.M.C.A. on this score. But I contend that the Y.M.C.A. did better work both at the front and behind the firing lines than any other single organization. There may have been instances where it failed to get the supplies at the proper places, but in this regard it must be remembered that the commissary department of the army also failed at times."

Rev. Dexter related a story told him by a French major at Tours of the work of a Y.M.C.A. secretary. The incident occurred in the Argonne Forest. The doughboys had made an advance against the Germans and had gone so far that it was impossible for the commissary to get supplies to them. They were without food for a day and a half. Seeing their predicament, a Y.M.C.A. secretary got a mule, crawled out onto the battlefield, where shells were exploding all around him, took the harness off a dead horse, then searched through the village until he got an old French hearse, drove the hearse alongside of a truck loaded with foodstuffs, the driver of which had been killed in a vain effort to get to the famished troops, loaded the hearse with food, and, in the face of the German artillery fire, took the food to the American boys.

WON WORLD'S RESPECT.

"The greatest thing that this country derived from the war," Rev. Dexter said, "is the respect of the nations of the world. Before we entered the war we were little respected. The world thought that we had no backbone, and that the sternest measures we would ever take would be in the form of a protest. But this estimation of us was changed as soon as we put on our fighting clothes and showed that we meant business.

"The nations have now come to appreciate American genius. We have shown them an alertness they never knew before. I could not help but notice their regard for us wherever I went. One of the most wonderful scenes I ever beheld in my life, which shows the wonderful work we have done, was along La Gironde River, at a place called Gassens. On this historic river the United States government had taken a certain number of acres over from the French government for the purpose of building docks, warehouses, camps, etc. The plans were drawn up by the American engineers and then submitted to the French engineers. The latter indorsed the plans, but gave as their opinions that it would require five years to carry them out. But his did not deter the Americans. Within five months the work was practically completed.

"The British navy officers also have a high regard for the American navy."

DRUG SQUAD IN RAIDS.

Hospital Orderly and Chinese Taken by Pharmacy Inspectors.

A campaign against violators of the State Poison Act was begun here yesterday by Inspectors Luckenbach and Button of the State Board of Pharmacy. Thomas Burns, an orderly at the hospital of Dr. G. Clark at the Miller & Lux ranch, near Gilroy, was the first to fall into the net. He was arrested yesterday at the Leaf Lodge Sanatorium, where he was said to be attempting to sell seventy-five pellets of morphine, said to have been taken from Dr. Clark's hospital. He was taken to the County Jail.

The inspectors also raided what they declare was a systematically conducted opium den in the rear of No. 44 Pico street, Pasadena. Two Chinese were arrested and a quantity of opium and pipes were confiscated. According to the inspectors, the place was well fitted up for opium smokers, who went outside to purchase the drug from a man connected with the den. The Chinese are in the Pasadena jail.

IF THE HEIRS DIE!

Then Baptist Missionary Societies will Get Man's Estate.

In the event of the death of the heirs of the estate of Theron Nichols, who died in South Pasadena on December 29, the bequests to the heirs will go to two Baptist missionary societies, it was shown in the will filed for probate yesterday. Of the $35,000 estate, the widow, Mrs. Louise M. Nichols, is to receive the Theron residence in South Pasadena and $1000. The residue of the estate is to be placed in trust to provide an annual income for the widow and a son and daughter.

The Baptist Home Missionary Society of New York and the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of Boston are to receive equal shares of the bequests, in case any of the heirs die.

ACCUSED BY FORMER SAILOR, PROVES ALIBI.

H. E. Fox, whom Janko Jakonovich, a discharged sailor, accused of taking $1250 from him in a swindle game, was at Santa Barbara on December 23, the date of the affair, it was learned yesterday by investigators of the District Attorney's office.

The former sailor, who is a Montenegrin, appealed to Capt. Hunter yesterday, saying that he had lost the money and that the police "had not given him a square deal." He said he drew the money from his bank account, which officers say was not so. Mr. Fox was released by the police and it is not likely will be questioned again.

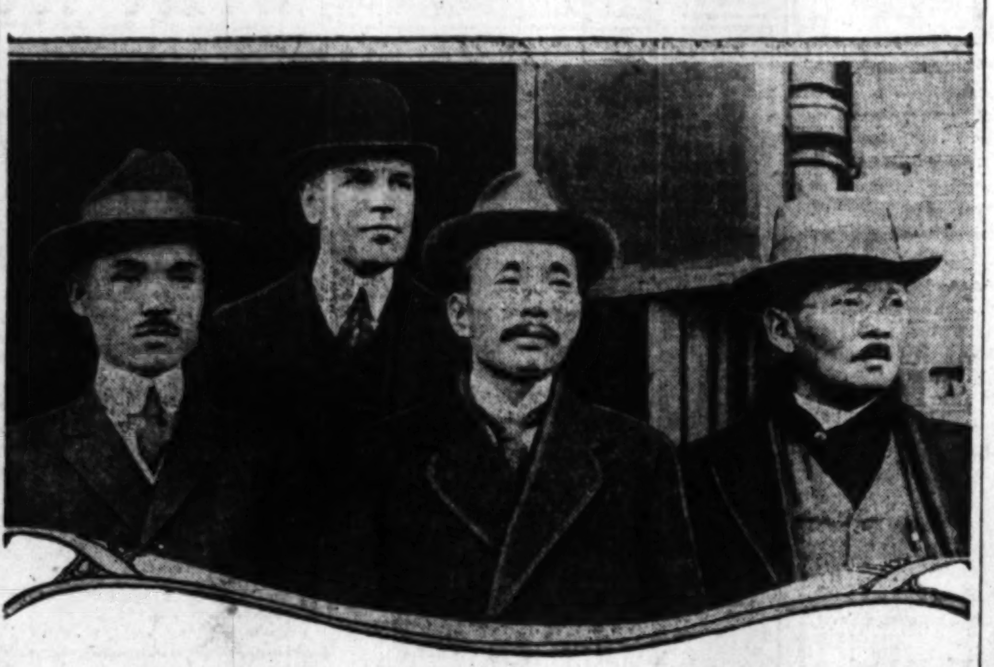
SHOWS FAREWELL NOTE AND WINS DIVORCE.

Mrs. Etta G. Fox wrote a brief note of farewell to her husband, Harry M. Fox, which he offered in evidence in divorce proceedings before Judge York yesterday. It stated:

"You ask me to come back. That I cannot do. I refuse to take up relations that were so disagreeable to both."

The decree was granted.

Would Make this Port of Call on Osaka-New York Route.



See Harbor and are Impressed.

TO LINK CITY WITH JAPAN

Another trade link to connect Los Angeles with the Orient was practically assured, yesterday, when H. Kanokogi, manager of the coasting service department of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, one of the largest steamship companies in the world, made a trip to the harbor and started negotiations to bring Japanese steamers to this port.

Mr. Kanokogi was accompanied by Kiyo Sue Inui of the department of political science of the University of Southern California and of Occidental College, and S. Hasegawa, also of this city. They were shown about the city by Walter S. Wheaton of the oriental division of the Industrial Trade Extension Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

A thorough inspection was made of the harbor facilities and the advantage offered by Los Angeles fully explained by Mr. Wheaton. Mr. Kanokogi expressed himself as extremely pleased with the result of his investigation.

The Osaka Shosen Kaisha is now carrying on an extensive trade between Osaka, and other Japanese ports, and New Orleans and New York, by way of the Panama Canal. Big cargoes of cotton are loaded in New Orleans, and it is understood that Mr. Kanokogi's company is desirous to make Los Angeles a port of call on all these trips for bunkering and cargoes.

Mr. Kanokogi's visit to Los Angeles is the direct result of the work done by Mr. Wheaton's division of the Trade Extension Bureau. From Los Angeles, the Japanese steamship official will go to New Orleans and then back to Japan.

MOTHER ANSWERS FOR HER SON, A MINOR.

SUIT FOR SEPARATE MAINTENANCE SHOWS HUSBAND BUT EIGHTEEN.

Because he is a minor, the answer of Joseph T. Simons, 18 years old, to the separate-maintenance suit of Muriel Barnhardt Simons, was filed yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Laura S. Garfield.

The couple were married in Santa Ana June 28, 1917. Mrs. Simons charges her husband with desertion and flirting with other women in San Francisco and other places. She claims he has an income of about $8000 a year.

Mr. Simons sets up that he was a minor at the time of his marriage, and that his income is controlled by his mother, under the order of the Probate Court. He says he went to the house of his wife, December 12, last, and offered a home and support if she would return to him. He claims she refused the offer, and this is to be construed as desertion on her part. He denies her charge that he was friendly with other women.

Mrs. Simons brought suit for separate maintenance and also filed suit for $50,000 damages against her mother-in-law for alleged alienation of her husband's affections. This latter suit is also pending.

MANY BENEFICIARIES.

WILL OF LATE CHARLES E. MINER OF PASADENA IS FILED FOR PROBATE.

In the will of Charles E. Miner, who died in Pasadena on December 29, last, an annual income from $15,000 is provided for Mrs. Chattie M. Miner Johnson, an adopted daughter, of New York. The will was filed for probate yesterday. At the age of 50, Mrs. Johnson, who resides at No. 14 East Eighth street, New York, is to receive the principal sum. Mr. Miner's estate was said to be considerably in excess of $10,000. Several charitable institutions will receive bequests in case of the death of the beneficiaries.

Jennie Hornby, mentioned as companion and housekeeper; Mary A. Tomlinson of Pasadena; Charles M. Johnson, son of Mrs. Johnson, and Mabel C. Musser of No. 2036 North Raymond avenue, are also beneficiaries.

FOR COUNTY WORKERS.

Old-age Annuity or Pension Plan Discussed by Supervisors.

It is understood that an old-age annuity or pension plan for county employees is favored by heads of departments. Conferences have been held between the Supervisors and the County Efficiency Bureau on this subject and will be further discussed by the Supervisors.

The plan was presented to the Supervisors by Secretary Doty of the efficiency bureau. It provides for the elimination automatically of persons who, through old age, have lost efficiency; betterment of public service by promotion; improvement of the morale of the service, and retention of employees of worth.

It was suggested at the conference that a retirement plan is an essential part of employees' contracts. If the plan is approved by the Supervisors, a draft will be sent to the Legislative Committee in Sacramento.

AGED WOMAN FILES SUIT.

Mrs. Emma L. Sheer, 83 years old, sought in a suit filed yesterday against her grand-niece, Geraldine Swan, and the latter's husband, Chester Swan, to recover $406 alleged to have been advanced in loans, and to be declared in possession of a half-interest in property in San Bernardino county. She alleges that the defendants induced her to loan money on this property, without consideration.

START NEW SURVEY.

County Gathering Wage Statistics on which to Base its Schedule.

The County Efficiency Commission yesterday began a wage survey extending to all large counties on this Coast. Information will be asked of private corporations, and the statistics will be used as a basis for a new salary ordinance for the 2000 county employees. The survey was authorized by the Supervisors.

A previous survey covered more than 200 corporations, said Secretary Doty of the commission. The war, however, created new conditions, and living became higher. Probably the same ground will be covered in the new survey, wages having increased in industries covered in the previous survey.

The aim is to have the information in hand for the 1919-1920 budget.

WILL ADVISE SOLDIERS.

Lawyer Named to Give Information About Insurance.

T. W. Robinson, secretary of the Los Angeles Bar Association, announced yesterday that he had arranged with Attorney Elias V. Rosenkranz to give information to applicants for soldiers' and sailors' insurance.

Mr. Rosenkranz was in charge of the legal division at Camp McDowell. He was transferred to Camp Zachary Taylor as a member of the artillery school. His office is at No. 454 South Spring street. Mr. Robinson says that many requests for this insurance are being made.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS ELECT.

At the biennial election of the Woman's Democratic League of Los Angeles, yesterday afternoon in the Douglas Building, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. B. A. Davis; first vice-president, Miss Paula Dunigan; second vice-president, Mrs. Katherine E. Wheatley; secretary, Miss Musa Rawlings; treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Hawkins.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Too Fat?

A guaranteed weight reduction method, safe, pleasant. Brings slenderness, better health and happiness. Get a small box of oil of korein at the druggist's. Follow directions. INDOOR SPORTS.
The high cost of living is to be investigated by a joint committee of the California Legislature. Wonder how far they will get with it? Prices were never reduced by resolution.

HIM THAT HATH EARS.
Senator Sherman says that he is growing hard of hearing and is going to retire to private life. Sometimes it would seem that a man sentenced to the United States Senate ought to be thankful for a little deafness.

BASEBALL SALARIES.
The big leagues have adopted resolutions chopping the salaries of the stars about 50 per cent. The next thing will be to see that the clubs carry out the intent of the resolution. The ball players who have been accustomed to a diet of pie must subsist on cake.

JAPAN IS THERE.
In the Supreme Council of the various powers now in session in Paris Japan has an equal representation with Great Britain, the United States, France and Italy. For a nation whose efforts in behalf of the Allies were limited to the glad hand, that is doing fairly well.

ACKNOWLEDGING THE CORN.
Save your corn cobs. The government finds that cellulose, glucose and alcohol can be made from them. It might also be said that there is a suspicion that bran and breakfast food have already been made from them. If alcohol can be made from corncobs, however, the thrifty farmer will be saving them as fodder for his blind pigs.

THE FIRST PROHIBITIONIST.
The ex-Czar of Russia (the cables being undecided whether he is not merely out of a job or whether he has departed this life) was the original prohibitionist. He was the first ruler to prohibit the manufacture and sale of the national drink. This document appeared when Russia entered the great war. The Czar at that time thought a country indulging in vodka would make a sorry showing.

GOING FAST.
If anyone would have predicted two years or less ago that by January 16, 1919, more than three-fourths of the States of this Union would have adopted a constitutional amendment providing for absolute prohibition in one year from that date he would have been early marked for removal to either the psychopathic ward of the County Hospital for observation or to the State Hospital for the Insane at Patton, and in the latter case it would only have been necessary to prove that he made the statement. The world is moving rapidly, and the map of Europe is not the only thing that must be recast.

THE ROAD OF THE REDS.
Among other resolutions before the so-called labor congress in Chicago was one demanding a universal six-hour day with two hours for lunch. The normal working day would be from 9 until 12 and from 2 till 5. The minimum wage urged is six dollars a day, or a dollar an hour. It is understood that the man who presented the demand for a six-hour-day hasn't worked anything but his voice for years, so that a declaration for a ten-minute day would have been quite as practical so far as he was concerned. Another delegate offered a resolution calling for a general strike to enforce the repeal of the prohibition amendment. Another demand was that the government take over all banking, insurance and commercial corporations as well as all utilities. There was also a demand that the Peace Conference receive delegates representing the Bolsheviki of Germany, Russia and other lands where the reds are running wild. For enforcing its vagaries the labor congress can think of but one path—the strike, with its attendant programme of violence. If by accident these labor Socialists should come out in favor of the Ten Commandments their first step would be to order a general strike in order to secure their adoption and enforcement. They proceed by the inverted philosophy that a man must quit work to accomplish anything. Of course, while a workman is patiently laboring at his normal task, he cannot well be out on the highway beating up the inoffensive stranger, so that to get the sort of action desired a strike must be ordered and the life and business of the community halted. Some of these wild men wouldn't stay in heaven unless the place had a six-hour day and they would throw away their harps unless they bore a union label. But when they get as unreasonable as all that they know where they can go. Meanwhile it would be a good idea for the government to keep an eye on some of these radicals and arrange for their suppression as a menace to orderly administration.

SOFT JOBS AND GRAFTERS.

IT IS a pity in these modern times that some of the charitable movements of the people have been afflicted with professional press agents, grafters and soft-job seekers. It is both a pity and a shame.

The movements are all right and the motives that carry them on are the highest that the human heart can know. But there are those who make a profession of organizing these movements solely for their own profit. And it is time that they were put out of the business.

If they are not to be put out of the business then charity is sure to suffer. The American people will not stand for the grafter and the soft-job seeker, no matter in what guise they may appear.

No man will go down into his pocket so quickly and so willingly as the American man to help any good cause, but the minute he finds out that somebody is making a business of getting his money away from him he quits.

He has given to everything that has come along for the past two years and more, and he wants to go on giving, but he will stop short when he finds out that a lot of his money was given only to find an easy job for some discharged newspaper reporter who might find some other job.

What the givers want to do is to give both of their time and their money. And when they do that, they feel that they have a right to expect that everybody else will do the same.

If charity isn't conducted on that basis, then it ceases to be charity; it is then a matter of business; and charity and business are two things as different as the head and the heart are different.

When it comes to the point, therefore, that charity must pay a commission and a brokerage, to be taken out of the funds contributed before charity itself can get a penny, then charity puts on a disguise.

And when, as recently happened in Paris, the paid SOFT-JOB-HOLDERS of a great charitable institution PUT INTO THEIR OWN POCKETS $30,000 of the money sent to help out the soldiers, it is a far-reaching scandal.

II.

THERE have been deep murmurs of discontent and ill disguised dissatisfaction on account of these things, although little has been said openly about them. It was for fear that the cause of the needy might be harmed that everybody kept silence. No decent man wants to hurt a worthy cause. Sooner than do so he will even go so far as to suffer an outright imposition on himself.

Yet, unless somebody speaks, and that soon, there will be an end to charity. The world will be a world of cynics.

Wherefore, is it not better for someone to speak right out now before irreparable harm is done and charity itself shall stand as the most forlorn and friendless of all things on earth?

And why should anybody fear to speak? If a man is in danger of disease, his friends do not hesitate to give him a warning. When the very existence, therefore, of so high and so holy a thing as charity is threatened, should not its friends and well-wishers counsel with one another and advise together?

Well, then, the plain, blunt truth is that charity today is suffering from barnacles. She is afflicted with parasites. Leeches have fastened upon her and are sucking her very life's blood away.

Nobody wants the death of charity. The worst thing that could befall this world would be to take charity out of it. Such a world would not be worth living in.

If no man cared whether another man were cold or hungry or sick; if no man would lift a hand to help a fellow-man to raise up the fallen rafters of his house; if it were every man for himself and "the devil take the hindmost," better for us all that we had never been born.

And, that the world is not just that very kind of a world is because there is charity in it—that divine impulse of the heart which leaps to a brother's need, succoring his helplessness at any cost, wrapping him in his own mantle to shield him from the storm of adversity.

The world cannot afford to see charity slain. It cannot afford to permit the parasites to feed upon it.

III.

IT IS a strange thing to contemplate that there are people so constituted that they will invariably prefer the devious way to the straight path. And it is an even stranger thing that there are people who would rather make a dollar ghoulishly than naturally.

We are inclined to think that this business of promoting charity for the soft jobs and the money there is in it is an entirely modern idea.

Surely the idea is new, else it would have perished long ago. A thing like that could not last. It can't last now. It is impossible to fool all the people all the time.

Charity will last, please God; but those who exploit it for their own personal gain—they can't possibly last. They must go, and they must go at once.

The proposition is as plain as day. And it is this: If anyone is to work for charity for nothing, then everyone must work for it for nothing. Which is to say that when these huge money-raising projects for charity are set on foot everybody that takes part in them must give his service absolutely without monetary reward. Not one cent should ever go to a press agent. His services are unnecessary; he is a leech.

Isn't that logical? And why shouldn't it be that way? If one man is to receive pay for the efforts he puts forth, why shouldn't every other man that puts forth an effort receive pay also?

This may seem like quibbling, but only those who make a business of charity promotions and who find soft jobs will object to the proposal.

And, if that system were to be put into effect, we would find that thousands of these shouters would disappear and that they would not walk a step or lift a hand to help the needy, the homeless or the orphan.

With these "professionals" the thing is a game, exactly like selling stock in gold mines or separating people from their money on any like pretense. They are totally without principle. To them it is simply a matter of how much they can get out of it, and how easy they can get it.

And there has never been in this world a way so easy to get money as to appeal to the charity of the people. In a way, we are glad that this is so. In every way, except for these leeches and parasites, we are glad of it and we thank God that it is so.

Heaven forbid that the day will ever come when the cry of the homeless, the hungry, the poor and the afflicted of earth will go unheeded or unanswered.

This is the way every decent man feels about it. The grafters and the soft-job seekers know it well and take full advantage of it.

They should be anathema. They are ghouls, and they should be outcasts from society.

IV.

THE thing to do, of course, is not to permit this annoying and reprehensible phase of the situation to sour the milk of human kindness in our hearts. By no means should we allow it to make us cynical.

But what we must do is to see that there is an end put to the activities of the press agents, grafters and the soft-job seekers.

The American people have put their hands in their pockets for almost countless millions of dollars for charity during the past four years, particularly. They have given to every appeal that was made, and they have done it unquestioningly. They have never even asked for an accounting or an audit.

Now, however, they are to ask at least this much that in the future charity shall be charity pure and simple and nothing else. They shall insist that it shall no longer be afflicted with leeches and parasites.

They will want to have it absolutely guaranteed when they contribute again that every dollar of the money goes to the object for which the appeal was made, and that no deductions are to be made for soft jobs, promoters, press agents, or for brokerage, underwriting or commissions.

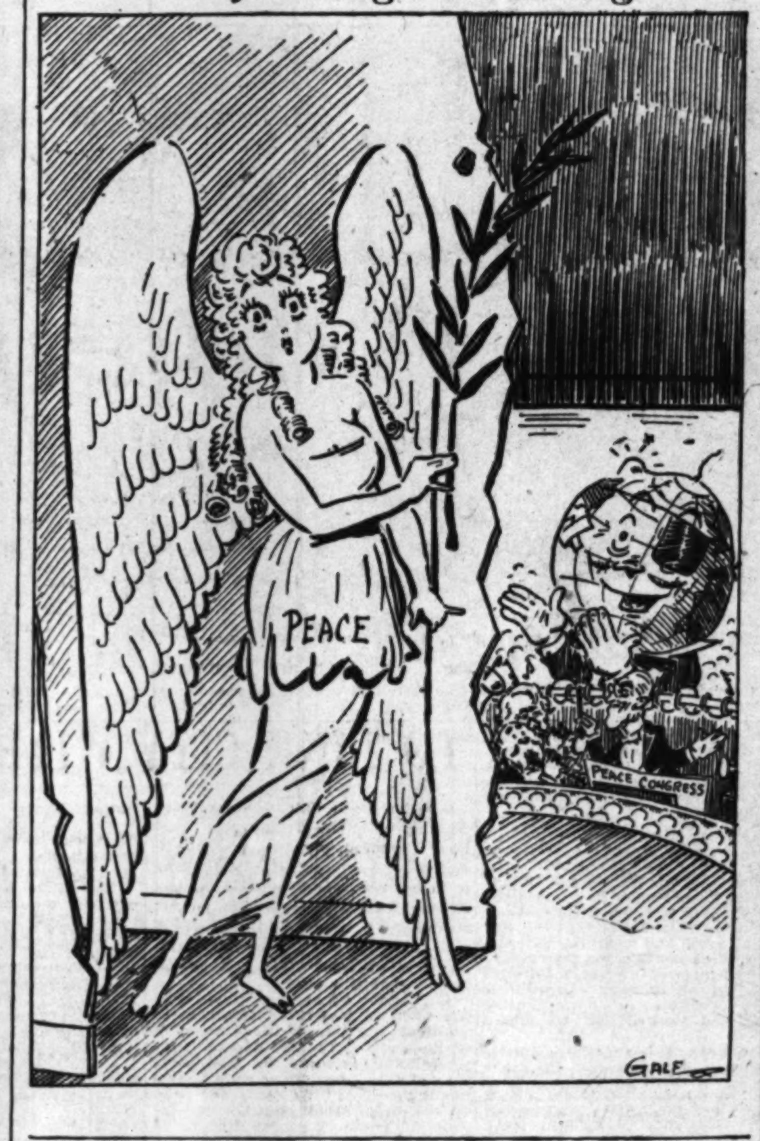
A year ago there was an instance of an entertainment gotten up in the East for the relief of certain war sufferers. Something like $20,000 was realized, but after the "expenses" were deducted less than $1000 was left to be turned over to the sufferers.

There has been too much of that kind of thing, and the time has come when the protests of the people against it must have a voice. An end must be put to it. It is grafting and nothing else.

If, after giving so tremendously, so willingly and so gladly and without questioning, the people shall now ask to be informed as to who and what is back of future appeals upon their charity, is it to be wondered at under all the circumstances?

The next cry for help must have no cloves on its breath. The next organization that launches a drive must first show its hands to the people.

"Are My Wings on Straight?"



OUR DUTY TO OUR SOLDIERS.
Every transport sailing westward across the Atlantic, every transcontinental train leaving New York is carrying "back home" some of the gallant men who have written the words liberty and justice in letters of flame and blood upon the map of Europe. These soldiers have done their part valorously; they have left behind them a name and a fame that will live long after the monuments of granite and marble, raised in their honor, have crumbled into dust.

From the great mobilization camps in this country other thousands of men are returning to the home life that was interrupted when they were called to the colors. That they were not called for service overseas is the tragedy of their lives. From the day of enlistment they have done a soldier's part. The rest was in the hands of destiny. For the soldier does not choose where he shall serve or what service he shall perform. Whether he should be sent to drill colored recruits in a southern mobilization camp or whether he should embark with an early unit for service in the front-line trenches in France or Siberia was wholly beyond his control. Every man wearing the army brown or the navy blue, who did his part, irrespective of the branch of the service or the duty to which he was assigned, deserves nothing less than the best.

They have done their part, the boys in brown and the boys in blue; and the time has now come when their country must give them their reward. Are we who remained at home discharging our duty towards them with the same degree of patriotic loyalty and unselfishness that they have displayed towards us?

Unfortunately there are reports of inefficiency and neglect in connection with the demobilization of troops, the care of the wounded during their transportation to their homes, the preparation of casualty lists, the securing of prompt and suitable employment for those who have received their discharge and in feeding those still held in mobilization camps, which seem to indicate a desire in some quarters to get the soldiers and sailors out of sight and out of memory as quickly as possible.

Speaking in the United States Senate, Senator Chamberlain of the Committee on Military Affairs said: "If the War Department would pay one-half the attention to preparing to receive these boys that it is giving to getting legislation through to protect contractors who have made contracts in violation of the law it would not take long to get something done." This criticism is not partisan in its nature. The words are those of an eminent Democrat referring to a Democratic administration. The strictures which he voiced are but the echoes of those of soldiers and sailors returning both from mobilization camps at home and from overseas. The demobilization machinery is not running smoothly; by reason of administrative errors thousands of men are still in the service that should have been released last year.

Take the example of Los Angeles alone. There are scores of limited service men from this city still in mobilization camps where they simply occupy space that should be filled by men returned from overseas in the process of demobilization. These men are retained in the military service where they are only an expense to the government, and they are kept from that civilian service which they formerly performed and in which they are needed now. Their families suffer; their business suffers; and the only ones to benefit are the contractors who were overstocked when the armistice was declared. To refer to the delayed casualty lists is fruitless now except to point a moral. The anguish occasioned in thousands of American homes by inefficient administrative service is unpardonable. It will be forgotten only when the generation upon which it was inflicted has passed into history. But are we prepared to do better in the future?

In our own city at the present time are scores of discharged soldiers looking for work. They are applying to the Federal Employment Bureau, to the Y.M.C.A., to the Chamber of Commerce; and then they drift to the Red Cross stations where they ask only shelter for the night and sufficient food to enable them to pursue their quest for employment on the following day. These discharged soldiers deserve nothing less than the best; they have earned the right to the most handsome, the most considerate, the most painstaking treatment that it is in our power to bestow. Are we safeguarding their interests as surely and efficiently as they protected the interest of all free peoples on the banks of the Marne, at Chateau Thierry and in the Argonne forest? Our gratitude should be measured by the service they have rendered. When the hour of destiny struck they stood alert and vigilant on the firing line; are we displaying equal vigilance in our service to them? As long as that question cannot be answered unreservedly in the affirmative we have not yet done our part.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

NO WAR GARDEN.

No man can say this year, I wot, I'm bound to have a garden plot. No man can stop me on the street and call me traitor and repeat, because I do not raise some peas, some cabbage heads and things like these. Our precious boons are back again and we are free, unfettered men, and we can raise string beans, by jing, or we can do the other thing. I'll fuss around with spuds no more; I'll buy my green goods at the store. And when the vernal zephyrs blow I will not ply a rusty hoe or scratch the planet with a rake or dig until my vitals ache. And on the long, long summer eves, beneath umbrageous boughs and leaves I'll sit and read the baseball score and weed the turnips nevermore. The worst of war is this, methinks: There are too many busy ginks who call you slacker if you slight the things that they insist are right. They're keeping tab the hour you rise; they watch all day with jealous eyes; and if you fail to raise some spuds, or if you wear some new-laid duds, or if you don't invest your mon the way those ginks themselves have done, scorn's finger at your door they point and cry "Avaunt!" and eke "Aroint!" Now we've regained our liberties and we can do as we dern please, and no cheap skate with visage sour can call us slackers by the hour.
WALT MASON.

Have Forgotten How to Play.
No single item of news that has been received from Russia paints so vividly the picture of national disintegration as the announcement in a letter just received from a Y.W.C.A. worker in that country that Russian children have forgotten how to play. "These children," writes this woman, "have seen so much of sorrow that they have forgotten they are children." The instinct of play in children, puppies, kittens and all other young creatures is so strong that it overcomes hunger and cold and misery. It is the antidote for every ill of life. It is the great and universal symbol of the survival of life itself. If the children of Russia have forgotten how to play they have forgotten how to live. The piteous state of the children of Russia is the gravest revelation of the intensity of the crisis that has paralyzed the life of the country under the destructive regime of the Bolsheviki.—[New York Mail.

All Sorts.
"Things seem crowded here in Switzerland."
"Yes, sir," said the landlord, "they are."
"All sorts of people about."
"Quite so, sir. Do you mind rooming with an ex-king?"—[Judge.

THE LANCER.

The other day Adolph Zukor, the little Napoleon of the screen, came swooping into town like a financial Cossack. Within twenty-four hours interests representing hundreds of millions of dollars were screaming for help.

Now what kind of a man would you picture Zukor to be—this dreaded financial raider whose whip cracks around the heels of the whole film world?

I saw him the other night. He was in a little dairy-lunch place eating a frugal midnight repast. His next neighbor was a hungry streetcar conductor.

Zukor, as I saw him, was a small, gentle-looking, almost timid-looking man, still youngish, with the melancholy of a poet. He looked like a musician or an ascetic.

It is easy to believe that Zukor speaks the truth when he says that he cares nothing for money. The only part of the picture business that really interests him is the artistic side. His vision is of a worldwide studio where great artists can work out the dreams they have dreamed.

The financial side is a disagreeable detail for which he has no taste, but has genius.

Douglas Fairbanks is having the time of his young life leading the rebellion against Zukor which has been stirring up the country for a week.

"We are off this swivel-chair stuff," said Douglas when I went out to see him one day last week.

"You know how it was. Some guy thought up a story and made it into a scenario; and some other guy directed it and made it into a picture; then somebody else exhibited it in a theater and took all the risks of advertising it and so on. Then all of us dutifully took our money up to some magnate in New York, like Zukor, who hadn't had a thing to do with it from first to last; all he did was to grab the money that had been made."

Douglas said that, if necessary for the success of the rebellion, a whole chain of theaters will be built across the continent.

It seems that the Dupont Powder Company is willing to back the Fairbanks-Griffiths-Pickford-Hart-Chaplin rebellion to the limit: that is the mysterious backer Douglas talks about.

Most of this commotion has been caused by the attempt of Mr. Zukor and his associates in the Paramount to make little Lila Lee a great star over night.

The talented Lila was a little girl named Cuddles Edwards, who had been seen in vaudeville. Having lost Mary Pickford, the magnates thought another Mary could be manufactured if she got enough advertising. Having given her enough advertising to fill every other star with thoughts of suicide, it was discovered that it takes a special effort on the part of Providence to make a Mary Pickford.

As a matter of fact, Mary Pickford is more than a sweet little girl with curls. She is a woman with enough business sagacity to run a trust; she is a remarkably good platform orator; she has the finest brain on the motion-picture screen and is quite a remarkable woman who would have made good in any business in the world. There is just one Mary and there's not liable to be another for some time to come.

The Friday Morning Club seems to have bought itself a ticket for a perilous destination.

In the most recent club bulletin the editor thereof makes a most astounding recommendations, to-wit: that the ladies of the club should be sure to read "John Reed's last article in the Liberator."

The thus highly-indorsed John Reed is the duly-accredited representative of the Russian Bolshevik party in America; the Liberator is the made-over version of "The Masses," which was suppressed for disloyalty to the government; the aforesaid John Reed screed was a red yell.

Just about the cutest little dolls to be seen in public are the Chinese girlies who have been appearing at the automobile show.

I always thought that there were no pretty girls in the world outside of America. But these little women in flowered pantaloons are adorable.

A wonderful people, the Chinese. I am not sure they are not the most wonderful in the world.

Without a national song, without any true spirit of nationality, without one iota of patriotism as we understand it, old China has seen every western empire rise and fall. She doesn't care what kind of government she has. She just sits there, wise and old and inscrutable, and sees the tide of empire fall and rise, and rise and fall.

I have never known a Chinaman I didn't like. And I very seldom meet a white man that I do like.

I believe, with the same confidence that I look for another day to dawn, that China will one day dominate the world.

The President and Mrs. Wilson went over in a suite of rooms on a passenger vessel; they will have to come home in a freighter if Mrs. Wilson intends to bring home all this junk she has been given.

• • •

All my hopes were crushed.

The war stories still keep right on in spite of everything.

Merciful Providence! How many years are we due to read about the mean, little, white-faced coward who suddenly became a big, glorious hero, sticking his bayonets through and into Teutons, in a sudden spasm of manhood, when he heard the drum fire?

The only real war literature I have read was in a single phrase which a French officer applied to the sound of the cannonading—"the roll of the drums of death." THE LANCER.

WOULD HIT FLU IN ARMY'S WAY.

Military Kind of Efficiency Urged by Doctor.

Rigid Quarantine and Free Clinics Advocated.

Results at Camp Oglethorpe Cited as Example.

A little of the military kind of discipline and efficiency is what is needed to stamp out the influenza epidemic in the United States, according to Capt. A. Halden Jones, who recently returned to his home and medical practice in this city from Camp Oglethorpe, Ga. As an officer of the medical division of the army, he participated actively in the fight against the disease at that cantonment. The application of rigid measures, backed by the kind of force possessed by the military arm of the government, would save thousands of lives the country over between now and summer, he said yesterday.

"Influenza first made its appearance at Camp Oglethorpe on October 3," said Capt. Jones. "When several men were taken ill. The disease made headway from the start, spreading until hundreds out of the 30,000 men in camp were infected. In all, 569 men died in a little over three weeks. Practically all the fatal cases were of the now familiar influenza-pneumonia type, pneumonia succeeding the original ailment from seven to twelve days after infection. Yet within a very short time after the army medical men attacked the problem in the military way the deaths from the disease practically stopped.

ARMY OF DOCTORS.

"The camp was the training place of the medical division for the whole army and there was a veritable army of trained physicians on the spot. By October 6, or over three weeks before the issuance of the general army orders of November 1 for the compulsory vaccination of all camp men for pneumonia, the men of the cavalry, engineers and other units at Oglethorpe were being vaccinated and quarantined as the cases demanded and the whole place was under the strictest military-medical rule.

"The very nature of military training is, of course, inimical to the work of combating such an epidemic, the men in drill ranks being thrown constantly together. By the prompt isolation and quarantine of every man with the slightest hint of ailment, however, supplemented by enforced vaccination for pneumonia, the scourge was brought under control in short order. These results show what could be accomplished if the health authorities of the various cities had something of the power in emergencies possessed by the military heads."

WOULD SAVE LIVES.

Dr. Jones would enforce as rigid a quarantine as civil laws could possibly be stretched to cover, and would perfect the other precautions by establishing free clinics where all could be innoculated against pneumonia, which, he points out, is really causing the fatalities to persons whose powers of resistance have been undermined by influenza.

Ship Workers Wear Snug Suit.

Something now in beating Old Man Winter has been conceived by the Emergency Fleet Corporation for ship workers who work outdoors in all sorts of weather. A heavy padded suit has been evolved which keeps the wearer snug and warm in the coldest weather, yet permits complete freedom of movement of the body. Both shirt and trousers are padded, but fit snugly to the body, the sleeves are of generous length to protect the wrists, and the collar is very wide and arranged to fold up closely about the ears and back of the head. The trousers fit closely around the ankles. The material of the suit is in three plies, an outer cover of one-ply olive drab, closely woven cotton drill; one-ply of cotton lap padding, approximately six ounces, 20 per cent. wool, and a lining of one-ply cotton drill.—[Washington Correspondent, Milwaukee Journal.

VAST SUPPLIES OF FOOD HERE.

State may Supply Needs of Stricken Europe.

Great Surpluses Piled up in Our Warehouses.

Quantities of Barley, Beans, Rice Await Disposal.

That the immediate food needs of stricken Europe may be largely supplied by California, was the statement made yesterday following a survey completed by the agricultural department of the Chamber of Commerce. This shows there is a surplus of more than 73,000,000 bushels of barley, rice and beans available in the State for shipment abroad. Part of this enormous excess is in warehouses, but growers still hold millions of bushels, it is said.

This huge stock of supplies was accumulated as the result of war demands, which stimulated the producing of foodstuffs throughout the nation, added to the unprecedented crops of 1918.

Based on the average sale price of the last ten years, the enormous surplus aggregates $79,000,000 in valuation, showing that California alone, it is said, almost could fill the $100,000,000 order asked for by Herbert Hoover, who is directing the food distribution of the world.

Stocks on hand December 1, since which date there has not been a material change, are shown by the chamber's survey to be as follows:

Barley, 59,474,423 bushels, valued at $41,632,096; rice, 6,731,500 bushels, valued at $5,385,000; beans, 7,245,060 bushels, valued at $22,459,686.

The 1917 balance in commercial storage of barley was 13,174,423 bushels and the 1918 crop 46,300,000 bushels.

The 1918 crop of rice was 7,011,000 bushels and there were 279,500 bushels left over from 1917. Of this vast amount 6,731,500 bushels still are in the hands of the growers.

PLENTY OF BEANS.

The government estimate puts the outstanding bean crop at 10,000,000 bushels, of which 7,245,060 bushels are in the hands of the growers of the State.

It is expected that whatever remains of the barley surplus after all shipments abroad have been made, will be used as a finishing food for cattle. Previously it has been the custom to send many of the California cattle, of which there are approximately 600,000 head in the State, to other States for the final process of bringing them up to market standard. If present plans materialize, the surplus of barley will be used and the cattle kept at home during the fattening period.

WILL GIVE BOYS JOBS ON FARMS.

Y.M.C.A. Plans Many Camps for Coming Summer.

Over Thousand of "Teen" Age to be Enrolled.

Educational Classes Have Proven Popular.

More than 1000 boys of the "teen" age will be enrolled in farm labor camps in California during the coming summer, if plans now being formed by W. D. McRae, county work director of the State Young Men's Christian Association, are carried out. It is expected that the twenty-two camps promoted during 1918 will be revived, and that new ones will be added to the list. The number of boys enrolled last year was 875.

Already Mr. McRae is in touch with State officials, who are working to provide boys of 16 years and upward with good jobs on farms and ranches for the summer.

In a report compiled by various camp directors for the State Executive Committee of the Y.M.C.A., it is shown that Santa Clara county held four camps, with 369 boys, under supervision of the Oakland Y.M.C.A. In Sonoma county three camps were held, with 195 boys from San Francisco. The Sacramento Y.M.C.A. promoted ten camps during the summer. Other cities taking part in the programme were Long Beach and Marysville. Fresno and Tulare counties also conducted boys' camps.

In some cases exceptional boys earned from $4 to $5 a day during regular working hours; an average earning of from $1.50 to $2.50 was maintained throughout the State, and usually the boys paid $1 a day for their board.

Nearly 5000 California men and boys attended educational classes of the Young Men's Christian Association in sixteen cities and eleven organized counties during 1918, according to an annual report just issued by the Y.M.C.A. State Executive Committee. The exact figures include 4005 men and 656 boys.

To do this work the Y.M.C.A.'s of California have employed scores of teachers and conducted hundreds of day and night classes and educational clubs and lectures. Nearly 500 boys were enrolled in educational clubs organized under the direction of the various county Y.M.C.A.'s. In the rural work of the State committee, 266 young men and boys in nine communities participated in educational trips, and more than 220 young people were enrolled in agricultural contests under Y.M.C.A. auspices.

SOLDIER PRAISES RED CROSS NURSES.

TELLS OF WONDERFUL WORK IN FRANCE—YANKS IN GARIBALDI REGIMENT.

Private Clarence R. Corbin writes from France to his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Corbin of No. 363 Sixteenth street, Los Angeles Harbor, that the people at home should not forget the service rendered behind the fighting lines by the doctors and Red Cross nurses. After telling of how the women nurses, after working from nine to fourteen hours, even helping to "dig in," a tent operating-room, went out to help the soldiers give decent burial to dead Germans, Private Corbin writes: "Don't you know that it is a great thing to think that we as a nation sprang from such women as these!"

Private Corbin tells of the marching past of the famous Garibaldi regiment of Italian volunteers with the French army, and how many of the Italians shouted to the American troops, "Meet you soon at Forty-second and Broadway," or "This beats digging the subway," showing that they had gone from the United States to Italy to fight for freedom. He tells of the excitement in Paris when the armistice was signed and how he tied an American flag to the bronze standard in the hand of Joan of Arc on her famous "golden statue, in which she is upholding a golden banner of liberty."

Corp. Elmer G. Sigler writes his father, J. G. Sigler, of No. 2114 North Beacon avenue, that "nothing in my life has given me such wonderful joy as the termination of this war. How glorious it was! Thousands of our men were on the firing line, and they put the fear of God in the Huns out there. They ran like scared coyotes at the bayonet charge." Speaking of their present enemies, the "cooties," Corp. Sigler says:

"Sometimes they come in double ranks, sometimes they are single file. They crawl upon your back, and simply make you wild."

TO SUSPEND REGULATIONS.

Victor H. Rossetti, Federal Fuel Administrator for Southern California, yesterday received a telegram stating that Dr. Garfield, the national Fuel Administrator, has announced that all zone and price regulation on coke and coal, except Pennsylvania anthracite, will be suspended February 1. This refers to mine prices, wholesale margins and purchasing agents' commissions.

First Lieut. Thomas A. Gabel.

ANGELENO'S DEATH IN FRANCE CONFIRMED.

LIEUT. THOMAS A. GABEL SUCCUMBED TO WOUNDS IN GERMAN HOSPITAL.

Confirmation of the death in France of Lieut. Thomas A. Gabel of the Forty-ninth Aero Squadron, Signal Corps, formerly an official of the Los Angeles branch of the National City Bank of New York, was received by his father, T. R. Gabel, formerly general manager of the Los Angeles Pacific Railway, yesterday.

Lieut. Gabel, who was 27 years old, was a pilot in the squadron and was shot down while on a scouting trip back of the German lines on September 29. He was captured, severely wounded, and died in a German prison hospital on November 14.

The young pilot was well known here. He was a graduate of the Culver Military Academy at Culver, Ind., and a graduate of the University of California, having completed his education there in 1916. Popular in Los Angeles and Southern California, he was admired by his fellow-officers in France. Shortly after his capture, Lieut. Manning, one of his fellow-flyers, wrote to his family: "Lieut. Gabel was a wonderful flyer, very skillful, having had much experience. He was one of the most remarkable and unusual men I have ever met. He was a mountain of energy and of great executive ability, supremely brave and daring."

MANY JOBS OFFERED, SAYS MR. BERNATCHE.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYMENT SERVICE CAN PLACE MEN AND WOMEN AT ONCE.

That there is no excuse for any man or woman in Los Angeles remaining unemployed, is the opinion of Emil J. Bernatche, examiner in charge of the United States Employment Service, No. 207 South Broadway.

"In the woman's household and industrial division," said Mr. Bernatche, "there is a distinct shortage of household maids and cooks. The rates of compensation are, in many instances, above the average, but it seems difficult to procure desirable applicants. We also have orders, at good wages, for chocolate dippers, masseuses, janitresses, nurses, chambermaids and hotel help.

"In the men's industrial division we could place upholsterers, a candy maker and ice cream maker, a press feeder, an auto electrician, storage battery man, butchers, printers, and several motorcycle boys.

"In the commercial division for men and women we have a score of orders, at splendid wages, for clerk typists, stenographers, book-keepers, musicians, telephone operators, bakery and candy sales girls, and soda dispensers."

FIND ROBBERS' CAVE NEAR COUNTY JAIL.

SMALL BOYS HAD FOOTHOLES IN FIFTY-FOOT CLIFF FOR QUICK ACTION.

A robbers' cave, full of spoils, the undisturbed rendezvous of a robber gang was discovered yesterday within a stone's throw from the County Jail. The discovery followed the confessions of two of the gang.

Ray Ingraham, 11 years old, who lives with his parents at No. 300 North Fremont street, was arrested when he attempted to sell some articles taken from a haberdashery store near First street. At the Juvenile Bureau he implicated Bennie Harris, 12 years old, of No. 113½ North Bunker Hill street, who was also arrested.

Juvenile Officer Neighbors confronted the two boys, and they agreed to take the officer to where the "spoils" was cached. He was led up Broadway to the tunnel, climbed up the 117 stairs to the top and then led partly down the side of the hill.

"Bring out everything you've got in there," young Harris was told.

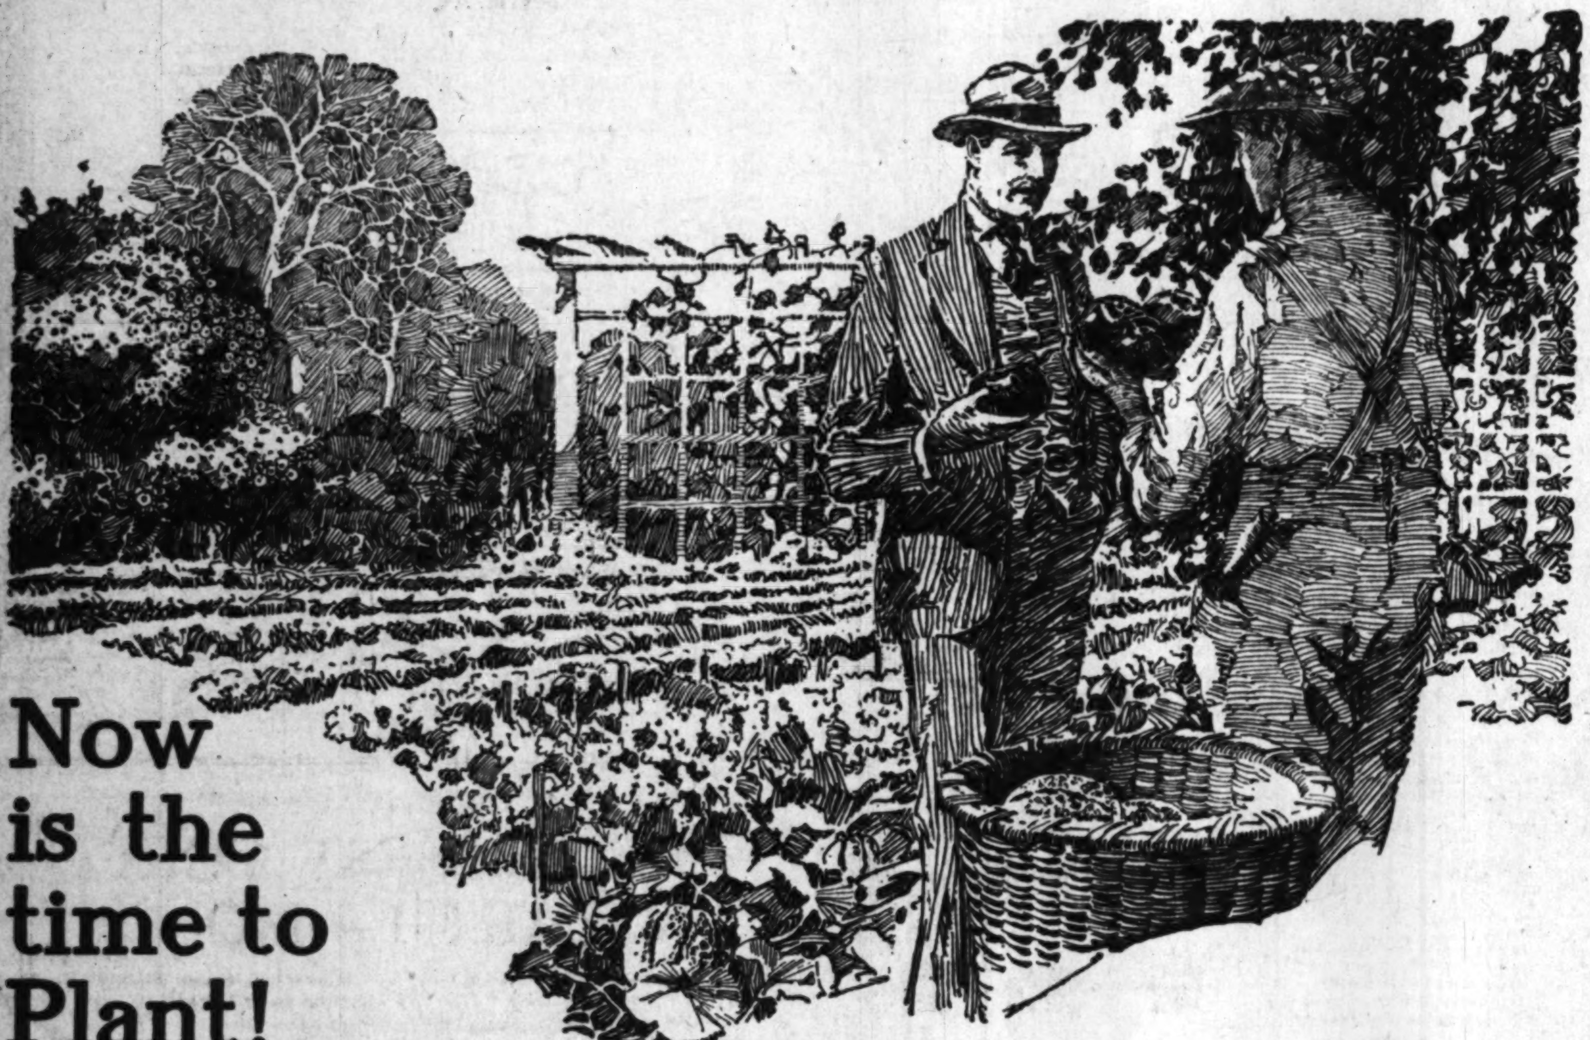
He brought out two automobile robes, a sofa pillow, a reel of motion-picture film and a supply of candles.

Some of the boys slept there nights, he said. They had footholes cut in the fifty-foot cliff for a quick and short route of entry or egress.

TO SIMPLIFY TRAVEL FOR PAYING TAXES.

One of the proposed amendments to the general State laws is expected to eliminate travel from outside cities and towns to county seats for the purpose of paying delinquent taxes. A draft of the amendment was sent to Sacramento yesterday by Walter Mitchell, secretary the County Legislative Committee.

Under this proposed law, the County Tax Collector is given authority to collect current taxes levied by outside cities. There is no provision under which delinquent taxes can be collected except by visiting the office of the County Auditor.



Now is the time to Plant!

Nature's factory whistle is blowing. Can't you hear it? It is the morning song of the robin calling to you to start your garden. The earth is waking. The first green tints of growing things suggest messes of tender peas; bunches of spicy, baby radishes and onions, new beans, spinach, chard and tomatoes; fresh, crisp lettuce; little salmon-pink carrots and sweet, crimson beets and juicy corn, to say nothing of flowers in profusion. The work shop is waiting. The old garden patch is itching for the spading fork and hoe. At a nearby dealer's store, already feeling the urge to grow, are your packets of

FERRY'S SEEDS

Here under the Ferry label is something more than seeds that will grow. Here is sixty years' experience in seed cultivation—the care and effort of the greatest organization in the world devoted to seed selection and testing.

In buying Ferry's Seeds you buy pedigree—the assurance of pure-bred quality. Each kind of Ferry's Seeds inherits from ancestor plants established family strains of luscious tenderness, flavor and abundant growth.

Each kind of Ferry's Seeds, vegetable or flower, is grown in that part of the world where it reaches its greatest perfection. These crops are shipped to Detroit and in our great trial gardens are selected and tested by actual growing before they are offered for sale. Thus we make as sure for you as is humanly possible that all the ancestral virtues are there, ready to answer the call of Spring and reproduce in your garden in all their perfection.

Professional gardeners, of years of experience, value the extra care we take to build up strains of quality, to eradicate blemishes.

Plant Ferry's Seeds and enjoy the extra certainty of garden success that our extra care insures. Unknown seeds are dear at any price. Now is the time to plant.

The new 1919 Ferry "Seed Annual" will be sent you on request. Ferry's Seeds are sold by dealers everywhere.

About the first of January, it is said, Brown met Mr. Cunningham on the "Pike" at Long Beach, and proceeded to cultivate the tourist's acquaintance; that the tourist finally became confidential and told his new-found friend that he was one of the solid citizens of Dell Rapids, had credit at the bank, sold his wheat for $2.20 a bushel, and was of high standing financially in the South Dakota community. It is said that during an afternoon spent on the sands and at a motion picture show, the conversation was so turned that Mr. Cunningham showed Brown how he signed his name.

It is said that Brown then secured stationery from a neighboring hotel and wrote on it a letter, purporting to be from Mr. Cunningham, to the Dell Rapids Bank, inclosing a note for $11,500, asking that the bank officials cash it right away, as he proposed purchasing an orange ranch in Southern California.

The letter and the note were received in due course of time by the South Dakota bank, it is said, but a reply was written, advising that Mr. Cunningham make three notes instead of the one large one. Blank notes were inclosed for him to sign, and it was stated that with this arrangement there would be no trouble in getting the money for him.

In the original letter, Brown, it is said, had advised that the answer should be sent to Santa Ana, but the bank officials, it seems, forgot this instruction and sent the reply to Mr. Cunningham's address at Long Beach. When Mr. Cunningham got the letter from the Dell Rapids bank, he was shocked. He had drawn no notes, nor had he planned to invest in an orange grove. While he was considering the situation, he received a telegram from the bank to the effect that it had succeeded in placing the original note and that he should draw upon the bank for $11,500 through a named Long Beach bank.

By this time, it is said, Mr. Cunningham reviewed his list of acquaintances in Long Beach, and took steps to have Brown placed in custody. Later a complaint was drawn by Assistant United States District Attorney Moody, and the transfer of Brown to the County Jail followed.

ARCTIC CIRCLE NURSE GETS SERVICE REWARD

RED CROSS RECOGNIZES WORK DONE IN AMERICA'S NORTHERMOST HOSPITAL.

[A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

CORDOVA (Alaska) Dec. 1.—For her work in St. Stephens Hospital of far-away Fort Yukon, Alaska, said to be the most northerly hospital in North America, Miss Margaret Nunvialli, the one remaining graduate nurse of the institution, has been awarded a "special service chevron" by the American Red Cross.

The hospital, an English church institution located ten miles inside the Arctic Circle on the Yukon Flats, is the only place where medical assistance can be obtained in something like 50,000 square miles, said Archdeacon Hudson Stuck in writing to the Red Cross requesting that the chevron be sent Miss Nunvialli.

"The nearest physician up the Yukon is at Dawson, 350 miles away, and the nearest down the river is at the army post at Fort Gibbon, 350 miles distant," Archdeacon Stuck said. "And in all this wide hinterland there is no physician."

For a time last summer Miss Nunvialli thought of going outside to join the Red Cross workers behind the American battle lines. She was prevailed upon by the hospital and church authorities to remain at her northern post and continue her missionary and nurse work among the great number of Alaskan Indians cared for by the hospital.

"If it were necessary," Archdeacon Stuck said, "to close this hospital in order to win the war or that our wounded should have proper care, I would unhesitatingly do so. But if it is possible that this badly-needed and costly work shall continue I ask that the chevron be granted so that Miss Nunvialli may be fortified to remain here; distinguished from slackers and absentees by the award.

"This past spring there was an interesting illustration of the wide usefulness of St. Stephens, when the Arctic explorer, Vilhjamur Stefansson, who had been lying ill at Herschell Island with typhoid, had himself hauled 400 miles on a dog sled to reach the hospital."

CHARGES DESERTION.

Physician, Just Back from France, Seeks Divorce from Wife.

Dr. P. V. K. Johnson, well-known Los Angeles physician, yesterday filed suit for divorce from Mrs. Martha Johnson, through his attorneys, Hunsaker, Britt & Edwards, on the grounds of desertion.

Dr. Johnson recently returned from France, where he was in charge of the Red Cross work in connection with a children's hospital in Bordeaux. He and Mrs. Johnson separated in April, 1917, it is said. About a year later Dr. Johnson went to France, returning to Los Angeles in December, 1918.

It is understood that Mrs. Johnson is living in the city with her 14-year-old son, Charles, and that the suit will not be contested by her.

Quarantine Inspector Goes to Hospital—New Cases Decrease.

M. W. Kimmick, chief quarantine inspector for the Health Department, was the first patient admitted to the city quarantine hospital when it was opened, yesterday. He has a typical case of influenza.

Five hundred and four new cases of influenza, and twenty-one deaths were reported yesterday, compared to 527 new cases and thirty-two deaths the day before. The total of new cases reported last week was 3839, an average of 547 a day, compared to an average of 611 the previous week. The deaths averaged twenty-five a day last week.

ASK GOVERNMENT SHIP LINE TO ALASKA PORTS

[A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

ANCHORAGE (Alaska) Dec. 15.—Anchorage wants the United States government to operate a passenger and freight steamship line between the States and Alaskan ports.

Recently the local Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution asking the government to establish the line as a necessary adjunct to the railroad being built by the government between Seward and Fairbanks, two Alaskan points.

Chambers of commerce and commercial clubs in other Alaskan towns have been asked by the local commercial organization to support its move for the establishment of the government line.

Officials of the Anchorage chamber say they are urging the government steamship line as a remedy not only for the infrequent water transportation facilities now provided by private steamship companies, but also for the slow transmission of mail, which at present is carried to and from Alaska as freight.

The chamber has also asked the government to entrust the Alaskan engineering commission with the task of building wagon roads and trails as "feeders" for the government railroad. The commission, which has charge of the construction of the railroad, is in a position to know what roads and trails are needed to develop business for the railroad, the chamber has stated.

WOMAN'S SUIT AGAINST WOMAN IS SETTLED.

When the suit of Mrs. Lillian May Moore, wife of Charles C. Moore, chairman of the State Counsel of Defense, against Mrs. Annie E. Simpson, was called in Judge Taft's court yesterday, it was announced that a settlement had been made out of court.

Mrs. Moore alleged in her suit that Mrs. Simpson, lessee of a rooming-house at No. 308 South Spring street, owed $634 for rent and declined to move after receiving notice to do so. Mrs. Simpson contended the amount sued for was not correct.

NEW REGIME NEEDED AT VENTURA SCHOOL.

NO EXCUSE FOR PRESENT CONDITIONS, SAYS WRITER LIVING NEAR BY.

VENTURA, Jan. 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] After reading the testimony in the investigation in regard to the treatment and punishment meted out to the girls who are detained in the California School for Girls, near beautiful old Ventura-by-the-Sea, one wonders if the hearts of men and women have become wholly calloused against their erring young sisters, or if they are only seared with indifference. If the clubwomen of Los Angeles feel any responsibility whatever in regard to this school, as has been stated, they certainly owe it to themselves, to the poor girls who are detained there, and to the taxpayers of the State that they exert their influence in putting the whole institution on a different basis and in placing the management in entirely different hands.

There surely can be no excuse for the existence of such an institution, excepting it be a real help to the girls who are sent there. There can be no possible apology for the inhuman, cruel treatment testified to as having been received by those girls. If one doubts the truth of these statements, let him come to Ventura and quietly study the situation at close range.

I have stood on the steps leading up to the main building at the school and have gazed upon that wondrously beautiful picture which nature has painted, and which is spread out in the marvelous view from that point, and it seemed to me it must be a daily inspiration to the girls and the "officers" alike. But when I noticed the total lack of flowers, trees, shrubs or lawns near the "school," I could see no indication that any appeal was being made there to the love of the beautiful in nature. And yet, I have known some of the girls who were out on parole from that institution, and who were earning only small wages here in town, to spend a part of their meager income in buying flowers to take to the girls, less fortunate than themselves, who were still detained at the school.

In studying these girls (all of whom are under 21 years) one is intuitively impressed with the conviction that doubtless behind every one of them is the sad story of someone's neglect. And one marvels that girls so young in years should have received so little of the protection and forgiveness—yes, the "square deal" in life—that is accorded to their male partners in wrongdoing. Is not this a travesty upon the supposed principles underlying woman suffrage?

When we used to read Charles Dickens's "David Copperfield," our hearts were torn with compassion for the suffering poor David endured in the school of Mr. Creakle; and we sympathized with him when he said that no one "can do anything to advantage in a life of constant misfortune, torment and worry." But most of us can easily imagine how the boys probably pretended they loved Creakle dearly through fear of still greater punishment at his hands. But did this character of Dickens inflict any more inhuman punishment upon his helpless victims than the throwing of cold water upon them from a three-inch fire hose? Or, giving them drugs to nauseate them? Or, keeping them in a damp, cold jail week after week on bread and water, or bread and milk—neither of which was very good—while they could smell the cooking of regular meals for the "officers" who were over them? Or, giving them ice water baths? Or, giving them nothing to read and no help of any kind to uplift them during the weeks they were confined in that jail?

If the girls are sent to that school to learn to live useful, respectable lives, and they become unruly there, how are they to learn to do better while they are kept for weeks in that unspeakable jail, alias "no privilege cottage," where they are not permitted to have help or instruction of any kind?

If the California School for Girls cannot be conducted along educational lines, which will teach its inmates to live better, more wholesome lives after they leave there, where is there any good reason for maintaining it? If we are going to keep it up, let us see to it that the women at the head of it are mothers, with a true mother's love and sympathy. And let us study the attitude of the Master Christian toward the so-called "Magdalens" of his time. The record tells us that when the Scribes and Pharisees would have stoned the woman they brought to Jesus, he said unto them, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her." And to her He said, "Neither do I condemn thee; go, and sin no more."

Jesus of Nazareth was the greatest idealist the world has ever seen; and yet, his idealism, while it was always compassionate, was intensely practical. If we wish to help our brothers and sisters who have apparently slipped from the "straight and narrow way," we need to remember His rule: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

FORMER KAISER READY FOR SAFE KIDNAPING.

AMERICAN OFFICERS INVADED HOLLAND TO GET HERR HOHENZOLLERN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Here is a story that equals the wildest d'Artagnan exploit, with ten American army officers in two automobiles playing the part of Dumas's swashbuckling hero, attempting nothing less than kidnaping the former Kaiser from Amerongen.

The most remarkable feature of the adventure is that the ex-Kaiser said he was willing to be kidnaped if shown a safe conduct to American headquarters.

In a small town occupied by Americans the New Year's celebration continued for several days, and culminated on January 4, in a satisfying dinner of young officers, all below the grade of captain. Before the dinner ended the daring men pledged their willingness to risk court-martial for the sake of "pulling the biggest stunt since Noah built the ark."

The following afternoon these ten secured the use of two American cars — unchauffeured — provided themselves with a map of certain sections of Belgium and Holland and set out on their journey of less than 100 miles. Members of the party drove the machines.

It was pitch dark when they reached the Dutch border. Sentries demanded papers, but an officer bluffed them and both cars whizzed across the boundary. A run of less than one hour brought the party to Amerongen Castle.

A sleepy guard at the gate attempted a half question, but the cars trundled past him up the road, halting before the doors. While two men ran around the house looking for a spot where they could cut the telephone wires, which they accomplished, the rest boldly knocked on the castle doors.

A servant cautiously opened the door. The callers demanded an instant audience, with the result, after a brief parley a fat German wearing a woolen nightgown reaching to his knees appeared at the head of the stairs and announced he was the ex-Kaiser's secretary. He asked what the visitors wanted.

He was told the American officers had come "to arrest William Hohenzollern."

The secretary went and returned bearing a message from the ex-Kaiser to the effect that William was willing to surrender to the Americans, and to be taken to American headquarters if he was shown a guarantee of safe conduct, and if they would promise he would not be shot en route.

The hottest heads advised seizing the ex-Kaiser without further formality, but the cooler ones urged that such a course might lead to personal injury to somebody.

Word was sent back that all that could be given was oral guarantees for William's safety, upon the word of American officers.

While the parleying was in progress, twenty-five soldiers invaded the audience room, demanding why the American officers were violating Holland's neutrality. The adventurers decided it was better not to get the ex-Kaiser than to be interned. So they sent a final message upstairs:

"Tell Bill we'll be back and get him some time, bringing the whole American army, if necessary," and they fled.

MANY SOLDIERS GET POSITIONS.

Replacement Bureau is Busy Finding Jobs.

Nearly Two Hundred Men so Far are Located.

Employers are Asked to Make Their Needs Known.

Five hundred soldiers and seamen had registered up to closing time last night at the Replacement Bureau, in the north annex of City Hall, the former quarters occupied by Draft Board No. 17. Nearly 200 soldiers already have been given jobs, most of them filling an order from moving-picture concerns which are putting on war pictures.

The bureau now has fifty jobs for soldiers and sailors to work as quarantine inspectors at $100 a month; 200 jobs as laborers at Prescott, Ariz., at 37½ cents an hour, and jobs for storage battery repair men, for candy makers and solicitors.

The bureau places only mustered-out soldiers and seamen in positions. There is absolutely no charge of any kind. Each applicant is asked to fill out a brief questionnaire, the facts for which are entered in the history of the war to be placed at the museum at Exposition Park as a permanent record. All returned soldiers and sailors are asked to register for the history. If the registrant wants work, he fills out an application blank card stating his experience and wages desired. Chairman E. H. Bagby of the bureau asks that all applicants keep in constant touch with the bureau so that the applicants may be sent to the jobs quickly.

FOR IMMEDIATE AID.

As the bureau organizes, it is expected there will be representatives of the Red Cross civilian relief and other agencies on hand to give immediate aid to returned soldiers, seamen and their dependents. The city authorities and leading business men desire the bureau to be the clearing-house for the returning 40,000 service men of the city, and that they will feel free to go there and talk over with Mr. Bagby the problems incident to their re-establishing themselves in Los Angeles civil life.

Mayor Woodman, in a proclamation announcing the establishment of the bureau, says:

"We desire that every person who has a job or can give employment, even for an hour, communicate their wants to the Replacement Bureau, and the bureau will make every endeavor to supply them with service men.

"We wish to impress upon the people their duty—that the first call should be given to the men who wear the colors.

"We are also utilizing the machinery of the United States Department of Labor, in order to place all these men in some position, with the least possible inconvenience to themselves.

CO-OPERATION ASKED.

"The bureau has no way to ascertain what employment is needed, and it is our desire that the people report positions they have open at once.

"This is voluntary work. Lack of funds will not permit the running of a large and elaborate service, and the bureau calls upon the people of the city for their co-operation.

"The Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the labor organizations and others are co-operating in disseminating this information to their membership. They are working to the point, with the hope that some one of the large organizations will be able to make a survey, as a patriotic duty to the soldier, as a mark of loyalty to the community and a determination to assist in the reconstruction that is before us.

"I earnestly urge that all organizations, and each individual, make it their duty, to the very best of their ability, to assist in a survey of the city, to determine what positions are open, and notify the Replacement Bureau when and where returning soldiers can be placed."

SIX CITED FOR BRAVERY.

Six Southern California soldiers are among those recently cited by Gen. Pershing for conspicuous bravery in action, it was learned here yesterday. First among them is Robert P. Elliott, a pilot of the Ninety-sixth Aero Squadron, son of J. M. Elliott, chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank of this city.

Sergt. Elmer T. Worthy of Co. M, Three Hundred and Sixty-second Infantry, is mentioned for valiant courage in leading an attack upon three machine-gun nests. He is a son of J. T. Worthy of Santa Ana. GERMANS SEND FUNDS OVER DUTCH FRONTIER

LIVELY TRAFFIC EXISTS IN EXPORT OF SECURITIES AND MONEY.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

THE HAGUE (Holland) Jan. 17.—In spite of measures taken December 21 to prevent the export of German securities and money to neighboring countries, a lively traffic in it still continues. During the last weeks many Germans and Austrians have been crossing the Dutch frontier with money in order to speculate in Holland. These will in the future be stopped by Dutch sentries for fear of revolutionaries.

Large sums of money, however, have been arriving in registered letters, according to a financial informant. The Frankfurter Zeitung points out that it is obviously no longer to Germany's advantage to export German bank notes and it refers to the Imperial Bank's preventive measures of printing all new bank notes in other colors.

"New green notes are thus indicated as not having been in foreign countries during the German occupation, but have been brought in later for speculation, especially in Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine. Smugglers of notes are apparently not to be scared by any measures, and are up to all sorts of tricks to get old notes across the border. In Berlin agents are already offering 1½ per cent. more for old notes which can be paid with German checks. It is an unfortunate fact that German bankers appear to be lending a helping hand to these transactions."

The paper proposes a sharper watch on the frontier, saying that more Dutch paper money is arriving from Germany. Doubtless the prospect of tremendous new taxes just published in Germany leads to the desire to export as much wealth as possible. The new progressive tax rises rapidly to 100 per cent. for fortunes above 5000 marks, after which the fortune falls to the state.

The industrialist organ, the Koelnische Volks eZitung, says indignantly that the big philanthropist who has given tremendous sums of money during the war will be obliged to pay taxes on these sums.

STATE'S FUNDS ASKED TO ABATE MOSQUITOES.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 11.—"State aid, either in the form of direct funds or intensive supervision," is needed to make more effective the war being waged on the California malaria-bearing mosquito, said the report of the division of entomology, State Board of Health, submitted to Gov. William D. Stephens.

The average annual cost of campaigns under the Mosquito Abatement Districts Act is $250 per square mile, according to the report. The bill limits taxation to 10 cents on the $100, requiring therefore an average valuation of approximately $400, it was pointed out.

"As improved agricultural land in California averages $150 per [illegible] is consequently necessary [illegible] every case to include a [illegible] in the district," said the [illegible] "The anopheline, or malaria-[illegible] mosquito is largely rural and [illegible] laria consequently a rural [illegible] but here where need of [illegible] most urgent the present bill [illegible] very little help."

LIEUT. VAN DEGRIFT BACK FROM SERVICE.

Lieut. Tyler R. Van Degrift has returned to Los Angeles after being honorably discharged from the Field Artillery Replacement Depot, at Camp Jackson, S. C. Lieut. Van Degrift went to Camp Lewis in September, 1917, in charge of a party of thirty-three men from District No. 15. Within a month he was made sergeant and in another month was appointed first sergeant of the company to which assigned. On the opening of the Fourth Officers' Training School of the Ninety-first Division he was sent there, but when the Wild West Division left for France, he was transferred to complete training in the Field Artillery Training School at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky. Here he was commissioned as lieutenant of artillery and assigned to duty at Camp Jackson, S. C., to train and outfit men for direct overseas service. He is a member of the Van Degrift Shoe Company, and has resumed his position as assistant manager of the Van Degrift stores, taking charge at Third and Broadway.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 18.—Southern California friends of Gov. Stephens are wondering what is going to become of him if he does not take a firmer hold and let these crafty politicians around the Capitol know who is boss. Developments of the week make the evidence more conclusive than ever that something ominous is in the air and that the plan is to eventually make the Chief Executive the goat. Just how this is to be done, if it can be brought about, is not clear, but they surely are after the Governor.

When Lieut.-Gov. Young, author of the direct primary law and many other abominable abortions, picked seven anti-Stephens and pro-labor members for the Committee on Labor and Capital all doubt was removed as to the gap between the Governor and his first assistant, and closely following this piece of effrontery came a slap from the Assembly. No one thought for a minute that Speaker Wright would dare further embarrass the Governor by giving the unionites a majority of the Capital and Labor Committee in the lower house. All had been taught that the new Speaker would play ball with the Governor. Of course, it is a little early to get a positive line on the members of the Capital and Labor Committee but if the members may be judged by past performances I would say that seven of the thirteen members are pro-union.

It is well known that the Governor does not want to again face the undesirable situation of passing upon Union Labor's most important bill. Two years ago he vetoed the measure and members of his official family who hoped to see him kicked out of office were tickled. They made it impossible for him to escape criticism from the unionites and evidently have planned to further cement his opposition. I am of the opinion that their plans will fail, that the anti-injunction bill will never get to the Governor because if it is not defeated in the Senate it surely will be in the Assembly. This will relieve the Governor of the necessity of killing it with the executive pen, which he certainly will do, if by any accident it passes the Legislature.

The fate of the bill is no cause for alarm. Even its advocates are making the fight half-heartedly. But the fact that President Young and Speaker Wright have bowed to the will of the unionites when they knew the position of the Governor, must not be overlooked. If they are unfriendly—and they surely are—is it not reasonable to assume that the Governor's house is divided against itself and you know what inevitably happens to such a house. It must fall.

Some of the political wiseacres say the whole plan is being worked out according to the wishes of California's junior Senator, who would rather see Heney elected than Stephens; who is jealous of the popularity of Gov. Stephens and who has been turning over heaven and earth to effect his downfall. Senator Johnson of course realizes that his strength at home is waning, that it has almost vanished south of the Tehachepi and he knows that so long as Gov. Stephens is at the helm, his chances of piloting the Ship of State are becoming more remote every day. Senator Johnson also knows that Gov. Stephens would be a formidable candidate should he enter the Senatorial race next year.

Friends of the Governor keep telling him to watch Al McCabe and Martin Madsen, his closest advisers. They are referred to as Johnsonism's most dependable henchmen. But the Governor disregards these admonitions. He says Al and Marty are on the level with him, and a certain happening of this week leads me to believe that maybe the Governor is right after all. If the inseparable twins are against the Governor why are they against Young? One would naturally assume that they must be for one or the other. Well, they are not for Young; in fact they are making no bones about it and have shown much displeasure over the extraordinary publicity Young has been receiving. They say his annihilation depends upon the refusal of the press to notice him and have expressed the hope that when a reporter starts to pen a roast or a compliment for the Lieutenant-Governor said reporter experience for the time being a severe attack of rheumatism in his right hand.

Admittedly the situation is a puzzle; but there is one thing reasonably certain—the enemies of Gov. Stephens are on the job and they will get him if he doesn't watch out. Here is a little friendly advice to the Governor: Do as Mayor Woodman has done. Clean the slate from top to bottom. Wipe out every man in your official family against whom the finger of suspicion is pointing. You cannot go far wrong. It is possible you will hurt some fellow who does not deserve it but that is not probable and it is certain that you will get rid of a lot whose only purpose is to undermine you and bolster the strength of Hiram Johnson, your worst enemy.

Fate certainly is kind to some people! Until it happened who would ever have believed it possible to elect H. W. Wright Speaker of the Assembly. Unpopular with both factions in the lower house it seemed that little less than a miracle could bring about his election, but there are strange plays in the game of politics and Wright has profited by one of them. Egotistical as he is, you cannot convince him that he just happened to get the honor. He thinks it was his personality or something of the sort that landed him at the helm of the Assembly and he thinks the same thing is going to send him to Washington to supplant Congressman Randall. Anyhow he is going to be a candidate next time. When it comes to making a choice between the two, what will the poor voter do? I give up. If Randall is wrong, what is Wright?

Reports to the effect that Senator Charles W. Lyon of Venice, a member of the Capital and Labor Committee, will support the anti-injunction bill do him an injustice. His brother, the late Senator Henry Lyon, always voted the labor union programme, but Charles uses better judgment, and can be depended upon to fight the bill in committee and on the floor. He says he does not feel unfriendly toward labor unions as a whole, but when it comes to approving a plan which would make them supreme and take from judges their power to enforce public protection he will kick over the traces.

Although Assemblyman Roberts of Los Angeles, the first and only colored gentleman to be sent to the Legislature in California, has been here a week, folks are wondering what he looks like. He came with his face hidden behind a flu mask.

They tell me that this session of the Legislature is the most uninteresting ever held. One political scribe who has attended nearly all of the forty-three sessions and who used to come to Sacramento with a six-shooter as his best friend says the monotony is almost unbearable. He said the only resemblance to the early days is the disguise but even that lacks the kick it used to have. Back in the 70's the guy with the mask usually got something for his trouble, but now he wears it to keep from getting something.

Pretty little Goldie Hart, three years old pride of Senator and Mrs. Hart, is one of the attractions at the capital. She even outshines her big dad, who also is somewhat conspicuous because everybody says of him: "See that man over there! He is the only millionaire in the Legislature, and what do you think of it, once upon a time he was a bell hop. Now he owns the million-dollar Rosslyn Hotel in Los Angeles. I wonder what he wants to be a Senator for?" Maybe I could tell them. Senator Hart took this job as a stepping stone in the political game. Thirty years ago they wondered why he was carrying ice water, too.

THE WATCHMAN.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

Well-Known Lady Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair By a Simple Home Made Remedy

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well known resident of Buchanan County, Iowa, who darkened her gray hair by a simple home-made remedy, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp; is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 10 to 20 years younger."

RETIRE from BUSINESS

A PERSONAL STATEMENT
As the principal owner of Eisner & Co. I desire to explain to my friends and customers why the firm will retire from business.
I find that my other interests prevent me from devoting my entire time to Eisner & Co., and as I cannot consent to my name being used in a business which I merely own, but can no longer supervise, I have decided, in justice to my customers, to retire and wind up its affairs by holding this final close-out sale.
Until the sale ends I shall be at the store to welcome you and to see that your orders are delivered satisfactorily.
(Signed) I. EISNER

Sale Resumed Tomorrow (Monday) at 9 A. M.

THIS SALE WILL CONTINUE until every piece of fabric in the store is disposed of. Business has been splendid, hundreds of men have come to share these bargains. Nevertheless, owing to the influenza epidemic, many have been unable to come and for this reason we announce that the sale will continue.

Complete Closing Out SALE

In order to properly adjust our affairs before retiring from the tailoring business we deem it absolutely necessary to sell our entire stock of merchandise. This must be done quickly and completely. Therefore, we shall end our career with the greatest of all tailoring sales—an exposition of values which transcends every former effort of this or any other house. Resuming tomorrow and continuing until every yard of woolens we own are sold, these wonderful reductions will prevail.

all $35 SUITS and Overcoats $26.75

all $45 SUITS and Overcoats $34.75

all $50 SUITS and Overcoats $39.75

all $60 SUITS and Overcoats $49.75

Coming at a time when the woolen prices are going higher and higher, with the supply fast diminishing, this sale presents a most extraordinary opportunity for practicing tailoring economy. Attend this final sale of Eisner & Co., knowing that you will get even greater values than we have ever offered before.

TELLS HORROR OF HUN CAMPS.

Soldier Exposes Brutality of "Kultur" Apostles.

Santa Barbara Man Hears of German Atrocities.

Prisoners Tortured After Foe Suffered Reverses.

A grim echo of the terrible reality of the million tragedies born of the German prison camps is contained in a letter from Private A. Simpson of the English army, received by A. M. Hawkins of Santa Barbara yesterday.

For three years Simpson was a prisoner of the Germans, and was subjected to many of the cruelties of which the outside world heard little. The Germans used to wreak vengeance upon helpless prisoners every time the Allies scored a success, Simpson says in his letter. He continues:

I was sent to a coal mine on March 6, 1917, with 349 other Englishmen, as a reprisal for some victory that the Allies had on the western front. On arriving at the kommando lager we all said that we did not intend to do detrimental work, and refused to draw our pit clothes. The German N.C.O. in charge immediately gave the order that we should be punished. The sentries, armed with rifles and bayonets, got in among us and started their brutality by flogging us with their rifle butts, also rubber piping stuffed with sand, and anything that they could put their hands on.

Eventually they got us to take our clothes and marched us to the pit top and showed us the cage which carried workers below, and told us we could either go down in the cage or follow it down, meaning they would have us thrown down the shaft. We worked that shift, then a man escaped and got clean away back to Scotland. Then we had a punishment of no parcels for seven days and no smoking, also standing to attention at any time we were called out for two or three hours.

The third day down the pit I tried to get away from the kommando by placing my hand under a wagon pulled by an electric train, but was sent to an infirmary for a few days, then made to work with my finger and arm in a sling.

All the while I was tormented with this strange thought going through my head about being detrimental; also of my two brothers, and so after finishing twelve hours in the pit I chopped my three fingers off as a final try to get out of this kommando. I was left in the barrack for thirty-seven hours with all the three arteries bleeding. The doctor came and put me under operation without ether or gas.

It is hard to believe, but I was only three weeks in the hospital when they sent me down the pit to work with the three finger ends exposed to the foul air and gas that is everywhere in the pit, and on coming out of the pit I got thrown into prison for making a complaint to an officer against the N.C.O. in charge of the kommando. I was beaten with rubber by seven sentries and got several slashes across my three finger ends, which were bleeding and had no bandage. I stopped in a dark cell for three days without food.

THE CRY OF CAMBRAI.

"We Have Nothing. We Need Everything," Cables Mayor.

Poignant is the cry of the devastated city of Cambrai, as heard in a cablegram addressed by the Mayor of the French city to L. N. Brunswig of the American Committee for Devastated France. Mr. Brunswig sent the Mayor a letter just after the signing of the armistice, offering assistance. The letter was taken to France by Capt. Robert Mairesse of the French Army Flying Corps, whose home is in Cambrai. Capt. Mairesse was recalled to France after a year of continuous instruction to American aviators at Rockwell Field, San Diego.

Mr. Brunswig has just received the answer. It reads:

"We have received your letter, written November 12. The city of Cambrai thanks you all-heartedly. We accept your generous aid. We have nothing; we need everything. We are now negotiating with Mr. Andre Tardieu for transportation. Our letter following."

Mr. Brunswig and the committee hope that in recognition of Capt. Mairesse's devotion to the cause, Los Angeles and Southern California will respond to the call of his native city. Said Mr. Brunswig yesterday: "The heart of the city of Cambrai has been wrecked. In fact, the devastation of that city was so atrocious that the French government solemnly warned the Germans that they would be held accountable, and with such effect that the cities of Lille, Valenciennes, Roulers, Turcoing, etc., were respected."

DOESN'T WANT RANK.

Exemption Board Chairman Protests Against Congress Bill.

Henry J. Stevens, well-known corporation lawyer, and for the past year chairman of the exemption board at Santa Monica, has written a letter to Congressman Osborne protesting against the passage of a bill providing that the rank of major be given to the chairmen of local and district boards and that of captain to other members of the boards.

"As one member of a draft board, I consider it an honor thus to serve my country," wrote Mr. Stevens. "I want no other reward than the consciousness of having performed, to the best of my ability, the work assigned me to do. If this or some similar bill must pass to appease the insatiate desires of some persons for the vanities of this world, isn't there some way by which those of us who eschew such things can prevent their being thrust upon us?"

TO FINAL RESTING PLACE.

Oscar E. Thomas, Jr., of the O. E. Thomas Electric Company, No. 311 South Spring street, died of influenza January 14 in El Paso, it became known here yesterday, on his way East. His body will be taken for interment to his father's home in South Carolina. Mrs. Thomas, who was with him, will return to the home of her mother, Mrs. Emma G. Martin, No. 2924 West Eighth street.

1000 Carpet and Rug Samples

Samples from the Famous Bigelow Mills at Sensationally Low Prices

It would take a small fortune to buy full size rugs like some of these samples—for they are the finest the Bigelow Mills turn out. Each one is finished at the ends, making small rugs that would ornament the finest home. In many instances you will find two or more alike that can be joined together for hall runners. Hotels and apartment-houses can use them by the dozen. No matter how great your expectations these values are sure to be a surprise—Monday's sale prices are but a mere fraction of their real worth.

DRAMA.

REAL DRAMATIC EVENTS.

COMING OF GREAT PICTURES, PLAYS AND VAUDEVILLE.

Mason.

Arthur Hammerstein's bewitchingly beautiful musical comedy entitled "You're In Love," by the authors of "The Firefly," "Hi Jinks" and "Katinka," will be the attraction at the Mason, starting tomorrow night for a limited engagement of one week. The story is light, as is proper for a musical dancing play, with a love story running throughout the action that leaves nothing to be desired in the way of an evening's entertainment. Otto Harbach has written a full quota of joyous comedy, Edward Clark has furnished many entrancing lyrics and Rudolf Friml has provided twenty odd lilting melodies that are all distinctly whistleable. As to scenery and costumes, "You're In Love," can claim as elaborate and effective an investiture as any company on tour. The specially selected cast of principals will include: Oscar L. Figman, W. H. White, Easton Yonge, Ben Wells, Miss Elinor McCune, Miss Virginia Watson, Miss Alice Johnson, Messrs. Maxon and Brown.

Orpheum.

Say it altogether—Hobart Bosworth in Jack London's "The Sea Wolf"—and then you grasp the significance of one of the greatest dramatic treats of the Los Angeles season, and the biggest dramatic sensation the Orpheum has ever offered. No one was better qualified to arrange London's book than Bosworth, his close friend and pal, and perhaps nobody living could play Wolf Larsen like Bosworth. Fay and Florence Courtney bring smart songs, clothes and styles. Bert Fitzgibbons is the original daffy dil, and he comes back daffier than ever. Paul Decker brings a good company in an odd sketch, "The Ruby Ray;" Wallace Galvin has some dexterity to demonstrate, and Jack and Kitty Demmack will delight in "The Garden of Recreation." Grace La Rue, will remain a week longer, as will the Futuristic Revue.

Morosco.

Probably the most unique play of the season from the standpoint of mechanical stage treatment will be presented at the Morosco, beginning with today's matinee, when Oliver Morosco offers for the first time in the West, the New York success, "Yes or No." In this play, all the tricks of the motion pictures have been utilized. There are cut-backs and fade-outs and close-ups and in fact most of the stunts that have been marveled at in pictures. Throughout most of the play you are kept in constant contact with two families, one very rich, the other very poor, and both occupying the stage at the same time. This arrangement is successfully carried out by the use of lighting apparatus which has been specially prepared for this production. Charles Meredith and Florence Malone will head the cast. The play will be particularly marked by the return of Harlan Tucker, former Morosco favorite, to the cast.

Kinema.

Beginning with today's matinee, at the Kinema, D. W. Griffith will present the beautiful production, "The Fall of Babylon," a spectacular romance taken from the Babylonian theme of "Intolerance." The first performance will be at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the picture will thereafter run daily throughout the week. During the appearance of this Griffith production at the Kinema, Mr. Griffith will be in complete charge of the house as well as of the stage, and a typical Griffith form of entertainment is to be expected. In addition to "The Fall of Babylon," there will be a feature Rex Beach travelogue and several fine musical numbers. Special music, arranged by Louis Gottaschalk will form the accompaniment to "The Fall of Babylon," and Mr. Gottschalk will direct the orchestra.

CONCERNING BOSWORTH.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

The other day, on meeting Hobart Bosworth in the lobby of the Orpheum, I said that I wanted to write a story about him, and politely suggested that he choose the angle himself. But this he would not do. "Oh, just reminisce," said he. "You've known me so long that this will come easy."

My word of protest was waved aside. In truth, it was only a word, for somewhat the same idea had come to me. After one has known a celebrity for fourteen years, all of them years of friendship, one may or may not be in a position to write reminiscences. It all depends, no doubt, on one's faculty for remembrance, and perhaps on what one is willing to share with others.

The friendship between Hobart Bosworth and me that began in 1905 holds so much that is pleasant that I have no hesitancy in telling you about it—especially as the simple narrative (it has no great excitements, you are forewarned,) may give you sidelights on a talent of unusual variousness and distinction. For Hobart Bosworth is both painter and playwright, as well as actor, and his activities in the two "side lines," so to speak, have met with a success only a little less than his success as an actor. Some men play many parts in life, and play them well. Bosworth is such an all-around man.

When Bosworth came to Los Angeles in 1905 he had been exiled for a year in the desert. One of those deadly drafts that sweep nightly over the stage had gripped one lung so hard that his only safety lay in flight. So he loitered in Arizona, and found, in painting pictures, solace for his artistic soul in the sunlight that brought healing to his body. Then, being well and happy and hopeful, he brought his landscapes to Los Angeles. As art critic on this paper, I went to see them that I might write about them—and that's how we first met. They were good pictures, be it said, and showed conclusively that Hobart Bosworth might have become a landscape painter of fame if he had decided in favor of painting instead of acting. But he is such an extraordinarily good actor that no one regrets that he stuck to the choice of his youth.

This was in the heyday of the Belasco Stock Company. The theater was beautifully new, the actors were, the most of them, new to us, and it was such a good theater and the actors were such good actors that we rejoiced when Hobart Bosworth was made stage director. His painting was perforce put aside, but not forever, he tells me, for he still handles the brushes whenever some bit of landscape compels this tribute to nature's unending loveliness. You all remember, no doubt, what wonderful plays Bosworth and the Belasco actors gave us. Perhaps as fine plays are produced today—but to many of us the fragrance that clung to the buskin and hose of a decade ago was certainly rarer and finer than the odor of unsanctity that pervades modern productions.

In those days, as now, I discussed, in print, plays as well as pictures, and I had occasion to study Hobart Bosworth in many roles, for we had literary matinees, and special productions, and all sorts of grand dramatic doings. Beleve me, the highbrow was not yet extinct in the year of frace 1909. What amazing versatility Bosworth displayed! Can you imagine him as the exquisite tailor in "The Taming of the Shrew?" Yet he played the part in a Shakespearean revival at the Belasco, and, big as he is physically, he made the character no bigger than one of Queen Mab's courtiers—if you know what I mean.

Then, if you please, and perhaps

STUDIOS.

THEIR BUSY DAY.

UNIVERSAL PURSUES ITS CALM WAY AMID THE STORM.

By Grace Kingsley.

Picture programmes may come and go, stars may combine and uncombine, but Universal goes calmly along on her way, like the water course described by Tennyson. Everybody's busy out there, these days, and every little stage has a "movie" all its own.

President Carl Laemmle announces that the genius Bluebird is extinct, so far as Universal is concerned. That is, no more pictures will be issued under this name. Hereafter the Universal organization will produce only "Special Attractions," super-productions, two-reel westerns, serials, and a new comedy programme, all under the "Big U" trade-mark.

James J. Corbett has begun work on his big serial, and states he will be able to stand the strain of the stunts he is called upon to perform, though some of these stunts will have the firm of Hercules, Hart and Fairbanks on the run. In fact, he's undergoing a fine line of training in order to be able to show the fans he is still the James J. of old—and they do say he is liable to put on a little show out at Vernon some night. By the way, Corbett has discovered that his director, James Horne, and he used to live on the same block in San Francisco, when they were boys. At that time Horne used to lick Corbett daily, but whereas Horne finally turned out to be nothing more dangerous than a picture director, Corbett, perhaps made desperate by his failure in boyish scraps, became a world's champion. Kathleen O'Connor, fear-proof as Tom Mix's leading woman, is playing the feminine role.

Another departure from Universal's former schedule is in the series of releases begun by William Campbell of two-reel animal comedies. Universal's big zoo is being used to produce these comedies, which are expected to be startlingly original. Harry Burns will play leads in these comedies, while Joe, Universal's $10,000 orang-outang, Charlie, the elephant—used to knock sets over and draw loads when not an actor—Caesar, the famous lion, and other animal performers will enact thrilling roles. Peggy Aarup will play the feminine lead in these—as she expresses it, referring of course to her association with wild beasts—"so-called comedies."

The series of O. Henry stories is getting well under way, and promise to be a huge success.

Rupert Julian is going to repeat his "The Beast of Berlin" feat in another production, "The Fire Flingers," from William Neidig's story. Julian played the star role in "The Kaiser," which he also directed.

"The Fire Flingers" serves to bring back to the screen no less a person than Fay Tincher, who, while famous as a comedienne, will change character entirely and become a "vamp." Jane Novak and Charles Hill Mailes, also have leading roles.

"Raggedy Ann" is the name of Priscilla Dean's present play, in which she is being directed by Tod Browning. By the way, Priscilla is on a rampage regarding the names of her pictures. It was bad enough being called "The Gutter Snipe" by her friends, while she was playing in "The Gutter Rose," but "Raggedy Ann" she says is entirely misleading, inasmuch as there are neither any rags nor any Ann in the whole play. In fact, she's spent ever so much money on gleeful garments for the show.

From Big Bear comes word that Jack Ford and his Harry Carey company, who are making Bret Harte's, "The Outcast of Poker Flat," were snowed in for four days, during the last two of which they had little food, and the only person who didn't mind the latter fact was Gloria Hope, who says she's trying to stay slim, and just as soon eat snow as anything else. Mr. Carey will do a series of two-reel westerns following the completion of the present film.

"The Red Glove," the serial starring Marie Walcamp, has been the source of a number of mishaps. The most serious of these is the accident which befell, Alfred Allen, well known character actor, who, it is feared, has lost the use of his right eye. Allen was accidently shot during the making of a scene while playing the role of a gambling hall owner. The shot was, of course, no more than a blank cartridge, but the paper wad, which also carried a splinter of brass from the shell penetrated Allen's eyelid and blood poison eventualized. Allen may not see through the affected eye for several months, at least, according to his surgeon.

TEDDY FAITHFUL JUST LIKE SOLDIER DOG.

Consternation on the Sennett lot Teddy was missing. Everything was ready for a big scene in which Teddy was to be much in evidence. Dick Jones was tearing his hair; Louise Fazenda was rushing madly about in her funny make-up looking behind props and under everything; Ben Turpin nearly straightened his eyes trying to find the big dog, and wildest confusion reigned. It was finally Phyllis who found him and she led the rest to a distant corner of the lot. There under a tree lay Baby Dave sound asleep with his arms around Teddy's neck and his little curly head pillowed on the Great Dane's shoulder. No call in the world would have induced that big dog to disturb his little friend, and the company tiptoed away.

J. A. QUINN IS RIGHT ON THE JOB.

LUCY YATES THIS WEEK.

FAMOUS SOPRANO AND TRIO OPEN AT TRINITY.

By Jeanne Redman.

The Trio de Lutece, with George Barrere, flutist, Carlos Salzedo, harpist, and Paul Kefer, 'cellist, will be heard next Thursday evening and Saturday afternoon at Trinity Auditorium, in joint recital with Lucy Gates, American lyric coloratura soprano. These two concerts will formally open the Los Angeles musical season in general, and the evening and matinee series of the Philharmonic courses in particular.

The unusual combination of instruments, harp, 'cello and flute, with interpolated songs and operatic arias, has proven one of the genuinely-popular combinations of the concert platform. The rigidness of the recital programme is broken by the variety of numbers made possible by the assemblying of four such artists.

The members of the Trio de Lutece are all gold medalists of the Paris Conservatoire; in fact, the name is taken from the original name of Paris (Lutetia.) Salzedo, the harpist, is the greatest performer upon this lovely instrument. His artistry is to the harp what Beethoven was to the orchestra, what Chopin was to the piano; he is its regenerator, making this instrument popular and revitalized with the public.

George Barrere, the flutist, is already a well-established favorite here, and also Paul Kefer, the violencellist, who was soloist with the New York Philharmonic on its programmes in Los Angeles.

Lucy Gates, since her return to America, has enjoyed a decided vogue with the most exacting audiences in the world, those who attend recitals. The voice is a lovely, well-trained one, which, in combination with her own personal charm, makes for popular vogue. The programme for Thursday evening will include the following numbers:

"Dieuxieme Concert" (Jean-Philippe Rameau,) "Song Without Words" (Tschaikowsky,) "Oriental" (Cui,) "Spanish Serenade" (Glazounoff) and "The Dolly Suite" (Faure) to be given by the trio, the famous "Hymn to the Sun" (Rimsky-Korsakoff,) "Shepherd, Play a Little Air" (William Stickles,) "The Robin's Song" (Howard White,) "Solvig's Song" (Grieg,) "Les Trois Chansons" (Gabriel Pierne) and "A des Oiseux" (Georges Hue.)

The Saturday-afternoon programme is entirely different, including the following numbers: "Pieces de Concert" (Rameau,) "Dansespour la Duchesse de Milan" (Hahn,) "Petite Suite" (Debussy) by the trio, with Miss Gates's selections, including the lovely old Italian air, "Caro Mio Ben," "Pastoral" (Carey,) "The Rose Hath Charmed the Nightingale" (Rimsky-Korsakoff,) "Cradle Song" (Gretchaninoff) and a Folk Song by Alabieff.

The Next Symphony.

This is the story of an opera that turned out to be a symphony. Nearly fifty years ago there was a man in Russia who had achieved great prominence in his chosen science. In fact, he became a professor of surgery and of chemistry in one of the chief medical colleges.

Not only that, but he wrote treatises on science. His works on chemistry made Russian science respected even in chemical Germany. More than that, he founded a medical school for women, to which he gave his services until his death.

Apart from his scientific career, this Prof. Borodin was a great lover of music, and sub rosa, a composer. In fact, he wrote much music, but did not permit it to be published, as he prefered to be known as a scientist rather than as a musician. But Borodin, the composer, will live in history long after Borodin, the scientist, is forgotten.

With all his compositions, there were two symphonies, to each of which he gave five years of his recreation time. Of the second it has been said there was "an opera that became a symphony." Borodin was much attracted by the story of Prince Igor, a Russian warrior of the twelfth century, and determined to write an opera with that character as the central figure. He studied the Russian medieval history with the thoroughness of the scientist. He read history, poetry and collected folk songs of that period. However, he found that there was no public interest in such an opera, and his friends deplored to him that he had wasted so much of his valuable time so uselessly. "In that case," was his reply, "I will have material for a good symphony."

So he began to incorporate the musical sketches he had made into a symphony. He wrote one movement and then laid the work aside. Several years after he came back to it and completed it. This is the symphony that is to be given at the concert of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra February 6.

The first movement depicts, as well as may be in music, the gathering of the tribes and their princes; in the second movement he recalls a song of the "bayans," the medieval Russian troubadour; in the last movement there is depicted the triumph, the banquet of heroes, to the sound of the "guzla" and the bamboo flute, played in the rejoicings of the common people outside the hall.

With this interesting and rare work as the central piece of the symphony programme there will no doubt be repeated the large success that was evident at the first concert of the season.

With the selection of Anna Hesse Sprotte, mezzo-soprano, as soloist, the programme is rounded out to artistic completeness, as she is recognized as one of the most satisfactory singers in the West, having an operatic repertoire of unusual dimensions and singing with polish and authority of style.

CADMAN PROGRAMME AT THE WA-WAN CLUB.

On Wednesday afternoon, at the Alexandria ballroom, the Wa-Wan Club presented Charles Wakefield Cadman, Harold Procter and Mme. Manuella Budrow in a Cadman programme. A very large audience, with many local musicians, attested to the popularity of the well-known composer. Mr. Cadman played a group of piano compositions, some of which are still in manuscript. They were characteristic and thoroughly in the Cadman manner. Cadman played a transcription of his intermezzo from "Shanewis," giving, as well as possible, an idea of the orchestration. Mme. Budrow sang arias from "Shanewis," with stage scenic descriptions by the com-

CONCERNING BOSWORTH.

the next week, we saw him as the bishop of Benares in "The Servant in the House," and his face was spiritual to the point of awesomeness. Perhaps the week after that he gave us the poetic and mystical Pelleas of Maeterlinck's dramatic story. And now he is offering us Wolf Larsen! What a range and what a talent! For he plays all these parts exceedingly well—I can think of no actor who could do better in any one of them, certainly of none who could do them all with even an approach to Bosworth's intelligence and distinction.

Bosworth had a scenario up his sleeve. He had kept it for many years, taking it out for a shy peep now and then. It was a romantic thing called "Leif Ericsson," and he believed in it thoroughly. So did everybody else, for that matter, but somehow nobody had the temerity to try to put flesh upon its beautiful dry bones. Until Hobart came and offered to let me try, for no reason in the world, that I could discover, except that I, like Lief of A. D. 1000, was a Norwegian by birth, and that we both took a trip westward and discovered America.

The skeleton of "Leif Ericsson" loomed large to me, but I was full of courage in those days—the courage of inexperience—and, to put it baldly, I tackled the job. I enjoyed it, too, and when it was finished I looked at the play, and lo! it found exceeding great favor in my eyes. Also in the eyes of Hobart Bosworth. But not in the eyes of the producers. They thought it was fine (they said,) but it would be too expensive to put on the boards, the public wanted problem plays, not romantic and poetic melodrama, and so on and so forth. For days, months, years we lived in the maddening thrall of that hope deferred which makes the heart sick. "Leif Ericsson" was nearly put over half a dozen times, but never quite. Which is the way of most plays, after all. Have you, gentle reader, ever written one? If not, don't.

Shortly after the birth (but not the death) of Leif, Bosworth joined the Selig forces, which makes him a veteran in motion pictures, one of the very first of the notable actors of the stage to go into them. He took his copy of "Leif Ericsson" with him, and at Selig's, too, the exploits of the doughty Norwegian viking were admired and applauded—but never produced. But, as before, almost. Cecil de Mille was cautiously approached, and Wallace Reid was suggested for the role of Leif, as Dustin Farnum had been hinted at at Selig's. Somebody balked, or somebody blundered, but I give fair warning to Mr. De Mille that some day I am going to wander out his way with MY copy of that truly wonderful play. In the bright lexicon of playwrights, the word "fail" is printed on every page, but no playwright worthy of the name will ever condescend to see it. Which is why a few, a very few, playwrights succeed.

But Bosworth is not writing plays now, and he says he's glad he is out of motion pictures. "Working in photoplays is a thankless job," he said. "An audience stimulates the actor, a cameraman or director doesn't—and that's all there's to it, 'but 'tis enough, 'twill serve,' as Mercutio said of the very considerable wound in his side. The director sometimes gives us a similar pain, though he doesn't mean to. He himself is only a cog in the machinery. The actors are all the rest. This may be all right for some artistic temperaments, but not for me, thank you!"

Nevertheless, Hobart Bosworth's name is one beloved of the motion-picture fans. I told you he was an all-round man.

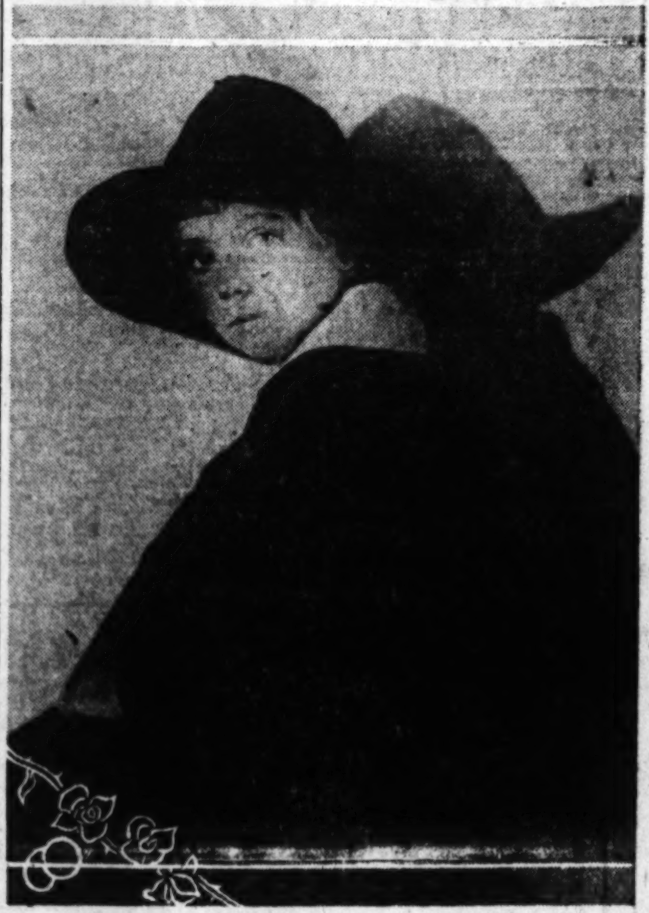
Child Portrait in the Photographic Salon.



Betty Thorpe, by Louis Fleckenstein.

THE PHOTOGRAPHS AGAIN.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Los Angeles's big effort for the cause of artistic photography, the Second International Photographic Salon, which is held under the auspices of the Camera Pictorialists of Los Angeles, remains at Exposition Park to the end of January. If you've ever cherished a kodak, or if you ever intend to indulge in the mild, yet exciting dissipation of carrying one, don't neglect the opportunity to study these pictures. For pictures they are, not snapshots, and they will teach you many things you ought to know. They will also give you a good deal of pleasure.

Last week I wrote a column about the interesting show, being cut short, in the very midst of my enthusiasms for this picture and that, by the exigencies of time and space. It is now my purpose to speak of other photographs in the collection that appeal to my fancy—or shall I dignify the word by calling it something big, say "critical judgment?" You won't always agree with my opinions of pictures, of course, and I don't want you to. But when in doubt, count ten and look again.

Only American pictorialists are to be considered by us on this occasion. Many of these are from Los Angeles and other cities of California. Old and difficult problems confront these artists at every turn. (Don't forget that I call them artists advisedly.) And the greatest of these problems is light. The white light of nature is not invariably the right light for art. California is full of light, brilliant and beautiful, but making hard lines and too definite shadows. Not always of course, but often. For, despite the eastern superstitution, California has plenty of "atmosphere," hours of golden haze and subtle distances, when the mountains are ethereally blue or dreamily purple, and when a veil studded with shimmering opals envelopes the whole landscape.

Then comes the sun, as baldly truthful as a snapshot. The pictorial photographer must circumvent this uncomprising distributor of light, yet keep to the truth while adding poetry. How to do it is the ever-perplexing question, how to do it without the aid of wool or without blotting out that glorious radiance. Somehow or other the pictorialists of Los Angeles have solved the problem, though by what methods I, not being a photographer, cannot say. By many sacrifices, no doubt, but also by many additions, subtle secrets of the artist. The "artistic photograph" is therefore a triumph of science and feeling—a joining of the finite and the infinite.

Among the pictures that we shall now run briefly over together you will assuredly discover many examples of this difficult, and indeed all but impossible, conquest. My notes, I regret to say, are not complete enough for me to point such examples out to you. But seek for the beauty in such pictures as these, and other desirable pictorial qualities will be added unto you: "Surf Lines," by David Sheahan, an exquisite arrangement, a quiet sea poetically expressed; "The Harvest," by Thomas Sheckell, wheat stacks seen in the declining rays of afternoon; "The Gorge Below the Whirlpool, Niagara," "The Story of the Elms," "The Storm Wind," all three by Wilbur H. Porterfield, and all three pictures of great distinction and beauty, among the very finest in the exhibition—for Porterfield is a wonderful artists in photography.

Here are others that will more than repay your close study: "Moonlight," by William H. Rabe, the light falling on a building that has the classic mass and lines of a Greek temple; "A Family Misfortune," by Percy Neyman, cleverly done, with something of the texture of a charcoal; "The Slacker," by Holmes I. Mettee, man lounging on a bench, very effective in light and shadow; "A Misty Morning," by Mettee, having the power and beauty of great simplicity; "The Highland Pasture," by Wallace Lumney, sheep that are full of action seen against a sunset sky, the whole "pictorial" after the manner of the old Hudson River school of painters; "A Summer Symphony," by Dr. Rupert S. Lovejoy, the sky and trees very beautiful, though the figures are unpleasantly stiff in pose.

Still a few more and our pleasant review is done. "Nude Study," by Arthur F. Kales, shows a figure that is well placed in the cool landscape, and looks as if it belonged there—which, unfortunately, many nude figures do not. "The Spotlight" is also by Kales and is brilliantly effective, the arms of the dancer seen against the light. G. Buell and Hebe Hollister offer us a charming picture of a small boy in a garden which they call "Venetian Water Jug." Louis Fleckenstein's group of portraits is a stunning little exhibit in itself, every head shown having both beauty and life. "The Strollers," by John Paul Edwards, gives us values that are exquisitely rendered. In "A Winter Landscape," by C. W. Christiansen, the snow has genuine texture and quality.

At Ebell Club.

An exhibition of paintings in oil and water color by Dana Bartlett is being held at the Ebell Club through the month of January. The most of them are landscapes, and some of these have been shown recently in eastern exhibitions.

At Kanst's Gallery.

Studies of Indian life and portraiture, as well as desert landscapes, are being shown at Kanst's gallery. They are all from the brush of Lon Megargee, who has lived and painted in Arizona and New Mexico for a number of years.

Harbingers o' Spring

—Capricious as spring breezes themselves are the dainty fashion fads in millinery this season—

And Here are Some of the Newest Models!

—It is at Hamburger's that women always find the softer, brighter touches in millinery, which contrast, yet harmonize, with their winter apparel—

—And this is why these chic hats of satin, or satin-and-straw, will find such favor.

—And so—if you want hats that are original and distinctive—shop at Hamburger's for yours tomorrow.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

Lingerie Blouses

—However strong may be the call for blouses of silk, stronger still is the demand for lingerie blouses when spring and summer come!

At Hamburger's the New Models are Most Exquisite.

Prices Range 3.95 to 15.00

—The simplicity and the elegance of them is alluring, for sheer materials and filmy laces are combined in hundreds of ways to win feminine fancy.

—And the newest is always shown first —at Hamburger's!

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

The New Drape Veils

—In veils it is always the drape effects that proves the most beautiful—and popular—

—Yet there is positive worth and durability in the novelties just received!

—Drape veils in square and apron effects; plain, Tosca and hexagon meshes with chenille vines creeping over them—these are the newest! Prices, 2.00 to 6.50.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

VALENTINES

—If you want to send Valentines to England or France, buy them now!

—And, of course, you will! Our boys are just the same boys Over There as over here—and they'll be disappointed if you do not remember them with a Valentine.

—Hamburger's is showing large assortments at prices ranging from 5c up. First selections are always best, remember.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Women's Oxfords, Pumps, 4.35

—One of the sensations of the great Clearance Sale is the price we're making on these high-class shoes!

—But Hamburger's shoe sales are always wonderful. Now, for instance, we've taken fine oxfords and pumps right out of stock and repriced them to nearly half for a clearaway.

—Of black calf, black kid, tan kid, ooze and patent leathers; Louis XV or military heels—think how many styles!

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Camera Glimpses of Society Folk.

Mrs. James Scripps Booth is a prominent Crown City matron and was one of the guests at the tea given last week by Mrs. Earl Armstrong. Mrs. Willis H. Booth, who has been one of Los Angeles' prominent society women, and Red Cross workers, has gone to New York to reside. Miss Maurice is a popular Los Angeles society girl who has been devoting her time to the Patriotic League, canteen and Red Cross work. Misses Ralphs and Ferdon were much sought after at the formal opening of the Hotel Maryland in Pasadena Tuesday night.

BETTY ON HER OWN HONEYMOON.

December 27, 1918.

Tubby dear:

We have passed through the emotional palpitations of Christmas on board ship, second day out, which means that the brave Christmas fare was but a taunt and a joke to many a sorrowing stomach, and that a certain hectic, ferocious —?—, grim and determined to see the thing through at any cost, pervaded the rest of us. I am proud to say that George and I have discovered the surest basis of sustained romance—we both have unimpeachable stomachs, unwavering, confident and dependable six times a day. They flinched not and neither did they sigh at a sustained regime of six-course breakfasts at 8 a.m., beef tea and crackers at 11 a.m., six-course lunch at 1 p.m., afternoon tea at 4 p.m., and an eight-course dinner at 7 p.m., finishing up with sandwiches and nightcaps at 10:30 p.m., just to ward off the gnawing pangs of hunger till the bugle call fetches us out of bed next morning.

The ship is crowded to overflowing, but most of the millionaire set disembark at Honolulu, where I shall wait to mail you this letter. It is so funny to hear the kicks and grumbles because there are only two really stylish staterooms and all the rest, "first class" though they be, are poky little cubbyholes. You see, all the best ships have been taken for war purposes to other zones, and notwithstanding the Oceanic's lordly advertisements, their boats are necessarily modest compared to before-war luxuries. And the millionaires are so disgusted, it's pitiful. We discovered dear Mrs. W. K. Parkinson of Los Angeles aboard, weeping because they would not let her bring her Cadillac along, armed with several cases of Pomeroy sec and Golden State particular and much, much too overwhelmed with Neptune's emotional undulations to dispense any of them in person. But she dispensed hospitality by proxy and she haughtily commissioned T. G. Peabody of Santa Ana, also a passenger, to have our bridal condition celebrated in champagne, thus giving away our so well guarded secret. And the first cabin rejoiced exceedingly at our—and Mrs. Parkinson's expense. So many people have brought their special wine cellars along—and Honolulu being strictly "bone dry," they won't be allowed to land a drop of it! There are, for instance, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Merritt, who insist that they can drink nothing but champagne at every meal—and they do. Mr. Merritt is devoted and acquiescent. Mrs. Merritt is incisive, emphatic, positive. She settles all amiable discursive literary or cultural conversation with sweeping assertions of finality. She possesses—and bears—half a million dollars' worth of rubies and diamonds and carries many uncut gems around as well. She brought her own bacon on board and thrills us with her exact orders for epicurean frying. But what I like her for most is her engaging interest in Mrs. Theodore Levy, the attractive, oh, quite diabolically attractive, San Francisco grass widow, who, with her small daughter, is frankly out "for a good time." She is getting into practice on five diverse but adoring military and naval admirers—Lieut. W. A. Aldrich, wireless commander of the Pacific islands; Lieut. F. A. Ross, U. S. naval aviator de luxe; Capt. H. A. Crowther, D.S.O., very British; Capt. G. M. Moore, very Australian, and T. M. Myer, an Australian writer. And Mrs. Merritt authoritatively sees that Mrs. Levy reads improving books for several hours a day while the numerous admirers gnash their teeth.

There are so few girls traveling now, there is positively no competition. Mrs. Levy and I really have the field to ourselves for all adventurous purposes, and George sees that Mrs. Levy is not exactly crowded by me. Cinderella's ugly sisters, even, could have a wonderful innings, for the returning warriors just crave feminine society. I have listened to a hundred confidences—of the young United States captain whose wife had failed him, of the young lieutenant who is engaged and a Scotch girl who was a Red Cross nurse in France, of the likable Australian who is aching to get back to wife and a new pair of twins he has never seen, of the boy lieutenant who has married a French chorus girl who would not go back with him to Australia—and so on.

And there are Lieutenant-Commander Dollard, his wife and baby, going out for three years' duty at Pago Pago, Samoa, after three years in Washington. And the change is overwhelming little Mrs. Dollard, whose six new Washington gowns and ten new sport suits are going to be wasted on the tired little colony of about twenty white people at that United States outpost!

And their nurse took the flu and could not sail and they have to take care of an exacting infant themselves. The handsome commander minds the baby like a hero, feeds it, wheels it, walks it and even changes its didies with the sort of grim devotion to duty he doubtless intends to wield in Samoa. But all the same, most of the passe bachelors on board kind of envy him, you know. Mrs. Dollard's sister is Mrs. South of Mesa drive, Los Angeles.

Two passengers are E. W. Chafin and his daughter of Long Beach—he, you know, ran twice for President of the United States on the prohibition ticket. They are going quite frankly to convert Australia, sent and paid by the United States federation, and talk of a national amendment through the next Parliament. According to the Australians aboard, the task won't be as easy as that. They declare the Australians are confirmed "wets" and that there really is no prohibition movement there. However, Mr. Chafin seems confident. It is obvious he has a fertile field for his sort of work.

Molly Adelia Brown gave us a delightful flutter. She sent us a wireless "adieu," which we received on Christmas Day and made us feel very distinguished.

Almost as distinguished as the important Capt. Skull, who goes on a governmental mission from England to Australia and is armed to the teeth with documental credentials and imperial instructions. He is a quiet, tall, gentle, slender young man, very reserved at first but socially charming when the ice is broken, and he obviously prefers leading his men on the Somme and diplomacy in the empire dominions.

And there are four sweet nuns on board, with the faces of angels. Two of them are going to the Leper Island in the Samoa group—the supreme errand of mercy. Two go to a cannibal island in the Fiji group to augment the hazardous mission there. And all of them are quite undaunted, unafraid! And the next person one talks to is a vulgar vaudeville manager whose whole talk is of "shows" and "acts" and "blondes;" or a little eager dry goods buyer from Melbourne, returning with trunks full of the latest models in ladies' negligee and gowns from New York, Chicago and San Francisco, and warmly declaring the best feathered millinery conceits he had found came from Los Angeles. When he knew we came from Los Angeles he insisted upon talking feathers to us—and poor dear George is in oranges, you know. However, I assumed the responsibility for the feather trade in the old home town with easy nonchalance!

We reach Honolulu early tomorrow morning and have all turned out in our summer finery today. The men look so nice in their white ducks and flannels and even some of the mournfulest sea invalids are perking up as land draws near. We danced last night all over the decks to a cracked old weather-beaten piano and invented some saucy new steps with the roll of the boat!

So long, dear—will write you all about Honolulu next.

Your honeymoonish
BETTY.

[Alma Whitaker Reynolds.]

SOCIETY.

BY VIRGINIA WOODS.

For Mr. and Mrs. Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clarke, here from the East for the winter, are proving incentives for numerous social affairs. Last evening they were honor guests at a big dinner party at the Los Angeles Country Club at which Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Morphy of Santa Monica were hosts. After dinner there was dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Denman, Jr., of Hobart boulevard, are to give a large house party at their Newport place in their honor. Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cheney are planning a dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Clarke next Thursday. A jolly little supper party for them was presided over on Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Richardson, who have taken the Leo Chandler home for the winter. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hook, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Leo Chandler, Miss Louise Burke, Miss Katherine Strickler, Mrs. Barbee Hook, Mr. and Mrs. James Friesner, J. Wilkinson and several others. Judge and Mrs. Street, who have apartments at Seventh and Vermont streets, are brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Clarke and they, with Mr. Clarke's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Russell McD. Taylor, and Mrs. Clarke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Goodrich, are having some delightful times together. Mrs. Taylor is doing quite a bit of entertaining for them.

By Mrs. Hole.

In honor of her son-in-law, Lieut. Samuel Knight Rindge, who is home from Camp Kearny, Mrs. Willitts J. Hole is giving a big supper party tonight at the Hole country place near Riverside. Mrs. Rindge is a joint hostess with her mother. About thirty guests are to be there, most of them motoring over there from Los Angeles.

For Mrs. Leovy.

Mrs. James Leovy (Katherine Barbour) was the motif for a small tea which Miss Ethel Shaw gave at the home of her father, Judge Victor Shaw, on Severance street. Invited to meet Mrs. Leovy were Mrs. Louis H. Tolhurst, Mrs. James McCoy, Mrs. Hugh Walker, Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. Thomas Weeks Banks, Mrs. Edwin Stanton and others. Lieut. and Mrs. Forrest Q. Stanton and their two children are expected home in a few days from Wheeling, W. Va., where they have been visiting Mrs. Stanton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peyton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fairbanks, who have returned from a year's absence in the East, where Mr. Fairbanks was in the service, were honor guests at a handsome dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stimson of No. 203 Oaklawn avenue, South Pasadena, were hosts, last evening.

By Mrs. Brant.

Mrs. O. F. Brant of No. 3131 South Figueroa street was hostess at a luncheon on Thursday for a company of ten.

By Mrs. Thom.

The reception which Mrs. Cameron Erskine Thom was to have given this month to the Colonial Dames has been indefinitely postponed because of the influenza. Mrs. Thom is chairman of the Los Angeles chapter.

Wedding Anniversary.

To celebrate their twentieth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Sprouse of No. 1011 North Berendo street were hosts at a reception on Saturday evening. They were assisted by their daughters, Miss Alice and Gladys Sprouse. Mrs. Dee Canborn and Mrs. E. P. Jones presided over the punch bowl. In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Sprouse were Mrs. W. G. Maxcy, Mrs. W. A. Raymaker, Mrs. R. P. Tuttle, Mrs. L. Ackland, Mrs. Ben C. Palmer, Maurice Haff, Mrs. E. H. Barton, Mrs. Carl King, Mrs. Hershel Graves, Mrs. A. L. Lynwalter, Mrs B. Severance, Mrs. Lee Goss, Mrs. W. Huston and Mrs. A. Will.

Dinner Party.

Mrs. Caroline B. Eager of No. 426 North Berendo street was hostess at a dinner party on Wednesday evening. The affair was given to mark the birthday anniversary of her nephew, John Smallman, and was a surprise to him. The table decorations were Japanese. The hostess has resided in Japan and China and organized the first women's clubs of the Orient. Mr. Smallman has recently come from Boston, where he was soloist for the Apollo Club, one of the world's foremost musical organizations. Guests included Theodore Eager, Mrs. Smallman, Robert Smallman, Mrs. Anna M. Beaman, A. G. Beamon, Charles Wakefield Cadman and Mrs. Cadman.

Wedding Anniversary.

In celebration of the thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Coulter, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert E. Coulter of No. 333 Electric avenue, Alhambra, gave a reception for seventy-five guests Monday evening. There was a mock wedding and Mrs. Coulter's sister, who was her bridesmaid when she married, stood again as bridesmaid, while her daughter-in-law was Monday evening's maid of honor. Mrs. Coulter's mother, Mrs. William A. Chambers, now 80 years old, cut the wedding cake.

Motor Trip.

In a party which left yesterday for a ten days' motor trip to San Francisco and other parts of the north are Mr. and Mrs. James C. Welmot, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Becker, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Morton, Mrs. Frank Edgar Williams, B. F. Underwood and W. D. Morton. Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Morton are from Cleveland and New York.

Mrs. Getz's Luncheon.

Mrs. Charles R. Getz was hostess at a luncheon, having as guests friends who formerly resided in Sterling, Ill., and who belong to a little luncheon club. At the table were Mrs. Burton Vandenburgh, Mrs. William Myers, Mrs. Edward Dyer, Mrs. Daniel Le Fevre, Mrs. John Meyers, Mrs. William Smart, Mrs. Lyle Meyers, Mrs. Emanuel Daveler, Mrs. William Haskell, Mrs. William Haskell, Jr., Mrs. Charles Tumbleson, Miss Anna Becker, Miss Alma Le Land and Martin Haskell.

Back from Army Camp.

The friends of Dr. and Mrs. Charles G. Stivers and their daughter, Hildegarde, of No. 1115 Arapahoe street, will learn with interest that Dr. Stivers has received his discharge from the Medical Corps, U.S.A., after a year of active service, and is once more at home.

At the Hotel Maryland.

Maj. (Dr.) and Mrs. Wellborn Stewart of Pittsburgh, who are here for the winter, entertained a party of friends at the Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, on Tuesday evening, at the ball which marked the formal opening of the hostelry. In their party were Dr. and Mrs. Norman S. Sprague, Lieut. and Mrs. Lloyd Strongberg, Mr. and Mrs. N. Harry Taylor, Louis Forve, Miss Florence White, Adrian Taylor, Lieut. Dwight Graham and Maynard D. McDowell, all of Los Angeles.

Bertha A. Rich Here.

Mrs. Bertha A. Rich, the well-known authoress of New York, is in town at the Clinehurst apartments, No. 819 Beacon street, visiting her daughter, who is quite ill. Mr. and Mrs. Rich expect to make Los Angeles their home some day. They have many pleasant memories of joyous old associations here.

At Coronado.

Coronado and the big hostelry there have attracted quite a few Los Angeles society people the past week. Mrs. Hugh Brown (Estelle Johnson) daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Johnson of this city, went there Tuesday, and is the guest of Miss Ellen Henderson of Chicago, who, with her mother, Mrs. Frank B. Henderson, is passing the winter at the Hotel del Coronado. Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Lucius are passing their honeymoon there. Mr. and Mrs. J. Foster Rhodes of Pasadena, accompanied by Mrs. Henry Zeis and Harold Zeis, motored there the middle of the week. Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Adler and their daughter, Miss Marion Adler, are there. Others visiting in Coronado are Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Peck, Mrs. Margaret A. B. Ham, Mrs. Joseph E. Maw, F. C. Poifson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Coffin, Miss Natalie Lowenthal, Miss S. Inez Johnson, Thomas Harrington, Dr. Catherine Boynton, Mrs. A. E. Barry, Miss Grace Munson, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis B Morton, Miss Marion Morton, Dr. William M. Morton, Miss Helen Morton and Mrs. Thomas Pollock.

By Mrs. David.

An attractive tea in compliment to Mrs. C. A. Foster of Sacramento and Mrs. C. A. McArthur of Halifax, N. S., was presided over Tuesday by Mrs. David A. David at her Oneonta Park home. There were thirty guests, including Mrs. Edward Fisher Hobert, Mrs. Hugh Mason, Mrs. Edward Gilbert, Mrs. L. Whitcomb, Mrs. W. C. Havill, Mrs. W. W. Duncan, Mrs. John Muir, Mme. Duncan, Mrs. Charles North, Mrs. Fannie Westlake, Mrs. William Fogg, Mrs. Edwin Waldo, Mrs. Kramer, Mrs. Howard Dudley, Miss Bessie Nelson, Mrs. W. W. Dodge, Mrs. John Campbell, Misses Lawson and Lawrence.

Musicale-Tea.

Mrs. Guy Bush was hostess at a musicale and tea at which her guests were Mrs. William Bishop Tomkins, Mrs. La Motte Holmes, Mrs. Medora Williams, Mrs. H. S. Ickes, Miss Marguerite Ickes, Miss Marjorie Pickell, Mrs. F. E. McMullen, Miss Marie McMullen, Mrs. Calista Conant Hudson, Miss Catherine B. Cannon, Miss Adelaide Cannon, Mrs. Howard Boone, Mrs. Spenser Kelley, Mrs. A. C. Gates and Mrs. June Gates Earl.

By Mrs. Ballagh.

Mrs. James Henry Ballagh is entertaining an interesting group at supper this evening in compliment to Private and Mrs. Peat.

Engagement Told.

At a charming dancing party given by Mrs. W. S. Humphry at No. 1139 North Coronado Terrace, Hollywood, announcement was made of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Helena Humphry, and A. Lincolyn Miller. Miss Humphry is a member of the younger set of Hollywood, and is a graduate of the Northwestern University, having recently majored there in dramatics. She is a member of the Alphi Pi and of the Phi Beta sororities. Mr. Miller until recently was in the navy, stationed at Mare Island, where he edited the Bulletin, a weekly publication for the enlisted men. The wedding will take place the last of the month.

Romantic Wedding.

With the bridegroom just able to be up from his sick bed, Roy L. Berryhill and Miss Madolyn B. Young were married at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Berryhill, No. 1155 North Heliotrope drive, Hollywood, by Dr. Charles Edward Locke. Because Mr. Berryhill is still very weak, recuperating from influenza, their honeymoon trip is postponed till summer. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Eva M. Young.

For Miss Daniels.

Miss Florence Daniels of Coronado and Los Angeles, whose engagement to Lieut. William Barker was recently announced, was the motif for a smart luncheon given Tuesday at Hotel del Coronado by Mrs. Frank Von Tesmar. Others present were: Mrs. O. S. Jensen, Mrs. William Peebles, Miss Anne Sherman, Miss Elizabeth Sherman, Miss Jean Titus, Miss Mary Titus, Miss Katherine Owers, Miss Ramona Morgan, and Marjorie Dillworth. Miss Daniels has set January 29, as the date for her marriage. It will take place at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. B. Daniels of Ocean boulevard. Miss Alice Wagenheim will be maid of honor and Terry Barker will serve his brother as best man.

Dinner Party.

In a small dinner party at the Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, on Tuesday evening, proceeding the Parisian ball were: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Walton, Mrs. John Wesley Tomblin, Lieut. William Lester Tubbe and Mr. and Mrs. Clarke A. Moore.

By Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kusel.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kusel were dinner hosts at a small party which they gave at the Hotel Huntington, Thursday evening, in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Oppenheimer of Kansas City.

By Mrs. Caldwell.

Mrs. A. E. Caldwell was hostess on Wednesday at a pretty tea at the Mary Louise tea room. Her guests were. Mrs. Ella Race, Mrs A. E. Coleman, Mrs. W. F. Abbe, Mrs. M. E. Stifel, Mrs. J. G. Vance, Mrs. Marie Young and Mrs. Foss. After tea Mrs. Caldwell assembled her guests at a box party at the Mason Operahouse.

Back from the Army.

Lieut. Fred H. Baruch of the United States Air Service has received his discharge and is at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Baruch of No. 2125 South Harvard boulevard. Lieut. Baruch was stationed at Fort Sill.

Another soldier who has just received his discharge is John A. Hendricks, who was instructor in aerial navigation at Berkeley. He has been a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hendricks, but left yesterday for Chile, South America, where, before the war he was a civil engineer with the Guggenheim interests.

Lieut. Deacon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Rogers Deacon, of No. 1388 West Thirty-eighth street are waiting impatiently the return to the United States of President Wilson, because on the boat with him will come their son, Lieut. Victor Fleming Deacon, who they have not seen since the war began. He was an instructor of official photography at Columbia University. When the President's party went abroad he was ordered to go with them.

For Lieut. Heisner.

Lieut. Charles L. Heisher, flying aviator from Field No. 2, Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., has been the house guest of Mrs. Virginia M. Clopton, No. 1837 West Twenty-second street. He left [illegible] his home in Oakland.

On Monday he was [illegible] a dinner given by Mrs. [illegible]

Why not buy your coat for LESS MONEY in the Most Beautiful Women's Store in all the West?

The New York CLOAK & SUIT HOUSE
Seventh at Grand Ave.
J. J. Haggarty

And Now This Nineteenth Day of January, We Give Notice—

—To our good customers in the city of Los Angeles and those in the immediate vicinity; to all newcomers to the city and to all others within reach of this newspaper, that we will start

A Most Extraordinary Coat Week

——And that it shall open bright and early on the morning of January 20th, and continue until the 25th, inclusive.

——It is a great emergency sale for the women who need coats for this winter weather, and who need them right away. And it is a sale that will be equal to the emergency that has called for it, because it is a New York Store Sale, and you can be SURE of it.

——It presents far and away the largest and most valuable stock of coats to be found anywhere in the city.

——Over a thousand special price tags have already been used for the merchandise to be shown tomorrow, and it will include

Coats So Seriously Reduced, That You Can Buy Them at Prices Beginning As Low As $16.75

—They include all our good stocks, which contain practically every good and desirable kind of a coat the season has offered. There are beautiful soft duvetynes, crystal cloths, Evoras, Bolivias, Normandies, silvertone Bolivias, silk velours, velvets and Zenobias.

—Most of them have beautiful figured and colored silk linings full length, and many are trimmed with fur, including wolf, lynx, mole, squirrel and Hudson seal.

—It is hard to conceive a better array.

Coats That Have Just Come Direct From Their Packing Cases From the Manufacturers in New York City

—First among them are broadcloth coats at $24.75 and $28.75.

—They are full-lined with beautiful fancy silk linings. The maker's wholesale prices less than three weeks ago were more than we are asking tomorrow.

—There are beautiful new silk velours at $24.75, with near-seal fur trimming that can hardly be told from the real.

—And there are scores of others, besides.

Coats formerly to $27.50 at $16.75
Coats formerly to $32.50 at $19.75
Coats formerly to $39.75 at $24.75
Coats formerly to $45.00 at $29.75
Coats formerly to $49.75 at $34.75
Coats formerly to $55.00 at $39.75
Coats formerly to $62.50 at $43.75
Coats formerly to $85.00 at $49.75

—Whatever you buy in this great sale is a first grade coat, without superior in the country at its price. There are no seconds, no trash, no off-color garments, only sound, durable qualities linked with approved good style—and they will give a full degree of satisfaction.

The new purchases alone make an enormous stock in themselves. All our regular stocks have been thrown in with them. The variety is about as complete as it can possibly be. Commencing with the most inexpensive garments it pays to buy, and going up through every grade of good coats to the most beautiful types made.

A New Service in the Helpful Hair Goods Section

—Is an expert in the electrolysis who removes superfluous hair and skin blemishes with great ease.

—There is now no better equipped hair-goods section or manicuring parlor in all of Los Angeles.

—This week very special prices on made-up hair goods are in force. As an example, hair nets are $1.00 a dozen.

Interesting News of New Spring Millinery

—Specially designed models direct from our own workrooms make the main floor section bright with beautiful colors, beautiful shapes and beautiful straws.

—Featured more than anything else are the chic sports hats for Coronado.

—They are satin and straw and ribbon. You will enjoy seeing them all.

ONTARIO.

As a farewell compliment to Mrs. Frederick Wymore, who is soon to leave Ontario and make her home in the Palo Verde Valley, Mrs. William H. Fowler entertained Wednesday afternoon at her attractive home, No. 215 El Morado court, with a delightfully-informal tea. The early hours of the afternoon were devoted to fancy work and chat, and a collation followed. Present were Mrs. Frederick Wymore, Mrs. Harry Nelsen, Mrs. Frank C. Burlingame, Mrs. Rush Grange, Mrs. Etta Feax, Mrs. Charles Goodchild, Mrs. Frank Woods, Mrs. John O. Bailey, Mrs. Martin L. Middleton, Mrs. Franklin E. Chaffee, Mrs. H. L. Drake, Mrs. Albert Schaefer, Miss Alice Grange, Miss Alberta Schaefer, Miss Barbara Nelsen and Mrs. William H. Fowler.

Honoring Lewis H. Mertz, who left the last of the week to make his home in Chicago, members of the Hikers' Club, to which he belongs, entertained Thursday evening with a dinner at the Hotpoint Club. Menu cards bore pictures of the guest of honor and scenes taken on some of the club's "hikes." John H. Kelman acted as toastmaster of the evening, and there were brief talks by Earl H. Richardson, Corry B. White and Mr. Mertz. The tables formed a hollow square, in the center of which was a replica of San Antonio Canyon, a favorite haunt of the club, in bas-relief. Covers at the table were marked for Lewis H. Mertz, Earl H. Richardson, Percy H. Booth, P. H. Vanden Berg, Corry B. White, C. Henderson Ripple, Harry E. Strunk, F. W. Mack, Henry F. Thompson, W. C. Patterson, Edward T. Davis, Philip W. McMullen, Andrew Millard, W. H. Tangeman, C. L. Jackson, Earle T. Casler, V. B. Marrs, John H. Kelman, Howard Harms, F. H. Wallihan, Wallace H. Burden, George T. Barr, William H. Straker, Charles O. Rankin, John Jacques, W. E. Hurd and Thomas Nagel.

In honor of Fred Carder on the occasion of his seventy-seventh birthday anniversary, Mrs. Carder entertained at dinner Tuesday evening at their home, No. 559 East E street, the guests for the most part being former neighbors in Oklahoma. Covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. David Bird Wynne, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Philip Carder, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Kelley, Mrs. Mary G. Faubion, W. F. Seid and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carder.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Martin entertained at dinner Sunday evening at their home, No. 620 Noota street, in honor of the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding day. The guests numbered Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Martin, Mrs. Charles Gordon and Mrs. Florence M. Edwards.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell were hosts Wednesday evening at their home, No. 412 West D street, their guests being chiefly members of the Ontario Society of Pioneers. Mr. Mitchell was elected president of the association for the coming year; Mrs. J. Perry Ensley was chosen vice-president; Mrs. George Robert Holbrook, treasurer; Mrs. Martin Van Buren Bradford, corresponding secretary; Archie D. Mitchell, recording secretary. A card tournament followed, with a tempting collation served at midnight. Thirty enjoyed the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Holman are enjoying a visit at their home, Sultana avenue and Main street, from their daughter, Mrs. Samuel Norton (Florence Holman,) who, with her baby daughter, is here from Hercules for the winter.

John A. Fletcher arrived this week from Oklahoma City, Okla., and is a guest at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harris Frankish, on South San Antonio avenue. Mr. Fletcher formerly resided in Ontario, but this is his first visit here in ten years.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Benson have as guests at their home, No. 301 East Nevada street, the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Benson, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Benson, who are here from Traverse City, Mich., for the winter.

Mrs. E. B. Crow of Atlantic City, N. J., is a guest for the winter at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. Z. F. Rott, on North San Antonio avenue.

Mrs. Eva M. Lichty and daughter, Louise, arrived in Ontario Tuesday, and are guests at the home of Mrs. Lichty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Sells, San Antonio avenue and Fourth street.

MONROVIA.

Rev. and Mrs. George Lord of North Encinitas avenue have as guests their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Williams. Mr. Williams is a secretary of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood of the Episcopal church. He has been representing this brotherhood in the army camps at Palo Alto, and has just been transferred to San Antonio, Tex. While en route to the southern camp he and his wife stopped in this city for a short visit.

Mrs. L. A. Maynard and daughter, Mary, of Claremont, were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. George Hutchins of West Orange avenue.

Mrs. Frank Williams of West Lime avenue, after spending a fortnight in this city, has returned to Neighbors, Cal., where she and her husband have a ranch.

Mrs. Sarah Talbert of Alhambra is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Garst of North Heliotrope avenue. Mrs. Talbert and Mrs. Garst are sisters.

After spending six months in Monrovia, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crosby of West Palm avenue left on Tuesday evening for Omaha. Mr. Crosby has been stationed at the Arcadia Balloon School and will go first to Camp Funston, to be mustered out of military service, after which he will join Mrs. Crosby in Omaha.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Baranger of Stratford avenue, South Pasadena, are visiting Mrs. Baranger's mother and sister, Mrs. A. E. Dennis and Miss Matt Jones, of West Lime avenue.

The members of the Foothill Club were entertained on Tuesday by Mrs. M. H. Graham at her home on East Olive avenue. Narcissus and violets were used in the attractive decorations. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. The afternoon was devoted to auction bridge. Mrs. Graham's guests included Mrs. W. T. Coleman, Mrs. W. A. Spinks, Mrs. Hugo Krutzsch, Mrs. J. Allen Munro, Mrs. La Verne Watt, Mrs. L. N. Wheeler, Mrs. Hardy Harris, Mrs. E. B. Rivers, Mrs. Kenneth Price, Mrs. H. R. The invited guests included Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mrs. Nathan Wade, Mrs. S. A. Schilling, Mrs. J. P. White, Mrs. E. S Salisbury, Mrs. H. A. Fisk and Miss Anna Morrison of Los Angeles.

Mrs. P. S. Lott of Sunset place entertained some old-time friends on Sunday who had motored over from Hollywood. Among the party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atwood and daughter, Miss Jessie, formerly of Flint, Mich.

One of the smart social affairs of the week was the dancing party given at Hotel 'Leven Oaks on Friday by Mrs. Kenneth Harvey, Miss Opal Rives, Miss Dorothy Peck and Miss Cecilia Tice. Mrs. Fannie A. Nance and Miss A. Virginia Perry acted as chaperones. This was the first dance of the new year, and proved a decided success. About eighty guests were present, including thirty-eight enlisted men from the Arcadia Balloon School.

Mrs. V. E. Head entertained a number of friends informally on Friday afternoon at her home on North Alta Vista avenue. Mrs. Head's guests included Mrs. Joseph Borches of Knoxville, Tenn., Mrs. Elizabeth Reeder of Pasadena and Mrs. Montague H. Graham.

In compliment to Miss Vera Downe of Los Angeles, whose engagement to Lieut. Hollis S. Bach of the United States air service, was recently announced, Miss Pauline Munro, assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. Allen Munro, entertained with an informal tea and miscellaneous shower on Saturday at her home on West White Oak avenue. Varicolored flowers and greenery were used in the attractive decorations. Mrs. A. B. Downe assisted the young hostess in serving tea. Miss Munro's guests numbered about thirty.

REDLANDS.

Mrs. Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith of Los Angeles has been the guest for several days of Mrs. J. A. Kimberly at Kimberly Crest. She came for a conference with representatives of the civic organizations of the city relative to the annual pageant of Redlands, which it is planned will be given on April 11 and 12 at the amphitheater.

Miss Helen Baughman of Cajon street entertained yesterday with a China party for her friends, all of the girls being dressed in Chinese costumes. A programme was given by Lois Truesdail, Lola Gerber, Virginia Roach, Eva Williams, Alice Gibson and Mrs. W. R. Heacock.

Thirty of the members of the sophomore class of the University of Redlands arose at daybreak yesterday and journeyed to the "wash," the banks of the Santa Ana River, where in the sand a roaring fire was made and a jolly picnic breakfast of roasted wieners, buns and coffee was served.

Stanley Conrad was the victim of a pleasant surprise party on Friday evening at his home on Fourth street, when a number of his friends called to remind him of his birthday. Dinner was served and the centerpiece was an immense cake dressed with candles. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Sedgewick, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sharon, C. O. Nelson, W. F. Booker and Mrs. Conrad and their children.

The girls of the Lassell Band of the Presbyterian Church entertained there on Saturday afternoon with a Japanese tea, which proved to be one of the most interesting affairs of the season. Mrs. Thorne gave several readings, Miss Loise Ford sang, Misses Reba, Marguerite and Helen Rice gave a musical programme. Virginia Sucher and Miss Weismore sold flowers from dainty Japanese baskets and Miss Mildred Farquhar, as O San, told fortunes. The hostesses were Mrs. W. J. Craig, Mrs. Henry Huffman and Mrs. T. M. Blythe, and they were assisted by Eleanor Farquhar, Katherine Hyson, Louise Huffman, Hazel Rice, Sara Sloane, Ara Weismore, Louise Lambert, Marian Sprich and Helen Rice.

Mrs. J. A. Burgett of Cincinnati is here for the winter with her sister, Mrs. Herman Myers, and she was the honor guest at a delightful little affair given by Mrs. Myers Friday afternoon. In the days of '69 our great grandmothers turned naturally to Nordlinger's for those quaint old jeweled heirlooms which they have handed down to the younger generation, and which they, in turn, have grown to treasure. Then, as now, "Nordlinger's" was more than a name.

-our golden anniversary

Nineteen nineteen—this glorious year of Peace on earth—marks the Golden Anniversary of the House of Nordlinger.

Fifty years ago, when Los Angeles was a sleepy little Spanish pueblo, this house was established. Today, Los Angeles is the metropolis of the Southwest, and Nordlinger's has kept steady pace with the city's remarkable growth.

People of discernment have learned to turn to Nordlinger's when the purchase of diamonds or fine jewelry is contemplated. Thru a half century of conscientious, courteous service, an intimate knowledge of jewelry merchandising and an unalterable policy of giving fullest value, this establishment has earned the title, "Los Angeles' first jewelry house."

ORANGE.

Dr. and Mrs. I. D. Mills and Mrs. Eunice Horton of Orange were the hosts at a most charming little dinner party Tuesday evening in honor of Chief White Elk, a famous Cherokee Indian who has been visiting friends in Orange. The hostesses, Mmes. Mills and Horton, trace their ancestry to the Cherokee Indian tribe, three generations back, and are direct descendants of a prominent Indian chief. The first meeting of Mrs. Mills and Chief White Elk was at a national W.C.T.U. meeting in Portland, when the chief was playing on the Orpheum circuit. White Elk organized the Indians of Oklahoma in a famous prohibition campaign resulting successfully for temperance.

The wedding of Miss Armilda P. Frick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Frick, and Ralph Ahlefeld, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ahlefeld, took place on Thursday evening in St. John's Lutheran Church. Palms and ferns were used in decoration and Rev. M. F. Jensen was the presiding clergyman. Prof. Batterman at the organ played Mendelssohn's wedding march and the bridesmaids were Miss Ethel Ahlefeld and Miss Clara Bunke, with Rudolph Frick and Elmer Barnes at attendants. The bride and groom have gone to Arizona, where they will reside.

The seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of G. W. Shell was celebrated at the Shell home on West Almond avenue, the affair being a complete surprise to the honoree. There were about twenty people, comprising the children and grandchildren of Mr. Shell joining in the delightful event and presiding at the elaborate dinner that was served.

The annual meeting of St. John's Lutheran Congregation re-elected all of the officers and trustees of the church for another year, after their successful conduct of the church's affairs during the past season. CALIFORNIA FURNITURE CO.

There Are Distinctive Advantages in Buying Rugs at the "California"

THE selection of the floor coverings is one of the most important responsibilities that devolves upon the home furnisher. The entire effectiveness of all the other effort to beautify may be lost or enhanced in the choice of the rugs.

Certain it is that no transient influence should be permitted to deter the thought from idealism—from securing the floor covering that will add most in beauty, in harmony and in real satisfaction and service through the many years to come.

There is a distinct advantage in buying rugs at the "California," because every single rug in our entire ample stocks represents individual, critical, personal care in selection. The commonplace, the ordinary or the doubtful find absolutely no place here.

And buying as we always do, in the great open market, from reputable manufacturers only, and for the lowest prices that spot cash can command, you may rest assured that nowhere, under any conditions, can you excel the values that are available to you every day at the "California."

Our offerings include practically every type of rug that is desirable for the furnishing of the home — Genuine Orientals, the Finest Wiltons and Axminsters, the splendid Body Brussels and all the other fabrics, including the lesser priced rugs.

Let us suggest the advisability of a comparison of offerings and of values before you select any floor coverings. You will be welcome here to look whether you buy or not.

The few interesting rugs shown in our window this week merely reflect the character of the very extensive showing on the second floor.

Junior Philatheas, of the First Methodist Church, at a delightful little affair Monday evening, providing for their entertainment a candy pull. Special guests present were the Misses Rita Wright and Irene Hoggett, while class members present included the teacher, Mrs. L. W. Snedeker, and the Misses Ruth Coates, Gladys Crane, Violet Hanson, Janie Hargrave, Mabel Hinchman, Edith Johnson, Edith Dobbert, Lois Moss, Pearl Newberry, Bertha Owen, Mildred Robinson, Ruth Scott, Pauline Wilson, Thelma Wright and Edna Withrow.

Prof. J. E. Pease, head of the English and drama departments of the Pomona High School, most delightfully entertained members of the Garey avenue Parent-Teachers' Association, at their regular meeting held in the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon. Taking as his subject "A Teacher in the Antipodes," he related in his interesting manner his experiences among the Chinese boys of the large school of which he was in charge for several years. He also spoke of his trips to the Orient.

Members of the Mary Milliken chapter of the Westminster guild of the First Presbyterian Church enjoyed a pleasant meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Sadie F. Parsons, No. 214 East Center street, Mrs. Emma Blaney assisting as hostess. A large number of special guests were present, including Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Jewell of Claremont, who were also dinner guests of Mrs. Parsons.

Surrounded by his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, Dr. Asa W. Daniels celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John V. I. Dodd, No. 209 West Pearl street, on Wednesday. In honor of the occasion Mrs. Dodd entertained informally at noon with a family dinner, having as her guests Dr. Daniels's daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. W. Daniels, and daughters, Isabel and Karen, of Minnesota; his grand-daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Thirwall and children, Daniel and Beatrice, of Ontario. Mr. Daniels is one of the interesting citizens of Pomona. He entertained the company by telling interesting events in his long life.

Heliotrope Rebekah Lodge, No. 183, installed officers for the coming year on Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows' Hall, a large number being in attendance. Mrs. Lulu Blackleter of Santa Ana, district deputy of the Rebekah lodge, conducted the installation ceremonies with the assistance of Mrs. Don Palmer, the district Deputy Grand Warden. Mrs. Herman Stahlman, the Past Noble Grand, was the recipient of a past noble grand pin, presented on behalf of the lodge members by Mrs. L. P. Hemingway. Officers installed included Mrs. H. F. Stahlman, Past Noble Grand; Mrs. Fred Goslin, Noble Grand; Mrs. Rosie Hughey, Vice-Grand; Miss Mattie Izer, Recording Secretary; Mrs. E. H. Welch, Financial Secretary; Mrs. C. Stout, Treasurer; Mrs. H. E. Jack, Warden; Miss Estella Stout, Conductor; Mrs George Tyler, Chaplain; Mrs. Elizabeth Izer, Right Supporter Noble Grand; Mrs. P. D. Porter, Left Supporter, Noble Grand; Mrs. Leonard Hargrave, Right Supporter, Vice-Grand; Mrs. C. E. Greaser, Left Supporter Vice-Grand; Mrs. M. A. Hanson, Inside Guardian; Miss Nellie Robinson, Outside Guardian; Misses Hariett and Theresa Barber, Altar Supporter; Mrs. W. E. Stevens, Musician; Miss Helen Hamilton, Press Correspondent; P. D. Porter, Degree Staff Captain.

DUARTE.

One of the pleasant fortnightly social events in Duarte is the meeting of the Reading Circle, and on Tuesday the first meeting for 1919 was held at the home of Mrs. Wallace Fleer, who graciously received thirty guests in rooms decorated with winter blossoms and ferns. After the informal reception, Mrs. E. E. Edwards presented topics of current interest and the programme of readings was conducted by Mrs. Frank Ferguson. Needle work and the serving of a prettily appointed tea concluded the social hour.

Among the Duarte girls who attended the dancing party given in honor of enlisted men at the balloon school Friday evening were the Miss Lail and Irma Moore, Margaret Maxwell, Geraldine Helsley, Theresa Dunn, Mildred Marshall, Ivy Anderson and Hilda Carter.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carter were hosts on Sunday afternoon at a musical tea in compliment to their son, Frank Carter, who had just returned from Fortress Monroe, where he had been in military training and honorably discharged.

Miss Vera Downe, for whom several charming social events are being planned in honor of her engagement to Lieut. Hollis S. Bach, was on Saturday tendered a tea and shower by her friend Miss Pauline Munro. Miss Munro was assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. Allen Munro in entertaining and a charming affair it was, when some twenty-five friends showered the bride-elect with kindest greetings and lovely gifts. Mrs. A. B. Downe, Mrs. C. T. Lenaker and Miss Mary Munro assisted in pouring tea.

Tuesday evening the ladies and gentlemen of Duarte assembled like an old fashioned surprise party and with well filled baskets presented themselves and their gifts at the parsonage home of Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Barr, who had recently arrived from Minnesota. The gifts were in the nature of a pantry shower, and fairly made the shelves groan with the pounds of groceries and canned fruit. The host and hostess were equal to the occasion and cordially welcomed and entertained the gift bearing guests for a delightful evening.

Friday afternoon Mrs. John Dickey and Mrs. W. H. Hoagland were at home at an informal sewing party in honor of the ladies of the Methodist Church.

COLTON.

Steps are being taken to make the ball, at which members of the Colton fire department will be hosts on the evening of January 25 in Eagles' Hall, one of the gayest frolics of the winter. It is to be a masquerade, and a silver trophy will be awarded for the most unique costume. The hall is being given to raise money for the purchase of two dozen "turn out" suits for the firemen.

To the Colton Woman's Club has fallen the honor of being the first in the district to adopt a French war orphan. Juliette Ulysse is the name of the club's new baby, according to announcement made at Tuesday's session. She is 4 years old and money for her adoption was secured through the giving of a farce just before Christmas by the club. Tuesday's programme included a recital by Sergt. Hugh T. Osborne, who has just returned from France, where he was severely wounded in the battle of the Argonne Forest, of what it means to go "over the top;" a talk on birds and wild life by Mrs. George Turner, district chairman of this department, and vocal solos by Miss Sylvia Sloan of San Bernardino, with Mrs. E. O. Stark as accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wallen were host and hostess at a prettily-appointed Sunday dinner party at the Domaschenz apartments. The occasion honored Mr. Wallen's birthday and those who enjoyed the festivity arranged by his charming young bride were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Wallen of Pomona, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sondraker, Mrs. Josie Hewitt, G. Floyd Sondraker of Upland and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Arborn.

Smilax and violets decked the table, where Mrs. H. J. Foster presided as hostess Wednesday afternoon at a luncheon for eight. Covers were laid for Mrs. A. A. Horn, Mrs. E. G. Tibbitts and mother, Mrs. Young, Miss Olive Horn and Miss Gladys Tibbetts of San Bernardino, Mrs. T. Enright and Mrs. T. M. Hatchett.

One of the happy events of the week was the annual cradle roll party held at the Methodist Church Thursday afternoon. About twenty-five babies and their mothers were the guests of Mrs. W. F. Jones, primary superintendent; Mrs. Harry Morris, cradle roll superintendent and teachers of the two departments.

FULLERTON.

Mr. and Mrs. George Amerige, Mrs. Avey, a sister of Mr. Amerige, and her daughter, Miss Nettie Avey, are home from a week's motor trip in and around Elsinore and Murietta Hot Springs, and pronounce it a delightful outing for the winter season.

Mrs. Margaret E. Forrest and daughter, Miss Bertha Forrest, who have been at the Marwood apartments since October, are returning to Los Angeles, their former home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hauck, who have been residents here for two years, Mr. Hauck being principal of the High School, have left to make their home at Modesto, where Mr. Hauck has recently invested in a ranch.

Mrs. Ida M. Funck of East Amerige avenue is on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. George H. Johnson at San Luis Obispo.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McMillan and two sons of Stafford county, Kansas, are late arrivals to make their permanent home in Southern California. They hope to locate in Fullerton.

RIALTO.

The sixty-sixth anniversary of the wedding day of Mr. and Mrs. Porter Brimmer furnished most remarkable motif for a family reunion in their honor. Six o'clock dinner was served, a beautiful wedding cake presented by the guests forming appropriate centerpiece at the prettily-appointed table. A delightful evening followed, happiest sociability prevailing, music furnishing the only diversion. Mr. Brimmer, who will be 89 on March 4, his birthday falling on the date that the United States President takes his seat, favored the company with three songs favorites of his boyhood days, and all, including both honorees, joined in other old-time melodies recalling loved scenes of past years. Mr. and Mrs. Brimmer were felicitated again and again upon the marvelously happy occasion. Those privileged to participate included, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Brimmer, Mrs. Amelia Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Merton E. Brimmer and daughter, Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Brimmer, Lorne and Burleigh Brimmer, Mrs. Norah Baines, Arthur Brimmer and son, Maurice.

On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Crandall entertained with a quiet dinner, all the more enjoyable for its informality at their cozy bungalow home amid the beauties of Lytle Creek Canyon. Fragrant roses and violets combined to form artistic centerpiece at the simply laid table, where places were marked for Rev. and Mrs. William T. Butcher, Lois and Dorothy Butcher, the host and hostess, who is possessed of a happy faculty in entertaining.

Miss Grace Randsburg was given a most delightful surprise when just before the noon hour there arrived at her hospitable home on North Orange street Mr. and Mrs. Archie Applegate of Atlanta, Ill., who are spending the winter in California, making Pasadena their headquarters while touring the State. In the afternoon Miss Randsburg and guests motored about the valley, and through the foothills visiting Arrowhead Hot Springs, San Bernardino, Redlands and Riverside.

RIVERSIDE.

The celebration of two golden wedding anniversaries featured the happenings of local society the past week. Surrounded by their children, grandchildren and many friends, Mr. and Mrs. E. Prior of No. 512 East Tenth street received on Tuesday afternoon and evening the hearty congratulations on the passing of the fiftieth milestone of their married life. Golden-hued marigolds were used in profusion in the decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Prior received between the hours of 2 and 4. In the evening, between the hours of 7 and 9, they were joined in the receiving line by three of their sons and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Prior, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Prior and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Prior. In charge of the dining-room were Mrs. H. A. Prior and Mrs. C. E. Prior, assisted by a number of the grandchildren of the host and hostess. The bride and groom of half a century ago were married in Ontario, Can., but have resided in this county for the past twenty years.

On Sunday occurred the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Blackman of No. 253 East Seventh street. While the day made any social function prohibitive, many friends called to offer their congratulations. At the morning service of the First Methodist Church they were thoughtfully remembered by their pastor, Dr. Benjamin S. Haywood, who presented them with a bouquet of choice flowers.

Dr. Addison E. Elliott of El Centro and Dr. Frances Pullen Chapman of Oak Park, Ill., who were married in the St. Cecilia oratory at the Mission Inn, are making a tour of the southern part of the State this week for the purpose of selecting some city in which to make their future home.

The Misses Enid and Lorena Densmore were hostesses at a delightful dancing party at their home, No. 1567 Seventh street. Nine couples were present to enjoy the evening's hospitality.

The gayest event of the winter season is the verdict of the members and guests of the Victoria Club who gathered in large numbers at the club-house on Tuesday evening for a dinner and dance. The affair was the first of a series of dinner-dances to be sponsored by the club this season. A congenial little party of diners comprised Mr. and Mrs. J. E. V. Titus, Judge and Mrs. Hugh H. Craig, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Daniels. Dining with Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Sweet were Mr. and Mrs De Witt V. Hutchings, Mrs. Bowen and Mr. Carpenter, while another company included Mrs. Martha Hopkins, Mrs. B. Young and Miss Enid Miller of Salt Lake City, Miss Ruth Atkins of Hartford, Ct., and Lieuts. A growing preference for Solitaires

We do not believe such a decided preference has before been shown, as is now apparent in the demand for solitaires—for in diamonds the solitaire has come into especial favor. Not only are they mounted in splendid plain settings but also in artistic lacy mountings using numerous other gems or several smaller diamonds.

The simplicity and beauty of a correctly mounted solitaire is being strikingly recognized just at this time.

We present a great many very new rings featuring solitares—each gem is perfect and of the finer blue qualities.

Lucy Gates, Soprano,
With Trio de Lutece, Trinity Auditorium, January 23.

Musical.

poser. Harold Procter also sang selections from the opera.

On Wednesday, January 20, Annis Howell, soprano, will be heard in the songs of a local composer, Elinor Warren, the gifted pupil of Gertrude Ross and Kathryn Cocke. Gertrude Ross, Mrs. Guy Bush and Waldo Chase will also be represented. Mrs. Walter Wessel, violinist, and Eunice Landrum, pianist, will play.

Musical Section of Press Club.

The first concert for the season of the musical section of the Press Club will be given at the Brack Shops, on the evening of Tuesday, January 28. The Gregor Cherniavsky Trio will play; Minne Hance-Jackins will sing, as will also Mme. Manuella Budrow. Eunice Landrum, pianist, will play, and "Private" Peat will talk. L. E. Behymer will address the meeting.

Desider Vecsei Recovering.

Desider Vecsei, Hungarian pianist, who is the next soloist of the concert of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, is recovering from an attack of pleurisy, at his residence on Mariposa street.

Orpheus Club Business Meeting.

The Orpheus Club held a business meeting and rehearsal, last Saturday evening, and a large number of the members were present; week by week the boys who were at the front are coming back, and their next concert will be given at an early date. About sixty-five members will appear. Mr. Dupuy, the director, is still at Camp Kearny, but expects to be transferred shortly to Los Angeles. Mr. Dupuy has made the trip here once every week in order to conduct the rehearsals. The club is in splendid shape vocally. Mr. Will Garroway, whose work as accompanist has been so helpful to the club for so many years, will occupy his usual place at the piano.

Special Midwinter Concert.

Bruce Gordon Kingsley will give a special midwinter concert at Trinity Auditorium, this afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Assisting on the programme is the well-known concert contralto, Alma K. Moss, whose rich voice will never be heard to better advantage than in the numbers she has selected.

An innovation is the display of bees in a specially constructed glass bee hive, showing all the processes in making honey. This will be briefly explained by E. R. Root, acknowledged as the world's greatest bee expert, and the most successful apiculturist in the country. Mr. Root will show his masterful control of the bees by placing a pound of them in his hat and wearing it on his head. He will also put several large spoonfuls of bees in his mouth.

Barker's Noonday Entertainment.

Every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon from 12:15 to 1:30 o'clock on the second floor at Barker Brothers, a concert is given free to the public. Teachers and professionals provide the programme.

Lila Petschnikoff Recital

February 4, at Trinity Auditorium, has been chosen by Lila Petschnikoff, the violinist, for her recital in this city. She will be assisted in the two famous sonatas she is playing, the Kreutzer and the Cesar Franck, by Mme. Rider-Possert, the well-known pianist.

Rudolph Ganz on Way to Coast.

The first piano recital of the year will be that by Rudolph Ganz, at Trinity Auditorium, Saturday afternoon, February 1. This is this popular artist's thirteenth season in America, and is proving the most successful of all; he is not only soloist with the principal symphony orchestras of America, but is enjoying a transcontinental tour which includes all the most important cities.

YULETIDE IN YUKON IS WORK FOR POLICE.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

DAWSON (Y. T.) Jan. 3.—Yuletide and its accompanying holidays mean but little in the life of some of Canada's finest—the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Between Christmas and New Year's a detachment of these hardy men left here for the long annual tramp through the Arctic wilderness to Fort McPherson at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, carrying holiday mail. Letters for traders, whalers, and others of the remote Arctic shore were taken, and at the fort the police will connect with an expedition from Herschel Island.

In preparation for this trip a party of police returned from a trip 150 miles north to Hart River, where they took supplies to be cached for the mail party leaving later.

By Putting More Iron Into the Blood of Modern Men and Women on Account of Their Eating Coarse Foods and Leading a Rigorous Outdoor Life? Physician Says

Iron Is Absolutely Essential to Greatest Development of Physical and Mental Power.

Why Nuxated Iron by Helping to Supply the Iron Deficiency in the Blood Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Run-Down Folks in Two Weeks' Time.

The men of blood and iron whose indomitable force and tireless energy helped win the war owe much to the strength obtained by eating coarse foods and leading a rigorous out-door life, is the opinion of Dr. George F. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey.

Dr. Baker believes that these same conditions on a lesser scale have been of tremendous help to the health of men and women in civil life. In commenting upon this, he says: "Just as lack of proper foods for its soldiers saps the strength of a nation, so does want of sufficient iron in the blood of men and women reduce their power and make them an easy prey to the thousands of disease germs constantly around us and always ready to attack the constitution of the weak and run-down. It is not the quantity of food you eat which makes you strong, but it is the amount which is assimilated and taken up by the blood.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Refined foods and modern methods of cooking have robbed us of much of the iron which Nature intended we should receive and there is no doubt in my mind that the coarse foods of wartime, with their greater percentage of strength-giving iron, have materially aided in building up a stronger race of people. But unless this iron is obtained from our food it must be supplied in some form that is easily assimilated if we want to possess power, energy and endurance. For supplying this deficiency and increasing the red blood corpuscles, I know of nothing more effective than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula and my own tests of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results. The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder, is in itself an evidence of tremendous public confidence and I am convinced that if others would take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down it would help make a nation of stronger, healthier men and women."

In commenting upon these conditions and the probability of building up a stronger race of people by increasing the supply of iron in their blood, Dr. Ferdinand King, New York physician and medical author, says: "I fully agree with Dr. Baker. In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another great iron loss.

"Therefore, you should supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt. I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe aggravated conditions, with unfailing results."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.,) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, was asked for an opinion. Dr. Sullivan said: "Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood—and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. But in my opinion, you can't make strong, sturdy men of blood and iron—the kind that helped win the war—by [illegible] them on metallic iron. [illegible] of metallic iron must go through [illegible] gestive process to transform [illegible] organic iron—Nuxated [illegible] they are ready to be taken up [illegible] similated by the human system. [illegible] withstanding all that has been written on this subject by [illegible] physicians, thousands of people [illegible] sist in dosing themselves with [illegible] iron simply, I suppose, because [illegible] a few cents less. I strongly advise [illegible] ers in all cases to get a physician's [illegible] scription for organic iron [illegible] Iron—or if you don't want to go to [illegible] trouble, then purchase only [illegible] Iron in its original package [illegible] that this particular name [illegible] Iron) appears on the package. [illegible] have taken preparations such as [illegible] and iron and other similar [illegible] ucts and failed to get results, [illegible] that such products are an entirely [illegible] ferent thing from Nuxated Iron."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron [illegible] is prescribed and recommended [illegible] physicians is not a secret remedy [illegible] which is well known to druggists [illegible] where. Unlike the older inorganic [illegible] products it is easily assimilated [illegible] not injure the teeth, make them [illegible] upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser [illegible] will refund your money. It is [illegible] in this city by the Owl Drug Co., [illegible] Sun Drug Company, [illegible] pany, B. & B. Drug Company, [illegible] Noyes, and all other druggists.

HUNGARY'S HEAD OUTLINES PLANS.

President of New Republic to Unite All Factions.

Promises Other Races Freedom from Domination.

Appeals for Aid of Allies in Rebuilding Nation.

BY LADISLAV CZAPSKI.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BUDAPEST, Jan. 15 (via Paris, Jan. 17.)—Count Michael Karolyi, president of the Hungarian republic, in what was his first interview with a foreign newspaper correspondent told me today that while determined to unite all political forces in Hungary to save the country from ruin he will be unable to accomplish this object without the aid of the Allies. He put stress on the fact that the situation here is not merely Hungarian but also of international concern.

"I have no political programme other than that," he said, weighing every word like a man still unaccustomed to the burden of responsibilities thrust on his shoulders. He continued:

"By being chosen President of the new republic I have been placed above all parties and factions. I represent a programme of the entire land and of the entire people. The best way to outline this programme is to say that the thousand-year-old Hungary wants to find its place in the cultural and economic system of the world.

PLAN NEW STRUCTURE.

"We wish to build a new structure on the ruins of the old and to replace devastation by productive labor. But this is possible only if we can dispose of sufficient territory. At present Hungary is occupied over large stretches by Czechs, Serbians and Rumanians who have laid hold of these big areas. It is impossible to realize any programme of domestic reform with a shrunken Hungary left in our hands.

"I am seeking to construct a government which by uniting all of the political forces in the country should save an unhappy land for the future and which would be able to bring about order and give happiness to people of all classes and maintain national solidarity.

"But no government, whatever its composition may be, can hope to realize those aims without the aid of the Entente Powers to which our situation is of as direct concern as to Hungary itself. We wish that the democratic results achieved by the revolution should be guaranteed permanence by the coming elections to the constituent assembly.

PROMISES FREEDOM.

"The races living on Hungarian soil need have no fear of repression, for the new Hungary is determined to give them all the full possibility for free development and religious, cultural and natural affairs."

Karolyi today after the long government crisis looked much older and graver than when I talked with him on previous occasions. He is now anything but the gay young aristocrat who used to go through millions at one sitting at Monte Carlo. It is no secret that at the present moment he is practically stripped of the immense fortune he once owned. His famous house in the heart of Budapest is partly vacant and partly occupied by another aristocrat, while the President himself continues and for the time being will continue to live in the historic residence of the Hungarian Prime Ministers on top of the hill overlooking the Danube and within a stone's throw of the palace of the Hungarian Kings, and not far from the house where dwells the Archduke Joseph, the only member of the Hapsburg family on Hungarian soil at the moment.

All the former Ministers are at work carrying on the current business. Dionisius Berinkey, ex-Minister of Justice, who has been asked by Karolyi to form the new Cabinet, is now busy conferring with party leaders, but it is believed in ministerial circles that negotiations may last several days.

GREEK GIRLS AS NURSES.

Greek girls in the uniforms of American Red Cross nurses are now serving in the hospitals of Greece. These girls are part of a number from New England, who anxious to help their fellow-countrymen, decided to become nursing aids. They enrolled in training courses in the Massachusetts General Hospital, and other Boston hospitals, where they soon became proficient in their work. Recently four of them, who had practically completed their courses, decided that they would like to go back to Greece with the American mission which was just then about to leave. Through the Greek Legation they applied for permission to go with this mission as members of the American Red Cross.

Now they are not only serving their own people, but are also creating a feeling in Greece which cements the long friendship of the Greeks with America. Although no American troops have been landed on Greek soil, the people are nevertheless pleased with the sight of an American uniform, no matter what branch of the service it represents.

Another group of Greek girls in Boston is taking up courses at Simmons College, in dietetics, domestic science, and home aid. These girls also expect shortly to sail for Greece.

MONTANA NO LONGER BOOTLEGGERS' HAVEN.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

HELENA (Mont.) Jan. 10.—The coming of prohibition to Montana December 30 is probably more significant of the transmutation of the West from unrestricted traffic in intoxicating liquor to abolition of its sale than has been the case with any other Western State. Long renowned as one of the "wettest" States of the West, and famous to the last, in spots at least, in that same particular, Montana has acted as a clearinghouse for bootleggers running liquor into prohibition Washington, Idaho and Oregon since those States forbade the traffic.

While this activity, feverish as it was in the closing days of the liquor regime in Montana, was checked, in large measures, by the vigilance of border-county officers, it was by no means stopped, and the coming of prohibition to Montana is not expected to bring it to an absolute halt. It is, however, regarded as a mighty force in making still more effective the prohibiton laws of neighboring States and rendering infinitely more difficult the successful prosecution of the whisky-peddler's vocation.

Keeping Up the White House.

President Wilson has been extremely conservative in allowing expenditures for the White House since he has occupied it, and not a dollar has been expended, particularly since the declaration of war, that could possibly be avoided. Last year, however, the walls in the state parlors were repapered, but the same design of wall paper was kept in all of the rooms. The handsome patriotic design of the blue field and stars, which was restored in 1903, and which has been so popular, still graces the walls of the blue chambers. The rugs were replaced by new ones, while dainty new curtains of lace were hung under the heavy draperies in the windows of the state apartments. All the furniture has been reupholstered in the same pattern. These small renovations have given to the first floor at the White House a very attractive appearance.—[Christian Herald.

"Women were simply wild over him, especially in the days when he appeared at the Boston Museum in stock. I think he was probably the most popular actor who has ever appeared in stock. Girls used actually to throw flowers and notes to him on the stage, and sometimes he had to slip out of the back door on matinee days to escape the bevy of beauties awaiting him. Naturally he was responsive and had many love affairs. I remember when he was to play 'Friend Fritz,' a play dealing with the situation of race suicide in France, he laughed himself nearly to death over the fact that he of all fellows should be chosen to play the role of the men who had to be knelt down to by the townspeople in order to induce him to marry.

"It has been charged that he drank heavily. If Mason drank too much, it was because, with his fine wit and his charming personality, he simply couldn't escape jovial companionship. And, if he loved too much, it was simply because women loved him so much he simply had to give them freely of the love that was in him. He loved everybody, and I have yet to find the man, woman, child or dog that didn't love Mason."

Another friend and admirer of John Mason is Wilfred Lucas, one of the most famous leading men in pictures. Out in his dressing-room on the Hampton lot, the other day, Lucas was admiring a fine pair of patent-leather riding boots carefully hung over a set of "trees." Suddenly a look of sadness crept over his face.

"That reminds me," he said, "of a very important day in my life. It was when I first went on the stage, and, of course, I was very poor. I had a wonderful part offered me, but the role demanded a pair of riding boots, and I simply hadn't the wherewithal to buy them. John Mason, who was playing the star part, happened to hear of my dilemma. He slipped out of the theater, and before I left rehearsal there showed up a wonderful pair of riding boots, which Mason had sent me as a present."

John Mason,

Whose recent death removed a commanding figure from the American stage.

John Mason, beloved of the whole world, and especially of women, married two successive wives, Marion Manola and Katherine Grey, both actresses. With Miss Manola he starred in vaudeville during a number of years.

John Mason was born in Orange, N. J., October 28, 1858, the son of Daniel and Susan Mason. Educated by private tutors and at Columbia University, he always had a leaning toward dramatics, and he made his first appearance at the Walnut-street Theater in Philadelphia in 1878, and in 1879 he joined the Boston Museum stock company, where he remained as star and leading man during seven years. Subsequently he came to New York, playing at the Union Square Theater, and becoming at once immensely popular. Afterward, in 1886, he joined Edwin Booth's Shakespearian company in New York, playing Laertes in "Hamlet." He went to London in 1891, appearing at the St. James as Simeon Strong in "The Idler," registering an instant success. Returning to America in 1892, he appeared at Hermann's Theater, New York, in December, in "If I Were You." With the London success still buzzing in his bonnet, he went back to England in 1895, appearing again at the St. James Theater in London, and later at the Garrick, where his popularity continued unabated. Afterward returning to America, he toured the country with his wife, Marion Manola, in "Caste" and other plays. Later he came to New York, where he appeared in a succession of plays, ever a tremendous favorite. He was leading man with Mrs. Fiske, Elsie de Wolfe and Annie Russell at different times.

Perhaps his greatest reputation was made in Augustus Thomas's sensational success, "The Witching Hour," though another role later afforded him almost equal opportunities in "As a Man Thinks."

Perhaps one of the most interesting episodes in the career of Mason, and an unwritten episode of the stage, is the fact that he was playing in "The Witching Hour" in Chicago when a murder trial of sensational features was taking place in that city, the jury of which was permitted to witness the play. Old criminal attorneys say that the psychological effect produced on the minds of the jury by Mason's wonderful portrayal of the main character resulted in the acquittal of the woman defendant. The wife of one of Chicago's leading gamblers, a millionaire, was being tried for the killing of a young artist with whom it was charged she had been intimate. Her husband, when he learned the circumstances, refused to have further dealings with the woman, but left a large defense fund to enable her to secure proper representation. Senator James Hamilton Lewis was the leading counsel in the case, which was full of sensational features. "The Witching Hour" also was causing a tremendous sensation, dealing with a murder itself and its central theme being the surcharged atmosphere which unconsciously influenced the minds of people. The manager of the theater invited the jury to witness the play, but a day or two before the case went into their hands, and through some inadvertence, the judge permitted the jury to attend. Although the State had apparently made out a clear case, the killing being admitted, the jury returned a verdict of acquittal with but a brief deliberation.

His principal claims to success seem to have lain in a vibrant and wholly charming personality, which he retained to the day of his death, apparently, judging from his never-dying popularity even in his sixty-first year, and in the natural, unstagey method which he employed in his acting.

Girls, if you really wish high salaried positions in the business world I think you will find secretarial work affords the best opportunity. At the Willis-Woodbury Business College this course is a separate one and each pupil receives individual instruction. Now you can understand why the progress there is so rapid and the training so thorough. Experienced teachers are at the head of each branch of study. This school is pleasantly located on the fifth floor of the Hamburger Building, the rooms are large, light and well ventilated, while a new heating system has been installed.

New blouses are of Georgette embroidered in silver and gold thread.

Kimono sleeves with novel set-on hemstitched and tucked cuffs are new.

Would you guess Miladi's mood? Observe her fan. It reveals her every fancy! The fan of ostrich plumes has ever been the most gorgeous and alluring. Whether of curled or uncurled feathers it is always graceful and is surely a telling part of any costume. At the Cawston Ostrich Farm, South Pasadena, these lovely accessories are made to match any gown—or your hair or eyes, if you prefer. An interesting display of these and other ostrich fancies is found at the farm and also at 723 South Broadway.

That annual clearance sale at the Style Center, 718 South Broadway, will soon be over! Now is the time to get that dress, suit or coat at decidedly low prices. And, by the way, they have some perfectly adorable new spring dresses—some made entirely of Georgette, and all real bargains. The most charming of all was in the new Henna shade.

Freeman is showing most charming hats — hats of individuality! And most unusual neckwear! You should see the smart frocks created in this exclusive shop, 752 West Seventh.

A perfectly tailored suit or dress is such a satisfaction! I've seen the exquisite work of H. Birenbaum, tailor to the well dressed, and I know it would delight you! AIR SERVICE AWAITS INTERNATIONAL LAW.

ENGLAND WILL DEFER COMMERCIAL TRAFFIC FOR WORLD CONTROL.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 8.—There will be no passenger or commercial airplane service from England to any other country until complete plans are formulated for regulating and controlling air traffic, says an official of the British Air Ministry. That will be a task, he said, fraught with enormous difficulties.

"To begin with," he pointed out, "there are no laws of the air at present, and to bring the air into the commercial sphere without laws would produce chaos. There would be immediate trouble with the customs authorities of all nations. Adequate legislation will have to be framed to prevent contraband merchandise being carried through the air from one country to another.

"There will have to be a system of air customs, and that in itself presents many problems. Then, again, the unauthorized carrying of letters would bring in the postal authorities.

"To police the air presents other difficulties. Try to imagine an offender scudding away from an air policeman, whose machine may be the slower of the two, and hiding behind a cloud until everything was clear.

"It's a new world, and we've got to make proper arrangements for it."

At present, navigation of aircraft of every description in the United Kingdom and the coasts and territorial waters adjoining is prohibited by law, with the exception of naval and military machines, or airplanes operating within three miles of a recognized aerodrome. That law, the official said, is likely to stand until the Air Ministry can map out a comprehensive scheme of air legislation.

MEXICAN RAILROAD TRAIN ATTACKED; SEVENTY REBELS MEET DEATH.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

VERA CRUZ (Mex.) Dec. 30.—More than 100 deaths, according to unofficial estimates, resulted from an attack by rebels on a Mexican Railway train from the capital to Vera Cruz.

The rebels wrecked the exploring train, carrying an escort of eighty soldiers, but the passenger train, which was following, was warned soon enough to back out of danger to Camaron, near which station the attack was staged.

Reinforcements drove away the rebels, but only after thirty Federal soldiers, eight women camp followers and other unidentified persons had been killed. Seventy rebels are said to have fallen.

The same day a band of outlaws, under Marcelo Caraveo, attacked Jalapa, former capital of the State of Vera Cruz, but were driven off. Before attacking Jalapa the rebels robbed a train en route to that city.

"THE HOUSE OF SERVICE"

Editorial

War has surprises stranger than fiction. But Peace is prosaic.

Prices will now go down, like a steam gauge when the fire goes out.

People who think that misunderstand the signs of the times.

Watch the workers. Does anyone expect labor to submit to pruning the pay roll?

Contemplate the construction job of rebuilding the nations.

Materials on the market and men who want work will be taken in France and in Belgium without haggling about prices.

When there is not enough to go around prices go up and there isn't enough of anything now.

Playing the market or speculating on the future seldom is profitable. Things may be higher in three months than they are now.

Buy now what you need now is a good rule to go by.

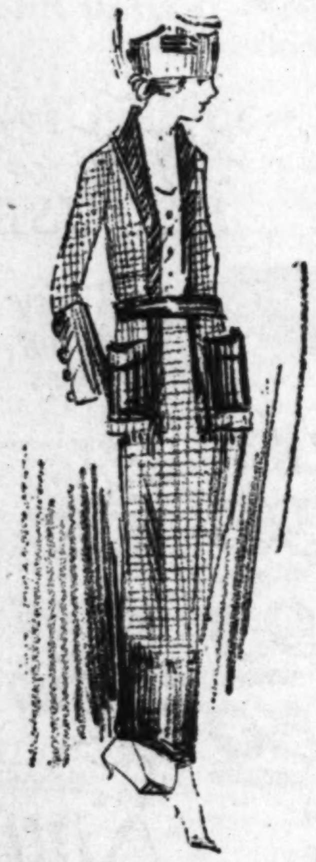
New Sports Wear Is Exhilarating



—Here in Los Angeles we have five seasons.

—A Season singular to this land of gentle sunshine is called and known everywhere as —The Southern California Season.

—It has fashions all its own, adapted to out-of-door life and reflecting the spirit of flowers.

—New sports suits flushed with the sheer joy of living arrived at Robinson's yesterday.

—A number of exclusive things arrived the last of the week, among them:

—Suits of Dark Blue Tricotine with silk Tricolette Vests, a novelty in the way of a Tricolette Suit combined with wool Tricotine Dark Blue and Yellow.

—A Dinner Dress of Foulard Pattern Georgette combined with yellow Satin.

—Sports Skirts of Kumsi-Kumsa silk.

—The Sport Suit sketched is of silk Orange knitted Jersey, with plain White Tricolette skirt.

—The dress sketched is of White Roshanara. Note the narrow skirt and the hand embroidery. Self-covered buttons down the back of the suit gives it character from every viewpoint.

Restaurant Hats Are Fashion's Newest

Restaurant Hats are newest and most interesting of the new things that are being shown.

Instead of dining bare-headed women of fashion often wear a large picture hat, made very light, of transparent and illusion effects.

There always has been something unaccountably charming about a well-dressed woman, with face "half-concealed, half-revealed" dining underneath a broad brimmed hat. Restaurant Hats in white, in pink and in black with jet trimming are $16.50 to $27.50.

New Sport Hats in Sports colors to the best that out of doors in California has to offer—are Prices, $7.50, $10.00, $12.50, $15.00 and upward.

New and More Beautiful Wash Goods

They say that it is going to be a great season for "Make Your Own" especially in the way of washable things.

Certainly there are advantages in making frocks and skirts and things of wash goods.

If one can do one's own dressmaking there is not only the pleasure of saving in expense, but the fine satisfaction of craftsmanship that one feels in one's own product.

But that is not all. The assortment of patterns and materials that one may choose from at Robinson's now, and the fact that one may have one's things made according to one's own ideas—to have things with individuality!—All favor getting the materials.

Novelty White Voiles, 36 to 40 inches, both imported and domestic weaves—in checks, in plaids, in stripes and in exquisite embroidered effects. Prices ranging from 50c upward.

Colored Voiles, 36 to 40 inches, woven striped and checked, in an inconceivably beautiful assortment of patterns—90c, $1.00, $1.45 and $1.50 per yard.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

These are days of uncertainty for club programmes, steering, as they do, innumerable possible speakers along the vacillating road of the epidemic. The plans of the Ebell Club have been changed for the drama and books section, which meets next Thursday at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. W. B. Scarborough, curator, announces a substitute speaker for the occasion—Prof. Anthony F. Blanks of Colgate University. Prof. Blanks has given courses in literature at the University of California, and so is known to this State as well as in the East. For next Thursday the speaker will present "The Three Godfathers," by Peter B. Kyne, popular novelist, who is now a captain in the United States Army. Tomorrow afternoon Prof. Alexander S. Kaun, lecturer at the University of California, will address the club on the subject of "Russian Realities." Prof. Kaun brings his lectures on Russia, of which he has made a deep study, up to date, and between the two scholars, the club expects to be well entertained.

Friday Morning Club.

The literature and drama committee luncheon of the Friday Morning Club will take place on Tuesday, at noon. The committee announces that, owing to changes made necessary in the programme, that part devoted to Russia, will be postponed, and the time given to Mrs. J. Wells Smith's paper on "The Poetry of the War." Mrs. Morris Albee will present a review upon Henri Lavadan's "Mon Filleul." On Friday, at 10:30 a.m. Witter Bynner, poet and literatteur, will read from his own plays and lyrics. Mr. Bynner's poetry is considered as among the best this country has recently produced.

Woman's City Club.

At the meeting of the Woman's City Club tomorrow in Hamburger's auditorium at 1 p.m. the speaker will be Rev. F. W. Reynolds, who was for eight months with the troops under fire. His subject will be, "The Lighter Side of Life at the Front." Mr. Reynolds, besides being an interesting speaker, is the brother of the first president of the Woman's City Club, Mrs. Andrew Stewart Lobingier, who is now president of the Friday Morning Club.

The programme by Miss Veverka which had been announced for this date will be given in February. Luncheon, will be served at 2 o'clock in Hamburger's cafe. Mrs. Osgood's class in parliamentary law will meet in the auditorium at 10:30. Non members wishing to attend the programme may obtain admission tickets at the door of the auditorium.

Woman's Press Club.

The shop-talk programme of the Southern California Woman's Press Club, was unexpectedly enlivened on Tuesday afternoon by a talk from Mrs. Private Peat. Her early experiences in the newspaper field were described, and numerous episodes told with humor. Mrs. Myra K. Nye, chairman for the day, presented a brilliant programme consisting of violin solos by Dorothy King, accompanied on the piano by her sister; a charming group of pianologues by Frieda Peyeke. One of the most interesting features was a brief lecture by Dr. Emily Noble of New York and Paris. The doctor is a specialist in the study of child welfare.

The Woman's Press Club has entered upon an era of interesting activities, now that peace has returned, and the members have time to resume their club work, so long ignored for the demands of war work. The patriotic service section is looking after the needs of writers and press employees, returned from the war zone, and is interested in an active reconstructive campaign Mrs. Eva Hamilton Young is chairman of this section. The new music section, under the direction of Mrs. James H. Ballagh, will give a musicale on the evening of January 28, in which some noted artists will appear.

Ruskin Art Club.

T. R. Fleming of Long Beach, and Miss Leta Horlocker of Los Angeles will give the programme for the Ruskin Art Club at its meeting next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the club rooms in the Black Building. At the last meeting of the club, Mrs. N. P. Conrey spoke of he government of Japan during the Yedo period, and compared political conditions in Japan in the seventeenth century with those of Europe now. Miss Josephine Locke read a review of the great decorators of that period.

City Teachers' Club.

The regular monthly membership meeting of the City Teachers' Club was held Monday, afternoon in the club rooms. Miss Gooch, vice-president, presiding in the absence of Miss Van de Goorberg, the club president. Mrs. Patten, from the Mission Road School, which is under the management of the Bridge-street night school, and is a school for camp mothers in the Southern Pacific camps, was present and gave an interesting account of her work. She had samples of the industrial work done by the students with her. On January 22, at the Ebell Club House, at 8 p.m. a lecture will be given by Prof. Alexander Kaun, on "Russian Realism."

Congress of Mothers.

The regular meeting of the State executive board of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations was held Wednesday in the directors' rooms of the Security Bank Building, the president, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, presiding. Reports of district and federation presidents showed greatly increasing interest in the State work. Several new organizations having joined. Mrs. P. H. Greer, of Wilshire boulevard, who recently accepted the chairmanship of Emblem and Magazine, made her first official appearance. Mrs. G. H. Goodale, president of the Orange County Federation, reported that in the re-organization of the County Council of Defense the child welfare work was assigned to the Parent-Teacher Federation. Plans for a membership campaign were also reported.

Los Angeles Travel Club.

The Home Economics Committee of the Los Angeles Travel Club will serve a Hoover luncheon, to members of the club and their friends, tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. in Bracket Hall. A half hour of music will follow and the semimonthly business meeting will be held from 1:30 to 2. The programme for the day is in the hands of the war emergency section. Dr. B. F. Austin is to be the speaker of the day, his subject being "Rebuilding the World." Last Monday the early part of the afternoon was devoted to the study of parliamentary law under the direction of Mrs. I. W. Gleason. The last hour was in charge of the civics chairman.

Business Women's Civic Club.

The Business Women's Civic Club will hold its regular meeting at the lecture hall of the Public Library tomorrow evening, at 7. The programme will be at 7:30, and will be a talk on "Belgian Relief Work," by Mrs. John Lynch.

Inglewood Woman's Club.

Wednesday will be social afternoon with the Inglewood Woman's Club. An afternoon of games, cards and readings has been planned by the committee in charge. Mrs. M. B. Mosher is chairman of affairs. Club's reciprocity day is January 29, and invitations have been sent to all the clubs in this district. John Smallman, baritone, will present a musical programme. This club is already working along the line of Americanization. It was in keeping with this idea, that the Woman's Club sponsored the presentation of the film, "A Man Without a Country," and in conjunction with the film, had a community sing. E. B. Plank, a Y.M.C.A. worker, directed the singing.

Pomona College Women's Club.

The president of the Pomona College Women's Club, Miss Myrth Bartlett, presided at an important meeting yesterday afternoon, at the home of the Misses Siduey and Hazel McClees, No. 1926 North Wilton place. The December meeting, which was scheduled for the same place, was omitted on account of the illness of Miss Sidney McClees. Pasadena members were the hostesses, with Mrs. Mabelle Crawford Reeder as chairman of the committee.

Gardena Women's Club.

Miss Darlow of the Los Angeles Public Library will speak before the Gardena Wednesday Progressive Club at the club house on Orchard street on Wednesday. There will be a musical programme. The usual luncheon will be served to members. The public is invited without charge to the programme. The doors will be open at 2:30 o'clock.

Los Angeles Million Club.

The Red Cross Auxiliary of the Los Angeles Million Club served a luncheon on Tuesday, in honor of Mrs. Jessie Whateley of San Francisco. There is a large quota of refugee garments to be gotten out during January, and the auxiliary will meet every Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the club rooms, 1025-6 Story Building. There will be no sewing on Thursdays, but those having knitted garments are asked to bring them in on next Tuesday, when there will be a business meeting at 12 o'clock, luncheon being served at 12:30.

Cosmos Club.

A. D. Sheldon, who was with Theodore Roosevelt in the New York Legislature, will give a sketch of the latter's, life and work, before the Cosmos Club members and guests, on Wednesday. Will C. Woods, secondary commissioner of schools, will speak on "The Unit System." Others who will contribute to the programme are Prof. F. A. Howe, who will speak on the "Prose of the War," and Mrs. J. Wells Smith, on the "Poetry of the War."

St. Cecilia Club.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

In the recent epidemic in Taunton, Mass., the local hospital was so overcrowded that the Public Safety Committee was obliged to seek an emergency hospital. The entire lower floor of the Trinitarian Congregational Church, comprising the church school and social plant, was turned over to them for this purpose. With its modern sanitary arrangements, its electric lighting, its well-equipped kitchen, its clean, well-ventilated rooms, the schoolrooms became overnight an ideal hospital. The beautiful ladies' parlor became still more attractive as a ward for babies, while the junior department and main rooms were filled with men and women. Leaders in the community, both men and women, gladly served as orderlies and nurses, assisting the trained helpers who were overburdened in the care of the sick. Catholic priests administered the last rites in the "orthodox" vestry. As the end came, a Catholic nurse placed the crucifix in the hand of the dying, while Protestant minister lit the tapers beside the bed.

Through the generous contributions of friends the Animal Rescue League fed more than 1000 horses on Christmas; visited sixty stables in Boston and the suburbs and took either from these stables or in the streets twelve horses wholly unfit for work, eight of which have been placed temporarily in the stable of the Work Horse Relief Association. There is still some money left, and with it the league will continue to purchase horses in poor condition. The agent of the league makes daily visits to auction rooms and sales stables and is constantly watching on the streets.

Pacific College at Newberg, Or., has received an addition of $15,000 to its endowment fund from the estate of Mary E. Mann.

The local talent of Atlanta, Ga., has been developed to such an extent by War Camp Community service that it is able to furnish twenty-six shows a week to the adjacent camps, and has increased the personnel of the War Camp Community Service Mandolin and Guitar Club until it numbers 150 girls and boys. These entertainments go to the Y.M.C.A., the K. of C. and the Jewish Welfare Board huts in Camp Gordon, Fort McPherson and Camp Jesup.

A cow moose, immune under the Maine law, made herself very much at home in a farmer's barnyard at Thorndike, Me., and soon showed such an ugly temper that the farmer had to get authority from the Game Commission to turn her into moose meat, which was sold to a hotel in Bangor.

Why Society Women Wash Their Own Hair.

They do, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. They have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift, but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only. Many of our friends say they get the best results from a simple home-made canthrox mixture. You can use this at a cost of about 3 cents a shampoo by getting some canthrox from your druggist and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply to all the hair instead of just the top of the head, as with most preparations. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear in the rinsing water. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Vanish

(Helps to Beauty)

A safe, reliable home-treatment for the quick removal of superfluous hairs from your face or neck is as follows: Mix a stiff paste with some water and powdered delatone, apply to objectionable hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This simple treatment is unfailing and no pain or inconvenience attends its use, but to avoid disappointment be certain you get genuine delatone.

It is exactly the type of comedy that has made Miss Fisher so popular, a torrent of smiles, laughs, roars and screams, with just sufficient pathos. The exceptionally brilliant supporting cast includes "Bull" Montana, Jack Mower, Harry McCoy, Eugenie Forde and Grace Knowlin. The programme also includes the latest O. Henry Story, "The Rubayat of a Scotch Highball," a travelette, a comedy and a short topical picture.

Hippodrome.

Emmy Wehlen comes to the Hippodrome today for a three-day engagement in what is conceded to be the most amusing photoplay that she has ever appeared in, "Sylvia on a Spree." The vaudeville show might also be justly termed a "Fun Bill," as comedy is predominant throughout its entirety. Heading the list of laugh-getters will be Arthur LaVine & Co., four people in their elaborate comedy conceit, "From Coney Island to the North Pole." The Totos, in their spectacular balancing novelty, do almost unbelievable things. Marion and Willard are two clever female comedians. Du Bois and Miller, "Nut" comedians, and Williams and Taylor, two clever colored steppers and singers, and the Allah Troupe of acrobats, are also on the bill.

Pantages.

One of the greatest novelties in vaudeville will be the feature of the Pantages show next week, beginning with the matinee at 2:30 o'clock Monday. The Great Leon and company, described as "The Wonder Workers" and recognized as the leading illusionists on the stage today, will entertain and amaze Pantages audiences with a most astonishing array of illusions, transformations and other mysterious doings. Next to the wonderful illusionist comes Barney Williams and company in a farcical playlet. Princess Jue Quon Tai, the "Chinese Nightingale," will sing a number of songs in Chinese, Italian, French and English. Arrie Hathaway and Joseph McShane render humorous song sayings and dances; King and Harvey, will sing their own compositions, and the Leoras will entertain with aerial acrobatic stunts.

Garrick.

The Garrick promises a show during the coming week that literally sparkles with merit from the standpoints of stars and stories. The bill will consist of two five-reel features, headed by Mary MacLaren in her latest production, "The Vanity Pool," with Frank Keenan in "The Bells," a mystery melodrama, as the running mate. The newly-inaugurated policy of the Garrick calls for a double show each week, at the flat admission fee of 15 cents for any seat. The house was recently purchased by Claude E. Halsell, well known theatrical magnate, who has renovated and remodeled the showshop both inside and out. A musical score on the monster pipe organ will be a weekly feature on the programme.

Symphony.

Demonstrating that he is as much at home in patent leather pumps and a Tuxedo as in the boots of the plains and the cowboy's open-throated flannel shirt, Harry Carey, Universal's ace of the saddle, comes to the Symphony this Sunday in "Roped," an entirely different starring vehicle from any he has previously essayed. Carey is seen as a wealthy westerner who seeks a wife to reign over the destinies of his rancho. He inserts an ad in an eastern newspaper inviting correspondence with a view to matrimony. A Manhattan society girl answers the advertisement for a joke. The production was directed by Jack Ford, who is responsible for "Hell Bent," "Three Mounted Men" and other earlier Carey successes.

Ray's Garden.

"The She Devil," a powerful love story of a wild Spanish girl whose ambition it was to raise general havoc without clashing with the police officers, and starring beautiful Theda Bara, the world famous vampire, is the coming week's attraction at Ray's Garden. A superb Symphony orchestra under the direction of a well-known Los Angeles musician has been installed as a special added feature. The orchestra will be given its premier this week with the showing of the very latest picture of Theda Bara. "The She Devil" is one of the most novel stories that has ever been screened by William Fox, and contains a number of new situations and dramatic climaxes.

Talley's Broadway.

Clara Kimball Young is at the height of her career in her latest photodrama, "The Road Through the Dark," a picture adapted from Maud Radford Warren's story. It unfolds a story of a woman who chooses at the critical moment the road through the dark, the road which means utter sacrifice of self, in order to serve high ideals and noble ends. In the character of a young French girl, secretly betrothed to an American officer, she drives ahead through sullied honor to honors imperishable, and the work of the actress is said to deserve the characterization, superb.

Palace.

Cecil DeMille's latest Artcraft photoplay, "The Squaw Man," will be shown at the Palace this week. This play is an intensely appealing drama, possessed of human interest, pathos and humor to a marked degree, and the cast chosen by DeMille to portray the characters makes this one of the noteworthy productions of the season. The story is of a young Englishman who, to save from disgrace the woman he loves, assumes responsibility for a crime he did not commit and flees to a ranch in Wyoming. The comedy relief of the programme is well provided for with the new Christie comedy, "Pearls and a Peach," and "Flirting With Mermaids," with Syd Chaplin, Mack Swain and Chester Conklin in the cast.

Superba.

"The Wild Cat of Paris," that French melodrama that takes the spectator slumming in gay Paree and shows him the cellar haunts of the Apaches and the studios where Bohemian artists specialize in the undraped feminine form divine, will be held over for a second and positively last week at the Superba, starting this Sunday. This sensational story brings forth Universal's dazzling star, Priscilla Dean, in an entirely new role, that of the daredevil queen of the Apaches, who loves and battles with the same reckless ardor and abandon.

Quinn's Rialto.

Today "The Turn in the Road" commences the fourth week of its run at Quinn's Rialto, and a four weeks' run of any picture is in itself sufficient evidence of the strength of the picture's appeal. "The Turn in the Road" is frequently spoken of as a distinctly new type of photoplay, and yet its story of the influence of love upon the lives of average people is as old as the human race. In reality, the depth of appeal in this sweetly wholesome play lies in its naturalness and its absolute truth to life, without introducing unreal or false situations, but gaining its strongly emotional and sentimental qualities from natural climaxes.

De Luxe.

The De Luxe is featuring Marguerite Clark in "Out of a Clear Sky" today and tomorrow. Miss Clark, often referred to as "the sweetest girl in motion pictures," becomes a winsome, willful Belgian countess in this picture. It is a delightful role, filled with delicious lights and shades, and is acclaimed as one of Miss Clark's most artistic screen portraits. The author of "Out of a Clear Sky" is Maria Thompson Daviess, a writer of unusual ability, who possesses to a marked degree that valuable above all other qualities as a successful screen author—imagination.

Alhambra.

In "The Light of Western Stars," Zane Grey's popular story, starting its second week at the Alhambra today, we find a wealth of good material. Dustin Farnum is fascinating in a masterly production, characterized by wealth and beauty of treatment. Thrilling and entertaining capacity audiences all last week, Dustin Farnum has proven his popularity, and it can truly be said that a happier combination of star and story could not be found. "The Light of Western Stars" is easily one of the most picturesque and impressive westerns ever unrolled on the screen, it is a vivid and actionful picture. The story is rich in human interest and engrossing adventure, vibrating with tense situations and the atmosphere of the great West.

AMERICAN RHINE ARMY IS CHEERED BY MUSIC.

FOURTEEN HUNDRED BANDSMEN SENT TO COBLENZ TO FILL ALL ORGANIZATIONS.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

COBLENZ, Jan. 14 (by courier to Nancy, Jan. 17.)—Coming to this area are 1400 band men, trained thoroughly in the schools of France. That number is sufficient to bring the full quota of the band of every unit of this army to fifty-two men and nearly every regiment now has its own band with it. In addition the shortage of instruments caused by losses on the march to the Rhine are being remedied by purchases in Coblenz, Cologne and other nearby cities.

In other words everything is being done to put the musical organizations on the best possible footing. And that is mighty pleasing to the doughboys in whose life bands are an important factor. The concerts do much to kill many a lonesome evening or rest afternoon and one has only to watch the progress of a band through the streets of any occupied city to see a smile light the face of a buck private and staff officer alike and to see heads go up and shoulders back as they catch their stride and appreciate its value.

But on still another occasion a band seems vital. That is the funeral of a boy who dies here, for a few do die despite the excellent medical organization. Of all the shifting scenes of daily life in the army of occupation none is more impressive than the military funeral in these surroundings. Recently from the heights of Ehrenbreitstein, the old fortress across the Rhine from Coblenz, I could hear the slow strains of a funeral march.

Down the sharply turning roads of the descent came a procession band, chaplain, caisson bearing the casket covered with an American flag, commanding officer and his company mates. As it turned the last sharp corner to the street below along the bank of the Rhine every soldier stood at salute. German civilians were silent. Not a sound was heard except the slow funeral tones as the group paying last honors to a man who had died in the service of his country marched slowly along the river to the cemetery where he was buried.

Everyone here realizes how important it is that this waiting army should have the best music possible and it seems that need is being met.

Prof. and Mrs. J. L. Shunk, Alliance O., have given their residence valued at $15,000, to Mt. Union College, retaining the right of residence or vacation at their pleasure. Dr. Shunk has been professor of Greek at the college for forty-two years.

Deborah Sampson was the first American woman to win fame as a soldier. She was born in Plymouth, Mass., 158 years ago. Fired by patriotism she dressed in men's clothes and entered the Continental army under the name of Robert Shurtleff, and took part in several battles. She was a seasoned soldier before Molly Pitcher gained fame by serving the gun of her slain husband in the battle of Monmouth. Deborah served three years and was wounded several times before her sex was discovered during a campaign in the vicinity of Yorktown. It was in the Philadelphia hospital that her ruse was discovered and upon her discharge she was summoned before Gen. Washington. He praised her for her bravery and gave her an honorable discharge and presented her with a purse of money. After the war Congress voted her a grant of land and a pension. She died in 1827.

HUN ELECTIONS KEY TO PEACE.

Allied Powers Await German Results at Polls.

Ebert Government Expected to Dominate.

Spread of Bolshevism Viewed with Alarm.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—On the opening of the Peace Congress the Allied powers are manifesting great interest in the election of the German national assembly next Sunday. The results at the polls will furnish the key to the real extent of Bolshevism and indicate how far the electorate is permeated by the disorders.

To fight Bolshevism and make Germany a bulwark against the spread of the reds in the west the Allied nations are sending food and Sunday the polls will reveal the sentiment of Germany itself toward the chaos.

The results will shape the attitude of the Allies, who have held in abeyance many matters concerning Germany until the election is over. They will enable the Peace Conferees to determine which government to recognize.

Out of the confusion across the Rhine comes the information that those in control have been telling the voters that Germany will have a place at the peace table during the negotiations. There is no such idea at Paris, however. The peace plenipotentiaries in the various missions point out that not a negotiated peace, but a victorious peace treaty is to be drafted and that Germany's delegation will participate only when the settlement is ready to be laid before them with the injunction to sign on the dotted line.

Still in fighting the spread of Bolshevism in middle Europe the Allies will have many questions to be taken up outside of the Peace Congress itself and the elections will show which government is to be recognized. These questions will include that of whether Germany can prove itself capable of self-government at the outset and whether intervention will be necessary.

EXPECT EBERT TO WIN.

For weeks Paris has been compiling information on the political conditions and confusion in Germany. The belief seems to be quite general that the Ebert government will prevail in Sunday's elections and may elect about half of the national assembly delegates. If the Ebert party—the majority Socialists—fails to get the actual majority, it will have votes enough from the other parties to control.

The old parties have been scrapped and in the present election there are some six new parties or groups. The majority Socialists, now in control, seem to be gaining strength. That party has a powerful organization, a close touch with the masses, a constructive programme and seems to realize that the first business is to restore order.

The chief weakness is the inexperience of the leaders in administrative offices, their activities until recently being only parliamentary, and its avoidance, up to the appointment of Noske two weeks ago as military head, of strong measures against the fanatical groups.

Ebert, the head of the government, is the son of a tailor and is himself a saddler. He has a strong hold, but faces a difficult situation in controlling the Bolshevist group.

The other Socialistic party is in a state of disorganization. Its members are far more radical than the majority Socialists, but the party has linked up with the Bolshevists. Its leaders are Hoffman, Barth, Dittmann, Cohn and Ledebour. Some of its most radical members have gone to the Liebknecht wing, others, less extreme, have gone to Ebert.

BOLSHEVISTS FANATICS.

The Spartacus or Bolshevist groups include followers of Liebknecht, long-haired agitators, and fanatics, laborers who received extravagant wages from the war industries, and communists. They are for a world revolution and their strength lies in the hunger, sickness and unemployment arising from the food and economic situations, in the conflict between capital and labor, with capital collapsed, its control of the arms and munitions, particularly machine guns, and its possession of money, much of it from Bolshevist Russia.

The Democratic party is a fusion of the liberal elements of several old parties, who want a moderate government with no marked social change. It talks of a republic, but appears to cling to the old monarchical ideas. The leaders are Theodore Wolff, Naumann of Mitteleuropa fame, Dr. Dernberg, Max Warburg and Prince Max of Baden.

The German people's, or Christian people's party, is composed of the right wing of the old Center party. It includes the clerical party, which is strong in Bavaria, and which is fighting the separation of church and state. It is bourgeoisie and is for social reform only in homeopathic doses.

"FOR ME UND GOTT."

Finally there is the German national popular party, comprising the old Conservatives who used to be great champions of the Hohenzollerns and the "for me und Gott" stuff, and the right wing of the National Liberals, which Bismarck used as a personal tool. It is reactionary and pro-Junkerist, and if it should hold the balance of power it might be expected to make an attempt to revive the monarchy.

Most of the recent dispatches from Germany appear to indicate that the more conservative elements will prevail at the polls. Stormy seas are ahead and the Allied governments may have to take more on hand than the supplying of food alone.

Old Trees on Chinese Wall.

Trees and shrubbery planted in the soil that has been accumulating for hundreds of years on the great wall of China are in thriving condition, some of them having grown to a height of twelve to eighteen feet. This method of beautifying the great wall was an outgrowth of the movement for the reafforestation of the country started some time ago with government sanction under the direction of foreign experts. The driveway on the great wall is considered very much improved with the addition of trees.—[Indianapolis News.

PERFUMES FOR EVERY TYPE.

A Wholesome Woman Should Use Odor of Roses.

Men are More Appreciative of Odors than Women.

So Says Woman with "Most Wonderful Nose."

[From the New York Evening Sun.]

"Women use perfumes, but not because they get personal pleasure from them. Men are far more appreciative of lovely odors, and the feminine sex knows it."

That's Ann Haviland's conclusion, and who knows better than she—the woman with the most wonderful nose in the world? For eleven years Miss Haviland has been creating individual perfumes and studying masculine and feminine preferences.

Miss Haviland, who has her own perfume laboratory, can distinguish with eyes blindfolded between 400 different perfumes! And the interesting fact is that this is a natural sense, not a cultivated one. When she was a young girl Dr. Charbot, the great French perfumer, noticed her remarkable genius for distinguishing odors. Later she accompanied him to Paris, where under his instruction she became a specialist in scents. Today she concocts individual perfumes to suit the user, just as a decorator plans appropriate interiors or a dressmaker individual gowns. Ann Haviland's patrons include prominent members of New York's exclusive society and widely known professional people.

PERFUMES FOR EVERY TYPE.

"I find that American women are surprisingly ignorant when it comes to selecting suitable perfumes," she said the other day. "French women are far beyond them in this respect. An American woman will use a certain brand of commercial perfume because she sees it widely advertised, because a department store may display it attractively, or because a friend recommends it. This is absolutely wrong. A poorly chosen perfume may accentuate a bad trait that should be hidden or conceal a good one that should be emphasized."

This sounded a bit general. Miss Haviland was asked for more concrete particulars.

"Well," she explained, "I believe that a perfume should precede and trail one's personality. Take, for example, a clever woman, perhaps romantic in type, subtle and interesting—a woman whose charm is her mystery. Can you see how fatal it would be for that woman to use a perfume as obvious as rose or lilac, an indefinable odor that is absolutely opposed to her peronality? Such a woman should use subtle perfume, a mysterious odor. When she leaves the room people are not so likely to remark: 'What a sweet woman,' as they are 'What an interesting woman.' Her perfume, therefore, should be interesting rather than floral."

CLASSIFIES ALL WOMEN.

Miss Haviland's knowledge of feminine psychology will astound you. She classifies all women into types.

"The clean, wholesome type of woman," Miss Haviland continued, "should use a rose perfume, and when you see a woman who radiates wholesomeness you put her in the rose catalogue. But because there are so many varieties of roses a woman may be classified as a rose woman and still be different.

"Jasmine, without being combined with any other perfume, is a Spanish or Cuban odor that dark-haired and dark-eyed women should wear.

"The heliotrope represents the old-timey woman, and is delightful for older persons.

"Tall, willowy, swaying creatures are jonquil types.

"For the woman of mystery there is the blend of sandalwood and rose, an alluring perfume reminiscent of the shadows of the pyramids and the unanswerable riddle of the Sphinx.

"Then there is a fascinating perfume, essentially French, not absorbed by cigarette smoke. Perfumes made of barks and resinous substances, without alcohol, are quite the most interesting and last longest.

"If only women realized what effect perfume had on their nerves and emotions," Miss Haviland went on, "they would be more careful in their selection. An unsuitable perfume may completely throw a woman's nerves awry. And, seeking for the cause, her perfume will be the last thing she'll consider. Yet that may be the basic trouble. Every odor has its effect on the individual, and if women understood this they would be happier and more beautiful."

TWO NEW MINERALS PRODUCED BY ALASKA.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 9.—Two more minerals, platinum and molybdenite, have been added to the list of metals produced in paying quantities in Alaska, says a review of Alaska mining in 1918 issued by J. L. McPherson, secretary of the Alaska bureau of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

"Alaska made its first shipment of platinum in November, 1918," said the review. "One hundred and thirty-three ounces of the metal valued at $13,577 arrived in the States recently from widely separated localities in the Territory. Six ounces came from Salt Creek in the upper Copper River region, twenty-two ounces came from Dime Creek, near Nome, and 105 ounces came from Salt Chuck Mine in the Ketchikan district."

Molybdenite, the other new metal of the north, is used in hardening of steel, in coloring of pottery, analytic chemistry work. "Molybdenite will be added to Alaska's exports next year," the review said, "through the opening of a large deposit at Shakan on the northern end of the Prince of Wales Island, where the Treadwell Gold Mining Company, has installed a mill."

Japan to Renew Ship Contract.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, Dec. 30.—Representatives of Japanese ship owners have agreed to comply with an American request for the renewal of the contract for the chartering of 150,000 tons of shipping secured in Japan last year for war work.

This association is the direct culmination of the general upheaval of conditions in the motion picture industry during the past few months, and is established to regulate the entire industry, so that better pictures, stories and casts will be the rule.

Associated with Mr. Quinn in the movement are D. W. Griffith, Thomas H. Ince, Mary Pickford, Maurice Tourneur, Colin Campbell, Marshall Neilan, Lois Weber, Fannie Ward, George Beban, Douglas Fairbanks, Mabel Normand and Florence Turner.

One of the most important and comprehensive departments to be established by Mr. Quinn is the "service department." Through the co-operation of exhibitors all over the country, a system of reports will be made upon each production, covering the value of the picture relative to its rental, and the drawing power of each actor.

BILL HART'S HEAD LIKE MONK'S—OUTSIDE.

With a head shaven like a monk's, William S. Hart has just returned from a trip to San Francisco, where scenes of his current picture, a story dealing with convicts, were taken. In fact, the shaven head is due to the fact that Mr. Hart plays the role of one who, rightfully or wrongfully, as the film may reveal, suffers durance vile in a State penitentiary.

The star relates that the other evening he was helping celebrate in a San Francisco cafe, where some returned soldiers were having a jolly time, when a girl sitting at an adjoining table, said to her companion, loudly enough for Hart to overhear: "Oh, look at that man! Poor fellow, he must have just been released from San Quentin."

Hart looked around and smiled—and the girl recognized him.

She blushed a deep crimson. "However can I apologize?" she asked.

"Why," answered Bill, gallantly, "just give me that paper cap you are wearing, and we'll call it square."

She not only gave him the cap to cover his poor shaven head, but she pinned a rose on it.

And—they became friends.

HOW COULD LITTLE VIOLA HAVE DONE IT?

When Viola Dana, the Metro pocket Venus, purchased her new limousine de luxe, a girl friend gave her a card with a telephone number written on it.

"If you ever have an accident, Viola," said the friend, "call up the Phoenix garage. You can get a machine there day or night. Here's the number. Just ring when you want one."

Several days later Miss Dana was preparing to spend the evening with her mother in their new home, Heartease, in Hollywood. She dismissed her limousine and gave Sato, her Japanese chauffeur, the night off. Then she remembered she had to run into town. She referred to the card her friend had given her, and called the number.

"Hello," she said, as a masculine voice responded to her ring, "this is Miss Dana. Send over a car with a driver right away."

"Whaddya mean?" came back the male voice, "this isn't any garage; it's the fire department—"

Viola rang off. Then she got out her diary and looked up April 1. Beside the date she wrote her friend's name and made this notation: "I'll get square, Genevieve."

And she did. The next time the two were touring the shopping district downtown, the friend was driving and the car got stalled. "I'll call a garage," said Miss Dana. Instead of which she called a policeman and told him her friend was blocking the highway, and the friend got "tagged." Meanwhile Miss Dana, uttering "ha-ha!" disappeared in the crowd."

DON'T SAY NO SABE ANY MORE, THEY DON'T

Those cute little Chinese girls—about two-score of them—who are taking part in the spectacular scenes of "The Red Lantern," the Nazimova production now being filmed at the Metro studios in Hollywood, are not so childlike and bland as they appear.

Although they have the delicately tinted amber skin of their ancestors, the dark slant eyes and the glistening black hair, their ideas and ideals are United States, 1919 model.

The other day Maxwell Karger, Metro director-general, was standing on the sidelines of a magnificent stage setting, a duplicate of the Dragon Room in the Imperial Palace at Peking, when a Chinese damsel with a decided debutante slouch walked by, arm in arm with another maid of her own race who was munching a stick of chewing gum.

"Can you beat it?" demanded the first one, "sending an interpreter over to us to give us Capellani's directions. Just as if we can't speak English!"

"You're on," returned her companion, "it's certainly the bunk!"

And they glided on to take their places with throngs of others in a stately obeisance to the Dowager Empress amid the heavy fumes of burning incense.

PEGGY HYLAND IS A FINE MULE BUSTER.

If Peggy Hyland, Fox star, ever finds herself out of a job in the film game, she avers she can become a mule tamer. In fact, the wild West having gotten into her blood, she confides she is that already as the result of her work in "The First

Henry Lehrman,

Producer of Sunshine Comedies, who also has invented a new slogan for Los Angeles.

Man," in which she is at present working under direction of Lynn Reynolds.

The picture is being made in the northern woods, and those working with her were astonished at the pep Miss Hyland displayed on location. She even rode mules bareback, and be it known, Peggy is not supposed to be an expert rider. Once when the mules were hitched to a wagon Peggy left the company flat and drove along the roads for half an hour in a rickety buckboard, having the time of her life.

"I say," said Peggy, when she got out of the buggy, "that's great, isn't it?" She made friends with the balkiest mule. "Oh, they're all right," she said, " all you have to do is to treat them with kindness."

Next day came a severe trial to her courage. She had to be bumped out of the buckboard. The mules not only ran, but they bucked, and when Peggy was thrown from the buckboard it was in company with bits of the vehicle itself, while she received a glancing blow from a flying hoof. Reynolds ran to where she was lying beside the road. He was frightened almost to death, but all Peggy said, as she sat up, was:

"Jolly fun! I say, let's do it again!"

And they did.

SHE PUT ONE OVER ON BONNIE BESSIE.

Bessie Barriscale has commenced work on the third feature of her big contract, under direction of Howard Hickman. It is entitled "Hearts Asleep," and is by Maie B. Havey, author of Miss Barriscale's last story, "A Trick of Fate."

A notable cast will surround Miss Barriscale, including Vola Vale, Henry Woodward, Frank Whitson, Thomas Guise and Mrs. George Hernandez.

Miss Barriscale is known as a most versatile actress, it appearing she is equally at home in drama, comedy or character work. In "Hearts Asleep" she will assume a role totally different from anything she has done.

By the way, Miss Barriscale says she is starting work sooner than she had intended, on her new feature. The fact is, she took a trip into the country the other day, and as she turned into a road skirting Pomona, the following sign stared her in the face: "Quackless Ducks For Sale."

"Did you see what I saw?" inquired Bessie of her companion.

"Why, no, I didn't see anything," answered the friend.

A little further on, she came on another queer sign: "Drunkless wine for sale!"

"My friend protested she didn't see that sign, either," said Bessie, "and I felt it was time for me to come home! But since I came home I've seen my friend—yes, she's a picture actress—out every day with a certain handsome lieutenant— and I'm beginning to believe she put one over on me!"

SWEET MAY ALLISON IS SO SARCASTIC!

A mix-up in traveling bags gave May Allison an uncomfortable two days at Catalina, whither the winsome Metro star went on location for her new picture, "The Island of Intrigue." Miss Allison left the studios in Hollywood quite hurriedly to board the yacht Pahr, chartered by Metro for a cruise to Catalina and Santa Cruz, and it was because of her hurry that she left her valise behind.

Arrived at Catalina Miss Allison noticed her loss and wirelessed the studios. By mistake another yellow bag, standing alongside the star's in the front office at the studios was shipped to her. It was a coincidence that this bag, too, bore the initials "M. A."

After the wrong bag had reached her, Miss Allison wirelessed again. She ended her radiogram with these words: "I take after my mother, and my father too had a smooth face."

Her valise was located and sent to her post haste. It wasn't until later that Studio Manager Thompson understood May's cryptic radio. Her own fellow bag had been filled with pink silk what-you-may-call-ums, with lace and baby ribbon; while in the other valise there were, among other things, a stick of soap, a shaving brush and a safety razor.

ANTONIO MORENO IS BEAR TAMER.

In addition to being a Vitagraph picture star, Antonio Moreno may now claim to be an animal tamer. Bruno, the big black bear that had retrograded to the savage state through long confinement and retirement from the vaudeville stage, before being engaged for "The Iron Test," has been so tamed by Mr. Moreno that he now obeys every command of the Vitagraph Serial star.

When first introduced into the serial Bruno was untractable, and Mr. Moreno's encounter with him was the real thing, the nerve displayed by the star undoubtedly playing a large part in subduing the animal.

In the fourteenth episode of "The Iron Test," Moreno and Bruno again meet and the screen vividly portrays the control Mr. Moreno has over the beast. A scene in this episode shows Mr. Moreno suspended over a rat-infested pool. The rope that holds him is gnawed through by the rodents, but just before he falls, Mr. Moreno, seeing Bruno escaped when the circus train was wrecked, calls him to the edge of the pool. When Moreno falls helpless in the pool, he again calls to Bruno, and the screen shows how the big bear swims to him at once and drags him ashore.

Moreno says his system involves candy and kindness—about 90-10!

Sympathetic—But—

On the sixth day of Mary Pickford's illness, the six members of her "Daddy Long-Legs" company sent her six orchids. Accompanying the flowers was a touching note: "On every six days of your illness," says the letter, "we six will send you six orchids." Oh, yes, and there's a pathetic postcript: "P. S.—Please hurry up and get well!"

—o—

Switches Leading Ladies.

It now appears that Marguerite de la Motte, instead of Clara Horton, is playing opposite Jack Pickford in "In Wrong," production of which has been resumed following a two weeks' lay-off. Miss De la Motte was loaned to Jack Pickford by the Fairbanks company, as she has been engaged to be Doug's next leading lady.

—o—

Dowager Empress is Man.

The dowager Empress of China is a man in "The Red Lantern," the Nazimova picture now under production at the Metro studios. Jack Abbe, recently starred by Triangle, has the role of the dowager empress with Nazimova. Aided by a wig, some clever make-up and the elaborate embroidered robes of state, he is said to give a remarkable impersonation of the crafty and treacherous ruler of the Chinese empire during the turbulent days of the Boxer uprising of 1900, around which Edith Wherry wrote her story.

—o—

Kathleen Clifford Back.

Kathleen Clifford has returned to the Coast from New York, where she went to spend the holidays. She expects to have some announcements to make within a few days regarding a film engagement, negotiations for which are now under way.

—o—

Clarke Irvine Heard From.

From the United States naval hospital at New Orleans, Clark Irvine, well known as scenario writer and as editor of The Screamer, before he went away to help win the war, writes that though he is at present laid up for repairs, as the result of overwork and eye strain, he expects to arrive in town about the 25th, when he says he will let his friends "see a battle-scarred vet—who didn't get across, but who did get service."

—o—

Bessie Plays Postoffice.

Having one's name written in small but neat letters on one's car has its peculiar advantages, after all, so Bessie Love has discovered. This little vitagraph star explains that her car does postoffice service for her frequently. Upon returning from a shopping trip or after some other absence, she very often finds notes from friends, who, passing and seeing the big khaki-colored car with the little golden name, "Bessie Love," written on its door, leave notes among its sand-colored cushions for the car's owner.

And one of the recent stories which the Vitagraph company purchased for Bessie was found by the star on her return to her car after an hour's visit with friends.

"This story ought to suit you," was the author's terse introduction. And it did.

—o—

Tom Foreman Returns.

Tom Foreman, formerly well-known leading man with the Lasky company, who volunteered for service in the American army soon after the United States entered the war, and who has been serving ever since, has returned looking as fit and handsome as possible. Foreman is about to obtain his honorable discharge, and will again be a pleasing figure in Lasky productions.

Roy Marshall, Lasky assistant director, is also back on the lot, after many months' service.

Mother will be Glad.

When President Wilson returns from Europe it will be a source of great rejoicing to Mrs. Sidney Rogers Deacon of No. 1388 West Thirty-eighth street, as her son, Lieut. Victor Fleming, formerly a Universal cameraman, who has been instructor at Columbia University for the period of the war, and who was chosen as official photographer for the President's party, will return also.

—o—

Nigel Barrie Once More.

Nigel Barrie, now a lieutenant in the Royal Air Force, who before the war was leading man for Marguerite Clark and Clara Kimball Young, arrived in Los Angeles from New York last week, to again appear before the camera, acting as leading man with Alma Rubens in her first independent starring production, "Diana of the Green Van," under direction of Wallace Worsley.

Failing to be acepted in the American aviation service, Barrie joined the Royal Flying Corps last November, and is now a first lieutenant in that service. He is on furlough from Toronto, Ontario, where he was recently an aviation instructor.

—o—

Bill Desmond's New One.

William Desmond, one of the stars of the Jessie D. Hampton Productions, has started work at the Hollywood studios in his third film play under the Hampton banner, with Thomas Heffron directing. The title of the story is "Whitewashed Walls."

Fritzi Brunette has been chosen as Desmond's leading woman, and other members of his company will be Carmen Phillips, Jack Richardson and Walter Perry.

—o—

Poff Plays Monte.

It comes to light that the actor who plays the role of Monte, and who scores so heavily at the Alhambra in "Light of Western Stars," with Dustin Farnum, but whose name is not mentioned on the screen, is none other than Lon Poff, well-known character actor, who at present is creating the role of Jim Lane in "Shepherd of the Hills."

—o—

Good Music with Bill Hart.

An unusually excellent musical programme is announced to accompany the William S. Hart photoplay, "Border Wireless," at the California Theater this week. Among the numbers to be played by the Symphony Orchestra under direction of Nicola Donatelli, are Cajani's "Serenata," Borch's "Silent Sorrows," Ferrari's "Meeting of the Camorrists," Lithgow's "Royal Australian March," Borch's "Yesterlove," Verdi's overture, Sicilian Vespers, Lanciani's "Funeral March Burlesque," with the opening overture "Zampa," specially arranged by Donatelli. "Flowers and Butterflies" also will be played, with a scenic especially arranged.

VALUE OF A VOICE TO STAGE SUCCESS.

"If you have not a good voice you have deliberately neglected a tremendous advantage on the right road to success. And one that is within the grasp of every one," says Miss Elinore McCune, the little San Francisco prima donna with "You're In Love."

"From the beginning of time poets have sung of the music of women's voices and incidentally given the sex a highly valuable tip in regard to one of its fascinating attributes. Nothing makes so strong an appeal to the emotions as a beautiful voice. It works magic for its happy possessors, and yet, how many women stab the ear with the raucous tones of their voices!

"Actresses of no very great ability have turned the scales in their favor and achieved the utmost success by reason of agreeably cultivated voices, while actresses of note have kept the fickle public true to them for years on account of fine voices. Sarah Bernhardt's hold on three generations of theater-goers is undoubtedly due to her world famous 'golden voice.' Ethel Barrymore's few deep notes, carefully developed, turned what might have been merely an unpleasant huskiness into a highly valuable 'trade mark,' with the result that half of the novices on the stage having good natural voices attempt to talk 'Barrymore' without realizing it was her intelligence and talent that turned a bad organ into an attractive one. Billie Burke has a delightful voice for an ingenue, just as Elinore Duse has a superb voice for the expression of tragedy.

"Where do the American women with beautiful voices keep themselves? a noted critic asked me recently after listening to a chorus of nasal voices and 'I says to him,' or 'she says to me,' in reply to which I stated that one is forced to the fairy-story conclusion that women who are clever enough to acquire good voices are society or Broadway favorites, or are immediately married for them, and travel in their own limousines ever afterward."

WOMEN.

As a beet puller, Mrs. William Ish of Findlay, O., thinks she beats the world. In just two weeks she pulled thirty-two tons of beets, topped them and had them in the sugar factory.

Among the 1500 applications received recently at the War Department for appointment as watchmen or guards at a new building was a patriotic woman from Tennessee, who described herself as "strong, healthy, tactful, discreet, fair judgment, unusually quick to think and without a nerve."

Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews of Boston has left the United States for England and France, where she will represent the Federal Bureau of Education in Paris during the Peace Conference.

Miss Lillian Moore of Heyworth, Ill., says she is the champion woman corn husker of Illinois. In sixteen days she husked 1105 bushels of corn, or an average of seventy bushels a day. She was attired in overalls while at work. In addition to this work she milked three cows each morning and evening and looked after the house work.

Mrs. Helen Dillon of Chicago has knit 1000 pairs of socks for the soldiers.

It is proposed to hold a world's conference of working women in the near future, probably in Paris.

be rumors of Repub-
, but Mr. Fordney
chosen under the rule of seniority and because he knows more about the tariff than will any other Republican in the new House of Representatives. The bill, by custom, will bear his name, although twelve other men will be joint authors with himself. Next year a President is to be elected. Undoubtedly the Fordney bill will be one of the great issues of the campaign.

Naturally, Mr. Fordney himself will figure in the debates on the stump and in the press. Descriptions will not agree. Testimonies will contradict. Judgments will vary. But the facts, no matter what is said, will not change. And some of the facts are herein to be set down, inasmuch as they are interesting and potentially of much concern.

HIS MAIN DOCTRINE.

Now, at the very edge of what is to come, it should be stated that Joseph Warren Fordney is not a milk-and-water man. Politically, he is no sissy. What he believes, he believes, not lazily, indifferently or timidly, but openly and often almost riotously. Protection is his main doctrine—not protection minus this or that, but protection plus everything in sight. It is right, as he sees the light, and so the case is closed and his mind made up.

Yet his voice is peaceful ordinarily and his bearing most friendly. "I want to be courteous," he says in Congress, as, with a battle-ax, he cleaves the skull of a disputatious colleague. For fifty years this man has been chopping down trees and sawing them into lumber. A pine is to be felled and he fells it. He has no ill will for the pine, but it must be converted into planks and boards, scantlings and beams.

In other terms, Mr. Fordney is direct in his physical processes, and, therefore, not ambiguous in his statements. "The gentleman is talking nonsense and he knows it," Mr. Fordney once observed, addressing a windy person in the House of Representatives. "Any man with brains enough to grease a gimlet" ought to do so and so, he remarked on another day.

"I would say this: I am not a lawyer," and Mr. Fordney waved his right hand in a semi-circle, at still another time, so as to erect an invisible fence around the hundred or so of lawyers who were listening, "and I have no prejudice against members of the legal profession, but I wish that half of those who sit in this House were business men and not lawyers."

FIRED INTO GROUP.

For the man who demands protection on the products that he grows or manufactures, but free trade in the things that he purchases, Mr. Fordney's contempt is measureless, his condemnation without limit. He holds that high wages and cheap goods cannot be simultaneous blessings.

"You promise to reduce prices by one-half," he thundered one afternoon, aiming his shot at several gentlemen who had been talking nonsense, as he said. "And yet," he went on, "you are going to make this a land of sunshine, where milk and honey will flow, where men can sit around in idleness, have more to eat, more to wear, more to say and less to do. We have persons in Michigan who talk the same way, but they are in our asylum for the insane at Kalamazoo."

Wherever he goes, Mr. Fordney carries his torch along, with plenty of matches, so that he may light the way of those who are in the dark, whether they want him to or not. A famous elocutionist had said, and the newspapers had printed it, that he favored a law that would reduce the hours of labor, increase the wages of labor and lower the price of products.

"I don't see why it can't be done," said a barber who was trimming Mr. Fordney's hair. Mr. Fordney gasped once or twice and then lit his torch.

"You know more about your own business than about any other man's business," he began. "You will admit that, will you not?"

"Yes," and the barber's scissors were silent, as he looked at the back of Mr. Fordney's head.

"You are working ten hours a day."

"Yes."

"And charge 35 cents for cutting hair."

"Yes."

"To lower the cost of the product of your labor would mean that you would have to lower the price of cutting hair."

"That's so."

"Well, how are you going to work eight hours a day instead of ten, cut men's hair for 15 cents instead of 35 cents and at the same time increase your earnings? Tell me that, will you?"

"Oh, that is not a fair illustration," the barber said.

"But it is one that you know all about and when you figure it out I will listen to you in regard to the product of some other man's labor."

FAVORITE INDOOR SPORT.

Public characters, fluent of speech, are not always accurate. Having little to say and saying it at length, they both repeat and contradict. Mr. Fordney's most satisfying sport is to track such orators, when they are discussing his favorite subject, and chase them up a tree or under a fence.

Ten years ago he began systematically to study the tariff laws of this and other countries. It was then that he became a member of the Committee on Ways and Means. He can quote the language of Foreign Ministers, ancient and modern, and can give the prices of commodities year by year and, in some cases, month by month. Wages, here and abroad, can be stated by him offhand.

The epitome of his tariff views is contained in the following sixty-four words:

"I know of no interest in the United States that is producing an article for consumption on which article I want to see the duty reduced to a point that would permit the foreigner to come in and enjoy our markets and take them away from our laboring men or deprive our laboring men of their right to produce that article in this country."

By "no interest," he means, so he declares, the iron of the North, as well as the cotton of the South. He would have the United States make the goods that are in the shirt of the man in Mississippi and the shoes that are on the feet of the man in Massachusetts. But the law that he would write would be "reasonably, correctly and equitably protective."

Physically, except in the matter of weight, Mr. Fordney belongs to the Grover Cleveland type. He is tall—five and eleven, perhaps—and has gray eyes, a grizzled mustache and a resolute but attractive face. His clothing is of the best and his thin, broad-toed shoes are always blackened. "Sir," says he in the House of Representatives, addressing the Speaker, and the habit and the word have become a part of his outside conversation. His age is 65, but he looks younger. This is the story that he told the writer:

EARLY INDIANA DAYS.

"My father," he said, "was an Indiana farmer. There were thirteen boys and girls in his family, I being the youngest, and there have been thirteen children in my own family. Indiana, during my childhood, was a wild country. We lived in a wooded region and my father between crops ran a sawmill and a gristmill.

"Country schools were poor and far apart. My education was sadly neglected. When I was 15, we moved to Saginaw, Mich. I had worked in Indiana on what is now known as the Big Four Railroad, plowing the right of way, with two teams of horses, and operating a scraper. The contractor paid me $10 a month.

"During my first winter in Michigan I received $15 a month as chore boy for a cook in a lumber camp. The second winter I did the cooking myself, in which branch of the lumber industry I worked for three seasons. Then I became a chopper in the woods.

"Back in Indiana I had seen poplar and walnut grow greatly in value. Before a railroad was built through our country forests were practically useless. Lumber could not be sent to market. With the railroad came sawmills and men looking for bargains.

"I thought about the change I had seen in Indiana and concluded that a similar change would occur in Michigan sooner or later. So I decided to make lumbering my business and to learn how to estimate standing timber. I spent my summers, therefore, in journeys of exploration and became a good judge of pine forests.

ON ROAD TO RICHES.

"For this work, done only in summer, I was paid from $5 to $8 a day. Naturally, I wanted to own some pine land of my own. I had no money, however. Married at the age of 20, with a family coming on and with days during which I had no employment, the accumulation of capital was practically impossible.

"The future did not look promising, but my fortune turned suddenly. A wealthy man said he would supply the money if I would supply the skill, and make me his partner in the business of buying and selling standing timber. I was to draw $1800 a year and expenses and to receive half the profits. The partnership was profitable and for the first time in my life I knew how it felt to have plenty of money in my pocket.

"Presently I engaged in what is called the logging branch of the lumber industry. I bought pine land, cut the trees and had the logs sawed at mills owned by others. Later, I had mills of my own.

"I was engaged in the lumber business of Michigan for many years. Before all the forests in that part of the country were cut I made investments elsewhere. I am interested now in a large Mississippi enterprise and in two logging projects in the State of Washington."

"How long," Mr. Fordney was asked, "have you been interested in the tariff question?"

"I can't remember the time when I wasn't a Republican and a protectionist," he answered. "In their early married life my parents for a short time lived in Virginia. While I was a child I heard my mother tell of a neighbor who whipped his slaves. I wrongly thought that all planters were guilty of that practice.

WAS A LINCOLN BOY.

"Although my father was a Democrat, he believed in the integrity, the patriotism and the wisdom of Abraham Lincoln. So I grew up a Lincoln boy, and from reading his speeches and hearing my mother talk I became a Republican. The tariff also was discussed in my presence. I thought the subject over and came to this conclusion: If a saw is made in England and sold in the United States, then the man who makes the saw will be an Englishman, whereas he ought to be an American. 'Money,' I said to myself, 'should be kept at home.'

"Such was my crude conviction many years ago. It has been strenghened by my experience in business. I have since elaborated my definition of protection, have strung it out into several thousand words, but I have failed to make it any clearer than was my first thought on the question."

"You have been in politics for more than twenty years?"

"Yes, I was elected an Alderman in Saginaw, back in 1895, and reelected in 1897. Then in 1898 I was nominated for Congress. The district was Democratic, but I won by a plurality of 1700 votes. Since then I have been a candidate ten times, and my plurality at each election was larger than in 1898."

"What other public question has attracted your attention?"

"Government ownership of public utilities is one of the greatest problems of the day. I am unalterably opposed to the proposition. It would take an hour for me to tell you why the owning and operating by the government of any sort of business would be wasteful and dangerous. The government, it is enough to say, can't be economical. It can't be efficient.

"Two sister ships were built for our navy. They were alike in every

Laces and Embroideries

In a Notable Clearance, Starting Monday

—Now for one of the biggest things ever planned in the Lace Section—we've put forth our best efforts to make this sale of laces and embroideries an outstanding feature of the January Clearance.

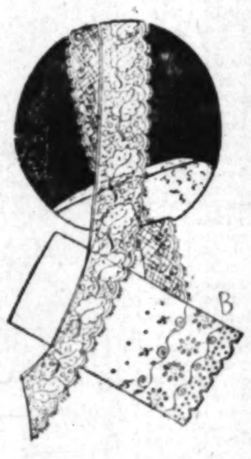
—Typical of the values are:

5000 Yards Val. Lace 5c

—Edgings, insertions, beadings and beading edgings in this lot—really, you never saw such variety at the price and the quality is wonderfully good. Widths ½ inch to 1¼ inches; many matched sets included. Away less at 5c a yard.

2000 Yards Lingerie Laces 10c

—Edgings and bandings in fine Normandy Val., filet, shadow, point de Paris and novelty laces. Widths 1½ to 5 inches. Beautiful wash laces for underwear and dress trimming. Exceptionally low in price, Monday, at 10c a yard.



1000 Yards Lace Flouncings at 25c

—Such lovely patterns—such exquisitely fine meshes—shadow and novelty thread run flouncings, 15 to 27 inches wide. Also dainty allovers in 17-inch width, white and cream. Far and away less than the regular price, Monday, 25c a yard.

12-Yard Bolts Val Lace 45c

—Both edgings and insertions included in this lot of laces, widths ½ to 1 inch. Monday's price will prove very attractive, 45c for a 12-yard bolt.

Cluny Lace 23c, 29c and 35c

—1080 yards in the lot. There are the lovely Cluny laces that are used extensively for brassieres, camisoles, fancy work and so on. Edgings 3 to 4½ inches wide. Splendid values at 23c, 29c and 35c a yard.

Silk Chiffon Cloth 79c

—In the 40-inch width and in a good range of wanted shades. A popular fabric for sleeves, veils, etc. Monday's price 79c.

The Broadway Basement

Embroideries 10c to 20c

—2800 yards of fine longcloth embroideries, edgings, insertions and beading, 2 to 5 inches wide. There are matched sets in many patterns. Monday's prices 10c, 12½c, 15c, 18c, and 20c a yard.

Embroidery Flouncings 25c

—Not the regular price, by any means! Corset cover flouncings as well as those for dresses or trimming. Widths 17 and 18 inches. Monday, 25c a yard.

2500 Yards Embroidery 10c

—Fine Swiss, nainsook and longcloth embroideries 2½ to 5 inches wide. A wonderful choice at 10c a yard.

Embroidery Flouncings 49c

—800 yards of sheer embroidery dress flouncings in 24 and 27-inch widths, some dainty baby flouncings included. The price radically lowered for Monday, 49c.

The Broadway Basement

Women's Boots $3.95

In Smart Colored Leather

—Made of the modish colored leathers, tans, grays and so on, most of them all leather, a few pairs with cravenetted tops, just to give variety. All sizes in the lot, though not in all styles.

ARCTIC LUXURY IN NEW YORK.

The Most Expensive Apartments There are Coldest.

Leases on Riverside Drive Signed in Hot Weather.

Denizens Eat Clad in Winter Wraps and Gloves.

[Frances L. Garside, Kansas City Star.]

The open season for abusing the New York landlord begins October 15 and closes May 15. Previous to and later than these dates it may hail, it may snow, a cold wind from the north may gooseflesh the city, but the protest of the tenants that they are not paying rent for the privilege of freezing to death is as powerless as the whimper of an orphan child.

The landlord has the law, or what most of them here call the "lawr," back of him. It compels him to turn on the heat October 15 and releases him from all heat liability after the middle of May. Occasionally there is a landlord who is not so law-bound in his economics, and who fires up as the weather demands it. This phenomenon among landlords is usually found in the less expensive walk-up apartments, and there's a reason. In the walk-ups there is no cold-blooded superintendent; a woman, usually a widow and the mother of children, is the janitress and man-of-all-work. She has a heart in her breast and fires up whenever the weather demands it because she doesn't want some other woman's children to suffer. As for the 68 deg. limit imposed as a war measure, it is the subtlest of flattery and must tickle the average landlord.

The coldest apartments in the city are the most expensive on Riverside drive. Leases are signed in June and July, and every one moves October 1. The cooling breezes from the Hudson are a tempting bait in midsummer; the Hudson is still beautiful in the fall, and when the wind crosses the ice in the winter and beats at the windows, the landlord smiles at the complaints of his tenants; they are of such social and business standing they can't afford the impairment to their credit that breaking a lease incurs, and they are at his mercy. If one breaks a lease in the more moderate rental houses there is less to do about it, and the leases are not required at all in the cheapest houses.

"They are doing well in New York," proud kin in the Middle West say, making room for the neighbor to put her feet in the oven. "You know, they live on Riverside drive."

FEET TOO BIG FOR OVEN.

The neighbor is impressed. In the meanwhile the stray sheep who has wandered to Riverside drive from the Middle West is sitting with his family around a radiator that gives out less heat than father's pipe. He, poor unfortunate, can't put his feet in the oven, for it isn't as large as his feet, and, if it were, his wife's pride would suggest that it is better form for him to freeze to death in some other room. Neither is his the joy of taking a flatiron to bed at night for the reason that all who live on Riverside drive use the electric iron.

I have friends who live on Riverside drive. Recently I was a guest there for dinner. We ate with our wraps on, including our gloves, and after dinner we paid 50 cents a chance to decide who should be fortunate enough to wash the dishes, bribing the cook to give us the task. We cleared $7 for the Red Cross in this way, and the winner had the one chance of the entire evening of warming his hands.

"Bring your flatiron with you," read an invitation recently; "also your knitting. You can put your flatiron at your feet and I will keep a pan of hot water in readiness for my guests to thaw out their hands." The soldiers and sailors and the marines received the knitted goods from New York City that had in every stitch a spirit of sympathy and understanding.

"No ice this morning," called a woman down the dumb waiter; "why should I buy ice when I can make it right here on top of my radiator?" The iceman laughed. Undoubtedly he lives in the poorer section, where every tenant has his own stove. And, speaking of stoves, some of my neighbors prepared for winter by buying oil and electric stoves. They turned them on when the weather was warm to try them and were very enthusiastic. When the cold weather came these little toy heat makers aroused about as much enthusiasm as a cold pancake.

When we have heat at all it is after 5 o'clock, when father comes home. Landlords and superintendents are so accustomed to the wails of the women that they pay no more attention to them than if they were so many flies, but in the evening, when father is due, that's a different story. Along about 5 o'clock there is a faint little whisper from the radiators, and by 8 o'clock the rooms are fairly comfortable, but by 10 o'clock they are again so cold that everyone goes to bed before fingers gets too cold to unhook, unsnap and unbutton. I have it on good authority that one woman who lives alone, recently slept in her party dress all night, for when she returned at 1 o'clock in the morning her fingers were too stiff to get her out of it. The little child in the dream story who lighted matches to dream his way to heaven has only one thing on New York's apartment dwellers, and that is his final destination.

Of course, the landlord has a side to his story. It takes 200 tons of coal a season to heat the building in which I live. There are forty-two families in 204 rooms. There was a time when he could get all the coal he wanted at $5.50 a ton. Now he pays a fabulous price and may have to get on his knees to get it. The mental vision of a New York landlord on his knees has somewhat of a warning effect. We conjure it up when the thermometer is low, and find in it the greatest joy we know from October till May.

Last summer all rents were raised. Of course, his insurance and taxes have advanced. I asked him how much, and he told me, but was so incoherent in his anguish as to be unintelligible. I learned this much: That everything he needs has advanced beyond all limit. Formerly he paid 3 cents for a "cuff of a riser;" now he pays 30. I do not know what a "cuff of a riser" is. That is why I remembered it.

"She," I was told when a newcomer in New York, "lives in a house."

"But we all live in houses, don't we?" I replied. "I have seen no tents or caves."

"You do not live in a house; you live in an apartment. A house is a building ocupied by only one family."

To live in a "house" is therefore one sign of exclusiveness. But these houses rent for from $150 to more than $200 a month, and the tenant must furnish the heat and pay for all repairs and walk up four flights of stairs when he wants to see if the snow is coming in the top-floor window. Servants are hard to get and harder to keep. As a result, house after house bears a "for rent" sign in the window and there is a demand for apartments that permits the landlord to add to his rents and take from the heat. But there must be a caretaker in the house, under the insurance laws, and it is an odd sight: The faces of little colored children looking out the parlor windows of these aristocratic brownstones.

Perhaps you have kin who live on Riverside drive and do not hear from them with the regularity that once characterized their correspondence. This does not mean that the aristocracy that passes them has made them grow indifferent. "Riverside drive" looks well on stationery, but it often happens they can't write it because they forgot to take the ink bottle to bed with them to keep it from freezing.

MODERNIZING BAGDAD.

What the war has brought to Bagdad, dream city of the Arabian Nights, is worth considering. Where Haroun Al Raschid walked in disguise and tmpted justice with romance, they are laying the rails of a street car line. Where Sinbad, the romancer, told his amazing tales to an admiring group of dusky idlers, they are putting up electric light poles, and in front of the latticed window from which Scheherazade peeped down, they are stringing telephone wires. And the atmosphere of romance—which is particularly thick in Bagdad—is being deodorized by a squad of sanitary officers.

Bagdad, beloved of the caliphs, town of mosques and minarets and Persian bazaars, is taking in the outward semblance of a modern city. Rooms with baths and serve-self restaurants, and motor cars with self-starters, and movie theaters are pretty sure to follow, and the old town which attracted Nebuchadnezzar in its infancy will soon forget the trammels of its twenty-five centuries and assume the jauntiness of municipal youth.

The city has been in the hands of the British for twenty months, and in that time has undergone a modernizing treatement that is particularly remarkable because of the age and deeply rooted tradition of the town and the indifferent and largely unfriendly attitude of the people.—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Midwinter Number of The Times, out January 28th, 1919, will be interesting, instructive and attractive. Wait for it.

THE NEW.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

> Up-to-datest:
> The bloomer having a deep cuff below knee—have you seen it? No? Well, sir, why should you?
> Many, many ruffles extending around the slender skirt of silk or clinging satin. But even so beruffled, the skirt has a slim effect—which is sartorial art.
> The one jewel chosen should confer distinction upon the wearer, proclaiming her taste and bringing out her best points.
> To conceal the fact that you are a "high-brow"—if you are—by so arranging the tresses across the forehead as to cover any undue expanse. For, even though you may have brains, if you are a woman, you do not disdain beauty as an accompaniment thereto.

Now is the time to buy:

The foods which will arouse the lagging appetite—the salad, concocted from ingredients so succulent as to stimulate the action of gastric juices. Even in our climate we tire of winter diet and long for something radically different as spring draws near.

Shoes—where the price is scarcely more than half of usual, while quality is undiminished and sizes to suit everyone.

White fabrics, at a sale where one need pay far less than was dreamed possible, so soon after the war.

The new blouse, which gives a touch of spring to the winter costume, that is becoming a trifle—well—passe. Attention fastened upon the new will forget to perceive the old.

The first spring hat—harbinger of the new wardrobe! There is almost a thrill in the appearance of the first "straws," which proclaim the trend of fashion's summery winds.

Many lines of tinned goods for the emergency shelf—sales affording savings, along lines always convenient to have in stock between seasons. Just now there are opportunities not offered for many months.

Time Valuation.

One of the greatest results of war work among women is the new valuation placed upon time.

Women who, before the emergencies of war work and the stress of effort to accomplish, sometimes, the seemingly impossible by means of personal effort, have come to value time as they never did before.

Those who have been accustomed to meet appointments when they got around to them, conveniently, or not at all, as the case might be, have found that with the few hours in a busy day and the fact that certain obligations must be met that day, they simply were obliged to count time as a commodity. This fact, a fact ground into the daily lives of women who heretofore had not realized it has given a new concept of time and a new realization of the value of keeping appointments. Let one person fail, by so much as a half-hour, in keeping the appointments, and every hour in the day is behind with its tasks, and every person whose time impinges upon the time of that person is thrown out of joint with her reckonings, and so on until the day is all awry and the coming one overloaded with lagging tasks. Thus promptness and the utilization of every hour of every day to its utmost advantage is, without doubt, the best lesson taught by the war work in which women have taken so active a part. And this does not mean that forever more women should continue to rush with work of this kind, but it means that what they have to do henceforth they will do with promptness. Rest and recreation are as needful a part of the daily regime as are work and achievement, but each and all should have their allotted time.

Good Going for Baby.

The first hurrah in the go-cart market is an offering of newly-arrived wheel goods for the wee ones. There's everything wantable for baby's getting there, from the marvelously collapsible go-cart, to the very elaborate and motor-mobileish carriage, having every apparent feature of the highest-priced automobile. What's so important as baby's outing? Nothing so imperative for the preservation of his health as great lungfuls of pure air! Therefore the means of baby locomotion are true economy in his growth and well-being.

A Yarn of Yarns.

A sale of yarns, meaning a saving on these so-needed lines, will interest every woman. Knitting is a habit not easily forgone when once it has been established.

Bagging a Bag.

"I have had my eyes open ever since the day after Christmas," said Evelyn, "for a real bargain in handbags; and now—early Monday morning—I shall be on hand to extract the very utmost from the money given me by Uncle Elden for the purchase of a gift. You know"—she added knowingly—"at that sale!"

Like the First Robin.

Like the "cherk" of the first robin, back East, is the first appearance of the garden tools, upon a hurrying market. I always feel an unmistakable stirring of out-doors enthusiasm when I see that "all-kinds-of-a" garden implement offered at a special price, for then I know that spring is truly here.

Alsatian.

When that dear little lady showed us the portrait of her niece, back in Alsace-Lorraine, I could not but sigh, because we have nothing so romantic as that Alsatian costume. The big bow—we have adopted it from time to time—and it has ever been part of the small girl's beautification in the way of hair ribbon. Sometimes we have borrowed the bodice for a brief space. Original, too, was the picture presenting the pretty girl. The photographed face was framed in a costume and hair bow of actual fabric, ribbon for the bow, velvet for the bodice, woolen for the bit of the skirt which showed, cotton for the peasant sleeves; an ensemble quite artistic. And by the way, it seems, that in order to retain her inheritance of the family estate, she must wear this costume for a given period each year. Not a hardship, surely, when it is so becoming.

Rainbow Umbrellas.

Umbrellas are growing more interesting. Taking to themselves the many and varied colorings of parasols, they are striving to usurp the prerogatives of their sunshine friends, and also to cut out the rainbow, it would seem. I'm glad. Umbrellas have usually been so commonplace.

The "Why" of Fashion.

Black and tan, it is promised, will be often used together this spring.

Leather brown velour is often combined with black satin for coats.

White tucked and lace-trimmed collars are usually seen on silk gowns.

A French Tam O'Shanter is of pink felt with huge flower in victory red.

Very few white furs are seen this year, and those few are usually ermine.

The tendency now is to wear large hats, especially those of black satin.

When Mrs. Van Wye answered [illegible] knock he asked: "Does this [illegible] age of 'male' belong to you?" [illegible] Van Wye opened the sack, [illegible] at the contents, and said: "It certainly does, and it is lucky for [illegible] that you did not deliver it to [illegible] other woman." LOST DYNASTY DISCOVERED.

Nile Excavations Fill Vacan Place in History.

Fruitful Results of Exploro tions of Dr. Reisner.

Many Interesting and Valu able Relics Discovered.

[From the Boston Globe.]

This is not a good time for king With a few exceptions, the only good ones are "abdicated" ones, and the principal interest in them conce the most expeditious manner of get ting them out of the way.

But when a king has been dea several thousand years and when n living man ever heard of him unt this year, and only a few then—wh under those circumstances he can b regarded with friendly curiosi Especially when the discovery o him and his successors filled in a big blank space of more than fo hundred years in the history o Egypt and Ethiopia.

The discovery of this dynasty wa made by the expedition sent out by Harvard University and the Bosto Museum of Fine Arts in 1916. Unde Dr. George A. Reisner, it ascend the Nile to the Island of Meroe.

There near the site of Napata, th ancient capital of Ethiopia, lie th pyramids of Nuri, in which the ex pedition found the inscriptions an ornaments by which the missin links in the chain of history we supplied.

From the earliest times Ethiop has intrigued the imagination of th world. The Homeric Greeks b lieved that it lay on the very ri of the world and that the gods in the midst of its plains. It wa the banquet hall of the old gods where they went to refresh them selves after their labors in behalf o their favorites on earth. It was a land of fire, of strange people and stranger customs.

The Assyrians knew it as Cus To the Romans it was a country o mystery and fabulous wealth. Nero sent an exploring party of Roma soldiers to Meroe in the first century after Christ.

Explorations made by Caill a century ago proved that a grea kingdom with a peculiar civiliza tion actually existed in Ethiopi Later a comparatively comprehe knowledge of the history of the coun try was obtained from the newly de ciphered inscriptions of Egypt an Assyria. To quote from Dr. Rei ner's article in a recent bulletin o the Museum of Fine Arts:

TWO PERIODS WERE OBSCUR

"But previous to 1916 there we still two periods lost in obscurit The earlier still remains a blank that is the time between Herih the last known Victory of Ethiop (1090 B. C.) and Piankhy the Grea the King of Ethiopia who conque Egypt in 721 B. C.

"The history of the second peri has now been recovered in its ma outlines by the excavation of th pyramids at Nuri. This seco hitherto obscure, period extends fr the expulsion of Tanutaman, th nephew of Piankhy, from Egypt b the Assyrians in 661 B. C. to th reign of Ergenmenes, King o Ethiopia and friend of Ptolemy I or about 250 B. C.

"The (modern) township of N is a fairly rich little district w fields of wheat, barley, maize an millet and with many trees, main ly date palms, dom palms and aca cias. The village, among the tre along the river bank, is a straggl line of mud huts with a few bette built houses, also of mud, and couple of mud built mosques.

"On the edge of the desert, w far behind the village, the pyramid of Nuri stand in a dense group o a low knoll which has the form o a rough horseshoe with the ope end turned upstream. In that direc tion lies a bend in the river, fro which the countless dunes of rive sand, driven by the wind, blo forth and cover the pyramid fiel One of our greatest difficulties wa the labor of cutting through the dunes to get at the stairways which led down to the underground cham bers of the pyramids."

After clearing away an enorm mass of drift sand and fallen debri the burial chambers of the larges pyramid were discovered. It wa identified as the tomb of that Tir kaqa, who is mentioned in the Bibl (II Kings, nineteenth chapter, th chapter which tells of the destru tion of the Assyrians before Jerusa lem:) "Tirkakah, King of Ethiopi behold he is come out to fight agai thee."

The work proceeded under try and dangerous conditions the wa and roofs threatened to fall an some of the chambers were full o water. In one tomb hundreds beautifully-carved stone figu were found. Many of the oth pyramids were opened and numbe of vases, alabaster ointment jars, s ver mirrors, gold cups, silver bow pieces of jewelry, charms, amule and coffins were found.

Thieves had broken into many the tombs centuries ago and carri away much of the wealth, but mu remained.

"Pyramid after pyramid w identified as the tomb of some known or unknown King Ethiopia," writes Dr. Reisn "Tanutaman was found, Har and Nastasan—and other were found which had never be been read by modern eyes an monument, lost to human know edge for more than 1000 years.

"We have excavated the tombs all the kings and queens of Ethio who lived after Tirkaqa, except th four kings and their queens w were buried in our concession Kurru. Leaving aside all the oth finds, the inscribed objects ever were sufficient to identify twenty-f of the twenty kings and twenty-f of the fifty-three royal ladies bur at Nuri. It is with the names those long forgotten kings that queens that we have filled out the four centuries after the death Tanutaman."

The Boston Art Museum will r ceive enough of the things tak from the pyramids to give a com plete representation of the develop ment of the arts and construc Ethiopia during the four centu and some remarkable specimens sculpture and gold work.

Substitutes are never "jus good." Wait for the ing Midwinter Number of Th Times, out January 28th, 1919.

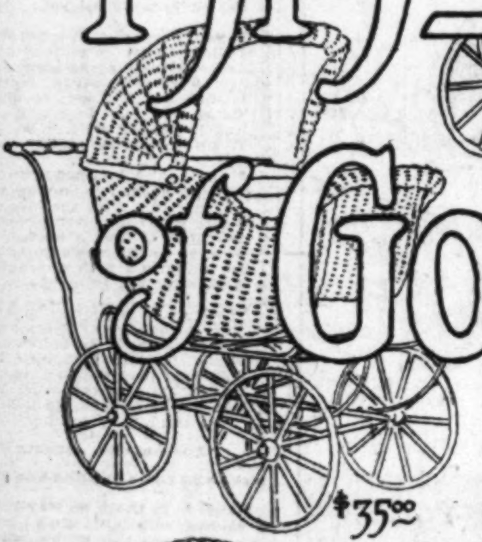
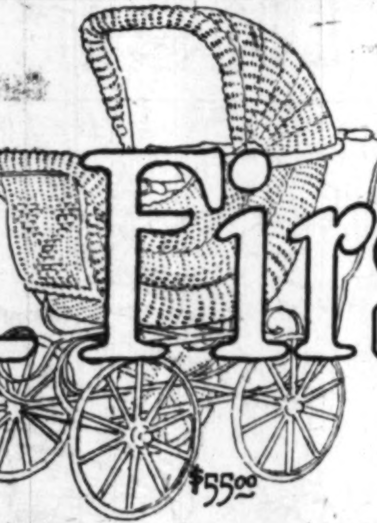
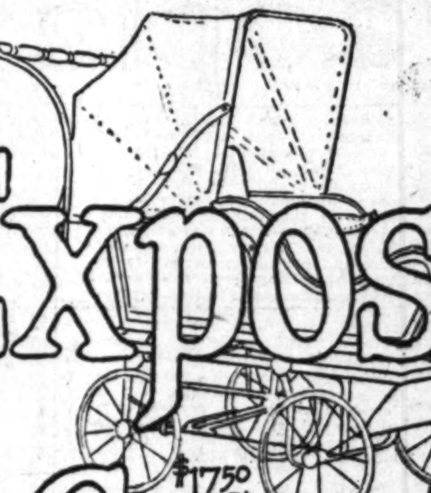
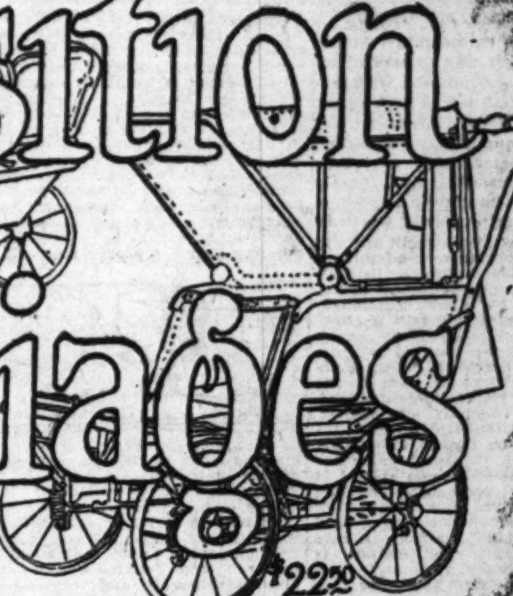
1919 — First Exposition of Go-carts and Carriages









—A CARLOAD of them for which the order was placed nearly a year ago. Received, warehoused, and held over a long period of time especially for this January Exposition—because this procedure secured certain price advantages too important to ignore.

(The facts are that more than one of these carriages could not be bought on today's market at the price at which Bullock's is quoting it here.)

—But even before the price, must be considered the quality and character of each Go-Cart and Carriage concerned—measuring as it does up to that standard which has been set by Bullock's and which has as its measure service and your satisfaction.

—One feature worthy emphasis—All of Bullock's Reed Carriages are of genuine reed — No fiber reed or other substitutes are used.

—And there are other features of Construction, all of which have their bearing upon value—

—To the readers of this paper who are interested in Go-carts or Carriages, this should prove an interesting page today.

The People and Their Troubles

THE NEIGHBORHOOD MIRAGE.

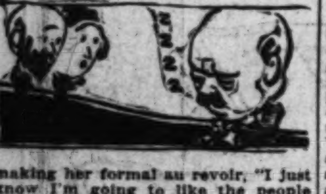
BY CHARLES ALMA BYERS.

After mature consideration I find there is no other way to express it. Our neighborhood quivered with excitement. I admit it was kept under somewhat dignified repression, but that the community heart throbbed rather inordinately was, nevertheless, quite perceptible. Of course, we men had nothing whatever to do with it. Among ourselves we have mutually conceded all credit for the stimulated throbbing to the feminine contingent. We naturally listened with due masculine politeness to the buzz which the news occasioned, but that, I assure you, tells it all.

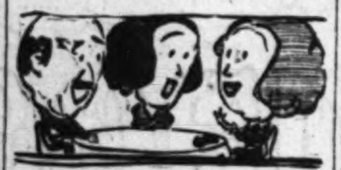
That fact now being clearly established, be it known that we had just received new neighbors. Ordinarily that in itself would have meant nothing. The incident was made an event, to be concisely explanatory, by the anticipations which these particular neighbors fanned into flame.

It was about the third day after the couple had become settled, I think, that the wife, Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins, received her first caller. Mrs. Jones, though one of our most demure-appearing matrons, always was very nice in such matters as "making people feel at home."

"You know, dear," said Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins, as Mrs. Jones was making her formal au revoir, "I just know I'm going to like the people here. You seem such home bodies, and the community impresses me as being quite pastoral. It's such a change for us. You see, we've always lived in a such a large house, kept a corps of servants, and entertained a great deal. Here we shall live very humbly. Society has been keeping me so busy I just felt I must get away from some of it. In times like these everyone must sacrifice something, mustn't they? Of course, I shall entertain my old friends occasionally, and I want you to meet them; but I shan't entertain nearly so much. I want to become one of you, to—attend your—your—I suppose you call them parties? Yes, you must meet my friends. They're so influential. There's Mrs. Congressman Watson and Mrs. Watts-Hillar and—But I won't undertake to enumerate them. I know you read the society columns—just to know 'who's who,' if you will pardon a little slang."



Perhaps this speech, as it was greeded about, was too embellishly interpreted, but anyway it seemed—to the women falks, I mean—to foreshadow a real Godsend. The subdividers had christened our tract Montemercy Park, and we felt rather proud of the name, but actually we constitute but an obscure, tiny feather on the city's eagle-like anatomy. In other words, our tract, besides being located on the wrong side of the big city, comprises only a little settlement of humble bungalows. We all live humbly, too, being for the most part mere salary dependents; but we do have auction bridge parties—and some of our women folk at least once had social ambitions. And now opportunity had come! These, as well as others, before the sun slept that night, had heard the rapping at our community doors, so to speak, and all were a-quiver over the prospect of finally meeting some of the "swell people" of real metropolitan society.

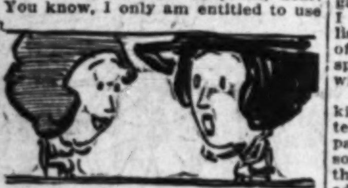


For the next meeting of our bridge club the hostess of the evening, after a series of neighborhood consultations, took it upon herself to include the new neighbors as guests. Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins arrived fashionably and impressively late and was warmly, though without a trace of imitated formality, welcomed.

"I hope, dear," she smiled on the hostess, with the appearance of condescending just a little, "you'll forgive me for being late. I trust I haven't delayed you in starting to play. But I simply couldn't get out of a little function at the Waldron this afternoon. Mrs. Congressman Watson accuses me of being awful selfish since we moved, and she insisted on taking me out to her home afterward for dinnah. You see, dear, I can't hurt their feelings."

"Oh, of course not, Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins. And your husband—Mr. Jenkins-Hopkins, I mean—I hope—" stammered the hostess.

"You mean Mr. Hopkins, dear. You know, I only am entitled to use my family name, which I naturally am very proud of."



"Of course How stupid of me! He—"

"Oh, he is extremely sorry, dear. He may be able to get here later in the evening, but of course we are not to wait. You see, he had to attend an important meeting of his directors tonight."

The evening proved quite a diversion from our previous club affairs. We had got into a sort of rut, I presume. For awhile we succeeded in maintaining stiff backs and considerable conversational dignity, but as the evening progressed the ice melted rapidly. Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins was a—I was about to say, "a good mixer." She, at least, was a leader. Whereas we hitherto had always played workman-like bridge all evening and gone quietly home afterwards, tonight bridge was soon abandoned, and Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins sang and played for us. Some, perhaps, possessing oversensitive ears, tried to insinuate later that her voice was a little too shrill, but they were promptly overruled by the major opinion that they were unaccustomed to society voices.

"And she adds such a refining tone to our parties," was the way one feminine member of our old crowd subsequently summed up the matter. "Did you notice how much better mannered the men were?"

They had.

Time passed—as it has a way of doing.

We entertained the new neighbors regularly, and finally persuaded them to become members of our little club. Mr. Hopkins made only a mild hit, but of course excuses were profuse. We could appreciate that, his being evidently a "man of affairs," our parties could be but a bore to him. At least, we often detected him in the act of nodding—that is, when he attended at all; and afterwards it was declared that he sometimes openly slept. But possibly the accusation was the result of mere prejudice on the part of some of us men folks. Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins invariably addressed him as "Dovey," and, since he was a very bulky man, with florid face and rose, it struck us, as Jones put it, that "it sounds too much like applying the name to a walrus."

But all this time we had never been asked to meet any of the family's influential friends. This seemed a little strange. In fact, their nearest neighbors declared that they apparently never had callers, except from the immediate neighborhood. The women folks began to feel a little disappointed.

Then, finally, Mrs. Jenkins-Hopkins did bring a friend to one of our club meetings. This friend, a Miss Smith, was a little oldish, a little forward, it seemed, and quite talkative.

We were quietly engaged in our game, this evening, when all of us, I think, unconsciously began to listen. Her table had finished ahead of the others, and Miss Smith was speaking, her sharp voice carrying with unmarred distinctness.

"Yes," she was saying, "Mrs. Hopkins—Hortense, I call her—and I attend nearly all of these charity card parties, and they are being held somewhere almost every day. They're the same as public, you know. The admission fee is only a quarter, and they're worth much more than that to us. Besides, tea is always served, and then we have a chance at the prizes. You see, Hortense is a professional shopper for the rich folks, and I run a beauty parlor. Now, these charity card parties give us the opportunity to get acquainted and pass around our business cards. And, by the way, I must give you all one of mine before I forget."

"And Mr. Hopkins," her partner, who happened to be Jones, inquired with studied unconcern: "I presume he's in a bank? He so rarely favors us with his presence."

"Oh, no," she gurgled. "Don't you know? Why, he's manager of the big Slasher Barbers' Supply Company."

And so the mirage faded. The new neighbors shortly moved away. We are back in the old rut.

MRS. HOLLENBECK GETS HER OWN ERMINE, FURS

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

DAWSON (Y. T.) Dec. 1.—Whenever Mrs. Jack Hollenbeck of North Folk, a Klondike River point near here, wants a set of ermine, marten or fox furs, she goes out and catches the animals herself.

Mrs. Hollenbeck is known throughout the Yukon Territory as the most adept woman hunter in this section. Recently she brought down a 600-pound moose within one mile of her home

During the several years Mrs. Hollenbeck has lived on the Klondike she has killed twenty-six moose.

PRO-GERMAN SWEDISH PAPER IS DENOUNCED.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 30.—Several important Swedish industrial organizations have published a protest in disapproval of unneutral publications here, such as the Aftonbladet's repeated articles denouncing the Entente, America and President Wilson.

The protest is signed by the Swedish Industrial Association, Export Association, Stockholm Chamber of Commerce, Bankers' Club and several associations of manufacturers of paper, iron, chemicals and electrical apparatus.

THE MORNING BREAKS THE SHADOWS FLEE

Light of the Gospel Again Shines

By Dr. JAMES E. TALMAGE.

Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; Salt Lake City, Utah.

Note: For free copies of other articles of this series, send request to the author.

We believe in the same organization that existed in the Primitive Church, viz.: apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers, evangelists, etc. (Articles of Faith, No. 6.)

As one of the signs whereby men may know when the Lord's coming is near, Christ specified this feature of the latter times: "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." (Matt. 24:14.) As this follows in immediate sequence to our Lord's prediction of the general apostasy, incident to which false prophets would arise, iniquity abound, and love for the truth wax cold, an actual restoration of the Gospel had to occur, or the Savior's words recorded in the 24th chapter of Matthew would be inconsistent and their fulfilment impossible.

The Revelator John was shown the scenes of the days immediately before the latter-day advent of the Christ. In recording the vision as then already past he wrote:

"And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting Gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters." (Rev. 14:6,7.)

If an angel was to come to earth, bringing the Gospel, the fact is plain that the Gospel could not be at that time upon the earth. The Gospel, which the angel would bring, was to be preached "to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people"; and this in strict and logical consistency with the Lord's personal prophecy quoted above, that one of the distinguishing signs of the last days was that the Gospel of the kingdom, "this Gospel," that is to say, the Gospel that He had proclaimed, would be "preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations."

But, many have asked, had we not the Gospel? The Holy Bible, which is the scriptural repository of the Gospel record, has been among men from the time of its earliest compilation; why then the necessity of a restoration? Yes, we had the Bible; but the Gospel is something other and greater than a book.

The Holy Scriptures, invaluable and sacred though they be, profess to be only the letter of the Gospel. Is it reasonable to assume that the mere possession of a Bible, or even a perfect memorization of its contents, could give to man the authority to administer the ordinances prescribed therein? It is quite as plausible to say that if one owns a copy of the statutes of his State or nation and learns therefrom the duties of Sheriff, Judge, Governor or President, the knowledge thus acquired would be authority for him to administer in the respective offices. Statutes are not self-operative.

The angel seen by the Revelator, in vision of the then distant future, was to bring to earth not the bare record and letter of requirement as to baptism and other rites, for this the world already would have, in part at least; but he was to restore to earth the Divine commission, the actual appointment and authority to officiate in those sacred and saving ordinances, in short the power of the Holy Priesthood, which the world would not at that time possess.

We affirm that on the 15th of May, 1829, a heavenly messenger appeared on the earth in light and glory, and, laying his hands upon the heads of Joseph Smith and an associate in the ministry, Oliver Cowdery, conferred upon them the Lesser or Aaronic Priesthood, saying:

"Upon you, my fellow servants, in the name of Messiah, I confer the Priesthood of Aaron, which holds the keys of the ministering of angels, and of the gospel of repentance, and of baptism by immersion for the remission of sins; and this shall never be taken again from the earth, until the sons of Levi do offer again an offering unto the Lord in righteousness." (Doctrine & Covenants, Sec. 13.)

The personage who thus appeared and officiated as an angel of light announced himself as John, known of old as the Baptist, and stated that he acted under instructions from the Apostles Peter, James, and John, who held the presidency of the Higher or Melchizedek Priesthood in the earlier Gospel dispensation. Later, Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery were visited by the presiding Apostles of old, Peter, James, and John, who ordained them to the Priesthood after the order of Melchizedek, which comprises the fullness of authority operative in the Church of Jesus Christ.

In accordance with this high commission the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has been established; and presents to the world today "the same organization that existed in the Primitive Church, viz.: apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers, evangelists, etc."

Come ye and share the priceless blessings of the restored Gospel, for verily, the darkness of the long night of apostasy has been dispelled, and the spiritual light of heaven again illumines the earth.

"The morning breaks, the shadows flee;
Lo! Zion's standard is unfurled.
The dawning of a brighter day
Majestic rises on the world."

WOMEN AND JOBS.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the discussion of sex in business going on in your columns, it seems that many persons are losing sight of the fact that we had a pretty well regulated house, so to speak, before we entered the war, and that the same condition is likely to be restored. As the men were called to the colors, their places were taken, in many cases, by women already engaged in business or industry, whose previous experience and training enabled them to handle more responsible positions. In other words, they were merely pushed along by force of circumstances and they in turn were replaced by the less experienced. Quite a few went into the mills and factories direct from their homes, consequently they logically fall into two classes—those who worked before the war, and those who did not.

The latter class should step out, and the former put back where they were before the war. The returning soldiers are entitled to the first consideration and it is the duty of the employers to bring about this readjustment and put them on the job again. This subject does not envolve the question of the equality of women or their rights, but is a plain case of duty, and those of them who are advocating the slogan of "Stick to your guns" are again exhibiting to the world the peculiar reasoning of some women's minds which has been a mystery since the beginning of time.

That they have very ably demonstrated their ability, no one will deny, and the woman who thinks she prefers a career to a home will be rewarded, for business is a cold-blooded dictator and recognizes only results. However, this class of women is in the minority at the present time; the majority representing those who work as a prelude to marriage and who are interested only in work which will pay them the most money for the least amount of time expended. So long as they confine themselves to the kinds of work which the average man will not consider there is not a great deal to worry over.

We all start in at the bottom and most men will select only the vocation which promises a future, for his sole aim in life is to provide for and build a home, and as he progresses his place is taken by the younger. For women to poach on his preserves without serious intentions of following a career is an injustice, and where the war has placed them in this position, they should get out. If they must work, let them confine themselves to other fields. In the end their place is in the home.

In this enlightened age most of us agree that women should have a voice in the government and be able to dictate the future of their children, but in matters not affecting her home women, as a body, should have no grave concern, unless she wants to turn the world topsy-turvy and bring about a childless civilization.

NORWAY IS PLANNING AMERICAN EXHIBITION.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHRISTIANIA, Dec. 30.—To strengthen the business relations between Norway and the United States a movement has been set on foot here for an exhibition of Norwegian and American mercantile products to be held in Norway during the autumn of 1919.

It is being backed by a large number of corporations having business relations with America.

Who Invented Socialism?

"More than half a century ago socialism was invented in Germany," says the New York Times, editorially. Has the Times given no heed to the voluminous proofs offered by Allied scholars that the Germans have invented nothing? As to socialism: did not Karl Marx take the cue to the "materialistic interpretation of history" from the Englishman Harrington, and the theory of surplus wealth from the French Socialists, who go back considerably more than half a century? The Germans thrust the living soul of British and French socialism behind the bars of the Hegelian system and thus imparted to it something of the psychology of the political prison. The open and humanitarian spirit that characterized the socialism of Owen and Fourier, Louis Blanc and Proudhon became infected with hatred, suspicion, intrigue. But the socialism that is now abroad in the world has in a large measure overcome those vices. Only the German chauvinists will claim that present-day socialism is in any true sense German. If it bears one national character rather than another, that character is French.—[New Republic.

THE CASE OF BRISBANE.

The power of the press is becoming a menace. There is the case of Arthur Brisbane, who widely advertises himself as our greatest editor.

A number of rich brewers bought the Washington Times for him.

So great was his pen that States long devoted to prohibition gave it up and opened tap rooms in their capitals; the long-haired men could not withstand Arthur's pleas for beer.

At the time the brewers bought the Washington Times the nation was dedicated to a policy of refusing the use of food grains for manufacturing beer. But Arthur was so eloquent in his double-column, ten-point editorials that the President capitulated and went to drinking beer himself.

The Germans subsidized a paper called The Fatherland, but fortunately they selected as its editor a man who couldn't write, one Sylvester Viereck. Had they stolen Arthur Brisbane from Hearst by increasing his salary to $800,000 a year (it is well known he now receives $750,000) all of us would by this time be wearing our moustaches in Kaiser fashion and rattling our German chains.—[Ed Howe's Monthly.

"A teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin each night at bedtime has done me a world of good, as I am 62 years old and was getting badly constipated. I had previously taken a lot of salts and pills without real relief." (From a letter to Dr. Caldwell written by Mr. A. Forester, Princess Anne, Md.)

Constipation is one of the penalties of age that should never be neglected—Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that relieves constipation in an easy, natural manner, without griping or strain, and is as positive in its effect as it is mild and gentle in its action.

MORE TROUBLES.

BY CAPT. LESLIE T. PEACOCKE.

To avoid a little trouble, you must take a little trouble,
As every man who's married surely knows;
And those in double harness must be always thinking double,
Or they'll find themselves beset by little woes.
Think twice before you speak and always thrice before you act,
Think twenty times before you take a wife,
Or you'll be doing something that's unpleasant—that's a fact,
Paying alimony all your blessed life!

If you're married to a beauty, you must know it is your duty
To inform her so each minute of the day;
And if she's big and heavy, you should always call her "Cutey,"
And when she's eating, look the other way.
If she's dull and very lovely, you must tell her she has brains,
'Cause a woman loves the things she hasn't got;
And if you tell a lie or two it's surely worth the pains
To be idolized as Johnny on the Spot!

When you're lavished with caresses you can bet a bill for dresses
Will be handed in among your morning mail!
Pay it gladly, play the lover, praise her eyes and mouth and tresses,
Never growl or never poverty bewail.
For nothing tires a woman like a mean and stingy man;
And, of course, she's going to leave you when you're broke;
So you're in a peck of trouble and must do the best you can;
And, after all, grim life is but a joke!

If your wife is good at cooking, nice and good, but not good-looking,
You, perhaps, will thank the moon and stars above,
For she's apt to be oblivious to the dates that you are booking,
Feeling certain that with her you are in love.
You may play the fool awhile, my friend, but is it worth the toll?
Isn't conscience the worst trouble of them all?
Can aught replace the love of such a one when it is lost?
Then think fifty million times before you fall!

LITTLE HELPS.

Eglantine Briggs of Hollywood has a great grief. She writes:

"There is a man whom I love with all the passion of my heart. We have been going together steadily for almost a month and he is very anxious to marry me, but there seems to be an obstacle. It seems that he has a wife who selfishly refuses to give him up. What can we do under the circumstances? I told him that possibly he could knock her on the head with an axe, or that there ought to be some way of getting a divorce, but he says that she is his only support and if he should lose her he might have to go to work. She is making $60 a week in the films, but she refuses to give him any of it unless he stays around her place. It is really quite provoking and I think she is as mean as she can be. The man suggested that I wait, but does he think I am a waiter? Is there no way to reach a woman who will thus selfishly stand between two people who love one another? Does the mere fact that she happened to marry him first make it possible for her to wreck our happiness?"

It is hard to give advice to a storm-tossed soul under these conditions. As near as can be made out, the wife seems to be quite set in her ways and as she has the only job in the family she appears to have the upper hand. It is hard to reason with a person like that. It looks as if there was some spite about it and you might feel justified in returning it in kind. You might move into the same flat and put up a spite fence between your apartments and then see who had the strongest pull with Oscar—or whatever the gent's name happened to be.

If both sides kept an ice box fairly well stocked Oscar would probably learn to like the combination. But if you are going to be old-fashioned and insist upon a wedding, it would look as if the wife had the edge on you as the situation stands. You might write to the Governor about it and see if a commission couldn't be appointed to fix the matter up. They have commissions for everything but that and certainly here is room for one—a commission on matrimonial arbitration.

COUSIN GEORGE.

Atlanta War Camp Community Service has more than 200 automobiles volunteered by patriotic citizens at its disposal, and gives rides to from 300 to 500 convalescent soldiers from overseas from the United States General Hospital at Fort McPherson every Sunday. When the United States Fuel Administration inaugurated its gasolineless Sundays, Dr. Howard T. Cree, executive secretary of War Camp Community Service in Atlanta, wired a query direct to Washington. The answer from the Fuel Administration read: "By no means discontinue your service for sick soldiers. Let 'em ride. God bless 'em."

Samuel Merwin protests that "Henry is Twenty" is not a "sequel" to "Temperamental Henry" (Bobbs-Merrill & Co.) But it is, nevertheless.

Mr. Merwin is also anxious, and discloses his anxiety in a confidential prelude, to have "Henry is Twenty" taken seriously. He denies that Henry is a "hero," though he gives Henry a great literary gift and leaves him aghast at being gobbled at a high rate by a great magazine editor. If such attainment (together with getting "the" girl, as Henry does) is not the only way known of distinguishing "heroes," then I much acknowledge having bungled along these many years without being able to recognize a hero.

It must be admitted that these later "Henry" stories are "different;" it must also be admitted that Mr. Merwin's stories all have the same quality of "differentness." His heroes are all alike; in all this world he seems never to have discovered but one type of man (except the pugilist in "The Honey Bee," and that is woman's story;) and that hero is always egocentric, a bit of a cad, a very interesting subject for psychoanalytical realism, perhaps, but to me distasteful in romance.

Perhaps "Henry is Twenty" is meant to be something more than romance. The anxious prologue suggests as much. A realistic study of youth is the keynote struck for the reviewer's benefit. And the reference to the "letters" received from readers may be taken as a quiet hint to the reviewer not to disparage what has proved successful in the highest and unimpugnable tribune, public opinion.

I found the stories sadly padded; a frail theme and a mess of words, and the episodes not distinguished by any great amount of originality, or plausibility if original. Henry is a reporter on a small town paper; and among his amusing stunts, for instance, is to report a musicale which he did not attend and, of course, the leading singer had sprained an ankle and hadn't sung at all. A wonderful small town indeed, when the owner of the paper, on the job all the time, did not hear of this until days later!

And Henry's love episodes—the prologue is anxious to set the reviewer right on them, too. Mr. Merwin supposes them to be the natural predicaments into which a fellow at twenty is likely to get himself. Perhaps. But Henry is a calf-love sort of a person, a kind of a whining mollycoddle, and out of justice to the reader, Mr. Merwin should have been at some pains to show why—to show what obscure and unsuggested—qualities it was that made every one, excepting old Boice, fond of him. I found it—as perhaps already has been intimated—irritating, strained, labored and unreal. But the stories, Mr. Merwin informs us, modestly, have been very popular in the magazines.

"The Paper Cap."

The indefatigable Mrs. Amelia A. Barr, though, I believe, well advanced in her three score and ten years, continues to keep pace with the younger writers in her output of novels. There is sufficient internal evidence to show that Mrs. Barr is old-fashioned; her style of plot construction and play of characters would reveal that. But her pen is sprightly, her wit sharp, and she knows how to win and hold the average reader's interest. "The Paper Cap" (D. Appleton & Co.) very skillfully inclosed the story of the English Reform Bill, the destitution of the home weavers and the transition from home loom to factories, at that period, reinforces the plot and does not get in the way of the "heart" interest as typified by the love affairs of Squire Annis's two children. Personally I found the labor study more interesting than the love affairs. The courtships a reviewer eavesdrops upon, the long, rocky roads that end in lovers' meetings that he travels, the confessions that he hears dripping from tremulous lips, incline him a little toward boredom when, out of his wide experience, he can tell that the love affairs, as in "The Paper Cap," are to be purely conventional.

But Squire Annis is a real, kindly, robust character; somewhat on the order of the famous Allsworthy, and one follows his course—his sympathy with the weavers, his fight in the Parliament, his schemes and plans—with interest and sympathy. Mrs. Barr has shown a phase of industrial development that is well known to history, but rather missing from fiction. Her outlook is optimistic. Her title, "The Paper Cap" is symbolic. Incidentally, the book is dedicated to Samuel Gompers.

"The Mystery of the Hartley House."

In "The Mystery of the Hartley House" (George H. Doran Company,) Clifford S. Raymond uses up a lot of time with a rather simple mystery story, though he does inject rather forcibly a secondary mystery along toward the middle as a kind of supporting arch to his plot.

A young doctor goes to attend a Mr. Sidney, a South American, who acts strangely and has a curiously drunken servant; also a nice wife and a pretty daughter. The house formerly belonged to an old family that seems to have its remaining survivor in the person of a convict sentenced to life for the murder of his brother. This crime runs through the narrative in something stronger than an undertone, until it finally emerges into what the author has intended to be the smiting and smashing denouement. The story is bolstered up all the way rather preposterously by such melodramatic tricks as having the doctor bolted in his room at nights, of having him requested to accept, without obligations, a nominal engagement with Miss Sidney, and of having him shot at by the queer servant. Detectives and mysterious characters fairly swarm through the text, but the story is not moulded with the best skill, though the author is ingenious and shows flashes of characterization not unusually found in mystery tales.

"The Ne'er Do Much."

I've often wondered how Eleanor Hallowell Abbott goes about writing her stories. Probably on the plan of thinking out what is the most interesting and mystifying situation conceivable, and starting with that. What happens on the way and how she winds up, is another matter. Some magazine editors will tell you the battle is won if you hold the reader for the first two paragraphs.

"The Ne'er Do Much" (The Century Company) starts off and continues for a way in a fascinating fashion. Then kerflunk! The author's ingenuity fizzles. She falsifies and deliberately deludes the reader—for what? For the sake of a surprise that turns out to be so incredible that the reader is more likely to remember Mrs. Abbott's "unethical" trick than be gratified by finding that the pretty Puss and the handsome Marmaduke do reach the usual fictional conclusion.

A curious dinner is given by a South American millionaire. None but celebrities are invited and there are no introductions. Four people about one table, an old man, a young one and two women, agree to tell of the thing that most troubles them, and certain little prizes (excepting the old man's, which is $5000) are thrown onto the table for the winner. Puss says that her stepson (given her by a death-bed marriage) wants to marry her; and Marmaduke says he must marry the woman he no longer loves. These two alone concern the plot, though Old Johnny, the "great gambler," is the redeeming character of the story.

To tell more would be to disclose the trick. Let him who cares, judge for himself as to the advantage which the author has taken in order to give that greatest of authorial aims, the "punch."

"Woodrow Wilson: An Interpretation."

A. Maurice Low has undertaken to put a focus on President Wilson. It is no easy matter, as Mr. Low acknowledges both by word and by the painstaking extent of his effort. Even in the White House, whose sociable doors he has closed, the author says: "He remained as remote as a cloistered monk; to the great mass of American people paying deference to him as their secular leader, he was as inscrutable, as passionless almost as the pontiff of their spiritual allegiance. The men brought close to him in an official relation transact their business and leave, but they carry away no atmosphere, no personal touch; never is the baffling mask removed. . . . A strange and complex character, too subtle to be plumbed by little minds, too unlike the traditional concept of the President for the public to understand him any better than did the politicians, who without understanding had a vague feeling of disquiet that here was their master, that in any conflict between him and them they would be worsted."

President Wilson was first a lawyer, but after two years' experience, disheartened if not disgusted by the lack of principle and array of precedents in the profession, abandoned it, and entered on a literary and educational course. At 23—"when he did not invite criticism any more than he now invites opposition"—he wrote "Congressional Government," a book that still stands as authoritative. He became Governor of New Jersey and first revealed to politicans his inflexible attitudes and aloofness that have since become better known.

Mr. Low believes that President Wilson matured at 23. Experience has broadened him, but he was self-sufficient at that boyish age and remains so. He decides for himself, and is always satisfied with his own decision. He looks upon himself as a kind of Premier rather than as a President, as one who assumes the responsibility of the government and should have the authority of such responsibility.

Without being flattering at all, the "interpretation" is not disparaging. Mr. Low has been earnest and exhaustive, and though one may not feel that he understands President Wilson when the book is finished, one at least feels that the "puzzle" has been reduced to a certain definite form.

"Making Life Worth While."

In "Making Life Worth While," Douglas Fairbanks threatens to write a novel. He will have to put a little more work and thought on it than went into this if he attains the distinction he hopes for. He begins "Making Life Worth While" (Britton Publishing Company) with the statement that he has no plan or method—he is just going to write. He does. He says that he likes "inspirational" stuff. He essays it.

But one must give "Doug" the palm. As an advertising artist he is a miracle. That he can write books, largely filled with himself, text and pictures, and make people buy them shows that he has a faculty or genius for something more than cavorting before the camera. The book itself is vapid and empty—but Mr. Fairbanks has injected considerable of his well-known "pep" into the text; and if one reads to see how he writes rather than what he writes, it has a rather surprising interest.

BOOK NOTES.

Houghton Mifflin Company announce the tenth printing of "The Education of Henry Adams," published about three months ago.

Are we Americans, as readers of good books, so hopeless after all? They tell us we read less books per capita than Russia or Spain even. They throw the millions of Harold Bell Wright at us. And yet America not infrequently recognizes a great spirit in literature more quickly than other nations, even when he comes from another nation. Announcements from publishers are constantly showing that many an American author whose work is good without a taint of gaudiness does sell on and on through sheer love for it by the reading public. Here, for example, is an announcement by the Century Company of an eleventh edition of Frank R. Stockton's "The Casting Away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine." Stockton never sold a million and never will; but already now for more than twenty years the books of this gentle, gracious, good-humored American, who was also a literary artist, have gone on selling. The fact that Americans still want Stockton, that people go on putting him into the hands of readers, who in turn pass on their enthusiasm about him to others, makes us wonder if we are as vulgar, as coarse, as aesthetically immature as sometimes we are painted.

Alfred A. Knopf has in train for publication some time in the spring a third novel by E. M. Delafield, whose two earlier books, "Zella Sees Herself" and "The War Workers" appeared this year. Miss Delafield was "discovered" in 1916 by William Heinemann of London, and since then she has become increasingly popular with the English public. Miss Delafield is the daughter of Mrs. Henry de la Pasture (now Lady Clifford) the English novelist.

E. P. Dutton & Co. report a very wide and constantly growing interest in Blasco Ibanez's novel of the great war, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." They brought the book out at the end of August and although Ibanez was then known only to a very small circle of readers in the United States and although there had already been many novels of the war, "The Four Horsemen" at once caught the attention of the reading public. Edition followed edition at an ever more rapid pace until now the presses are kept almost constantly busy upon it in order to meet the demand. The forty-second edition is now in press and the interest in and demand for the book are increasing with every week.

"SPARKS."

The New Year's number of "Sparks," the magazine for employees published by Bullock's, contains a stirring letter by Mr. Bullock in which he reviews the success of the past and looks forward to the opportunities of the coming year, and reaffirms the "Bullock Ideal." It is an attractive number, with much good business philosophy and wit interspersed.

JAPAN AMAZED AT OUR ARMIES

Had no Idea America Could Spring to War Quickly.

Publicist Warns Nippon not to Pick a Quarrel.

Points to Sacrifices of Civilians for Soldiers.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, Nov. 30.—The rapidity with which the United States prepared for war and the magnitude and success of her military operations continue to draw expressions of admiration from Japanese. Generally speaking, the public in Japan regarded the United States as a peace-loving nation, which, having no bent for war, could never do much in the building up of a great army.

The wonderful transformation of America in the war is the subject of many articles by prominent publicists. Thus, Dr. Shigeo Suyehiro, professor of Kyoto University, writes:

"There is no disguising the fact that prior to the war the Japanese did not believe in the military strength of America, but the present titanic struggle has demonstrated beyond all doubt the error of the Japanese estimate. The United States has become a great military power at a bound and her navy is only second to that of Great Britain. The financial resources of America are something tremendous. It is stated that America would be able to keep the war going for a quarter of a century at the rate of expenditure which she spent for the first year. Nor is this all.

"The Americans are as great spiritually as their country is almost limitless in her resources. Just imagine that the Americans—whom some Japanese consider as slavish worshipers of Mammon—working for their country at an allowance of $1 a year; they endured the hardship of meatless and wheatless days in order to obtain a supply of surplus provisions available for the Allies; and no dissentient voice was raised against the proposed restriction of the manufacture of liquor.

"The material and spiritual sacrifices made by the Americans in the cause of the war as evidenced in these and other things are really wonderful, showing as they do the greatness of America and her people."

Dr. Suyehiro thought that it would be the height of absurdity for Japan to pick a quarrel with such a great country without a sufficient casus belli. Japan should stand for an open-door policy in the Far East, but in return she should receive similar treatment in Indo-China, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. He said that America had been excluding Japanese immigrants, but he thought it very doubtful whether she was sufficiently justified in so doing.

Japan, he said, should strive to have the United States correct her attitude not by brute force, but by appealing to her sense of justice and humanity, and this he applied with equal force to British and French territory, where discrimination against the Japanese is in force.

OKLAHOMA CORRESPONDENT IN PARIS BUMPS INTO EXPERIENCE WITH FLUNKEYS.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Jan. 13.—The only effort at direct diplomacy made in the gorgeous chambers of the Foreign Office at Quai d'Orsay on the opening day of the conference was essayed by an indomitable newspaper correspondent from Oklahoma, who was breezy as the Kansas prairie, and who would ask Clemenceau for a match as soon as a cat could wink its eye.

Within the famous room were presidents, premiers and ministers and without were a score of correspondents. Well they knew how futile it would be to try to enter the saloon. In fact, they considered it something of a sensation when Clemenceau opened the door on one occasion and poked out his nose and white mustache for an instant.

For in that fleeting moment the newspaper men saw the peace commissioners at their tables, the gold and crystal and tapestries being dimmed somewhat by a smoke screen just as that which might be thrown over a cigar loving convention of commercial travelers.

The Oklahoman arrived late. Taking his card of credentials from his pocket he strode immediately to the door and started to open it. Flunkeys representing almost as many nationalities as there are peace delegates rushed to the defense of the sacred door with a chorus of exclamations. The Oklahoman, in the midst of their waving arms calmly reiterated his original assertion that he had been sent from Oklahoma to cover the conference and was going inside.

Finally a flunkey was found who understood English, and when he translated, his fellow-flunkeys, acting in concert like a football line, shoved the Oklahoman back from the double doored vestibule into the anteroom, shouting altogether something that in the composite was "where do you get that stuff?"

The Oklahoman sat down in a little gold chair in the anteroom somewhat dazed, but after looking over the Gobelin cherubim, the brilliant chandeliers and splendid draperies for awhile, he apparently came to the conclusion that Oklahoma never had anything on even the anteroom and he spent the remainder of the afternoon there, seemingly content, but deeply pondering over the peculiarities of peace commissions and flunkeys.

An Example.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR—
WARTS, MOLES AND BIRTHMARKS
Removed by the electric needle.
The only safe and permanent way when done by an expert operator, which means years of practical experience. It makes no difference to me who or what you have tried, I guarantee any hair I treat will never return.
Money and time saved by my method, which is painless and will leave no scars.
ANNA M. BERGERON, 820-21 HAAS BLDG., Corner Seventh and Broadway. Located in Los Angeles 16 years.

MY KEY TO BEAUTY.
Witch Hazel Cream will keep your skin clean, "really clean," and positively will not encourage the growth of hair. The astringent bleach and powder are guaranteed chemically pure. For sale at H. Jevne Co., or my office.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS, WARTS AND MOLES
Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 360 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.
MRS. F. A. SCOTT, Suite 407 Bumiller Bldg. Over Bootery.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR—
HUMILIATING AND UNSIGHTLY.
There is only one method known today of permanently removing superfluous hair, and that is Electrolysis (electric needle.) This process in the hands of a reliable and expert operator insures absolute satisfaction. I stand back of my work, and guarantee any hair treated by me will be permanently destroyed, leaving no scars.
MABEL BRENTWOOD SMITH, With Weaver-Jackson Co., 450 South Broadway.

SEE THE SAND GAZER,
DR. MUNDO-DARE, ORDAINED,
DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHERS.
SPECIAL READING THIS WEEK, 50C.

The only member of INDIA'S PSYCHIC BROTHERHOOD to ever visit this country. First in America to introduce this MYSTERIOUS ART employed by PROPHETS OF OLDEN TIMES. This diviner in the Mystic Lands from the Whispering Nile tells all. His remarkable disclosures are pronounced "PHENOMENAL" by thinking people who have consulted him. Any clairvoyant can tell your name, the past and present, if wives, husbands, sweethearts or friends are true or false, and many other things of more trivial importance. All these things the SAND GAZER tells at a glance. What you want is to be successful and make the most of a life that is passing ALL TOO FAST. To get what your Creator promises, you must know your strongest points. Your future possibilities, physical condition, how to gain the one you desire, how to be magnetic, etc., etc. To acquire these things you MUST SEE THE SAND GAZER EVENTUALLY. IN HIS DEPARTMENT HE STANDS SUPREME. Tells how to make business pay, whom you will marry and when, every possible advice regarding love, travel, changes, speculation, divorces, law suits, sickness, etc. All of life's active principles are minutely analyzed by THIS WIZARD OF THE SHIFTING SANDS. The Only Psychic who really demonstrates the mysterious power to help you. Come. Test him and be convinced. Hours 12 to 5, 7 to 8 daily; closed Sundays. Maid in attendance. 1920 S. FIGUEROA ST. Take West Washington, University or La Salle-avenue cars. Phone 22141. No sign. Come tomorrow.

THE GREAT PROBLEM TODAY OF MEN OF ALL AGES IS—WHAT CAN I DO TO BETTER MYSELF?

Let the Sandusky Tractor School help you solve this all-important matter. Come in and have a personal and confidential chat with us, telling your ambitions and hopes for the future, and we will cheerfully show you just what we can do for you. The vista of new ideas and fresh courage that will be opened up to you after a thorough understanding of what a course in tractor engineering will do for you will almost paralyze you with surprise and make you wish that you had called here sooner. The way is so clear and so full of achievements, the cost of our course is a mere trifle, as compared with the benefits that accrue to our graduates. Let us explain and make clear to you what a wonderful inexhaustible field of bright opportunities will lay before you in the future, which is linked inseparably with the victorious onward rush of the rapidly improving tractor as applied to modern scientific intensive farming methods. We have pointed the way, now come in and do your part. Allow us the privilege of presenting you with a descriptive catalogue.

Be sure and see our rugs before you buy. We have one of the largest stocks of used rugs in L. A., and our prices are not equaled.

We have a very fine player piano, that cost $950 new. 75 rolls of music. Yours on time for $450.

Closing out all heaters at about 25 per cent. less than we sold them for a month ago.

The reason is we dont' want to carry them over till NEXT winter.

Big stock of used dressers, selling at about half the price of new.

We have a big stock of second-hand trunks, at about half the price of NEW.

Office furniture for sale or rent.

Invalid wheel chairs, for sale or rent.

We sell furniture with the understanding that we will take it back within a certain length of time at a specified price. Just like renting it.

It pays to trade with a firm like this.

Some furniture stores will not buy the furniture back, but we are glad to get it back, and will tell you just what we will give you back for the same, and we do just what we agree to do.

Remember we have everything to furnish the home or office, and our prices are not equaled in Los Angeles.

FOR SALE—
Bed, spring and mattress sale.

Never since the high price of iron and cotton have beds, springs and mattresses been sold so cheap.

Monday and Tuesday, we are going to sell all of our beds, springs and mattresses at about half the price of new.

Our beds have all been re-enameled and look like new.

We have both new and second-hand springs. Second-hand at about half the price of new, and some even less than half.

We have a very fine combination hair and cotton mattress, that weighs about 45 lbs.

We have just had it renovated and had the very best of art ticking put on, with a heavy roll edge, so it won't sag on the edge. The hair is a very good quality, and the cotton is A No. 1 staple, of the very best.

This mattress would cost at least $40 new. Our price is $20.

I made over silk floss mattress, about 25 lbs., full size, only $7.50; other mattresses as low as $2.50.

Big stock of roll top desks for sale cheap. Some about half the price of NEW.

We buy, sell and exchange most everything. Ring up 19702 if you wish to sell or exchange anything and our buyer will call.

Automobiles for Sale.

ATTENTION— MR. TOURIST:
You are reading these columns today to either rent or purchase a used car for the time that you will be in the city. You want a good machine at a reasonable figure, and one that will have appearance as well. We have several such cars, both roadsters and touring. We know that it will be less expensive for you to purchase one of these cars than to rent one for several months' use. We have a special plan that will convince you that you need not worry, but that they will be sold when you are ready to leave.

Our business is the sale of new cars, and practically every used car offered for sale has been accepted on a new car, therefore you cannot classify us with the average used-car speculator. A large number of new car sales depend on our ability to accept used cars in exchange. We must make rapid sales in our USED CAR DEPARTMENT, so that we can continue to accept such deals, therefore we are not only certain to place these cars in excellent condition, so that they will sell readily, but we place an attractive price on them as well, commensurate with their condition. In addition to this, you will be dealing with a company of excellent reputation, financially sound, and one that is willing to stand behind every sale. DON'T FAIL TO INVESTIGATE.

WE HAVE ALL MAKES OF

A SUGGESTION.

CHANDLER SIX TOURINGS
CHUMMY ROADSTERS.

You do not dare to purchase a CHANDLER until you have investigated the REBUILT, REFINISHED, FULLY GUARANTEED ones that we are offering at a range of prices from $800 to $1800, on TERMS. You cannot respect yourself as a wise purchaser unless you at least learn about these values, and what CHANDLER SERVICE and CHANDLER GUARANTEE will mean to you for the next year to come. Our business has been the marketing of CHANDLERS almost since they were first placed on the market. We know practically every Chandler owner and we know quite a bit about the manner in which they have taken care of their cars. We will not accept a used CHANDLER in exchange on a new one if it has been abused. We do not have to. We cannot secure all the NEW CHANDLERS that there is a demand for, so you may rest assured that we are particular about the used cars we accept in exchange. If you do not believe this, try us out with some car that is not up to standard, and see how quickly we refuse it. We are not independent, but we are careful of our reputation, and we do not want to be forced to offer a poor used car for sale.

BROKEN CRANKSHAFT CAUSES S.O.S. CALL.

ADMIRAL WATSON IN GALE CALLS FOR AID; REPAIRS MADE; VESSEL SAFE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 18.—With a broken crankshaft, temporary repairs to which have been made, according to late wireless reports, the steamer Admiral Watson was tonight proceeding in Queen Charlotte Sound to Alert Bay escorted by the steamer Valdez, which answered the Watson's call for immediate assistance. The Canadian tug Nitinal, sent from Vancouver, B. C., will meet the Watson at Alert Bay and accompany the vessel to Seattle.

The Watson left Seattle December 22 on a rush voyage to carry supplies to the Aleutian Islands. She left 200 tons of supplies at Kodiak Island, central distribution point for islands to the westward, and returned via Southeastern Alaska ports. Her passenger list, reported here as 228, is a record for this time of year. The vessel is commanded by Capt. Charles Glasscock and has a crew of forty-four.

At the time the Watson wirelessed for assistance the vessel reported a strong southwest wind blowing and that her position was dangerous. Another vessel, the Chelhosin, answered the call for aid.

The Admiral Watson is a freight and passenger steamer owned by the Pacific-Alaska Navigation Company with headquarters at Seattle. She is of 2009 gross tons, 253.1 feet over and 38.4 feet of beam. She was built in Bath, Me., in 1901. She plies between Seattle and Southwestern Alaskan ports.

Queen Charlotte Sound is some 500 miles north of Victoria off the coast of British Columbia and is notorious as one of the roughest stretches of water along the entire Pacific Coast.

THEATER MAN WEDS.

Frank P. Burns, manager of the Superba Theater at No. 518 South Broadway, and Miss Jessie Alma Richardson were married yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle D. Keep, No. 501 West Twenty-eighth street. They immediately left for a honeymoon trip to San Diego.

Funeral of Charles B. McNiff.

The funeral of Charles B. McNiff, head of the gold jewelry department of Brock & Co., who died on Friday, will be held at the Church of the Immaculate Heart, No. 4950 Santa Monica boulevard, at 9:20 a.m., on Tuesday. The obsequies were deferred to allow time for a brother of the deceased to reach here from Joliet, Ill. The burial, which will be private, will be at Forest Lawn Cemetery, Tropico.

POLES PLAN TO SELL COAL TO THE CZECHS.

PADEREWSKI TO RAISE CONSCRIPT ARMY OF HALF A MILLION MEN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WARSAW, Friday, Jan. 17.—By selling coal to the Czechs the Poles, who possess a majority of the coal mines which supply the Czechs and Austrians, hope to obtain the right of passage to Vienna. Poles have been much concerned over recent advances of the Czechs, who have been invading the coal and oil districts of Galicia, claiming this was being done with the permission of the Allies.

Regarding the Bolshevik danger it is believed generally that M. Paderewski's task will be to use the army of Gen. Haller as the nucleus for a national army of half a million men under enforced service, rather than the voluntary system which has prevailed to date, permitting the formation of Red guards.

It is pointed out that the Allies have abundant supplies of arms, ammunition, shoes and clothing which they can ship immediately. The Poles make efficient and brave soldiers and are anxious to serve against the Bolsheviki. In the operations for the liberation of Lemberg they demonstrated their spirit and capacity.

ORPHAN RELIEF WORK RUSSIAN WOMAN'S AIM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Jan. 18. — Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, president of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, when told of the arrival of Catherine Breshkovskaya at Victoria, B. C., said she thought the Russian revolutionist would devote her efforts in America to collecting funds for Russian orphans.

Miss Blackwell, who has been in close touch with Mme. Breshkovskaya for many years, discredited statements made in this country that political significance was attached to her visit and said reports she intended to proceed to the Peace Conference came from "untrustworthy sources."

"Since it has been rumored that Mme. Breshkovskaya was coming to America," said Miss Blackwell, "I have had requests from organizations in all parts of the United States, who wish to obtain her as speaker. The National Woman Suffrage Association is anxious to arrange appointments for her. I feel certain her work in America will be devoted to Russian orphans. She was engaged in this before she left Russia."

CLAIM LEBAUDY TRIED TO PURCHASE POISON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINEOLA (N. Y.) Jan. 18.—Attorneys for Mme. Jacques Lebaudy, who shot and killed her husband, the self-styled "Emperor of Sahara," in their home at Westbury last Saturday, obtained from a New York drug clerk an affidavit that Lebaudy tried to purchase poison the day he was slain. According to the affidavit, Lebaudy said the poison was for his wife and child. The clerk said he refused to make the sale.

The affidavit will be turned over Monday to Charles R. Weeks, District Attorney of Nassau county, who is conducting an investigation of the shooting before the grand jury and it is believed will strengthen Mme. Lebaudy's assertion that she and her daughter Jacqueline, had been threatened repeatedly by her husband.

WAGE BONUS IS VOTED EMPLOYEES OF NATION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A wage bonus of $240 for the year beginning next July for nearly all government employees receiving $2500 or less, was voted tonight by the House in passing the 1920 legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, carrying $96,000,000. The bonus, double that of the current fiscal year, will cost the government approximately $14,000,000.

Employees of temporary governmental agencies, established during the war, will not receive the increase, nor will postal employees.

ICE CREAM MEN WILL MEET HERE NEXT YEAR.

Los Angeles was selected as the next meeting place, and Alfred Beaudry of this city was elected secretary-treasurer of the California Ice Cream Manufacturers' Association, at the concluding session of the fourth annual convention in San Francisco, yesterday. L. W. Wilson of Fresno was elected president and F. H. Sims of San Francisco, vice-president of the association.

POLITICAL RADICALS UNDER BAN OF PRESS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 18.—Eighty-five delegates to the seventh annual institute of the State Press Association, which concluded its sessions here tonight, pledged themselves to deny publicity to any agency seeking to embarrass or destroy the true principles of government and democracy.

HURRICANE CRIPPLES OREGON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 18.—Extremely heavy rains, accompanied by high winds, which raged throughout Western Oregon yesterday and today, threw down power wires, brought streams to the bankfull stage and caused considerable delays to shipping in the harbors. Steamers were kept busy picking up derelict logs in the Williamette River here. Cars were delayed by breaking of high-power wires outside the city.

Oregon Soldiers' Relief Bill Invalid.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALEM (Or.) Jan. 18.—The bill for relief of discharged soldiers and sailors passed by the Oregon Legislature this week, carrying an appropriation of $100,000, was held today after examination by Secretary of State Olcott to be invalid through faulty drafting. Plans were made for repassage of the measure in amended form early next week.

Woman Legislators to Aid Women.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALEM (Or.) Jan. 18.—Mrs. Alexander Thompson of Wasco, and Hood River counties, the only woman member of the Oregon Legislature, announced today that she had arranged to introduce early next week bills for the creation of a court of domestic relations in Multnomah county (Portland) and for the fixing of a minimum wage for women teachers of $75 a month throughout the State.

WHOLE STAFF FIRED.

Fox Film Corporation Terminates Contract with Director.

Another "bombshell" of a moderate size, enlivened the local motion picture situation yesterday when the Fox Film Corporation terminated its contract with Henry Lehrman, its director-general of the Sunshine Comedies, and suddenly swooping upon the big studio at Western avenue and Sunset boulevard, posted notices "firing" the entire staff and the three directors working under Mr. Lehrman.

Winfield Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, later in the day issued the following statement:

"Sunshine Comedies, Incorporated, has terminated its contract with Henry Lehrman for the best interests of the business. The Fox Film Corporation intends to continue producing and distributing comedies on a greater scale than ever. Definite plans of the enlarged project will be announced shortly."

Unofficially it was learned that the Fox Film Corporation and Mr. Lehrman did not agree about the financial details of their contract, and that it decided to go into the comedy field on its own accord.

The entire staff, including directors Jack Lloyd, Jack Blystone and Fred Fishback, together with Al Herman, business manager, and Hugh Fay, Gertrude Selby, Billie Ritchie, Lloyd Hamilton, Ethel Teare and more than fifty others, will remain with Mr. Lehrman, it was stated last night.

According to Mr. Lehrman's version of the affair, the sudden termination of the contract is the outgrowth of the latest phase of the evolution through which the motion picture business is passing, and represents the tendency to eliminate the middleman in the production and distribution of motion pictures.

FLU AT IMPERIAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

IMPERIAL, Jan. 18.—Several new influenza cases have made their appearance here within the past few days, among them being De S. Anderson, assistant postmaster, and another employee of the postoffice. Dr. R. O. Thompson, city health officer, reports that there have been over 800 cases here during the epidemic, with but sixteen deaths.

MAY ESTABLISH A PLANE PLANT HERE.

GLENN L. MARTIN COMES TO INVESTIGATE PROSPECTS FOR THIS ENTERPRISE.

Glenn L. Martin, president of the Glenn L. Martin Company, of Cleveland, accompanied by his mother, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday, and are guests at the Alexandria while renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. Martin, while here, will look over the local field with the view of considering the advantages of establishing an airplane plant. He says the establishment of such a plant here will depend upon the peace organization plans of the government and the attitude of business interests of Southern California, regarding commercial flying. He hopes that the government will continue the manufacture of airplanes as a peace programme, for coast defense, and says that in such case it would be a matter of economy to construct planes here, with the metal parts machined in the East and shipped out. The wood sections would be made locally and the machines assembled here.

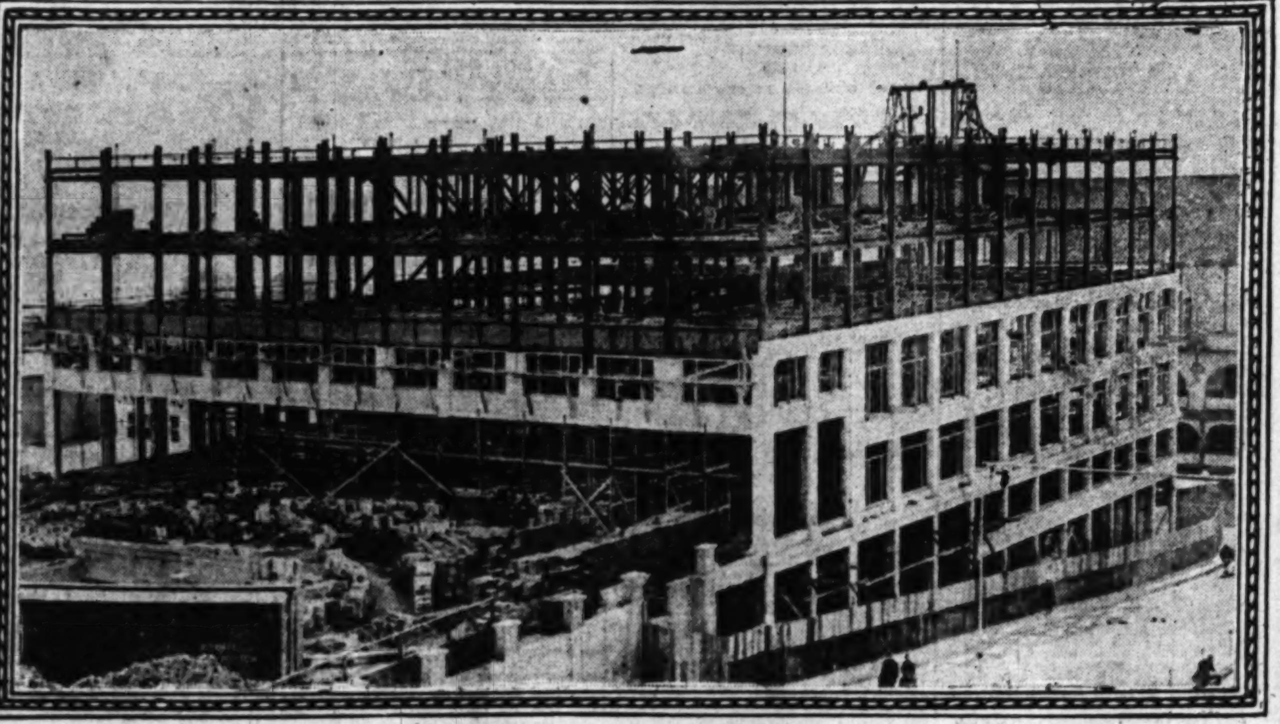
VOL. XXXVIII. SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 19, 1919. THE MART { Bargains in Blocks and Squares. Transactions in Houses and Lots.

A Long Unfinished Improvement Now Going Ahead.



The Markwell Building, Long Beach, Work on Which has Been Resumed After Several Years' Delay.

FACT AND COMMENT.

[illegible] eastern man who intends to [illegible] his future home in Los Angeles writes to ask whether he should buy or build. He should—buy or build—and, in view of the fact that he expresses the desire to [illegible] "settled as soon as possible," he would do well to make up his mind [illegible] at the earliest possible moment. The fact of the matter is that to buy or to build is about the only thing left for him to do.

The writer did not say he had been looking for a house to rent, but presumably that is the case. And looking for a house to rent in Los Angeles at this time is an almost [illegible] undertaking. There has never been a time in the city's history when there were so few residences to be had by renters.

The newspapers actually contain as many ads from would-be [illegible] seeking houses as from [illegible] having houses to let. The [illegible] who answers a for-rent advertisement must be on the spot early in the morning to even have [illegible] at a desirable place. A [illegible] method with despairing house-seekers is to charter land-going flivvers and cruise up and down the streets and around the blocks in the districts in which they wish to live on the chance that they may be able to spot some lone for-rent [illegible] before someone else sees it. [illegible] of these explorers have informed the Fact and Comment man that days of search sometimes fail [illegible] results. As for the explorer who goes to his chosen district by street car and then trusts to develop investigation afoot, it is an event to be celebrated with loud [illegible] and boasting if he ever succeeds in his purpose.

The leading real estate rental offices are swamped with applications and have men out combing the city for places to list. A common sight in residence districts is the sign in front of small neighborhood [illegible] offices, "No Houses for Rent." The acute housing shortage is also being strongly reflected in the buying inquiry and demand for houses listed for sale with the second-hand men of the realty market, and it is bound to be further evidenced soon in increased building activity. The high cost of building materials by comparison with prices of pre-war days [illegible] deterring great numbers of persons from building, but with the war over and cleaning up of the [illegible] on the market, there will be no other way out for the man who wants a home but to pay the cost and get it over with. It is generally being recognized, too, that there is no likelihood of a return to old-time prices of either materials or labor, and that the reduction reasonably to be expected [illegible] not bring building costs down to the levels that builders have been waiting for. When this fact is fully [illegible] thousands of those who are [illegible] their plans for building will [illegible]

[illegible] Chance.

[illegible] the man who is contemplating the construction of a flat, duplex [illegible] bungalow, or house court, there has never been a time like the present for building. The demand for homes in such buildings is simply overwhelming, and it is growing from day to day. The most encouraging thing about the situation from the investor-builder's point of view is that there is absolutely nothing temporary or ephemeral about this demand. The housing facilities of Los Angeles are actually insufficient at this time to begin to accommodate the present population now here and certain to be added within the next few months. The tourist influx to date has not been as large as anticipated, owing to the prevalence of influenza throughout the country and the reluctance of easterners to expose themselves by traveling. Influenza, however, is being gradually conquered everywhere, and, although it is still menacing, the very fact that Los Angeles is more free from it than most large cities is encouraging tourists to overcome their fears about traveling and come out here. It is going to be impossible for Los Angeles to take care of its ordinary share of the visitors, and more of them than ever before are bound to be distributed among neighboring cities and towns.

It requires no gift of prophecy under such conditions as these to predict that the gradual picking up in building already to be noted will before long be changed to a great wave of activity. Where such a demand exists there is bound to be a response.

Special Notice to Property Owners

[illegible] owners in the City of Los Angeles are assured that they will receive notice of any and all proceedings affecting their property in the way of public improvements if they will furnish the City Clerk, City Hall, their address and description of property owned by them, thus saving much expense that may be attached to such assessments, where correct names and addresses do not appear on the Map and Lot Record.

BUILDINGS LEASED TO EASTERN FIRMS.

BIG PLUMBING AND PAINT MANUFACTURERS SECURE LOCAL QUARTERS.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through Richard C. Willis, of its leasing department, has just leased two downtown buildings to large eastern manufacturing companies. One lease was to the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, one of the largest manufacturers of plumbing fixtures in the world, which took over the three-story and basement warehouse at No. 216 to 224 Central avenue. The building has a frontage of nearly eighty-five feet on Central avenue and a depth of about 160 feet, and is served by a Southern Pacific spur track.

S. M. Bernard & Co., are the owners of the building, which will be used by the lessees, as their distributing headquarters for Southern California and Arizona. This company, with its home office in Pittsburgh, has branches in the principal cities of the United States.

The second lease was made to the Certainteed Products Corporation, and involved the three-story building at No. 459 East Third street, owned by Mrs. Sallie Richardson. The corporation is engaged in the manufacture of paints and besides having several factories in the East, has a Pacific Coast factory at Richmond, Cal.

The sale of a 160-acre ranch at Wasco, to A. J. Briggs for $20,000 is also reported.

WILL BUILD HOME.

The McCarthy Company reports the sale of the northeast corner of Van Ness and Elmwood avenues to Henry A. F. Schroeder, auditor for Oliver Morosco, who will, it is stated, build a home to cost around $7200. The contract has been let to the Edwards & Wildey Company. The building site, the stated cost of which was $4500, has a frontage of 74 feet by a depth of 135 feet. Another sale reported by the McCarthy Company was that of a lot at the northwest corner of Fifth street and Wilton place to W. P. Berry, for a stated consideration of $3600.

GAS COMPANY BUYS.

WHITTIER, Jan. 18.—The Southern Counties Gas Company has just purchased a site with a frontage of 140 feet on East Philadelphia street and 150 feet on South Washington avenue, from the Rendelman estate, for a stated consideration of about $13,500. The gas company will erect a business office and warehouses on the site, it is stated. President F. R. Bain was here this week with achitects, and it is said that work on the group of buildings will be started as soon as plans are accepted.

BUILDING REVIVAL.

SANTA ANA, Jan. 18.—A revival of building operations on a large scale is expected during 1919 by the Home Mutual Building and Loan Association, which held its twenty-sixth annual meeting on Wednesday. Loans aggregating $137,594.75 were made in 1918 and the association's assets are $568,146.04, the report of Secretary O. M. Robbins showed.

LOT SALES REPORTED.

The sale of thirteen lots in the Country Club Heights tract is reported by W. I. Hollingsworth & Co. They were sold for A. N. Davidson, six going to R. L. Wilcox for a stated consideration of $10,000, and seven to George Taylor for a reported price of $12,500.

REALTY MAN MOVES.

Charles B. Hopper, selling agent for Southgate Gardens, has leased a ground floor office at No. 611 South Hill street, formerly occupied by the Santa Fe ticket offices. Mr. Hopper, who was formerly at No. 708 South Spring street, also is sales agent for Fontana lands.

SHORE BLOCK GOING AHEAD.

Long Beach's Steel Skeleton to be Clothed.

Owners End Five-Year Halt on "Ghost" Structure.

Theater and Stores to Face on Ocean Front.

After a delay of five years, during which time, wind and storm have left their mark on its tall, skeleton-like form, the Markwell Building on Ocean and Pine avenues, Long Beach, according to plans recently arranged, will be rushed to completion and made ready for the coming season's tourist visitation.

Work on the structure, the long delay on which has excited much interested comment on the part of the townspeople and returning visitors, was recommenced recently by the contractors and a large force of men put to work. When word went out that work was really under way again on Long Beach's famous "ghost building," a crowd gathered and made the event of considerable historical moment. The one thing that lacked to make it a gala affair was the absence of a band.

According to present plans, the building will be six stories high, and the owners say, they may add three more floors later. Their estimate is that the completed structure, of six stories, will cost $600,000. Work has already advanced beyond the erection of the steel frame, which was erected about five years ago, and the white pressed brick facing has been laid to the third floor. The tile and terra cotta work has advanced to the sixth floor, and the plumbing is being installed.

It is hoped by the owners that the ground floor will be ready for occupancy by March 15, in time to give the "glad hand" to the tourist invasion. The first story will be divided into four blocks, arranged in arcade style, containing sixty-two modern stores. There will also be a theater, seating about 1300 persons, in the center of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth floors. On the third and fourth floors will be a cafeteria.

The entrances to the arcade will be on Ocean avenue, Seaside boulevard, Pier place and South Pine avenue. Plans for the structure were prepared by Harvey W. Lochridge, architect, of Long Beach.

NEW COUNTRY HOME.

Local Designer Building Fine Place for Eastern Mining Man.

H. H. Whiteley, designer and builder, is completing a handsome country home for Hogan Willeford, a former eastern coal producer, on the Downey and Long Beach boulevards, near Downey. It will be ready for the owner's occupancy within the next few weeks.

The dwelling, which is constructed of cement and hollow ornamental tile and contains nine rooms, is surrounded by spacious grounds planted to fruit and shade trees. The landscaping is being done under the direction of Mr. Whiteley, who also designed the furniture and draperies for the dining and breakfast rooms to match the California redwood interior.

In addition to a garage with servants' quarters, the residence equipment will include a pumping plant, sprinkling and vacuum-cleaning systems.

GENTLEMAN'S HOME SACRIFICED.

Near Manual Arts High School,
Near new white cement primary school.

READY TO MOVE INTO—Furnished.

Real value $6000—Sacrifice $4850.

Located near corner Santa Barbara and La Salle, on paved boulevard; modern, perfectly dandy, almost new white bungalow; sunshine beams in ALL THE DAY, gives life, health and happiness. Large living-room, large dining-room, sunny breakfast-room, 2 large bedrooms, bath, screened porch. All my fine rugs, fine furniture, beds, bedding, dishes (except wedding present,) go with house; large back yard with 12 fruit trees, large garage. See my exclusive agent, 62261.

62261. ROLAND BOLGIANO, 1216 Haas Bldg.

HERE'S AN HONEST ADVERTISEMENT.

Yes, my wife planned this brand new 7-room gem.
$5850.

When you and YOUR wife see this perfectly dandy brand new home of SEVEN large living rooms, when YOU examine the construction and SHE sizes up the many conveniences, you'll wonder how I can sell it—on easy terms—so low.

Here's how: I contracted for my lumber and supplies long ago—for many houses, and this is the last at the old costs. I bought the lot dirt cheap during the building ban—another big saving. I use the best material, but my skilled men save time.

Living-room 25x14, and large sunny Dining-Room in Ivory, bright Breakfast-room with buffet; tiled bath, THREE fine bedrooms; garage, 50-foot lot and a location that can't be beat for surroundings—best restricted bungalow section in Wilshire—all new homes, all newly paved, near new L.A. High School. See my exclusive agent.

62261. ROLAND BOLGIANO, 1216 Haas Bldg.

I WENT THE LIMIT ON THIS—

The most complete, beautiful and charming new colonial
Bungalow in all Wilshire.
$2300 CASH DOWN.

Yes, I got the very best EAST FRONT 55x170 lot on that picturesque street, newly paved, carefully restricted. I planned every detail, watched every stick and saw that absolutely first-class work was done everywhere.

My elegant TILED BATH and SEPARATE shower, rich tiled mantel and classic Colonial buffet are works of art. The WHITE TILED kitchen will delight any other woman, for I planned it myself, and I have kept house for years.

PLATE GLASS in the bookcases, front windows and China Cabinets. Richest fixtures and best of tasty decorations. My breakfast room is a dream and there's a big PATIO besides the seven large rooms—three bedrooms. Garage has water and electric lights, lawn has automatic sprinkler system, and everything else is complete and the best.

Ask my exclusive agent for the price, for you might think it a cheaply-built house if I named it here. See or phone

READY TO WALK INTO—COMPLETELY FURNISHED.

Worth $9850—Sacrificed $6850.

Located in beautiful West Arlington Heights Tract, on high ground, in splendid neighborhood. On Fifth ave. near 20th st. This charming home, consisting of 4 bedrooms, bath, large living room, dining-room, breakfast-room, gas radiator. On a lot 50x145, paved street. Fruit trees. Only $3000 cash required, balance on mortgage. See my exclusive agent.

62261. ROLAND BOLGIANO, 1216 Haas Bldg.

YES, I MADE A BIG MISTAKE—

That's why my charming
Wilshire home, costing me $12,500, must be sold now for $8500, and only $1500 DOWN.

My mistake was building too good, for I never expected to sell this fine house, but put in the best of everything, regardless of cost. For example, the large living-room is 20x30, finished in superb SOLID MAHOGANY, also the dining-room, with a handsome buffet. There is a dandy den, bright breakfast-room, splendid modern kitchen, elegant TILED BATH and four large bedrooms.

As I built for a permanent home, I had the walls canvased and hand painted; the best automatic water heater, latest style gas furnace, big garage and everything else to suit my taste. Now I find that to sell quickly I must make a price that will compete with the cheapest built speculation houses, so I'll take $8500 and make terms to the right party.

Located just off Wilshire, near the beautiful eleven-acre grounds of new Wilshire Boulevard hotel. My exclusive agent will show you by appointment only. See or phone.

62261. ROLAND BOLGIANO, 1216 Haas Bldg.

ON BEAUTIFUL MANHATTAN BLVD.

My stately home sacrificed completely furnished, for $10,000.

Dignity and restfulness characterize the elegant home I built just north of Wilshire boulevard, on a big lot, 60x150 feet. There's nothing flashy about the substantial finish of the large living-room and dining-room, the cozy library and the bright, sunny breakfast-room, but all are in good taste, elegantly decorated. There's a model kitchen, four roomy bedrooms, sleeping porch, good bath, basement with gas furnace, and good garage. The grounds are beautiful.

Business conditions force me to sell and $6000 takes the house, or I will include $4000 worth of furniture and rugs for $10,000. Because the place is easily worth $15,000, I was able to get a first mortgage of $6750, and so $3250 cash is all I require. Ask my exclusive agent to show you this big bargain. See or phone

11 ROOMS—2 BATHS—LOT 150x150.

TENNIS COURT AND LARGE ROSE GARDENS.

ACTUAL COST TO OWNER $22,500.

This magnificent home was built about eight years ago by an eastern man for his home, and he has occupied it ever since. His family is much smaller now and he finds the house too large, consequently he wants to dispose of it at once, and to make a long story short, he has put this price on it, which is bedrock. The LOCATION is just a block off West Adams street and built up with fine private homes.

It doesn't take "flowery language" to sell this house. It will sell itself on sight. Investigate and you'll agree with us. ASK FOR MR. WILLIAMS.

$13,000.

BEAUTIFUL HOME ON CORNER 75x188.

COST $18,000—SACRIFICE PRICE $13,000.

This beautiful ten-room residence is located on very high ground, just west of Western avenue, on a large corner lot 75x188; asphalt paved streets on both sides. Wide cement porch across front and one side of house. Reception hall and library finished in beautiful CURLEY BIRCH; large living-room in GENUINE TOBASCO MAHOGANY; dining-room in QUARTER SAWED OAK. All these rooms are paneled and hand decorated with oil on canvas. Maid's room, breakfast-room and kitchen in white enamel. A beautiful wide oak stairway leads from the reception hall to the second floor where there are four big cheerful, airy bedrooms and two tiled baths. Large attic for storage. Quarter sawed oak floors throughout. The basement is 45x25 feet, in which is located the laundry, toilet, lavatory, etc. There is also a fruit room and furnace room. The garage has room for three cars and upstairs are three rooms, kitchen and bath. The lawn and gardens are beautiful. In the rear are a choice variety of fruit trees, shrubs, etc.

At $13,000 this is surely a bargain. Call us for appointment. ASK FOR H. G. NORWOOD.

"WE FIND THE BARGAINS."

A REAL "PICK UP."
BEAUTIFUL NEW WILSHIRE RESIDENCE
NOW OFFERED FOR ONLY
$5250.

Owing to present conditions the owner is compelled to sacrifice his lovely new home at this reduced price.

Consists of a brand new colonial cottage of 6 rooms and is complete to the smallest detail, including a fine tile bathroom, etc. The grounds are well improved and include a cement driveway and a roomy garage.

Nothing like it is offered in the entire Wilshire district at the price. A personal inspection is convincing. Arrange to see it Monday.

IF YOU WANT A HOME
IT'S TO YOUR INTEREST TO SEE THIS ONE.
A BARGAIN.
$9000. WORTH $12,500. $9000.

This fine property is located in the Wilshire district not far from the boulevard, on an east front lot, 60x150, wide paved street. Lot alone is worth $6000.

The house is of cement and contains 9 well arranged and spacious rooms, 2 baths. Lower floor large living-room with south exposure, dining-room, library, kitchen. Upper floor—4 large bedrooms and sleeping porch. Entire house is artistically decorated and finished. Basement—Furnace, automatic water heater.

This house would cost $8000 to build and the lot is worth $6000. Why not look it over?

FURNISHED HOME
HIGH GROUND. WILSHIRE DISTRICT.
Lot 60x150. PAVED STREET.
$14,000. WORTH $20,000. $14,000.

Owner says sell my house quick. As you know, bargains in high class Wilshire homes are getting very scarce. Here is your opportunity to buy a beautiful 9-room, ready to move into for less than the actual cost of the house and lot. The reception hall, living-room and library are finished in mahogany. The dining-room in southern gum. All rooms canvased and artistically decorated. On the upper floor there are four large sunny bedrooms with two baths. The furniture which is almost new consists of fine rugs, mahogany, fine drapes and curtains, and, in fact, everything to make a complete and artistic home.

TRUSTEE'S SALE
OF MAGNIFICENT WHITE CEMENT RESIDENCE
WOULD BE CHEAP AT $18,500.
$13,500. WILL SACRIFICE FOR $13,500.

Bankruptcy compels the immediate sale of this home and the creditors demand quick action, hence the enormous reduction in the price.

Here is an elegant substantially constructed white cement residence of 10 large rooms ideally situated on a 75x150-foot lot in a section that is restricted for 30 years and fronting a paved street. The interior is finished in real mahogany and the walls are decorated in canvas with hand-painted decorations. The equipment and appointments are all and more than you would expect to find for twice the money. Has 2 fine tile bathrooms and a maid's room and bath, a garage for two cars, beautifully improved grounds, and many other things that are too numerous to mention.

At the price quoted you have never seen its equal in the entire city. A personal inspection is convincing. Arrange to see it Monday.

WILSHIRE DISTRICT'S FINEST COLONIAL HOME.

12 MAGNIFICENT LARGE ROOMS, 3 BATHS.

Built by owner for a home, and occupied only 6 months. Situated on a high and sightly corner, 62x170, with south and west exposure, insuring a wealth of sunlight and air. Both streets paved with asphalt, and sewer in, all paid for.

LIVING-ROOM, 18x28, finished in finest mahogany, elegant Batchelder tile mantel at one end. Large SUN ROOM on corner, 10x18, with large plate glass windows. Dining-room, 16x16, finished in quarter sawed white oak, with a wonderful finish, and having a magnificent built-in buffet. BREAKFAST-ROOM with EAST and SOUTH exposure, and having dainty built-in buffet. The LARGE KITCHEN is a model of elegance and convenience, with lots of cabinets, tiled sink, tiled drainboard and working table. Fine spacious screen porch, with vegetable coolers, extra toilet, broom closet and built-in ironing board. Maid's room and bath opening off this porch.

Upstairs are four corner bedrooms with lots of windows and great big closets, aside from a good sized sewing room. These bedrooms are arranged in two suites, with two wonderful large tiled baths between. These bathrooms are easily among the real big features of the house. On the third floor are two finished rooms; one being intended for a BILLIARD ROOM, and the other equipped with sink and gas for use as a buffet kitchen, and storage purposes. The billiard room is 16x30, running the entire width of the house. Large sized basement, with gas furnace and Ruud water heater. Garage for two cars, with full second story.

Over $700 worth of lighting fixtures, which are simply gorgeous and in perfect taste. All large WINDOWS PLATE GLASS. The grounds are magnificently developed, and planted to rare roses and shrubs. WALL COVERINGS of very best IMPORTED STOCK. Call the undersigned and arrange to inspect this ideal home.

IF YOU ARE IN THE MARKET FOR A REALLY FINE WILSHIRE HOME, ONE BUILT BY DAY LABOR OF THE FINEST MATERIALS THAT MONEY CAN BUY, THEN YOU WANT THIS MANSION.

And you can consider yourself fortunate that it is available. It's the kind of house only INDIVIDUALS WOULD BUILD FOR THEIR HOMES. No expense was spared in order to get the desired results, as you will readily see upon making a careful inspection. All of the woodwork and decorations throughout the house were done by the MOST EXCLUSIVE FURNITURE HOUSE IN LOS ANGELES. Fixtures used throughout are in keeping and include one of genuine Italian alabaster. All finishing woods not mahogany and oak are white cedar, finished in white enamel, and each coat pumice-stoned and hand rubbed. Four baths altogether, two of which have showers, and the fixtures express the last word in ELEGANCE and COMFORT. Maid's room and bath downstairs off screen porch. Two-story garage with BOWSER gas filling station. Chauffeur's quarters and bath above. East front lot, 75x180, laid out to rose gardens and containing many rare and EXPENSIVE PALMS AND SHRUBS.

BERKELEY SQUARE DISTRICT.
Most charming modern exclusive home.

Never before, and possibly never again, will you be able to purchase a home of this character in this location on south Harvard Blvd., at such a sacrifice. 10 rooms, 2 baths. Painted white outside and old ivory with mahogany finish inside. An unusually large living-room with a massive Utah white sandstone fireplace, large bay window. Dining-room with an extremely artistic large buffet with cut glass doors. A cosy sunshine den for father's friends. Large entrance hall with massive solid mahogany pillars supporting the arched entrance into living-room. Attractive staircase. Four large sunny bedrooms. Two tiled baths.

SO CONFIDENT AM I of it's real value, if anyone will buy it I will lease it for five years and pay them a rent that will earn them 7 per cent. net over and above all expense. I need cash now to go into an established manufacturing business that earns large profits.
See my exclusive agent,

FOR SALE—

CITY LOTS.

West Hollywood—In this fast-growing section where there is a big demand for bungalows, we have a tract in which we are making a bid for "buyers of lots for building" by offering

LARGE DISCOUNTS.

See us at once and get our prices—We want you to know the values and to appreciate the opportunity that is before you for a limited time.

Concrete curbs, sidewalks and oiled roadbeds are in. The car line runs only a half block away from lots that we can sell you as low as $600, in sizes 50x130 feet.

Wilshire District—We have in this choice district, lots on which you can build apartment or duplex houses at prices that interest one. Improvements are all in and one has quick access to 4 car lines.

Lots are 60 ft. wide and 130 ft. deep. We have several building loans offered to us for the use of prospective builders. If you are in the market for a lot on which to build a flat, see us at once for price and terms.

The demand for rental properties at present is splendid. Come in and talk over the situation with us.

FRANK H. AYRES,
481 Investment Bldg. Phone 15128.

FOR SALE—
CHARMING
SOIL.
Extra-fine lots
at $375.
Only $5 down and $6 a month.

The monthly payments include the interest, always.

This offering has 10-foot alleys in the rear, and are 40x130 feet; gas, electricity and water already installed; ready for you to make camp on the rear and start to make a real garden home. The street work is all in and paid for, making these lots the lowest ever offered in Los Angeles.

We have 4 different tracts in the neighborhood of 83rd and Main sts. to select from, at lowest terms for garden homemakers.

Sunday visitors should take the Moneta-Manchester car on Main st., and get off at 83rd st., walk 1 block east to Main st., and wait for one of our Home Extension autos to show you over these various offerings; all of them within the belt of soft garden silt soil that has made the 83rd st. district famous.

Week day visitors should leave in free auto trip from this office at 10 a.m. or 1:30 p.m.

FOR SALE—
INCOME $7800 A YEAR.

Beautiful new building, solid brick construction, ideally located in the heart of the exclusive Wilshire district.

Close to two car lines and easily accessible to the West Seventh street shopping center.

IN THE PATH OF THE CITY'S MOST SUBSTANTIAL DEVELOPMENT.

Improvements consist of eight flats, old ivory finish and mahogany trim, oak floors, tile baths, the highest grade of plumbing and lighting fixtures, fully equipped laundry, maid's rooms, garages and storage rooms, large concrete basement—modern to the last degree. No expense was spared in making this building one of the most attractive rental properties in Los Angeles. Absolutely nothing was left undone.

The flats are completely and handsomely furnished. The furniture is mahogany and the rugs, which are of oriental design of the latest patterns, will last a lifetime.

THE PROPERTY IS ALL UNDER LEASE BY THE YEAR TO HIGHLY DESIRABLE TENANTS.

The building was built for the owner by day labor. All built right!

Price, including furniture and furnishings, $75,000. Cash or terms, and some trade will be considered.

VAN NUYS—

The CAPITAL,
The HUB,
The CENTER
OF
THE RECENTLY ANNEXED
LOS ANGELES RIVER VALLEY.

Surrounded by mountains and over One Hundred Thousand Acres of the best-watered, most productive land in Southern California—land that can soon be made to produce over Twenty Million Dollars gross, annually, and will ultimately be inhabited by more than One Hundred Thousand people—land that is tested and proved by production.

Not one line of production alone, but by diversified fruit growing—deciduous and citrus—bean growing, alfalfa, dairying, hogs, poultry, berries, vegetables. A place to live and to make a living. New, yet noted for its parked and rose-bordered electrically lighted boulevards and streets, its modern homes and city conveniences.

We challenge any community to show a more profitable yield from the soil on a greater diversification; a better place to make a home, to educate your children, to grow everything for your table from a small piece of land; a better growth or yield from trees of the same age; more bean from new land; more profit from alfalfa; more modernly equipped dairies; a better established poultry industry, including hatchery, feed store, pullet farm and scores of modern successful poultry ranches.

This development from a barley field in 1911 has been tremendous—yet the stepping toward the future is more pronounced today. You are needed in these activities. There never was such a place or time for home making. We need people of ability and means to build artistic bungalows to sell and rent at Van Nuys. There are scores of people now employed in this dairy and otherwise highly developed agricultural section who cannot be accommodated here until more homes can be built.

There are wonderful opportunities here for many lines of business as well as agricultural pursuits. The Van Nuys Chamber of Commerce joins me in an invitation to you to come out and investigate these possibilities. You will not be annoyed or urged to buy property. The fact is, we are jealous of our success. We have stood together through the hard pioneer period, before the coming of the aqueduct water, have won out, and only seek to encourage the coming of mutually beneficial, successful business and home makers.

W. P. WHITSETT,
Van Nuys, Cal.

FOR SALE—
5-ACRE RANCH.
NEAR THE HARBOR AND CLOSE TO MAIN ST. HARBOR BOULEVARD. FINE, PRODUCTIVE SOIL AND AN ABUNDANCE OF CHEAP WATER.
THE PRICE IS VERY CHEAP.

By paying only $300 down you can have possession of this beautiful suburban ranch. Plant it now and make the rest of your payments from the crops. You can have 9 years at low interest on the balance. Raise your own produce, keep a cow or a goat, chickens, rabbits and a sow. You can supply your family and make a good income besides paying for your land. Here you can be independent. Why pay rent when here you can have a home that will pay for itself and take care of your future? Also the land is bound to increase greatly in value, as it is only a short distance from the harbor, where millions are being spent.

Here is a buy you will always regret if you don't get it. We will be glad to drive you down to see it at any time. LENZ & TUNGATE, 636 South Spring st. 63358.

ONLY $65 PER ACRE.

This 250 acres of choice land located near the city of Sacramento, has a great frontage on the state highway, and not far from a city of 75,000 people. The land is water bearing; is in fine condition; soil adapted to wheat, oats, barley and is choice olive, almond and raisin grape soil; and will say, there is at least 1500 acres in oranges, almonds and olives near this tract from 1 to 9 years old, and under normal rainfall this is a first class piece of oat and barley land, and a sure chance to make some great money.

We also have 400 acres, same character of soil as above, but not quite so level, and about ten miles farther out from the city; but this land is sure great olive and almond land, as the drainage is good, and there are good orchards in the district adjacent. This tract can be bought at a price of $37.50 per acre, and can arrange very liberal terms on either tract of land, with interest at 6 per cent., and can divide either tract.

FOR SALE—
MONEY MAKING FARMS.
That's what Central Colonies farmers claim for this district and the big returns they are receiving from the sale of hogs, alfalfa, potatoes and beans which they are marketing substantiate this claim. Our abundant supply of cheap water, sandy, silt soil in combination with all-year-round two crop growing season means any diligent man's prosperity.
You know farming today is a business, a money-making business where you have the right kind of fertile land, properly located with unexcelled transportation. Chowchilla has good schools, stores, churches, telephones, rural mail delivery, two prosperous national banks in which to deposit the generous returns you receive from your crops.
If you are at all interested in diversified farming and hog raising, don't fail to see us immediately. We have the evidence on the ground which speaks for itself. You will be surprised at the real opportunity there is for you on Central Colonies Farms. Investigate this proposition now.

COUNTRY PROPERTY— For Sale.

Sacramento Valley.

FOR SALE—

SACRAMENTO VALLEY LAND.

CALIFORNIA'S GREATEST FARM LAND OPPORTUNITY.

CAPAY GRANT.

This is the fourth subdivision of this famous grant that has been offered the public. All previous subdivisions, much larger in acreage than this one, have been completely sold out, and are now under intense cultivation.

From almost every standpoint this subdivision offers distinctive advantages over all three previous subdivisions. There is no pioneering to do, the success of this entire country has been definitely proven. The land has been developed, homes have been built, the community established.

The soil is a very rich, black silt, with absolutely no hardpan, gumbo, or alkali. It lies beautifully level, with practically no preliminary work required for crop production.

It lies in the choicest part of the Sacramento Valley, in a very network of ready markets, and with San Francisco and Sacramento only a short run away.

For the farmer who is seeking land where he can make his permanent home under the most idealistic conditions prevailing anywhere in America, and where he has a very definite assurance of a bright and prosperous future, Capay Grant offers a unique opportunity.

The water system at Capay Grant is ideal. An electrically operated pumping plant, established on every 80 acres, draws its water supply from its own well.

The land is offered at $175 an acre, on easy terms. The price includes an electrically operated pumping plant on each 80 acres, and is unquestionably the lowest price for similar land with anything like equal advantages available in the Southwest.

READ THIS INTERESTING LETTER

FROM

GEO. D. COURTNEY,

OF DAYTON, WASH.

"When we were here last summer we investigated rather hurriedly, but were satisfied this was a good country. But now that I am back here and working the land I am better satisfied than ever.

"The country around our land has been built up a great deal since we are here. People are living all around us, and we have a lot of nice neighbors.

"I believe this country has a great future, especially for the hog and stock business. We are close to the biggest markets on the Pacific Coast, and in shipping a carload of hogs there is no shrinkage, as it is only about six hours' run to San Francisco.

"The feed proposition here is what will make this in time one of the best hog countries on the Pacific Coast. With the big tonnage of alfalfa that can be raised here, hogs can be raised very cheap, and with the corn to fatten them I consider this to be ideal. There is lots of stock on the ranges near here, which makes it easy to get cattle to feed the surplus alfalfa and corn to."

(Signed) "GEO. D. COURTNEY."

We can show you a score of equally interesting and exclusive letters from Capay farmers.

One of the features which delights the farmer here most is the equable climate the year round, and the availability of electricity for light and power on every farm.

It should be no trouble at all for any industrious farmer to pay for his land here out of his crops in a very few years.

The limited amount of acreage available in this fourth subdivision makes it necessary for those who wish to profit by the opportunity to make their reservations now.

FOR SALE— SACRAMENTO VALLEY.

ONLY $65 PER ACRE.

This 200 acres of choice land located near the city of Sacramento, has a great frontage on the State highway, and not far from a city of 75,000 people. The land is water bearing; is in fine condition; soil adapted to wheat, oats, barley and is choice olive, almond and raisin grape soil; and will say, there is at least 1500 acres in oranges, almonds and olives near this tract from 1 to 9 years old, and under normal rainfall this is a first class piece of oat and barley land, and a sure chance to make some great money.

We also have 400 acres, same character of soil as above, but not quite so level, and about ten miles farther out from the city; but this land is sure great olive and almond land, as the drainage is good, and there are good orchards in the district adjacent. This tract can be bought at a price of $37.50 per acre, and can arrange very liberal terms on either tract of land, with interest at 6 per cent., and can divide either tract.

ORANGE, LEMON AND WALNUT GROVES—For Sale and Exchange.

For Sale.

FOR SALE—$4000 FOR $1500. WHAT I MEAN is that I am willing to sell you a perfect orange grove of the character others are asking $4000 an acre for, and will take $1500. My reason is that I want to sell, and mean to make the price so attractive that one who really wants a nice citrus home, will not hesitate.

I have five acres, 12-year-old of Thompson's personal selection and production, Navelencias, in perfect condition as to all vital points. Splendid and cheap water, big wind break and soil of the finest. Location, only two blocks from station and packing-house, and one block to paved boulevard, and good house.

Frosts? Yes. Winds? Yes. I am no liar even though I live in California and own an orange grove, but I am offering raw value and will try to tell you the whole truth. If taken at once this year's crop goes at the price. Reasonable cash payment and long time mortgage on balance. No trades and no commission; I am talking to YOU. 1333½ S. BURLINGTON AVE., Los Angeles.

WANTED—ARE
OUT OF USE?
You should be more skillful.
We can solve your problem.

If you have a subdivision that refuses to move, let us put some real human life into it for you. If you work on the right programme, you can figuratively eat half your cake and still have your penny.

By that, we mean, that the Home Extension plan will populate half of your lot holdings in any desirable tract, and the remaining half will soon become worth more than the whole of it now is in its idle condition. To do this you must make your prices and terms so that you divide part of your future profits with our clients who create them for you.

We have formed garden and farm home securing clubs in this city for fifteen years, and worked out in a practical way the most scientific principles in land development.

We have recently sold over 350 lots in sixty days for leading banks and trust companies, and we can do the same for you.

We are ready to take on undeveloped acreage, and we can give you quick life action that will carry you clear over the top.

Interviews, by mail appointment or personal calls only.

ATTENTION—

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISERS.

The regular issue of The Times of January 26, in which the rate for "Liners," as usual, will be only 10 cents a line, will be sent by many subscribers in connection with the Midwinter Number, to out-of-town friends, thereby largely increasing the circulation of that particular issue.

Take advantage of this opportunity to exploit legitimate mining, oil development, building operations, real estate propositions, business chances, and other business ventures at a minimum cost.

TIMES "LINERS" GET RESULTS.

WE INVITE ANY RESPONSIBLE PERSON INterested in mining to examine samples of rich mineral quartz; will be presented at request. Claims are located in Lone Pine, Inyo county; six miles north of town; fine road for trucks, wagons; title perfect. All expenses paid. Call St. Charles Hotel, 314½ N. Main st., Los Angeles. MINES—
And Mining.

MINING MEN, DO YOU KNOW? OF COURSE you don't, just because some one has been unfriendly enough to say you have the ore, when, if you stop to think, you know he knows no more about it than you do. If you use the "Core Drill," which you can buy for yourself, "you" will then "know," no guess work. Our machines have a 15-h.p. hoist, which you can use to mine with; also a triplex pressure pump and 500 feet discharge pipe to unwater your shaft, and nearly every part, including a fine wagon gear, can be used on mine when through drilling. This investment is not a waste of money, but the best you ever made. If you should not strike ore in the first hole, with the large cores laid on your desk, it doesn't take the time and persuasion to interest capital. Write for circular, or come and see us and see the cores we have here from all over.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
Of Many Kinds.

IT TOOK QUITE A LITTLE WHILE TO SELL that dry goods and art store that I have been advertising, but I did sell it, and one of the shrewdest men in the business in Southern California bought it at the price I held it at. He did not take many minutes to make up his mind that the store was a splendid buy, and that was all there was to it. Now, I have another one of the very same kind of stores in another good town, invoicing about $15,000. I'll put my dollar against your penny that you will buy this store at the price I am asking for it the moment you lay your eyes on the place, providing, of course, that you have the necessary money or security to purchase it with. I truly believe it is the best store of its kind on the market today that can be bought at the invoice cost price, which is at least 25 per cent. below the present market prices. RATTRAY, 1003 Title Insurance Building.

ATTENTION—
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISERS.

The regular issue of The Times of January 26, in which the rate for "Liners," as usual, will be only 10 cents a line, will be sent by many subscribers in connection with the Midwinter Number, to out-of-town friends, thereby largely increasing the circulation of that particular issue.

Take advantage of this opportunity to exploit your patents, trade marks, machine designing and other business ventures at a minimum cost.

TIMES "LINERS" GET RESULTS.

I HAVE A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY FOR A clean-cut, active, young or middle-aged man with managerial ability and approximately $10,000 to buy half interest in my business, a well-established light manufacturing plant, too big now for one man to handle. Profitable enough for two, unless they want the sky. The business can invite the closest investigation, so must the man who wants to come in. Don't answer unless you mean business and can qualify all around. Give details. Address X, box 362, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

CORN PRODUCTS BREAK RECORD.

Refinery Company to Publish Report Next Month.

Surplus Income Expected to Equal $15 on Common.

American Smelting Decline Depresses Market.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Corn Products Refining Company will probably publish its 1918 report some time next month. It is expectetd to show record-breaking gross returns. Surplus income after everything including taxes, should equal approximately $15 a share on the common stock. This would compare with previous years as follows: 1918, $15; 1917, $18.60; 1916, $8.03; 1915, $2.17; 1914, 41 cents.

It will be seen from the foregoing that since 1913 including the estimate for last year, Corn Products has earned more than $44 a share on the common stock. Of this nothing was paid out in dividends. This left (except for $1,098,640 used in cutting down bonded debt) five years' surplus income which was added to the value of the junior shares.

The big expansion in earnings last year made possible a further reduction in bonded debt. This stood at $7,148,680 on December 31, 1917, compared with $8,287,320 at the end of 1913.

Uncertainty regarding the action of directors of the American Smelting and Refining Company when they meet on February 5, on the common dividend plus the general depression today following the decline of prices in Friday's stock market, served to depress the common stock in the half-holiday session.

The report of the company for the six months ended June of last year disclosed a surplus after common dividends of $113,827 against $5,165,001 in the corresponding period in 1917. In some quarters it was suggested that the directors may base their action regarding the common stock on last year's earnings despite good cash holdings. The stock opened today at 72⅛ and sold off to 71 at the close.

Estimated earnings available for the common stock of close to $30 a share in 1918 would again give Republic Iron and Steel the lead over the majority of its competitors. In the past three years the surplus after common dividends, equal to $116.53 a share, would pay common dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. for a period of nearly twenty years.

United States Steel for 1918 is expected to show approximately $25 available for the common. In four years it has added approximately $85 to the value of its common stock or something like $35 a share less than Republic reports in three years.

WEEKLY CITRUS REPORT.

[OFFICE OF THE FRUIT WORLD.]

The market on California navels shows a generally easier tone throughout the East and is no doubt brought about by the frost-damage reports in California which have caused buyers to hesitate in placing orders. It is thought that this condition is only temporary, however, and that the market will soon regain strength when the trade realizes that the shipping of only such oranges as are fit for human consumption will be permitted and that a close watch will be kept on all shipments by both State and Federal inspectors.

Delivered prices are on a basis of $5 to $5.25 for fancy fruit. F.o.b. quotations range from $4 to $4.50, according to district.

At a meeting of citrus growers and shippers called by the field deputy of the State Commission of Horticulture on Thursday, which was attended by the chief of the Western Division of the Federal Food and Drug Laboratories, the Southern California County Horticultural Commissioners, a representative of the Los Angeles County District Attorney's office, and by representatives of most shippers, and by many growers, it was clearly brought out that the law in regard to the shipping of frozen fruit would be strictly enforced.

Mr. Hilts of the Federal Bureau explained the relation of the Food and Drug Acts to the shipment in interstate commerce and the sale of frozen citrus fruits, stating that Food Inspection Decision No. 150 would be enforced. This provides for the seizure of shipments where 15 per cent. of the fruit on a transverse section through the center shows a marked drying in 20 per cent. of the exposed pulp. It was also stated that shipments considered unfit by the State and county officials are being reported to the Federal authorities and that Federal inspectors will be in the field.

Mr. Mackey, representing the State Commissioner of Horticulture, stated that the interpretation of frozen fruit to be used by the State and county inspectors would be where 10 per cent. of the fruit shows marked frost injury in two sections of the fruit.

Two sections of the fruit would be about 20 per cent. of the surface, so the local and Federal rules differ only in the percentage of fruits affected.

With these rulings enforced it would appear that fruit picked now from orchards which suffered considerable damage would be subject to seizure in the markets, and possible prosecution there of the responsible parties, as well as prosecution here.

The meetings held in the different counties expressed the sentiment that the shipment of frozen fruit was injurious to the industry, and Thursday's meeting gave fairly definite interpretations of what the authorities charged with the enforcement of the laws consider frozen fruit.

Considering all the circumstances it would seem that the only safe thing to do with orchards showing any considerable frost damage is to not pick the fruit until the drying is complete and the merchantable fruit can be segregated.

F.o.b. quotations on Florida oranges, both Brights and Goldens, range from $3.75 to $4 from Central districts, and $3.50 to $3.75 from West Coast. In leading auction markets the prices range from $4.30 to $5.30 per box.

LEMONS.

The market on lemons is holding steady on stock in good condition. Delivered prices range mostly around $4. Considerable fruit has been frozen in transit that has been offered the past week and has sold at low prices accordingly.

Any shortage in the California lemon crop because of cold damage will not be noticed until along in July and the markets will be kept well supplied with California lemons for several months to come.

There are 3000 boxes Palermo lemons afloat for New York, also some Messinas, the quantity of which is unknown.

BEARISH SENTIMENT RULES CHICAGO CORN.

BULLS DEPRESS MARKET ON BULGES; WILL NOT FIX HOG PRICES JANUARY 23.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—The grain markets today were irregular with January and May corn closing unchanged and other features ¼ to ⅛ cent lower. January and July oats gained ¼ cent and other futures lost ⅛ to ¼ cent.

Closing prices compared with a week ago showed corn off 3¼ cents to 6½ cents, July leading; oats ⅝ to 1⅞ cents lower, the latter on January; pork 30 to 52½ cents higher, lard 2½ to 20 cents higher and short ribs 5 cents higher to 57½ cents lower.

Local sentiment in corn remains very bearish and in the absence of aggressive buying by bulls the pit element and houses with eastern connections were able to depress prices 1⅛@1⅜ cents after a small bulge at the start. The close, however, was on a rally due to week-end evening up, with January $1.30½, March $1.31¼, May $1.28⅝ and July $1.25. News was decidedly mixed, although somewhat in favor of the bears.

A light trade was on in oats and in the main it reflected the action of corn, closing within ⅜@½ cent of the bottom with January 67½, February and March 67⅝, May 64¼ and July 65⅝ cents.

There is to be no fixing of prices for hogs on January 23; the meeting to arrange for the February hog prices was postponed until January 28. This will defer the uncertainty as to the future course of provision and hog prices as well as grain for five days. The change in the date is due, it is said, to a desire to find out how much product will be needed abroad.

LOS ANGELES MEAT TRADE CONDITIONS.

Moderate supplies of all meat products, excepting lambs, with a good demand, made a firm market, and resulted in an advance in prices in some cases.

Since the first of this year a greater percentage of steers has been offered than cows. The reverse was the rule for several months prior to January. The majority of the steer offerings averaged a hundred to a hundred and fifty pounds heavier and show much better quality than has been usual recently. The supply of cows, especially those of good quality, is decreasing almost daily. Prices on all beef and wholesale cuts therefrom have advanced. Top steer loins are quoted at $31, ribs $30, rounds $20 and triangles $16.50.

Even though the quality of the supply of veal has been only fair and in many cases poor, the prices of veal have continued strong. Medium grade light calves brought $22. Heavy and poor grades did not go below $18.

Local slaughterers were able to secure live hogs at prices a little lower than last week's maximum, but the dressed pork prices are still low in comparison to the live cost. Dressed hogs, head on, sold for $26, loins $33, picnics $25 and spare ribs $21.

The average quality of the lamb offerings has been only fair. Supplies have been fully adequate, but only the better grades seemed to be in favor. Prices have been weak excepting on the better grades, and these grades were used to help move the medium and common lambs.

A few lots of good wethers were shown and firm prices were secured. The supply of ewes has been light and the demand was also light. In some cases price concessions were made to move even the light supply.

All beef and veal supplies intended for this week's sale have closed out strong. Pork is closing firm. Lambs are cleaning up steady and mutton will eventually clean up weak. The general tone of the market is strong and higher.

THE WOOL MARKET: PRICES IN BOSTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—The Commercial Bulletin today will say:

"At the government wood auctions this week, on the whole prices have been little above the government withdrawal basis, which is now known to be on a parity with British civilian issue prices.

"The manufacturing situation is still very much unsettled especially from the industrial point of view. Wool auctions are planned in London in April with government limits probably under the present levels. The foreign primary markets are steady."

FINANCIAL REVIEW.

Steel and Copper Companies Reduce Their Outputs.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Various phases of the reconstruction era assumed more definite form this week, mainly in the curtailment or complete abandonment of operations.

For example, reduction of output was reported from some of the prominent steel and copper companies.

The stock market reflected these conditions, when it did not anticipate them by irregular declines in the quoted values of many issues.

Rails suffered from the additional restraints imposed by the proceedings now before the Senate and injection of labor difficulties.

Removal of virtually the last Federal restrictions against some of the commodities most in use during the war was accompanied by further downward price revision in those staples.

Monetary conditions have become sufficiently stabilized to warrant new financing among corporations not of the first rank and indications point to one or more foreign projects of that character in this market before the advent of the "Victory" loan.

FEDERAL RESERVE WEEKLY STATEMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Reduced demand for commercial loans is indicated by the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement showing $161,000,000 less bills on hand at the twelve Federal reserve banks than last week. The banks' condition at the close of business last night was as follows:

RUSSIAN BONDS JUMP ON NEW YORK MARKET.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Strength in the Imperial Russian Government 6½ per cent. external bonds was manifest in today's trading, the close being 58, an advance of 3½ points over the last sale of Saturday. These bonds hold possibilities which have attracted speculators. The interest has been paid with regularity at the National City Bank and with the issue maturing on June 18 the question has been raised as to whether the $50,000,000 represented will be paid off in cash at that time.

After Russian affairs became chaotic there was little disposition to consider the bonds with much favor. It is now being argued by some that as long as interest has been paid this fact may be taken as a favorable augury for the actual retirement of the issue on a cash basis. This factor has undoubtedly contributed to the rise. A bond selling at 58 which might be retired at par within six months holds a margin of profit which would be highly alluring did it not seem on its face to be almost beyond the realm of possibility.

COVERING BY SHORTS BOOSTS N. Y. COTTON.

SCATTERED LIQUIDATION ON BULGES AT CLOSE CAUSES A REACTION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Yesterday's rallies were followed by a comparatively quiet and somewhat irregular opening in the cotton market this morning. First prices were from 15 points higher to 10 points lower, with the near months relatively firm on scattered covering by January shorts. The market worked up to 4@15 points net higher on scattered covering for over the week end, and probably some buying for a reaction. The early bulge met some considerable scattering liquidation, under which prices reacted 21@28 points net lower. Offerings were absorbed at this level, however, and later fluctuations were irregular. The close was very steady, with net from 6 points higher to 10 points lower. The Census Bureau in a report issued today on cottonseed and cottonseed products, places the production of linters from August 1, 1918, to December 31, 1918, at 579,778 500-pound bales. The report places the amount of cottonseed received at the mills at 3,218,753 tons. The quantity crushed during this period was 2,127,544 tons. The amount held at the mills on December 31 was 1,131,647 tons.

Business Department--Stocks--Oil--Mining.

AFTER A BUSY WEEK.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

Immediately after the armistice was signed, it was pointed out that stocks were depleted, shelves empty and that manufacturers and jobbers would be so busy catching up with peace demands that they would have no time to concern themselves over canceled war orders. On top of this came the greatest holiday season in the history of the city, and generally throughout the country.

But the expected heavy future buying failed to materialize, and, as a matter of fact, it has not yet materialized. This sets up a queer state of affairs, i.e., big retail business; light wholesale business. Merchants are buying from hand to mouth. There has been scarcely any appreciable decline in the price of raw materials, and cost prices remain high. The retailer does not dare to contract for heavy purchases at the prevailing prices, and the manufacturer and the jobber cannot see their way clear to cut the commodity prices so long as they can get the margins which prevail, and so long as the labor market remains as uncertain a quantity as it appears to be at the present time.

Stock brokers are a much maligned group, but gradually their business is coming to be better understood by the public at large, and the fact that they are not gamblers, second-story men and plain or fancy burglars is beginning to seep in. The determined stand taken all over the country by members of exchanges against the cut-rate Liberty Bond buyers affords one of the best evidences of the generally high standard of service and ethics these men feel that they owe to themselves and to the public.

Now comes a solon with a scheme for coloring distillate so that it will no longer be possible to sell it for gasoline. California refiners say that eastern buyers demand a water-white distillate, and that if a local law is adopted requiring special treatment it will bring the cost of the inferior article close to the gas price without improving the quality. A suitable test and "square dealing" would seem to be a better way of meeting the question than attempting to make the product look like a legal crazy quilt.

While on the subject of oil this seems to be a good place to reply to the many inquirers who have recently sought information concerning the so-called "Liberty Fuel," which was to revolutionize the automobile industry and provide a power that was to be better than high-test gasoline and which would cost, according to the highly-colored prospectus, little or nothing.

A good deal of attention was given the proposition because it seemed to have the stamp of approval of the government, but now it turns out that the fuel is N.G., and that even if it was practicable otherwise there is so little of its base, benzol, available, that not more than 2 per cent. of the present output of gas could be supplied. Exit Liberty fuel.

The petroleum output for 1918 from the main sources of supply, according to statistics just available, was 345,500,000 barrels as compared with 335,315,101 in 1917, an increase of 3 per cent. The California output was 101,300,500 as against 93,877,549 in 1917. The domestic requirements were approximately 400,000,000 barrels, the balance being supplied from storage stock and Mexican imports.

The third biweekly offer of treasury certificates at 4½ per cent., issued in anticipation of the new loan, was oversubscribed. The quota was $750,000,000 and the subscription $751,684,500. The quota for the San Francisco Federal Reserve District was $53,000,000 and the subscription $45,000,000.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Boss Gold Mining Company held at the office of the company in the Security Building, S. E. Yount was re-elected president; O. J. Fisk, vice-president, and Lane C. Gilliam, secretary-manager-treasurer. Count G. A. H. de Pauw, and N. K. Potter were added to the board of directors. The same officials will serve the Yellow Pine Mining Company with the addition of Samuel Westfall of San Francisco, who was chosen a director. President Yount states that as soon as the metal market rights itself these concerns will be among the earliest come-backs. The excessive cost of production during the war slowed down their activities somewhat, but with the early probability of government relief conditions are soon expected to undergo a material change.

It has been a week of annual meetings and elections in local banking circles, but few changes were made. Here and there a promotion and here and there a new face, but for the most part Los Angeles financial institutions are so capably administered that there is little excuse for changes. The annual statements coincided with those already published and only emphasized the remarkably fine condition of our local strongholds. One of the latest of the banks to meet and perfect its 1919 organization was the Citizens' National. All of the former officers were re-elected as follows: A. J. Waters, president; E. T. Pettigrew, J. M. Rugg, W. J. Doran, M. J. Monnette, vice-presidents; H. D. Ivey, cashier; George E. F. Duffet, George Bugbee, L. O. Ivey, assistant cashiers; Sam S. Parsons, auditor. The board of directors is unchanged except for the addition of S. S. Parsons. It is composed of Jesse B. Alexander, M. J. Connell, L. J. Christopher, Albert Crutcher, J. M. Danziger, Frank A. Garbutt, J. M. Hale, Robert Hale, W. J. Hole, Reese Llewellyn, M. J. Monnette, Orra E. Monnette, F. X. Pfaffinger, W. B. Scott, George W. Walker, A. J. Waters and S. S. Parsons. The deposits of this bank as of December 31, 1918, were $19,154,110.15; capital stock, $1,500,000; surplus, $500,000.

Bank clearings for the week continued high and it is probable that a new January record will be established. The clearings yesterday were $6,227,304.71 and for the six days $37,280,265.32. On three days of the week the clearings exceeded $6,000,000.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Italy resulted in the re-election of directorate and officers. President A. P. Giannini said that the bank and its branches made an extraordinary record during the first ten days of the new year, the net increase in deposits being considerably over $1,000,000, "an excellent indication that our people have acquired the thrift habit to a greater extent than ever before." Surplus and undivided profits as of December 31 amounted to $2,000,000, a gain of $900,000 over the same date in 1917. Deposits of $85,927,839 show an increase of $13,893,111. Total resources now stand at $93,546,161 as compared with $77,473,152 at the close of 1917; an increase of $16,073,009.

There was little of interest on the local stock exchange yesterday and the New York trading was also restricted and professional. There was a good representation of the low-priced stocks, while Liberty Bonds remained steady around 95.62½ for the thirds and 94.62½ for the fourth 4¼'s. United Eastern sold at 4.20@4.21; Union Oil up to 120.50; Union Sugar, 36.75. There were no transactions in General Petroleum. The closing quotation on this stock was 146.00@148.25. For the rights 4.80 was bid. John F. Coleman, well known on the New York curb, visited the exchange during the morning, the guest of J. J. Doran. He is West to inspect mining interests in Arizona.

Clearinghouse Conditions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The actual condition of clearinghouse banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $66,688,550 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $5,028,250 from last week.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Unsettlement attended the fairly large dealings in stocks during today's abbreviated session, professional traders resuming their attacks against the more susceptible issues.

Conspicuous among the latter were oils. Mexican Petroleum lost 6½ points and others 1 to 2½. Motors, tobaccos, equipments and the steel group also yielded 1 to 3 points.

Selling of United States Steel was the outstanding feature of the final hour, blocks of 1000 to 5000 shares changing hands at 90, within 3½ points of its minimum of 1918.

Shippings and coppers also fell a point, with such investment rails as Reading and Louisville and Nashville, but distilling shares reversed their recent course, showing moderate strength. Among the more important stocks final prices were mostly at lowest levels. Sales amounted to 315,000 shares.

Bonds eased slightly at the end, internationals displaying irregularity. Total sales (par value) aggregated $4,150,000.

Old United States coupons and registered 2's lost ½ per cent. on call during the week, the registered 4's declining 1¾ per cent.

Final prices on Liberty Bonds today were: 3½'s, 99.20; first convertible 4's, 94.02; second 4's, 93.86; first convertible 4¼'s, 96.10; second convertible 4¼'s, 95.00; third 4¼'s, 96.00; fourth 4¼'s, 95.02.

YANKS THROW WEALTH AWAY.

Scatter German Marks to the Winds in Argonne Drive.

British are Wiser, Keep Riches Found in Dugouts.

Southland Men Rewarded for Conspicuous Bravery.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS,
"The Times'" Own War Correspondent.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 8.—Brilliant leadership and personal courage of Maj. William E. Aird has won for him the Distinguished Service Cross. I met him for the first time before the attack, and had not talked with him five minutes before picking him as a winner. His sound tactics and good judgment was a big factor in the attack on his part of the line, but his most spectacular feat was the capture of a battery of 77-mm. guns, which he sighted through the barrel, and in this way destroyed enemy emplacements and machine-gun nests. The citation gives his residence as Tacoma, but that is only temporary. His home is in Gardena. Maj. Aird is a veteran of the Spanish-American and Boer wars.

For sheer coolness, Corp. Michael Carter of Los Angeles probably holds the championship. During the attack on Gesnes, Corp. Carter repeatedly spliced telephone wires under extremely heavy machine-gun and shellfire. This aided materially in maintaining communications between the battalion and regimental posts. Those who saw Carter expected him to be shot down every moment, and yet he worked on apparently heedless of the danger. None who witnessed the act were surprised when he received the Distinguished Service Cross. His address is No. 240 South Griffin avenue.

GAVE LIFE TO VICTORY.

The war has shown no finer example of courage and disregard of danger than that of Maj. Oscar F. Miller, who has been posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. Maj. Miller resided at No. 1727 West Fifty-first street, Los Angeles. He led his men in a dashing charge against the 350 machine guns which defended Gesnes. Wounded and then wounded again, he did not falter. Still he plunged on into that hurricane of steel until stricken mortally by a third wound. Inspired by his action, his men overcame all obstacles and reached their objectives.

Some of our men might have emerged from the Argonne drive suddenly rich had they realized that the German mark is still worth something, at least in Belgium, where it is largely in circulation and must be redeemed by the German government. Considerable quantities of German paper money was left in the dugouts by the Huns in their haste to retreat. Some of the soldiers kept a little for souvenirs, but for the most part it was thrown away or used for cigar lighters.

I am told that Sergt. Dave Bishop of Perris, a friend of Ross, John and Bert Dunlap, tossed away 4000 marks in Germany money, scattering it aimlessly about the Argonne, where it was blown hither and thither by vagrant winds. On reaching Belgium, where the mark is in full bloom commercially on the strength of its enforced redemption, dozens of our men ruefully remembered those which they had scattered among the autumn leaves.

BRITISHER WAS WISE.

Some of the British played in better luck. While in Brussels the other day Lieut. Jake Schoeler of Los Angeles met up with a couple of British officers who were celebrating with 30,000 marks which they had captured, and, being wise in their day and generation, retained. They were in a convival frame of mind and offered to buy him anything from the Gaiety to the Merry Widow Grill.

Lieut.-Col. Tom Driscoll recently sustained a gaping wound in his bank roll. It was during a recent trip to Calais. Fresh fruit is by no means plentiful in the army, and one of the first things that he saw in Calais were huge clusters of rich hothouse grapes displayed in a restaurant window. They were draped with a sign that read "Grapes, 15 centimes." That sounded reasonable. Lieut.-Col. Driscoll didn't stop with one bunch. Neither did he stop with two, nor with three. He made it an even four clusters. When he received his bill it read something like 1,000,000,000 centimes, and reminded him of a new war loan. The sign was misleading, the price being 15 centimes per grape. But he came across and charged it up to experience.

The hothouse growing of grapes, and even of peaches, is quite an industry in Belgium. Miles of these hothouses are to be seen in the vicinity of Brussels. The grapes attain an unusual size, being almost as large as crab apples, but lack the flavor of those which ripen in the sunshine of summer.

BELGIUM-MADE TOYS.

Like a breath from a fairyland was a cart piled high with bright-colored toys trundling down through No Man's Land the other day for the coast-town Christmas trade. These ranged from hobby horses to jumping-jacks, and included a number of beautiful dolls. They were the product of a new industry in Brussels, having been manufactured in secret during the German occupation—an industry which means that the famous Nuremburg toys have forever lost the Belgian market. Don't worry about any scarcity of Christmas toys in the years to come. There will be an abundance of them bearing the trademark "Made in Belgium."

Incidentally, wooden kitchen utensils so long the product of the Black Forest, have been secretly manufactured in Brussels on a large scale, as have glass articles used in laboratories.

These subrosa industrial activities are clear evidence that the Belgians never lost hope, and this fortitude will be rewarded with a large trade in America.

Not only are many of our soldiers buying wooden shoes as souvenirs, but some of them seriously contemplate wearing them in case we remain in Flanders indefinitely. They are the only thing for this country, being in reality mud scows. Under them the natives wear a heavy sock or stocking to keep the hoof warm, and these are sometimes soled with light leather. On entering the house they simply step out of their wooden shoes in the hall and insert their feet into comfortable dry slippers. Thus the mud gets no farther than the hall. Wooden shoes are a disadvantage to the police department only. They make it impossible to maintain a "gumshoe" squad. A Belgian detective trying to slip up on somebody sounds like a stiff-legged horse walking down hill.

FISH NOT COMING TO SUIT CONSUMERS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Jan. 18.—The fastidious notions of Mr. Consumer and the scarcity of both big and little sardines is causing the canners considerable anxiety. There is a heavy demand for little sardines packed in quarter-pound cans in oil, but the fish now running are all too large for this size cans. The half-pound cans of the larger fish retail for 35 cents, but the consumer insists on the small cans, which retail at 25 cents. The result is that the warehouses are being filled with half-pound cans while dealers clamor for the smaller sizes.

Still larger fish than have been caught this season are also in demand packed in oval cans. So far this season practically all the fish caught have to be put up in half-pound cans, of which there is an overproduction. It is hoped that later in the season the other sizes of fish will be plentiful. Generallly there is a variety of fish running at various times and the long run of half-pound size is unusual. It takes a sardine about two years to grow to maturity.

RAILROAD MANAGEMENT SEPARATES DIVISIONS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Separation of the existing divisions of public service and accounting of the railroad administration, effective February 1, was announced today by Director-General Hines.

Judge A. C. Prouty, head of the combined divisions, will become director of the division of accounting.

Director-General Hines also announced the appointment of J. H. Young, formerly president of the Norfolk Southern, as senior assistant director of the division of operation.

TO OPEN HOTEL.

Announcement is made that the St. Catherine Hotel on Santa Catalina Island will be opened next Saturday, January 25. A number of improvements have been made to the property since last summer, these including the installation of a swimming pool, the building of a glassed-in sun parlor and the completion of an eighteen-room cottage adjoining the hostelry proper. A new steamer pier has been constructed in front of the hotel, and auto service for the year between the hotel and Avalon has been started. The St. Catherine is under the management of George E. Daul. Tourists are now beginning to swarm over to Catalina, according to A. H. Splittstoesser, passenger agent for the Wilmington Transportation Company.

What These Men Have Done YOU Can Do

A few experiences selected from hundreds. Not picked out to represent unusual success, but to show a safe, fair average—what any ordinary man can count on.

T. L. Jones bought fifty acres of new land in December, 1917, a little more than a year ago. To date he has picked 41 bales of cotton and estimates that he has from 12 to 14 bales in addition. This will more than pay for his land.

Conrad Busch, who bought 10 acres of land in Niland in March, 1917, illustrates what the small farmer can accomplish. During 1918 he netted over and above all expenses $800 in garden truck, using only 4 acres for this purpose. He will double his income this year.

Do lands grow in value? Dr. V. T. Smith's experience is typical. The 50 acres he purchased from the association four years ago at $125 per acre, he sold last year at $315 per acre.

Quality of products? The H. H. Clark ranch, which was raw desert four years ago, recently captured at the Liberty Fair, where all Southern California was in competition, first premium on dates, first premium on long staple cotton, first premium on cotton in bolls, second premium on kaffir corn.

Sometimes men start with investments that seem impossibly small. Dolf Kruetz purchased his first lands from the association four years ago—a 10-acre tract on which he made only an initial payment, leaving him a working capital of seventy dollars. He has paid out entirely on his original 10 acres, made three payments on a second 10 acres, made two payments on a third and fourth 10 acres, and has asked for a deed to the whole forty acres as he will be able to pay out on all his land by the first of June.

Imperial Valley's opportunities are varied as well as great. Mr. A. Logan, who purchased lands from the association, shipped last year $70,000 worth of honey, $22,000 of which was produced by his own bees.

Often cheaper to buy than rent. Mr. Robert Young, in the fall of 1916, rented 320 acres at an agreed upon rental of one-quarter of his crops. Some months later he decided to buy, agreeing to pay $3000 in six months and the balance over a term of years.

At the time of making his payment he had sold his crops. The purchase payment was $3000. The one-quarter of the crops had brought him $3700. Mr. Young will pay out on his entire 320 acres on the first of June.

The chief wonder in Imperial Valley is not the size of the crops, big as they are, but the fact that so large a proportion of them are produced by inexperienced farmers—city men. This is possible because farming in the Imperial Valley is reduced to its simplest rudiments—the same type of farming practised by primitive man—the type of farming that made Egyptian fortunes thousands of years ago.

Sedimentary soil—silt-laden water—almost perpetual sunshine.

Three simple processes—putting the seed in the ground, letting the water flow over the lands, harvesting.

Thousands are doing it successfully; why not you?

This Advertisement Is For You

Imperial Valley Lands

Sold on payments of one-fifth down—practically rent. This small payment, unless subsequent payments are fulfilled, does not compensate the association for tying up its property, to say nothing of the bother and expense. Such an arrangement would be business suicide unless the outcome were virtually assured. Yet these lands are sold to many men whose only means of meeting their payments is the crops which the lands produce. The association knows this and willingly backs them up to this big extent. Can you doubt for a moment that the opportunity is all that is claimed for it?

Lands that grow two crops	YOU can buy these lands
Lands that grow bumper crops	YOU can finance these lands
Lands that pay for themselves	YOU can farm these lands
Lands that grow in value	YOU should own these lands

You who now sit reading this advertisement, whoever you are, wherever you are, whatever your circumstance may be, you are the man to whom this advertisement is directed.

You are the man for whom Imperial Valley holds forth OPPORTUNITY. You are the man who can increase your income. You are the man who can add to your wealth. You are the man who can and should buy Imperial Valley lands.

We want you to meet opportunity half way—to investigate. We want to talk with you, show you photographs, answers your questions, give you one of our booklets.

The Truth About Imperial Valley Is So Beyond Precedent That a Statement of Facts Almost Prejudices the Case

While the success and reputation of this association entitle its words to weigh heavily, yet we ask no such consideration. The facts are here to speak for themselves—the lands, the water, the crops, the prosperous colonists. Look in the faces of Imperial Valley farmers and you can read FREEDOM FROM WORRY, COMFORTABLE LIVING, CONFIDENCE.

We want you to know that these lands do produce two bumper crops each year, that they do frequently pay for themselves in one year's time, that they do win independence for men who start with practically nothing, that they do make fortunes for men whose circumstances are probably more limited than your own.

Prices $75 to $120 Per Acre in Tracts to Suit

You get the advantage of the association's low prices, of its rent-like terms, of its helpful co-operation. You get the advantage of buying the exact amount that best suits your resources and your purpose. You get expert advice in picking out the spot that is ideal for whatever type of farming you prefer.

You can farm these lands yourself, you can engage men to farm them for you, you can rent them to other men until ready to utilize them. You can specialize or diversify, and you can grow record-breaking crops of cotton, corn, milo maize, barley, alfalfa. You can raise cattle, sheep, hogs, turkeys, chickens. On the wonderful frostless lands you can grow grapefruit, lemons, grapes and the earliest of early winter vegetables. Any of the association's information and sales-offices will be glad to provide you with the most complete and detailed information.

The shall go with the car and with the same automobile A transfer of fee of $1 shall be paid by of an automobile shall be no registration of cars by dealers, there shall be no refunds and no reregistration of cars.

The Committee on Road Speeds, of which Corp. Wallman, head of the Oakland traffic squad, is chairman, recommends standardized laws in all cities. All automobiles whose construction is such that the driver cannot see clearly behind him must carry a mirror in order that his vision shall be clear. Other recommendations by this committee are as follows: All automobiles stopping must do so next to the curb so that the road may be left unobstructed, no cut-outs shall be allowed at any time or at any place, at street intersections where there are traffic officers pedestrians must move with the traffic and no jay-walking catecornered across the corners is to be allowed. A distinct change in the speed laws was proposed when it was recommended that a speed of forty miles per hour shall be allowed on open country roads where there are no blind crossings or other vehicles within 400 feet of the machine. A twenty-mile speed limit on wet, improved streets was also recommended, as were a ten-mile speed limit at railroad crossings where the view is obstructed, and fifteen miles per hour where the view of the tracks is clear.

On the recommendation of the Committee on Safety Devices and Signals it was decided to make compulsory the use of the full arm signal when turning either to the right or the left and in cases where closed windows or other structural features of the car make this impossible, some mechanical device answering the same purpose must be used. All trailers carrying more than one ton must have brakes. The headlight law has been so changed as to give it some teeth and Prof. Corey of the University of California has been named to test all headlight dimming devices. Makers of these devices may have them tested and officially approved or disapproved for a fee of $50.

Severe penalties for those who joy-ride were suggested by the Committee on Penalties of which David Faries is chairman. These recommendations provide for making the operation of an automobile without the owner's consent a felony, whereas under the present law, it may be either a felony or a misdemeanor. The maximum penalty is also raised to from one to five years. Operation of an automobile by a person under the influence of liquor is also made a felony and the penalty is put at from one to three years. It is also proposed that a motorist who demands immediate appearance before a justice of the peace, does not thereby forfeit his right to a five-day stay before trial, for preparation of his case. All fines shall be made payable to the city or the county rather than to the justice of the peace himself.

A new scheme to aid in the prevention of auto thefts and assist in the apprehension of the thieves is also to be incorporated in the new law. This provides for an operator's license fee of 25 cents which sum shall go for the maintainance of State motor police, part of whose duty shall be that of watching the roads that lead out of the State. By this means many of the cars that are stolen, can be stopped at the State border.

The Highway Transport Committee made one recommendation of vital importance and that is changing the age for chauffeurs of automobiles that are for hire, from an 18-year minimum as at present to a minimum of 21 years.

The meeting, which was in session from early in the morning until well towards supper time, adjourned to meet again at the call of the chairman, John W. Stetson. The recommendations of the first committee, that on administration and registration, will be read at Sacramento on Tuesday in the office of P. J. Tehaney.

GOLF RESULTS.

Bill Campbell and Elmer Ralphs horned their way into the final round of the Annandale invitation tourney yesterday, the former by eliminating Jack Niven 2 up and the latter by heading off A. D. S. Johnson 1 up and 2 to go. They will meet in the final round today.

Splendid golf was put up by Campbell and Niven, who played together in the semi-finals. Campbell made his round in 73, only one stroke worse than his sensational opening day score, and Niven gave him hot competition by getting around in 75 himself. When Elmer Ralphs rolled in with a 73, the exact duplicate of Campbell's score, a wonderful match in the finals was assured. A. D. S. Johnson, who lost to Ralphs, made the course in 74, so that it can easily be seen that the shooting was good throughout. There were ten extra hole matches.

In the second flight W. G. Bowman defeated A. C. Volk 6 up and 4, R. Beekman defeated E. C. Wilson 1 up at the nineteenth hole.

Fred Harris defeated J. H. Warner 4 up and 3 and F. H. Gilchrist eliminated Leigh Guyer 3 and 2 in the third flight.

Finalists in the fourth flight are J. E. Heath, who won by default and W. M. Thompson, who defeated W. H. Patterson, 1 up.

J. B. Price was 1 up on A. S. Rendell and B. O. Kendall beat J. B. Fahy 1 up in nineteen holes in the fifth flight.

In the sixth flight E. E. Thompson defeated C. E. Arnold 1 up and George Converse headed off W. K. Parkinson 1 up.

H. M. Snider was 7 and 5 on George Curtis and H. C. Rix was 1 up in nineteen holes on R. W. Pridham in the seventh flight.

For eighth flight honors John Munger defeated G. B. Kirker 1 up in nineteen holes and F. B. Mathews had 4 and 3 on M. S. Severance.

E. V. Armstrong eliminated K. E. Van Kuren 2 up and 1, and W. L. Morrell defeated R. L. Burns by the same score in the ninth flight.

H. H. Hammond defeated A. M. Gamble 2 and 1 and H. W. McAlister had 7 and 6 on J. McAlpin in the tenth flight.

A large number of defaults featured the defeated eight rounds.

PEBBLE BEACH LODGE WILD BE OPENED WITH MATCH PLAY SHORTLY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DEL MONTE, Jan. 17.—The long-awaited opening of the magnificent Del Monte Lodge at Pebble Beach will take place on Washington's Birthday, February 22, and will be celebrated with a special golf tournament, which will attract golfers from many points on the Pacific Coast. The golf tournament will be played on the Del Monte second course and an exceptionally fine trophy cup will be given as first prize, and several other handsome trophies will also be given.

With the opening of the lodge, Pebble Beach can boast of one of the finest hotel-club houses. The lodge has been constructed at an approximate cost of $200,000. It is to be operated exclusively on the European plan, and its accommodations include fifty-five sleeping rooms, a la carte grill rooms, a special diet kitchen for the preparation of children's food, tea rooms, lounging parlors, as well as locker rooms and showers and an open plunge for golfers. The lodge is very picturesquely situated on Carmel Bay.

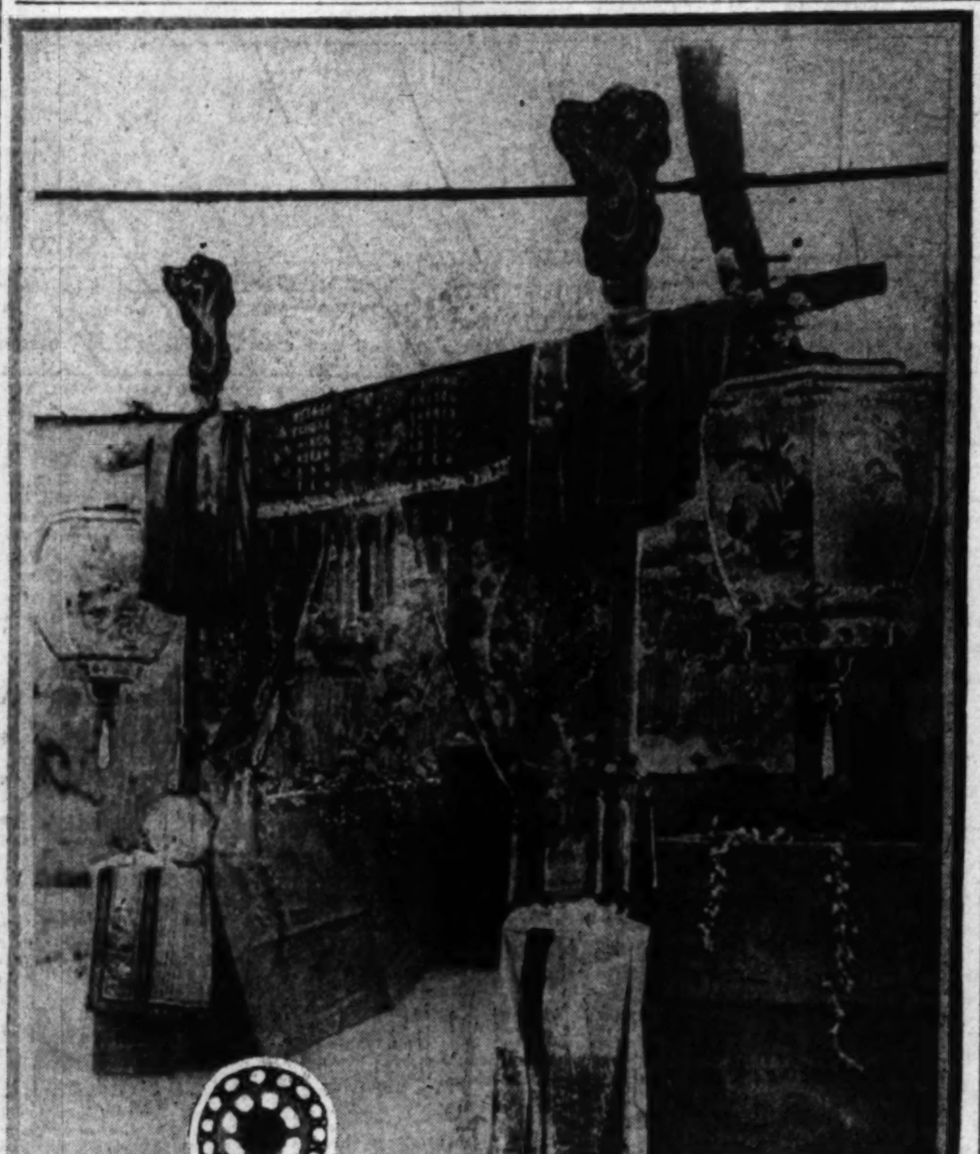
First After-the-War Auto Show Closes, a Great Success.



Where the Greatest of Local Auto Shows was "Bossed."

This is the gateway to the committee headquarters at the motor salon and gives a very faint idea of the decorative scheme. Get out a box of paints and put a little dab of every color on the lanterns, draperies and art objects shown and you will get some small suggestion of the splendor and beauty of the scene. The decorations were such a huge success that San Francisco will copy them in its forthcoming motor salon.

FIFTY THOUSAND AT SHOW.

Tremendous Crowds Flock Through the Tents During Motor Salon.

If ever the public interest in automobiles was doubted, it can be no longer, for the Eighth Annual Automobile Show of the Los Angeles Motor Car Dealers' Association, which closed its doors at 10:30 o'clock last night, was in every way the most successful exhibit of automobiles ever staged locally.

SOME CROWD.

Fifty thousand people passed through the gates into the big canvas tops between the opening, eight days ago, and the closing last night. This is an average of more than 6000 every day and the interest was cumulative as shown by the fact that the attendance increase toward the last days of the show, contrary to the custom at events of which the public does not approve.

Friday and Saturday were the two big days of the salon in spite of the many conspiring circumstances to hold people at home. The show drew a large crowd the opening afternoon and evening, took a drop on Sunday because everybody wanted to ride in their machines in preference to going and looking at other ones, and then from Monday until last night the interest and attendance steadily increased until it is certain that the show could have been held over several more days and still played to capacity.

THE FIRST ONE.

This was the first exhibition of automobiles since the war ended and was regarded with considerable fear and trepidation by many who feared that the public interest, long taken away from motor cars by the great war, had not yet sufficiently returned to normal channels to warrant the holding of a big motor salon.

In spite of the carefully prepared and thoroughly disseminated propaganda to the effect that automobiles were a utility, some 50,000 people turned out to show that they were interested in motor cars whether for useful or pleasure purposes and the hurried manner in which the show was staged, only a few weeks elapsing between the announcement and the actual opening of the show, couldn't keep 'em away.

DECORATIONS.

The daring oriental scheme of decorations was a distinct hit, so much so that the motor-car dealers of San Francisco are said to have decided to try the same thing when they hold their show there shortly. The gaudy Chinese tapestries, lanterns and art work were more than a success and were wonderfully artistic with the lighting scene by the sun in the daytime and the brilliant electric lights at night.

The show committee, composed of P. H. Greer (chairman,) Ralph Hamlin and Don Smith, and Mr. Greer's two valuable assistants in running off the show, Mr. Beardsley and Mr. Cooch, cannot be too highly praised for the splendid manner in which everything was staged and carried out. The plans were daring, but the faith of the committee in their ability to carry out the proposals was more than justified by the results.

BIG SUCCESS.

It was a show of which any city in the country could have been proud, or, to be more eulogistic, it was a show of which Los Angeles could well be proud. We have a reputation for putting on the best shows in the country and our fame will not suffer by reason of the big salon which ended last night.

FORD DOMINATES CAR PRODUCTION.

"Not many people realize just what a unique position the Ford organization occupies in comparison with any other line of industry," declares J. B. Fahy of the Fahy-Atterbury Company, Ford dealers. "Most people know that Ford builds more than one-half the cars that are produced on this continent, but they do not realize, for example, that the biggest shoe factory in the United States produces less than one-fortieth of the entire shoe product of this country. The biggest American flour mill does not produce one-twentieth of the flour. The biggest manufacturer of clothing does not make one-tenth of the clothing. These facts show how overwhelmingly Ford has dominated the field of mechanical transportation."

ROCK CRUSHER TO HELP GOOD ROADS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 18.—Co-operative building may solve the problem of permanent roads to connect outlying rural sections with the paved highways radiating from this city. Supervisor F. M. Pfrimmer has purchased a portable rock crusher, which is to be available for public use. The rock and dump trucks for hauling will be furnished by the county, the residents along the route of the road to be improved furnishing the labor. In this manner, it is believed, roads can be constructed over a considerable area, for which funds are not now available.

TAKE GOOD BONDS FOR GOOD TIRES.

"It must be fully understood that we are not discounting the government bonds in the least when we accept any issue of the Liberty Bonds, at their face value, in payment for Keaton tires," stated A. T. Tarbell, local manager of the Keaton Tire & Rubber Company.

"We are accepting these bonds at their par value, thus giving the bond-holder a chance to secure not only full value for his Liberty Bonds, but also full value in a tire that is as safe as his bond."

DETROIT PLANS WONDERFUL SHOW.

New and Large Building Gives Exhibitors a Chance to Display Complete Lines of Cars and Trucks; Commercial Aircraft to be Seen.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Jan. 17.—Detroit's greatest automobile show will be held March 1 to 8. When the drawing for show space took place every member of the Detroit Automobile Dealers' Association was on hand eager for the opportunity to be represented in this exhibit which promises to be far superior to anything the D.A.D.A. has ever attempted.

Fortunately the Crosstown building in which the show is to be held offers enough space so that each exhibitor will be able to put on an attractive display. In past years Detroit's shows have been so crowded for lack of room that many exhibitors have been forced to show only half of their models. This year's show will find them with a complete line of cars on exhibition and many new features which the show management has never before dared to attempt.

The truck division of the show extends from one end of the building to the other, a distance of 400 feet, with truck exhibits on both sides of the broad aisle. This branch of the industry probably has progressed more rapidly than any other during the past year, and the truck division promises to be a much greater attraction than it has ever been before.

In the space taken by association members there will be exhibited thirty-six different makes of passenger cars with anywhere from three to eight different models of each make.

In the truck division will be found eighteen different makes of trucks ranging in capacity from 1500 pounds to seven tons and with a wide variety of body types, including industrial trucks for factory use.

Only two members of the association are handling tractors at the present time, but there will be other tractor exhibits by non-members who have not yet selected their space.

This representation is greater than it has ever been before and will be increased materially when the dealers and manufacturers who are not members of the association are afforded an opportunity of selecting their spaces.

Accessory men are not members of the association but there will be a goodly representation from this field with many new exhibits which have never been presented to Detroit's showgoers before.

This probably will be the first exhibit in the United States which will boast of an airplane exhibit where the product is actually offered to the buying public.

Airplanes have been shown previously on numerous occasions but merely as curiosities. Now comes a manufacturer who will offer the public an opportunity to purchase airships for general use.

The maker of this aircraft has been one of the most active in the development of airplane motors during the entire period of the war and feels now that the time has come when the airplane will go out of the novelty class into the general utility class.

The passenger cars, trucks and tractors for which space has already been taken are as follows:

Passenger cars: Jordan, Dort, Oakland, Marmon, Hudson, Essex, Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Detroit Electric, Oldsmobile, Packard, Paige, Overland, Willys-Knight, Peerless, Cole, Chandler, Scripps-Booth, Columbia, Abbott, Studebaker, Winton, King, Franklin, Dodge Bros., Ford, Maxwell, Chalmers, Liberty, Nelson, Nash, Pierce Arrow, Rauch & Lang electric, Milburn electric, and Reo.

Trucks: Chevrolet, Dodge Bros., Graham, Ford, Fulton, Republic, Maxwell, Kelly-Springfield, Nash, Pierce-Arrow, Standard, G. M. C., Packard, Paige, White, Denby, Federal, Cleveland tractor, R. & P. tractor, Baker R. & L. Industrial truck.

Plans are all prepared for building an entrance from Woodward avenue to the building which is only a distance of 150 feet. This entrance will be just north of Warren avenue and will make the show the most accessible of any that the dealers have ever had.

A cut of $7 on plates and sheets under the government price has greatly stimulated automobile steel buying the past two weeks. This reduction is one dollar more than that suggested by Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation and many mills are now taking contracts at the lower price. One of the largest makers of automobile frames, is finding buying rapidly approaching normal, and one of the company's officers says automobile production should be in full swing within two or three months, judging from the volume of buying and the fact that automobile makers are calling for deliveries early in February.

Another hopeful sign is the fact that automobile stocks of several big concerns have been in great demand the past two weeks. This is due, it is said, to information regarding business expansion and business outlook. It is understood that such concerns as Willys-Overland, Chevrolet, Chandler, Pierce Arrow, Reo, General Motors, had as many orders booked on the last day of 1918 as they had at any time during the height of the automobile business previous to the war.

Henry Ford's ambition to make everything needed in the building of Ford automobiles seems destined to be achieved. He has been permitted to register the name "Ford" for a tire. His application had been rejected by the examiner of trademarks on the ground that "Ford" was merely the name of an individual. This decision was appealed and now the commissioner of patents rules that the word "Ford" was an index of a reputation and mark of origin. It means that no one else may manufacture a "Ford" tire.

Another Packard truck efficiency test is scheduled to start February 1 for the purpose of teaching truck owners and operators to reduce transportation costs and relieve freight cars, to save gasoline, to save time, to save repairs.

Prize money aggregating $17,600 has been provided. Prizes will not only be given to drivers, but also to accountants and shipping clerks in order to emphasize the fact that truck efficiency is a matter of the whole approach to, and treatment of the transportation question—the right truck, the right size truck for the average load, the way the truck is handled, and what the owners have a right to expect from its service.

TRANSCONTINENTAL TRIPS.

Startling figures regarding the growth of transcontinental motor travel since the sign-posting of the main arteries by the Automobile Club of Southern California are furnished by the registry book of Becker's garage at the New Mexico-Arizona gateway to the National Old Trails. An investigation of the register by Harry Locke disclosed the following statistics:

1912	113 cars
1913	194 cars
1914	419 cars
1915	1367 cars
1916	1774 cars
1917	2607 cars
1918 (to December 24)	4240 cars

It is interesting to note in connection with these figures that the Automobile Club of Southern California began the sign-posting of the National Old Trails in 1913 and completed this work in 1914, the latter year recording an increase of over 200 per cent.

It is estimated that at present about 100 cars per month slip through the gateway without registering.

PACKARD

Liberty Airplanes

are now offered the public for delivery in May or June,

The Packard Motor Car Company is building a number of two-seater airplanes of the latest design, equipped with Packard-Liberty aircraft engines, self-starters, suit case luggage carriers and spare parts.

Packard furnished the basic design of the Liberty motor and but few minor changes were made in the Packard airplane engine to produce the Liberty,

Packard built the first 100 Liberty engines for testing.

Packard was first to get into quantity production of the present Liberty engine, one of which we are exhibiting this week in our salesrooms.

Packard was first to reach maximum production of Liberty motors and built more than any other manufacturer. They produced 6000 before the armistice was signed.

Packard licensed the government, free of charge, to manufacture, or have manufactured, Liberty engines, and after the war all patent and manufacturing rights revert to Packard, the designers, developers and maximum producers of this most wonderful internal combustion motor.

Packard Twin Six carriages and Worm-Drive trucks are the standards by which motor vehicles are judged.

REAL ACTION IS EXPECTED.

Speed Kings Promise Thrills for Spectators.

Renewal of Speed Game will be Spectacular.

Ex-Army Aviator to Tumble in the Clouds.

Seats go on sale tomorrow morning at the George R. Bentel Company, No. 1015 South Grand avenue for the Victory sweepstakes, to be run at Ascot Park, next Sunday afternoon.

This is the notification that the ban on automobile racing in effect during the war has been lifted and that Southern California is to have the first real racing classic of the past two years.

The Ascot Speedway Association has prepared a card for next Sunday that for speed and spirit should outdo any race ever held over the Ascot course.

Every man entered for next Sunday's races is out to win. Every entry has a reputation to sustain and most of them intend to go to Indianapolis for the spring races after they have proven the speed of their cars at Ascot. For that reason the Ascot winners next Sunday will stand high in the line of favoritism in the East and the pace should prove terrific.

George R. Bentel, chairman of the Ascot Contest Committee, announces that the race will be for 100 miles with a purse of $5000.

This makes the distance exactly right according to the viewpoint of the racing fans and it makes the purse right according to the figures of the drivers. The 100-mile course is the most popular distance ever run on the Ascot track.

It gives the spectators a fine view of the pit work at all times and it is long enough to keep the fans constantly in doubt as to who the winner will be. It's the ideal distance to test the metal of the cars and drivers especially on the difficult Ascot turns and pockets.

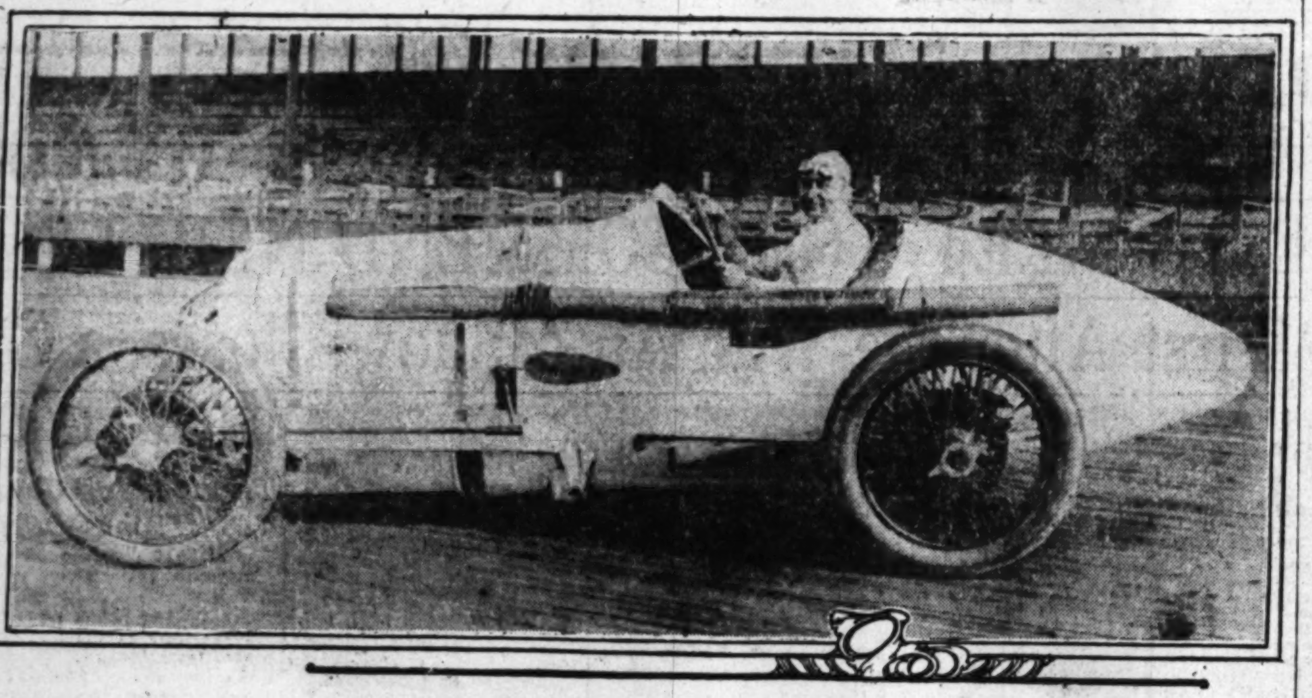
This renewal of the speed game will be attended by the proper ceremonies. It is expected to draw one of the greatest crowds in the history of the racing game here. The grand stands and bleachers are being carefully gone over and the track will be in perfect condition. In order to make the event the most popular of its kind the committee has arranged a popular scale of prices. Parking space will be absolutely free. It will be a case of first come first served. The general admission with a seat in the bleachers will be $1. The admission and seat in the grand stand will be $2 and box seats $3.

The entry list is a remarkable one. It is headed by such racing demons as Eddie O'Donnel, Eddie Hearne, Omar Toft, Roscoe Sarles and many others.

O'Donnel hasn't driven for two years because of injuries sustained upon the occasion of his last appearance. He is one of the greatest drivers of the country and probably knows more about the Ascot track than any driver alive. Old-take-a-chance Eddie Hearne will drive a mystery car. Eddie says he will win. He is the best free-for-all driver in the world and any time he gets on a track, they had better keep out of his way. Omar Toft has a Miller special with which he will race at Indianapolis. Toft is a favorite here. Like O'Donnel and Hearne the fans are for him because he puts heart and courage in his racing work and can always be depended upon to put up a nerve-racking exhibition. Sarles will drive a Roamer with a Deusenberg engine. This car also is to be raced later at Indianapolis. Sarles has never raced at Ascot Park, but he has hung up some records on eastern classics that read an average of 101 miles an hour—and that is the kind of racing the Ascot fans are waiting for.

The big event will be preceded by the marvelous exhibition flying of Larry Brown, who will give all the military stunts used by the American and Allied aviators on the western battle front.

The list of entries for the big race includes the Yakima Special, a fleet Deusenberg to be driven by F. M. Pentecost. This entry is from the Yakima Valley in the great Northwest. It has been sent here with the best wishes and the money of the apple growers behind it and promises to be a strong entry. Two other Deusenbergs, a DeLage, a Gordon Special, a Hudson and other speed craft complete the list. Every car will have to qualify before the race.



Prepared to Show 'em All His Tail Light at Ascot,

Only, of course, Omar Toft doesn't carry any tail light on his fast Miller special when racing. This car is an exact duplicate of Barney Oldfield's gilded speed boat and is as fast as they make 'em.

MOTOR TRUCK FOR BIG OIL COMPANY.

LOCAL CONCERN PROPOSES TO STANDARDIZE ALL ITS EQUIPMENT.

After having used about every kind of motor truck equipment with varying degrees of success, the Ventura Oil Company has purchased a Mack truck as the first unit in the drift toward standardized equipment. The Mack is a three and one-half-ton model, similar in every way to the one that attracted so much attention at the Automobile Show and the truck that made history in the transportation of parts for the Carnegie Solar Observatory to the summit of Mt. Wilson. Big oil companies are among the chief users of Mack trucks in all parts of the country. These corporations are keen judges of trucks and measure their investment in equipment by what they have reason to expect will be returned to them in service.

J. A. Stoner, manager of the International Mack Corporation, western representative for Mack trucks, recently returned from a visit to the northern part of the territory and reports indications are that 1919 will see more motor trucks put into use than has been the case in any year in history. Trucks of an established reputation, that have been featured by development rather than by repeated changing in design and construction are going to exert the most influence in the domestic market, he says.

AIRPLANE TYPE COMING.

"An article in one of the current motor trade papers last week declared that 75 per cent. of the motors now on the drafting boards of the big motor plants of the country were of the overhead camshaft type. Naturally this statement was decidedly gratifying to me, for it confirms what I have repeatedly said regarding this type of motor becoming the accepted type for automobile construction within a few years," declared Frank Nelson, distributor for the Nelson car.

"Undoubtedly the influence of airplane motor construction has brought this about. It was study of airplane motors and their marked efficiency that led the designer of the Nelson car to adopt this type of construction for the Nelson motor.

"I was very much interested this week to get the verdict of an expert aviation mechanic on the Nelson motor. I received a letter from Sergt. C. W. Jaeger, an instructor at North Island flying field, who had made a close examination of the Nelson motor.

"'The power and drive units appeal to me as the very acme of advancement in self-propelled vehicle development,' wrote Sergt. Jaeger. 'You will no doubt be pleased to know that 90 per cent. of the world's best aircraft records have been made by machines carrying the Hispano-Suiza motor, which is built with the same valve-in-head and the same valve action as employed in the Nelson.

"'Personally, I much prefer this direct-acting valve-to-cam type of motor, as it has not only proved the fastest, often making the speed of 142 miles per hour, but it has given much less trouble and greater stability in every instance which has come under my observation in comparison with others in actual practice.'"

BANQUET A BIG SUCCESS.

The fifth annual banquet of the Greer-Robbins Company, Hupmobile and Chalmers distributors, held in the ballroom of the Alexandria Hotel, last Tuesday night, was attended by about 100 persons, including members of the wholesale and retail sales force and dealers from this State and Arizona. Those present who had attended the previous banquets declared that the last one, from the standpoint of attendance, enthusiasm and entertainment was the topnotcher.

The guests assembled at the Greer-Robbins Company at 5:30 o'clock and were transported in Hupmobile and Chalmers cars to the hotel, where F. L. Harris, wholesale manager, who presided arranged the seating of the guests. P. H. Greer occupied the seat at his right with A. C. Robbins, seated at his left.

Although it had been announced that there would be no prepared speeches, a number were called upon for impromptu remarks and these furnished much pleasure as well as profit. Christy Walsh, recently discharged as an officer of the Motor Transport Corps and who for three years was advertising manager for the Greer-Robbins Company, was called upon and in responding, ran true to form. Although he had been unfortunate in not being sent overseas, still, he said, he was a member of the A.E.F. He explained, that in his experiences, these letters referred to "Americans exiled in Florida." Walsh passed much of his time in the camp at Jacksonville. After a visit with his parents he leaves with his wife for New York, where he is associated with a well-known advertising firm.

Several laudatory references by those who spoke were made to P. H. Greer for the remarkable ability he has shown in putting on the eighth annual auto show. Greer, in responding, viewed briefly the business of the past year and told his hearers that 1919 was one of wonderful promise. A. C. Robbins spoke in the same vein. E. W. Millburn, manager of the San Francisco branch of the company, and who was in the city to attend the show, made complimentary reference to the company's effective organization, and the success that has been the result of co-operation on the part of its members. George H. Reuben of Phoenix, the company's dealer at that point and the head of the Auto Association of Arizona, was an interesting speaker.

CLOSED CARS POPULAR.

As a result of the auto show, Al G. Faulkner, State Marmon distributor, is more firmly convinced that inclosed cars are gaining favor with the motoring public and particularly in Southern California. The exhibit of Marmons was one of the finest exhibits and daily attracted its full share of visitors.

"It was very noticeable how people talked inclosed cars. Two years ago—yes, last year—the sentiment in this respect was not to be compared with what we encountered this year. People are finding out that scientific construction of chasses and bodies makes the inclosed car as well adapted for ordinary touring as is the open job," said Faulkner.

"There are many motorists in this country today who are strong for an individual body—something that is distinctive. We find that the idea is gaining strength in California. Coach makers tell us that there is no finer chassis for which to design bodies than the Marmon. Its design, no less than its construction, its balance and durability leave them free to follow any inspiration, type or body style they or their customers fancy. They may follow any style or period and blend their creations in with the Marmon chassis perfectly because of its lines and superior construction."

Faulkner remarked that it was worthy of comment the number of eastern tourists who visited the show. One remarked that he thought there were more high-grade cars to be seen on the streets of Los Angeles than in New York, population considered.

SLOGAN MAKES BIG HIT.

"We call this the greaseless and squeakless car." B. F. Shields of the B. F. Shields Company, new distributors for the Lexington car in Southern California and Arizona, says he repeated this phrase so many hundreds of times at the automobile show that it finally affected his sleep. He said he hoped it became so fixed in the minds of the people hearing the words that it disturbed their dreams also.

The new Lexington distributors and the Culbertson-Howell Company, the Los Angeles representatives, are among the most ardent supporters of the show, as they were presented with an opportunity to put the car before several thousand people the very first week they were identified with the business. They obtained space in the show at the very last minute, and the car and chassis they exhibited were strictly of standard construction.

"We had opportunity to come into contact with the motor car public of this part of the country for the first time under the very best of circumstances," said Mr. Shields. "We met a large number of users of Lexington cars, and it was extremely gratifying to us to hear them praise the car. All told us they were equally as well pleased to learn that the Lexington line has now acquired substantial representation here, and the prediction was made freely that the future ahead of the car is very bright.

"It is our intention to establish subdealers in all parts of the territory, and already we have a number of these under consideration. As soon as the contracts are entered into we shall announce their names so that the Lexington owners throughout this part of the country may know where they can take their cars and obtain the same sort of service and attention as it is our aim to establish in Los Angeles."

DELEGATION IS AFTER NEW ROAD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, Jan. 17.—This county has a delegation at Sacramento pulling for an appropriation to assist in building a paved highway from Santa Barbara county into San Joaquin Valley, by way of the Cuyama and Maricopa. Word received by wire from the delegation indicates that success is in sight. The road will not only open up the trade of the Cuyama for the northern end of the county, but will make a short cut to the coast for the San Joaquin Valley motorists. Santa Barbara county has appropriated $50,000, and asks a like sum from the State, the Federal government having signified a willingness to appropriate $100,000. This would make a fund of $200,000; sufficient to build a permanent highway. Lompoc also has a delegation at Sacramento seeking aid for the building of a paved highway from Lompoc to the State highway, a distance of twenty-one miles.

CONDITION OF STATE ROADS.

That both the coast and inland routes to San Francisco are in excellent shape is indicated by the latest inspection tour of the Automobile Club of Southern California. The Auto Club report states that there is only sixty miles of dirt road on the coast route, less than twelve of which can be classified as poor. All detours on this road are in good shape pending wet weather.

On the inland route the major portion of travel is favoring the Ridge, which is in excellent condition, including the detour of 1.4 miles found twenty-two miles beyond Saugus. The detour, although in good shape, is steep and narrow and calls for careful driving. There remains only three miles of dirt road in Tulare county on the inland route.

ADVERTISING MAN OFF FOR THE EAST.

L. R. Uhlenhart, advertising manager for the Los Angeles branch of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, left a few days ago for the Goodrich factories at Akron, where he will attend an important advertising conference. Mr. Uhlenhart will stop off at San Francisco, where he will be joined by Mr. E. H. Barnum, advertising manager for the northern branch. They will probably return the latter part of the month.

Owning a CHEVROLET is like owning a high class watch.

—Except that the first cost, relatively, is much more for a good timepiece than it is for a good automobile like the CHEVROLET.

But after the initial investment the same procedure is followed.

You wind your watch regularly and, occasionally, let the jeweler look it over for any little adjustments needed.

You "wind" your CHEVROLET with gasoline, oil and water and, occasionally, take it to our Service Station for an inspection.

A good automobile is as necessary to develop your full efficiency as is a good watch.

And the CHEVROLET is more than just "good." It stands supreme in its field for Speed, Power, Efficiency and Economy.

Here we have A. M. Young and the big Peerless eight, a duplicate of which accomplished quite a hill-climbing feat in San Francisco a few days ago.

JEALOUSY TALK IS BUNK.

That the supposed jealousy and lack of co-operation between Los Angeles and San Francisco is certainly a condition of affairs that does not obtain in the automobile industry is the emphatic assertion of A. D. Plughoff, general manager of the J. W. Leavitt Company, California distributors for the Oldsmobile. Mr. Plughoff is a member of the San Francisco dealers' committee, which has charge of San Francisco's forthcoming automobile show, and the Oldsmobile executive made a special trip south to inspect the Los Angeles show and to confer with the leaders of the auto industry in this city.

"With the passage of time the big automobile houses of San Francisco and Los Angeles have become so closely allied that there is absolute co-operation between the branches of the industry in the two cities," said Mr. Plughoff last week. "That has already meant a great deal to the automobile business of the State, and it is going to mean more. "The San Francisco newspapers for example, a week ago, gave almost as much prominence to the Los Angeles show as did your local papers. Whenever automobile legislation is needed the Los Angeles and San Francisco dealers will combine to endeavor to secure its passage.

"The Los Angeles show is certainly a credit to the industry, and San Francisco is likewise planning a very elaborate exhibit. We have an ideal place to hold a show in the big municipal auditorium, and we are spending no less than $32,000 for our decorative scheme alone. We also intend to employ the oriental motif in our decorations. The show will last from February 6th to the 15th, and will be the most elaborate thing we have so far attempted in San Francisco. The only rivalry we want between the two cities is a friendly one, and if we can stage a finer show than yours, we are certainly going to do it. And we want a big delegation from your automobile row to come up and see it."

SEES EVERYTHING ON WAY.

The pioneers of sixty years ago who would tackle anything and submit to every sort of hardship with the sole aim in mind that they eventually would get to the land of promise—California, had nothing on the self-willed group of motorists who made a late start from their eastern homes and now are arriving in Los Angeles one by one. The main highways that lead across the continent are practically out of commission due to weather conditions but there are a few auto enthusiasts who are willing to put their cars to a task that would turn back all but the most zealous. It oughtn't to be hard to get such tourists as these to invest in real estate.

One of this class is J. H. Winchester, who drove into the city a few days ago after making a transcontinental run that represented a diagonal of the United States and not any short cut. He traveled from his home at Covina, Me., in a Chandler touring car and covered 4052 miles in getting to Los Angeles. He made a number of side trips as he and his party were in search of everything interesting along the route that they could find. Their tendency to explore accounts for their departing from the beaten path and following poor mountain trails to the land of the Cliff Dwellers in New Mexico, a hard trip under the best of conditions.

Mr. Winchester told Jack Koerner of Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., the Chandler distributers here, he did not experience one bit of trouble with his car. Koerner thought he probably would be interested in buying a new car, but Mr. Winchester declared he would not part with the old one under any consideration. It is his expectation to return to Maine in the Chandler next spring, but will select a route different from the one followed on the western trip.

Terminal Tongs.

Any car owner who has struggled with a battery terminal so set that it cannot be removed from its socket will welcome this idea for a pair of tongs especially designed to care for this trouble. Take a pair of wide-faced pliers, and if necessary hammer the faces flat. Next cut a slot in one of them large enough to allow it to be placed over the cable side of the terminal, while the other face exerts pressure against the other side. No terminal can resist this treatment.

BATTERIES MUST BE LOOKED INTO.

FORTUNE TELLERS CAN'T GET AT TROUBLE FROM THE OUTSIDE.

"If anybody looks at the outside of your battery and tries to tell you what's going on inside, you're safe in setting him down as a faker," says A. J. Tobey of the Western Auto Electric Company, local Willard representatives. "Not long ago a patron of one of these battery fortune tellers drove up and told us that his plates were all gone, and that he needed a new battery. We could have sold him one, too, he was that certain. It seems that the son of one of his neighbors had looked at the battery and made a wild guess.

"After we had inspected the battery, we found it was a clear case of undercharging caused by a loose connection. We added distilled water, charged the battery and in a couple of days had it ready for service. Another man who thought he was a Sherlock Holmes on batteries fell down because he formed his conclusion from performance instead of facts inside the battery. This fellow thought his plates were short circuited—that the insulation had failed. The real trouble was that he had left his machine lie idle, and had failed to keep the charge up, so that the plates were so hard that a long charge was necessary."

TOURISTS BUY CARS AT SHOW.

WINTER RESIDENTS SWELL THE SALES TOTAL AT THE MOTOR SALON.

The annual influx of winter residents into Southern California which railroad officials say is the largest ever known, had a very pronounced effect on the number of sales made at the Automobile Show. The show was timed exactly right to interest the tourists and in addition to providing them with an additional attraction which to many was the greatest exhibit of automotive products they ever had seen, it impressed them with the necessity of having a motor car to make their stay here complete.

As indicative of the buying power exhibited by these temporary residents of Los Angeles, H. C. McVey, the representative for the Oakland car, cites the fact that one day during the show five Oakland cars were sold and three of them were bought by tourists. If a somewhat similar percentage obtained among the buyers of cars of all makes that were on display, it will be seen that the visitors had a predominating influence.

CHAIN THE MOTOR OF YOUR MACHINE.

LATEST TYPE OF AUTO THIEF TAKES ENGINE ALONG WITH THE TIRES.

Motorists who would forestall the latest whim of the Gas Raffles must chain their engines to the frame, according to the latest advice from the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California. If this practice continues, drivers will be seen casting furtive and eager glances underneath their hoods when the motor fails to answer the starter button.

Detectives Powell and Clark of the auto club's theft bureau report the discovery in Cactus Canyon of a machine stolen several days ago from Jake Goodlin of Tularosa drive. When preparing the customary inventory of missing items the detectives found, much to their surprise, that the motor of the large touring car had been neatly removed and transported away from the lonely spot. Wheels, tires, seats and other accessories had disappeared likewise, practically all that remained of the Goodlin machine being the axles, frame and top.

FACTORY MAN ENJOYED SHOW.

R. V. Allen, district sales manager for the Roamer car for nine Western States, was one of the factory representatives present at the auto show, making his headquarters at the handsome Roamer exhibit of the Wright Motor Car Company. Mr. Allen declared the local show one of the finest he had ever witnessed and predicted a decided revival of business as a result of the enterprise of the Los Angeles dealers.

Rust Preventive.

An excellent method of preventing tools getting rusty is to give them a coating of vaseline in which a little gum camphor has been mixed, after which the mixture is melted over a slow fire. The coating should be applied to the tools with a soft rag.

CHANDLER SIX

Leads All Sixes Now As Always

CHANDLER is back now to the prices at which thousands bought this great car because it offered such exceptional value.

At $1795 Chandler leads all other high-grade sixes, all other cars of every type, just as distinctly as it has always led them.

A really fine car closely priced. That is Chandler policy. And that policy holds good for 1919 just as it has held good for five years past.

Fifty thousand owners know what a good car the Chandler is. They know, better than we can tell, the marvels of its motor—its smooth-flowing, quiet power; its instant flexibility; its endurance. They know the sturdy strength of the whole Chandler chassis.

The handsome Chandler Coupe, now only $2395

The whole motor car market offers no more beautiful coupe than this four-passenger convertible Chandler, and no other on a really fine chassis at such a moderate price.

Most graceful in the lines of its design, handsomely finished, richly cushioned and upholstered, the Chandler Coupe appeals keenly to persons of discriminating tastes. Enclosed, it offers snug protection against the cold or rain or snow. On pleasant days, with the windows lowered away, it is open to the sunshine and soft air.

For those wishing larger seating capacity the Chandler seven-passenger four door Sedan provides the same quality as the coupe.

Absolute Perfection-

HER MOTOR STANDARD

Those things with which she chooses to surround herself create an air of smartness; that which is better than the rest is her choice, for only with the best is she satisfied.

She is, of course, a Packard Twin Six enthusiast. The persons with whom she associates are usually Packard owners. At smart social affairs she sees Who's Who arrive via Packard Twin Six.

The Packard is her choice, for it reaches the high standard set for her home and friends. She loves it for its ease of handling—its ready response to her desire for speed, or its smooth, easy glide through down town traffic.

Successful operation in the hands of thousands of owners has given the Packard Twin Six the leadership and made it the standard by which automobiles are judged.

A WINNER on the Battle Field

Because of its dependable performance throughout four years of war service—

Its low consumption of fuel in countries where gasoline had to be rigidly conserved—

Its sturdy construction, which required little attention to keep going at times and in places where drivers were inexperienced and field mechanics were scarce—

The White is the most widely used 1½-2 ton truck of this capacity.

Now Produced for Industry

As the urgency of Government demand has decreased, we are now in a position to resume commercial delivery of the 1½-2-ton model.

PULLEN WILL DRIVE RACER

Signs up to Pilot Fast Car of Cliff Durant.

Will Act as Cliff's Relief at Indianapolis.

Will Get Plenty of Practice on the Course.

Eddie Pullen, only American to ever win the Grand Prix with an American car, and present holder of the world's road racing record, will act as relief driver for "Cliff" Durant in the big $50,000 motor speed classic at Indianapolis next May.

Pullen was signed up yesterday by the "millionaire whirlwind." Durant, going to any expense and effort in his preparation for the great gasoline Derby, was hard pressed for a real star to act as his relief in the race. "Why don't you get Pullen" someone queried, and forthwith the Pacific Coast champion went after the great and only Eddie.

Durant found plenty of competition, for Pullen had already been approached by several Eastern factories and also by two European teams, which are coming over to try and cop the rich pot of American gold. But "Cliff" went them all one better, and at the end of his session was able to announce that he and Pullen would be the Pacific Coast representatives against the pick of the driving world at Indianapolis.

In securing Pullen, Durant made a ten strike. Eddie has been out of the speed game as an active participant for two years, but previous to that made racing history. In 1914 he performed the most sensational ever recorded in racing when, after turning over in the Vanderbilt Cup, he came out two days later and won the Grand Prize. The victory was both a display of nerve and ingenuity, for when he was wrecked in the Vanderbilt the railbird experts declared Pullen's car was gone beyond repair and the driver's "gameness" was shattered for the time being. But Pullen not only patched up his speed wagon, but drove it as though he had never known what it was to hurtle through the air with his car beyond control and somersaulting into the fence.

Pullen established the world's road racing mark when he won at Corona in 1914, with an average of 87.7 miles an hour. He was twice a winner at Tacoma, and had the novel distinction of being second for three successive years at Elgin, when the Illinois dairy town was the road racing center of the Middle West. Eddie was also a frequent winner at Ascot in the days when stars like Cooper, Oldfield, Durant, Rickenbacker and others of equal racing prominence fought for glory on the Los Angeles track.

Work of tuning up Durant's speedy Chevrolet special for the Hoosier classic is already being undertaken by Fred Comer, the coast champion's pet mechanic. The car, which was formerly being exhibited up and down the coast, has been sent into the Los Angeles shops of the Chevrolet Motor Company, where it is being gone over in thorough fashion.

Eddie Pullen of California.

The wonderful Pacific Coast star is to spring a come-back this year at Indianapolis when he appears as relief driver for Cliff Durant in his Chevrolet Special on May 31.

NEW CAR SHOWS CLASS.

Hill Climbing and Speed Tests Bring Splendid Results.

BY O. K. PARKER.

Copping off Baxter street and Clifford hill records and doing sixty-six miles an hour in thirty-four seconds, I claim, is going some.

It is Thursday, January 16, at 10:30 a.m., and I have just been whirled through the air at sixty-six miles an hour in the newest thing on motor wheels.

And that was the least interesting occurrence of the trip, for the difference between fifty-six and sixty-six miles speed was not appreciable, so far as the car was concerned, except as it showed on the speed indicator, for the car rode as smoothly and stuck to the pavement as solidly at sixty-six as it did at a lesser speed.

Now sixty-six miles an hour is not fast, in racing terms, but for a brand new touring car, with top and windshield, and just as it came off the freight car, without tuning up or any special gears, tires or doping, sixty-six miles is stepping some, and if there is any little buzz wagon on rubber wheels that can turn it up with the new Essex that same little car is ready to give it a whirl, for money, marbles or chalk.

From a standing start, with two men in the car, the Essex attained fifty-four miles an hour in 20 3-5 seconds, sixty miles in 30 2-5 seconds, and sixty-six miles in 34 seconds. It is the nearest thing to aviation on the ground, I have ever tried, and I'm an "oldtimer" with motor cars. The smoothness of the flying sensation is produced by the way the wheels stick to the road and the way all vibration is eliminated from the body by the set and quality of the springs between body and wheels.

Mr. Arnold invited me to make this test, and when I marveled to him at the result, he said, "We want everyone interested in motor cars to come and try the car the same way."

The Essex company says the car must so satisfy the people that those same people will do all the advertising of the car. It is a daring way to advertise, for if the Essex could not make good—but it does make good, and now the Essex company have called a new turn in keen business by openly showing and inviting the public to enjoy the possibilities of a wonderful demonstration of "modernizing" a motor car.

And it is not in speed alone the Essex shines, for right after conducting the acceleration and speed tests, Jim Sutherland, the driver, sent the car after the records on Baxter street and Clifford-street hills.

The Baxter-street hill record is held by the Hudson, 21 2-5 seconds. The Essex made it in 19 2-5 seconds and topped the crown of the hill on second gear at twenty-two miles an hour. The Hudson record was made February 9, 1917, and has stood now for almost two years. The best previous record was 33 seconds.

Right after conquering the famous Baxter-street hill the Essex tackled that terrific tilt up Clifford street, conceded by all as a fierce low-gear proposition. I could hardly believe my senses when Sutherland sent that Essex at the grade in second gear and never shifted from it while I stop-watched the summit in 23 1-5 seconds at twenty-five miles an hour. We made the same climb a second time from a standing start, the wheels in the car tracks in the center of Alessandro street, and topped the crown of Clifford hill in second gear in 25 2-5 seconds.

The Essex stands ready to duplicate these performances for anyone at any time, and when the car is really broken in and tuned up it probably will do even better. Mind you, I made it in a brand new, stiff car, with top and windshield up, and without a single adjustment in preparation for such fierce trials.

SWAPS AUTOS FOR GOATS.

As a direct result of the story last Sunday descriptive of the trading policy he has inaugurated in selling used cars, Hugh Thornton last Monday acquired some Toggenburg goats, an office safe, a merchandise order on an uptown store and two Victrolas as part payment on four automobiles. Thornton offers to accept anything that has value as part payment on any of the used cars he handles, and as a result, he has many peculiar "swaps" offered him.

"In many instances, the value of the things offered in trade serves as the entire first payment on the car,' declared Thornton last week. "If it is of sufficient value, we have not the slightest objection to making such a bargain.

"It is surpirsing, too, how little trouble we have, as a rule, in arriving at an appraisal that is satisfactory to the prospect. This is chiefly due to the fact that we have real experts in so many different lines, that they are able to convince the swapper that we are offering the actual market value for what he has to trade.

"We enlarged our business last week, and as a result we are now prepared to do automobile repairing, paint cars and put on fancy tops, and sell new tires. We have arranged to do all of these things on time payments, which is another decided innovation in the automobile world, but one which is just as easy to arrange as time payments on cars, which have become a standard feature of the automobile business."

Carburetor Float Valve.

If gasoline leaks from the carburetor when the car is standing, and the engine is not running, the needle valve conected with the float should be investigated. If pressing it down stops the dripping, the float is too high. If the dripping persists, the valve leaks and should be ground in, preferably using pumice stone.

Radiator Leaks.

A frequent cause of leaks in radiators is that the vents in the filling cap and overflows becomes choked with sediment, with the result that steam accumulates in the radiator, and the pressure seeking an outlet forces an opening at the weakest point. A little care of the vent will remedy this trouble.

Tell us of the excellent results they secure with the new CHALMERS engine when burning distillate.

They know that the "Hot Spot" and the "Ram's Horn" manifold are responsible for this. CHALMERS engineers have made an engine that from the cheapest grades of fuel develops more power. And that and many other features have made this the favorite car of the nation.

We advise CHALMERS owners to burn distillate because its engine handles it with such wonderful results and because this fuel is cheaper. We use it in all our demonstrators. Let us demonstrate for you with distillate.

This is the Way to Keep Track of Your Truck's Movements.

KEEPS TAB ON MOTOR TRUCKS.

Service Recorder Tells How Long She Runs.

Enables Employer to Watch All His Drivers.

Device Tells How Often She Stops and When.

More than one suggestion has been put forward to facilitate keeping track of the daily movements of the motor truck, and to advance this operation from guesswork to an exact science; but few if any of the devices have seemed at once so simple and effective as the one produced by the Service Recorder Company of Cleveland.

The principle involved is the familiar one of side sway in moving vehicles. It is a well-known fact that even a Pullman car traveling over a relatively smooth and straight stretch of track exhibits a certain amount of side sway. In a trolley car approaching along a straight track an almost regular lurching from side to side can be detected, amounting often to as much as three or four inches. In the motion of the motor truck this side sway is very pronounced, and is present no matter how smooth the road or how straight the line of travel. It is entirely distinct from vibration, and should not be confounded with the latter.

This side sway, then, tells us that a vehicle, whether motor truck, horse-drawn wagon, locomotive or even motorcycle, is in travel motion; absence of side sway indicates that the vehicle is standing. The problem suggested by this, is, then, to make an instrument which will record side sway and record when it occurs.

The device pictured consists fundamentally of but two elements, a pendulum mass which will swing from side to side in response to the side sway of the moving vehicle, and a chart rotating at clock speed, upon which the pendulum can mark a record which indicates that side sway, and hence travel, is going on. Of course, the absence of this record means that the vehicle is standing. The pendulum itself records its oscillations on the chart, by means of a stylus set in it near the point of suspension.

An idea of the record which is made by this device may be obtained from the fragments of the circular dial pictured. To a person not acquainted with the truck or vehicle in question a chart of this kind seems to present merely a succession of periods of running and standing time. But the truck superintendent or dispatcher knows in advance the work which the truck has had to do, and finds no difficulty in identifying the various trips and stops, and describing them as shown in the chart already referred to. The next and obvious step is to cut down those delays which are not warranted, and thus increase the running time of the truck to a maximum.

While the commercial utility of this device is very apparent, it is possible that during the war its military use may be even more important. Anyone who is acquainted with military affairs knows that the average officer spends an important part of his time in making out reports of various kinds, giving a time record of his activities during the day. Officers in charge of motor vehicles are generally required to make reports covering the movements of those vehicles, with special reference to the exact periods of time in which the trucks, passenger cars, motorcycles, etc., are running and standing, when they started and stopped, and the total running and standing time for the day and night. To assemble this information by human means is laborious and often inaccurate. This recording device, on the other hand, gives all this information accurate to the minute, and not only relieves the officer of the burden of getting the data together, but enables him to render accurate and complete reports of his operations.

CAMP GROUNDS FOR AUTOISTS.

A revival of interest in the matter of public camping grounds for motor tourists has resulted from the recent campaign waged by the Automobile Club of Southern California. During the past week both Riverside and Santa Barbara have had committees at work selecting sites, Riverside having made an appropriation for the equipment of the grounds when chosen.

South Pasadena steps forth to remind the motor clan that she has a neatly-equipped camping ground in Garfield Park which is open to all. Brick ovens and other conveniences have been placed for the use of parties.

San Diego is busily engaged in polishing up her motor camp site in Balboa Park, scene of the Panama-California Exposition. At this spot an automobile and grocery supply station will be established, a bungalow built for the caretaker and all modern plumbing fixtures provided.

NEW TOP VERY HELPFUL.

Probably there were very few cars in the big auto show that attracted an amount of attention equal to that drawn by the handsome Velie six in the Lord Motor Car Company's exhibit, which was equipped with the new type of permanent top designed by Harry Lord. The design of the top harmonized extremely well with the lines of the Velie, and the simplicity and ease with which the sliding plate glass panes operated to convert the car from an open to practically an inclosed type created endless favorable comment.

The sliding pane of glass is supported by a little trolley and track concealed in the permanent top, and provides a maximum of glass surface for a minimum of view-obstructing frame. That is a very potent argument for this type of top in California, in the opinion of Harry Lord, who declares that the California motorist is especially insistent on a type of car that does not interfere with the view, and yet affords protection on chilly mornings and evenings.

"There is so much more to see on the average Southern California motor trip than there is anywhere else that people do not like a car in which their view is obstructed," declared Mr. Lord one day last week at the auto show. "Take for example such a trip as that to Big Bear Valley or to Yosemite. No one wants to sacrifice any fraction of the wonderful vistas to be obtained on those trips by traveling in a car that is not easy to see out of. Yet it frequently happens on those long trips that the protection afforded by top and glass sides is a very desirable feature. "I have done a great deal of long-distance driving and I designed the top for the Velie as a direct result of my experience on these trips. It has attracted a great deal of comment at the show, and I think it will prove a very popular type of top for Southern California service."

CUSTOM-MADE STOCK CAR.

As long as individual taste is part and parcel of human nature, people will want custom-made motor cars just as they will want tailor-made clothes and monograms on their stationery. For individuality is the key to character and personality. And by their possession or lack of these qualifications so do we judge men.

However, there are certain limits to which one may go in endeavoring to be individual. After a certain point nothing can be added to lend more individuality than has already been acquired. On this hypothesis, the Cole Motor Car Company presents its line of Cole aero-eight models.

These cars are what may be called custom-made stock cars. In them one finds every possible convenience and refinement that can be procured for a motor car—regardless of how much may be paid for it. In design they are absolutely original and complete. And in fittings, coloring and upholstery they lend themselves to individual treatment that is exclusive.

Because of these characteristics of the aero eight one finds numbered among its owners persons who, in former times, were satisfied with nothing but a car made especially to their individual order. However, since the Cole aero eight answers every requirement which they could impose on a motor car, they have seen the wisdom of purchasing it rather than the so-called "custom-made" cars which cost hundreds of dollars more.

During the period of the war scores of this type of buyers were attracted to the Cole aero eight because it answered their requirements completely and yet did not call for an extravagant expenditure of money either in the purchase or the maintenance.

From a mechanical standpoint the Cole aero eight represents the most advanced engineering practice that is obtainable. From the standpoint of performance it attains a maximum. It has all the speed, all the reserve power, all the easy riding qualities, all the economy that can be built into a motor car, regardless of price. In its design and equipment it leaves nothing to be desired.

Although built as a stock production, the Cole aero eight has all of the salient characteristics of the "made-to-measure" automobile. Hence it comes honestly by its title, "the custom-made stock car," and its buyers represent the most discriminating class of motorists in the country.

ADVERTISING MAN NOW A PUBLISHER.

FRANK BARNETT NEW OFFICIAL OF FIRM TURNING OUT MOTOR MAGAZINE.

Frank B. Barnett, known wherever automobile advertising appropriations and pat hand are subjects for discussion, and for fifteen years Ohio manager for the Class Journal publications, has resigned that connection to assume the vice-presidency of Motor Life, the motorists' magazine.

Barnett brings to his new associates a vast knowledge of the self-propelled scheme and his acquisition of substantial holdings in the Associated Blue Book Publications, which publishes Motor Life, the Automobile Trade Directory and the Automobile Blue Books, is the gratification of his wish of years to become more closely identified with the publication of an automobile medium of established reputation.

To all of commercial motordom, Barnett has been an impetus. The industry knows him best for his relentless fight of almost two decades against pedestrianism and the Heel-and-Toe Brigade.

TIRE TALC BEST IN ORDINARY USE.

GRAPHITE IS FINE ON HEAVY DUTY JOBS, BUT NOT EVERY DAY.

Tire talc, rather than graphite and other oily preparations makes the best lubricator between the inner tube and the casing, according to George Crackel of the Just-Crackel Rubber Company, Diamond tire distributors.

Motorists are cautioned, however, to exercise care in the use of tire talc, as too much is fully as damaging as too little. Too free use of tire talc—a special prepared soapstone for tire use—will cause a quantity of the powder collecting in one place, generate heat, give the tube a soft and bubbly appearance and form a weak spot. The talc should be distributed evenly over the surface; sifting on rotating tube is a simple and efficient method. Graphite is an excellent lubricator for tire subjected to extra heavy duty and excessive speeds. Racing drivers use graphite, but only after shifting through a sieve made of cheesecloth on to the revolving tube.

He has a Whole Fleet of Them and He Ought to Know.
Here is one of the big fleet of Miller-tired White trucks used by the Bradford Baking Company in making deliveries. The records of these big boats are remarkable.

TRUCK FLEET DOES WORK.

The new method of hauling has made it imperative that the up-to-date business man should be thoroughly familiar with transportation. In fact, the modern business man finds familiarity, with the transportation end of the game, as essential as knowing the business with which he is actually associated.

Care must first be taken in the selection of trucks. One should buy nothing but the very best make. This is also true in buying tires and other motor equipment. After the equipment has been bought, every effort should be made to use the proper kind of fuel and lubrication, and efficient drivers and mechanics should be hired to care for these transportation units.

C. Raymond Bradford of the Bradford Baking Company, who now operates a fleet of twenty-six White trucks, has some very interesting operative records on file, such as tire records, which show that his Miller tire equipment has given him an average of 12,000 miles per tire. In other words, he now runs his trucks with an average tire cost of 2 cents per mile, whereas, during the last four years, previous to using Miller equipment, the other leading makes of tires which he operated cost him 4 cents per mile.

Mr. Bradford says: "If I were not able to use motor trucks in my business, I would not be in a position to compete with other bakeries in the towns around Los Angeles, that is, if I were compelled to use railroads to deliver my bread, two more operations would be necessary—loading and unloading at each end—which would make the delivery cost too high to compete with local bakeries." Mr. Bradford operates trucks to Ventura, Redlands and Riverside and has found that the use of motor trucks is greatly extending his business.

"This expansion of motor transportation has only been made possible because of the fact that this country is surrounded by wonderful roads, but we should not lose sight of the fact that other roads are still in need of attention and we should see that this work is started immediately to take care of the surplus supply of labor which is coming from Europe," says Mr. Bradford.

FACTORY MAN IS IN TOWN.

J. P. Scearce, district supervisor for the Liberty Motor Car Company for the territory west of the Rockies, arrived in Los Angeles last week to attend the auto show. Mr. Scearce, who has just returned from a conference at the factory at Detroit, reports that the signing of the armistice had comparatively little effect upon the volume of the war work being done by the Detroit factories.

"The Liberty Motor Car Company was building 1000 shells per day for the government, and was working on a contract for 2500 motor trucks and several hundred trailers. The order for shells was canceled, but the motor truck and trailer order was not. Consequently it will be some little time yet before the Liberty company will be back in full production on motor cars," said Mr. Scearce last week at Lynn Buxton's headquarters.

"The majority of the Detroit factories are in somewhat similar positions. It will be months before anything like the volume of production of the days before the war is reached and as a consequence I look for a distinct shortage of motor cars as soon as the weather moderates in the East and the spring-time demand swamps the dealers there.

"For that reason I think the Los Angeles dealers were particularly wise in choosing the time they did for the show. It will tend to stimulate demand at a time when the factories will be in a better position to take care of the demand from the Coast than they will three months later."

GEAR SHIFTING IS EASY.

In the opinion of officials of the J. V. Baldwin Motor Car Company, local agents for the Saxon Six, fully 60 per cent. of passenger car sales are either made directly to women or are the result of feminine influence. The notable fact which has been brought out in the auto show and in the salesrooms of many Los Angeles motor-car dealers is that women are becoming more and more an important factor to be reckoned with in the business of selling automobiles. This condition, as pertains to general business along other lines than automobiles has been already acknowledged by prominent Los Angeles merchants. Many of these merchants who deal in men's clothing, have within the past year made a special appeal to women in their advertising.

Motor-car manufacturers, recognizing this condition, are now leaving nothing undone in their efforts to install features of direct interest to prospective women purchasers. One feature of the new Saxon Six which is responsible more than possibly any other one thing for the large sale of these moderately-priced cars to women, is the exceptional ease with which the gears are shifted. The shifting of gears is the hardest thing for a woman to learn in mastering the operation of a car. It is said that the makers of the Saxon Six have completely eliminated all difficulty in this regard.

POOR OIL A BAD THING.

"Lack of grease and lubricating oil proved to be one of the most serious difficulties which the Germans encountered in the last days of the war," declared a prominent Pennsylvania oil distributor one day last week at the Auto Show. "It proved to be a lack that the utmost skill of the German chemists failed to find a substitute to fill.

"From time to time various stories came out of Germany through neutral channels telling of the trouble that was being encountered in finding lubricants for their railroad equipment. And just this week a story describing the surrender of the German fleet stated that lack of the proper sort of lubricants made it impossible for the German ships to attempt speed higher than twelve or fifteen knots an hour without courting disaster.

"Maybe the German sailors would have risked a fight if they had had confidence in the speed of their ships to carry out the fast maneuvers which are such a vital part of sea fighting. At any rate it is interesting to speculate on such a possibility, and just goes to show what a vital part in the world's affairs such a single factor as lubricating oil might prove to be. The right sort of soil is a mighty important thing in an automobile motor, too, and more and more motorists are learning every day to depend on the praffine base Pennsylvania products."

BIG MEETING THIS WEEK.

Representatives of 3000 automobile firms will gather together at the Clark Hotel, January 24 and 25, under the auspices of the California Auto Trade Association.

A business meeting for attending delegates will occupy the opening day of the convention. In the evening the Los Angeles Auto Trade Association as hosts will entertain their guests at a ball and banquet at the Jonathan Club.

Mayor Frederic T. Woodman will tender the keys of the city to the visiting members, and J. Whitcomb Brougher will officiate as toastmaster.

Matters of extreme importance to the automobile trade generally are to be considered by the association, among which are the proposed amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act, the measure now before the Legislature regulating the sale quality of gasoline, and the tow-car system now in use by the Auto Club of Southern California. J. W. Maltman has been elected president to succeed himself, for 1919.

NEW RACE DRIVERS TO COME TO FRONT

This year will bring into being a new crop of racing drivers, is the opinion of C. G. Harness, president and manager of the Master Carburetor Company, who said: "Although the season is young, we have already received many inquiries regarding the Master from those who state they intend to go into the racing game. In each instance the names are new to the game.

"It is also evident that development of the airplane motor will have a great influence on the type of motors that will be used in racing cars. The descriptions of the motors which the writers state they intend using, shows this. Last year we sold thirty-six Masters for use on racing cars.

PURE GUM TUBES VERY ECONOMICAL.

"The necessity of using tire tubes which contain a very high percentage of pure gum is being realized more and more by the careful motorist, for the blowing out of a tube invariably causes more harm to the casing than the tube itself," according to W. R. Cain, manager of the local Norwalk tire service station. "An acute blowout caused by a faulty tube exerts an abnormal expansion in a very limited area on the inside of the casing so that even if the casing withstands the shock there is a likelihood of the fabric weakening and later causing a fault. "A tube made with a high percentage of pure gum should give more than twice as much service as a compounded tube. Considering the fact that a good tube costs perhaps but a couple of dollars more than the average inferior tube the added investment is a consistent one.

Long Service Brings Its Ultimate Reward.

The gentleman standing by the car is T. R. Johnson, new sales manager at the local Chevrolet branch. He has been on the row since the week before the flood and his long service makes him peculiarly well fitted for the position.

NEW BOSS IS ON THE JOB.

Tom Johnson, for many years one of the best-known and most popular salesmen along aumtobile row, has been appointed retail sales manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Chevrolet Motor Company. He will succeed Pierre Eschardies, the widely regarded young star, who was a recent victim of influenza.

Johnson has been with the Chevrolet forces for less than a year, but previous to that he gained wide experience in handling several different lines of popular cars. He was also in business for himself for a short time, and his appointment is looked on by the motoring world as being wholly deserved.

According to the announcement of Manager James V. Hough, when making the appointment, Johnson's advance will not call for any changes in the sales staff nor Chevrolet policies of meeting the purchasing public.

The new executive is starting under a handicap, as more than half the members of his force are ill with influenza, but in spite of this a record week was established by the local Chevrolet retail store, and Johnson promises to keep the pace up as soon as his full staff is again available for duty.

HOW BIG ARE YOUR TIRES?

Few Cars Carry Tires as Large as are to be Recommended.

BY RALPH HAMLIN.

Only recently it has come to official notice how great waste in tires is due to using equipment of too small dimensions. When the Commercial Economy Board of Washington was presented with a comparison between the tire equipments actually carried by twenty-one of the leading makes of automobiles and the equipments recommended by the tire manufacturers, based on the weight of the cars with load, the astonishing fact was revealed that only seven of the cars listed are equipped with tires as large as called for by the tire companies.

The new regulation sanctioned by the government, which goes into effect within the year, greatly reduces the number of tire sizes, so that this question of proper equipment must again be taken up by all motor-car manufacturers. It has developed from the tabulation of the nearest new sizes for this same list of automobiles that only one more car, or a total of eight, will be equipped with tires as large as recommended by the tire companies. In commenting on this condition, Ralph Murphy, engineer for the Franklin Automobile Company, pointed out that the Franklin car was the only one in the list that exceeded the tire size prescribed by the tire manufacturers. Mr. Murphy said that the Franklin company has always done its own figuring on tire equipment, basing the reqirements on the same engineering principles on which the strength and wearing qualities of any other part of the car are based.

The Franklin company is constantly conducting experiments on different size tires and different types of tires in order to keep informed as to just the right combination to render maximum mileage. It is a Franklin principle which is becoming recognized more and more by other car makers, that tire mileage is governed greatly not only by the total weight of the car, but also by the weight of the unsprung parts which bear directly on the tires. It is essential that tires be big enough to withstand the effect of this element of the weight. This point of design is largely responsible for the ample tire equipment which has always been found on Franklin cars.

If economy of tires and reliability of tires are desired, concludes Mr. Murphy, the thing to look to first is the size of tires in proportion to the weight of the loaded car, and secondly, to observe how the weight is distributed between the sprung and unsprung parts. Furthermore, just those elements that make a car easy riding also make it easy on tires, it should be remembered. Tires chosen on this basis would very greatly reduce the number of spares that it is necessary to carry on the cars registered in this country, spare tires having lately been pointed out as another source of tire waste.

DESERT STUFF IS BUNK.

Many Eastern Motorists are Scared Out y Press Agent Yarns.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Jan. 8.—Eastern tourists are sadly misinformed about conditions on so-called western deserts, according to Secretary W. D. Rishel of the Utah State Automobile Association, who sends to Chairman Carl G. Fisher of the A.A.A. Touring Board this summation of far-western road travel conditions:

"What about the so-called western deserts and automobile touring travel? Every person east of the Rocky Mountains who contemplates a tour through to the Pacific Coast is today in fear of the so-called deserts. He has in mind his old school geography, which branded all that country lying between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast as the Great American Desert. He has visions of miles and miles of sand with almost unbearable heat, through which he must push his way to reach the Pacific Ocean. He has read columns and columns of newspaper press agent "slush," where this car or that truck made the trip after hardships worse than could be found on the western front, and that the driver came through alive due only to the strong construction of the particular car he drove, or the make of tires the car had on, or the kind of lubricating oil he used—depending on whether a car manufacturer, a tire builder or oil refiner was footing the bills.

"Now what are the actual conditions? The tourist can follow any one of the central routes and have a bed to sleep in, under a roof every night. He can sit down to a table to eat his three meals a day. He will find gasoline, a garage and automobile supplies at frequent intervals, or as often as he needs them. The lighter he is equipped, the faster time he can make. Instead of heat he will find an overcoat comfortable if he drives at night and he will encounter more sand at the old river bed crossing near his farm in the mid-continent country than he will encounter between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast.

"Whenever water can be turned on the so-called desert land he will see crops of wheat and potatoes, fruit and vegetables, that will far surpass the yield per acre of his eastern farm. And, what is more, he will scarcely ever be out of view of another automobile occupied by a man and his family traveling to see the country.

"The desert stunt has been overworked and the western motorist, traveling across the country never takes the deserts into consideration. He knows there are long stretches of country with nothing but sage brush and jackrabbits, but he also knows that as a general rule he will make more miles per day than over any other section of the United States where the roads are not improved.

"Automobile associations and automobile touring bureaus of information have a busy time explaining away the fears of the timid public, but as more and more tourists cross the country the fact will become gradually known that the person responsible for calling the great Inter-mountain West the Great American Desert did not know what he was talking about."

Secretary Rishel prophesies an exceptional amount of transcontinental touring in 1919, which explains why the Utah State member of the A.A.A. is preparing for an unusually busy season which includes a multiplying of present membership figures of the active body which has its headquarters in Salt Lake City.

TIRE PRICES NOT LIKELY TO DROP.

RUBBER, LABOR AND COTTON ARE ALL AS EXPENSIVE AS THEY HAVE BEEN.

"Many people have been wondering if the price of tires would not soon go down, since the order of the War Industries Board has permitted the tire factories to resume full production," said C. Fred Thompson, distributor of the Mason tire for Southern California last week.

"As a close student of the tire market, I cannot see the slightest probability of such an occurrence for many months. The price of tires depends upon the cost of labor and the price of cotton and rubber. Labor costs certainly will not decline for some time, and it is not possible that cotton will go down in price before the harvesting of another crop. As for rubber, the latest advices I have received from New York State that the rubber market is advancing."

DECORATIONS OF SHOW TOOK PRIZE.

EASTERN MOTOR MAN SAYS THEY CAN'T BE BEATEN EVEN AT NEW YORK.

The Auto Show that closed Saturday would compare very favorably, indeed, with any show ever held in the United States, in the opinion of J. P. Scearce, district sales manager for the Liberty Motor Car Company, who was one of the factory representatives in attendance at the Los Angeles exhibit. "A group of tourists were in the Liberty booth one evening early in the week," said Scearce yesterday, "and someone happened to mention the decorative scheme of the show. 'It is very good,' said one of the visitors, 'but, of course, not to be compared with the New York show.' Right there I took instant issue with them. 'I have seen the last three New York shows, and in fact the biggest shows held all over the United States, but I have never seen a show staged as elaborately and in such good taste as this oriental exhibit right here in Los Angeles,' I told them. 'It is too bad, however, that Los Angeles has not some big auditorium in which a show could be staged so that your task would be easier in the way of securing decorative effects.'"

COMMERCIAL BODY BUILDERS LOCATED.

Another evidence of the rapidly increasing importance of Los Angeles in the automobile industry is the removal here from Detroit of the Transport Body Company, builders of every variety of commercial auto bodies. The general manager of the company, Mr. G. E. Porter, has been connected with some of the largest body builders in Detroit and brings with him the latest ideas in the designing of special truck and trailer attachments. He has appointed as sales manager Mr. William J. Wilson, who is well known in this territory and whose years of experience here will be of great value to the new concern.

MUCH WAR WORK FROM MOTOR MEN.

"Some idea of the magnitude of the war work accomplished by the automobile industry is given in the report of Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce," says W. D. Dunham, Ford dealer of West Seventh street. "More than $1,000,000,000 worth of war work was undertaken, and as a result passenger car production came down from a total of 1,718,000 in 1917 to 925,000 in 1916. It is certain that no single motor organization entered into war work to such an extent as did the Ford company, but the company is rapidly resuming its peace-time basis, and it is probable that it will not be many weeks before Ford cars are being produced at the same rate as before the war."

IF YOU WANT ONE YOU MUST HURRY.

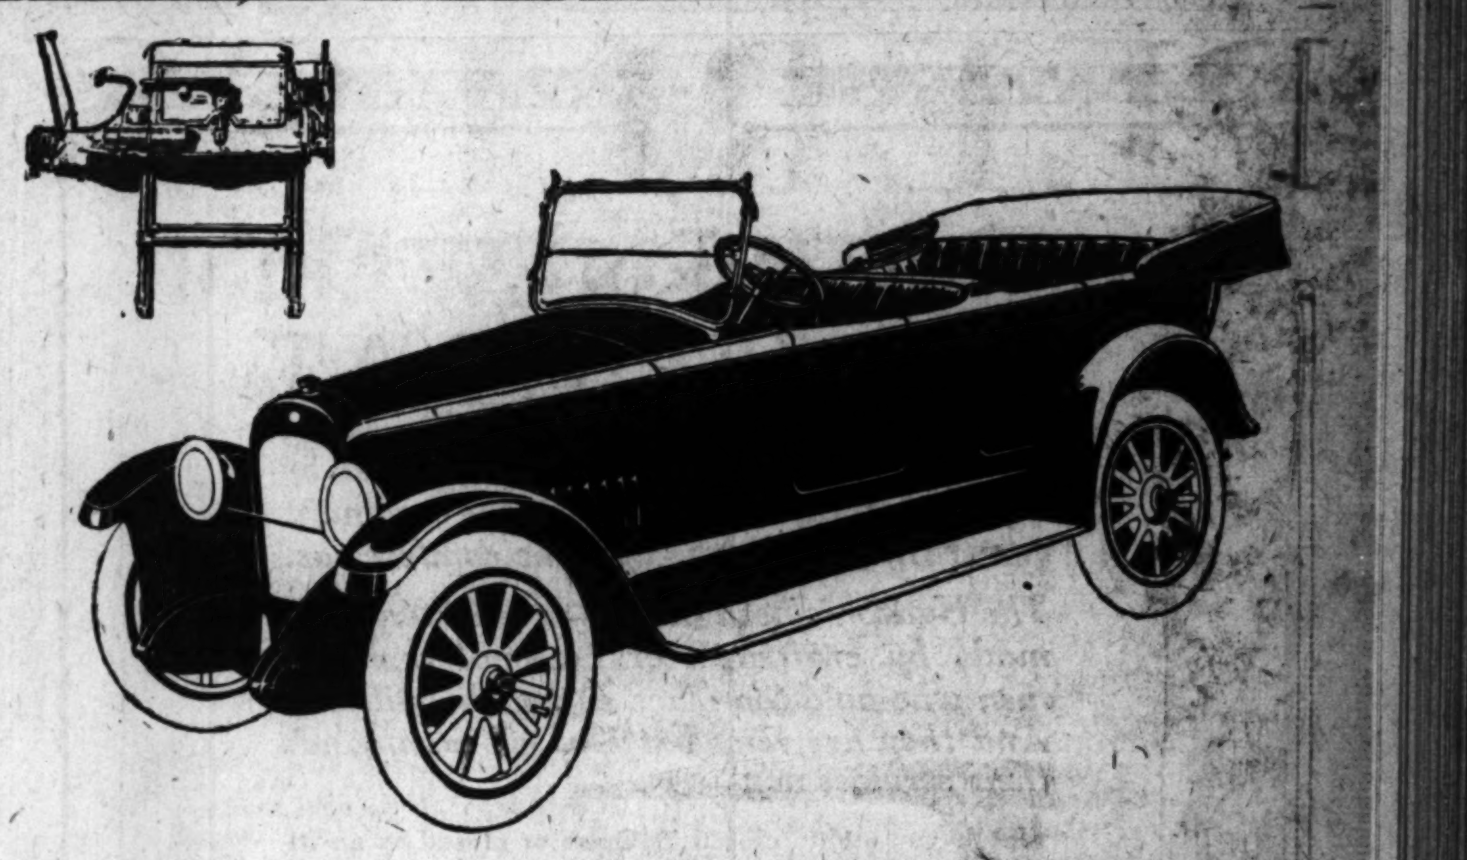
The Los Angeles Ford dealers report that the Ford factory is doing its utmost to get touring cars and runabouts into the hands of purchasers who have been waiting for them since production was cut off in September. Necessarily, it will take some time to turn the big factory from the production of war materials to the building of Ford cars. In the meantime, they are urging all who are considering the purchase of a Ford car to place their orders immediately. In all details the touring cars and runabouts are the same sturdy, dependable cars that were built last year. The model "T" motor and three-point suspension, fundamentals which have made possible the sale of nearly 3,000,000 model "T" Ford cars in ten years, are unchanged.

HOW THEY SECURE NEARLY NEW TIRES.

Questions often come up in our establishment, "Where do you get those beautiful, slightly used tires?" says Ed Harris of the Tire Construction Company, Olive at Pico. "We explain that we get many through our buyer at Akron, Ohio, from the various large tire factories. Some are test tires, some demonstrating, and others sent back for adjustment. It has been our experience that fully 50 per cent. of these tires are sent back because of carelessness, and not through fault of the maker, who, however, often makes a policy adjustment rather than argue.

Cold Weather Precaution.

Whenever the car is brought into the garage in cold weather the gasoline should be shut off at the vacuum tank outlet, or at the main tank, and then the engine should be run long enough to draw all the gasoline from the carburetor and supply line. This prevents moisture from accumulating inside the carburetor and supply line, where it will probably freeze. When this precaution is practiced the car owner will be sure to turn on the gasoline before starting and flood the carburetor before making the start.



THE simplicity of construction and the unusually clean-cut appearance of the Perfected Valve-in-Head Motor of the Nash Six caused much favorable comment among the crowds that yesterday visited our exhibit at the show. After inspecting the motor they were quick to appreciate why the Nash Six is so powerful, economical and quiet in the service of owners throughout the country.

TRUCK DRIVERS HONORED.

Croix de Guerre Won by Convoy Fleet of American Manufacture.

Copies of citations for distinguished service by French motor transport units using American-made motor trucks have been received in this country.

Accompanying the citations was an award of the much-coveted Croix de Guerre to the First and Second Groupements, each operating 500 or more White trucks in the service of the Great Headquarters Reserve No. 1. Later, this entire reserve, operating 2500 Whites, was recognized by a similar citation.

The orders of the day read "for the finest military spirit" and "the best qualities of endurance," in moving 200,000 troops to the front in a few days, many of them a distance of more than 100 miles.

The task was tremendous, the crisis very grave. A supreme effort was necessary to stop the German advance last March on the British front. Without this unprecedented movement of French reserves right into the teeth of the fighting, the issue might have been serious, indeed, for the Allies.

It was not uncommon for drivers to remain at their wheels twenty-four hours at a time. One groupement operated 200 hours out of 240. Another was on constant duty for sixty hours.

Most of the White trucks participating were war veterans, some of them having been in continuous field service since 1914. After four years of war, these units performed feats which enabled their organizations to win the Croix de Guerre.

This is the first and only instance in French military history of a truck formation receiving this high honor. In forwarding copies of the citations, the commanding officer made the following comment: "It is natural that the little White was ahead to merit a reward of this importance."

ARMIES OF THE NORTH AND NORTHEAST
GENERAL HEADQUARTERS.
Command of the Rear
Automobile Service.
ORDER No. 323 (Groupement No. 1)

Picked unit having participated in all important transports of the automobile service, in the course of which it has distinguished itself by its fine performance.

During the present operations, under the energetic and able command of Capt. Guionin, the entire French and Indo-Chinese personnel showed proof of the finest military spirit and the greatest endurance, providing without interruption the transportation of troops up to the line of battle.

ORDER NO. 349.
(Groupement No. 1)

The regulation unit of the reserve No. 1, under command of Capt. Arristin, has rendered conspicuous services in participating successively in the organization and the work of the regulating automobile commissions of Meaux, of Montdidier and of Clermont. Under the most trying circumstances, the entire personnel of the unit distinguished itself by its activity and self-sacrifice, fulfilling its mission to the extreme limit of its strength and remaining until the end on the field of battle.

ORDER NO 374.
(Groupement No. 2)

Matchless unit, unequaled in discipline, endurance and enthusiasm, executed brilliantly the transportation of several divisions, pushing as far as the battle line.

Particularly it distinguished itself on March 20, 1918, in bringing at top speed on the very battleground a division picked up at the railroad terminal; (2,) on April 5, in bringing on another point of the battle line two fractions of divisions, although the unit had already been working thirty-six hours without interruption; (3,) paraded on April 6, in perfect formation, after having been at the wheel sixty hours without relief.

CITATION.
(Automobile Reserve No. 1)

Picked unit, which, since the beginning of 1915, participated in all the important transports of troops in Artois, in Champagne, at Verdun, on the Aisne and in Picardie From March to June, 1918, under the direction of Commandant Stenbock, has given an example of endurance and coolness in providing on the very line of fire, with perfect order, the landing of the infantry of more than twenty divisions.

The part played by American trucks overseas is second only to that played by our gallant troops. Both have the stuff in them.

TIRE MAN TURNS OUT TO BE "ACE."

In Maj. William Rynn, now returned from the war, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O., enjoys the distinction of having given from its ranks a noted "ace." This aviator, who formerly worked in the company's factory library, saw service in France and Gallipoli. He has to his credit, officially recorded, the destruction of eleven enemy planes and bears four decorations awarded for distinguished service. He was captured by the Germans once and placed in a prison camp north of Metz. Here he was sentenced to death as a spy. The night before his execution was to have taken place, he and another Yankee flyer overpowered the German guard, and appropriating an officer's car, made their escape into France.

Federal Prices Are Below the Average in Its Class

The following figures will demonstrate a Federal fair list price for highest value—regardless of comparative prices for trucks in our class and capacities.

Taking 35 of the most prominent truck manufacturers building the same capacities as FEDERAL, we found fifteen of them making a one-ton model; sixteen of them a one and one-half ton, twenty-four making two-ton trucks, twenty-five making three and a half and five-tonners. Averaging all their present prices we found the following facts:

FEDERAL one-ton price is $139.00 less than the average of the fifteen making one-ton trucks.

FEDERAL one and one-half-ton price is $259.00 less than the average price of the sixteen manufacturers of that capacity.

FEDERAL two-ton is $357.00 less than the average price of the twenty-four firms making two-ton models.

FEDERAL three and one-half ton is $552.00 less than the average price of the twenty-five which make three and one-half ton trucks.

FEDERAL five-ton is $473.00 less than the average price of the twenty-five of the largest producers of five-ton models.

HUDSON SUPER-SIX

THE NEW ARISTOCRAT

The Hudson has no season. Summer or Winter, on all occasions, it is the dominant car of the road. It is also the comfort car.

The Hudson closed models are masterpieces made by craftsmen of national repute—men who hold top place in coach building. And they are few, but Hudson commands their services now.

We have eight closed models to show you. And these eight represent the maximum in style and elegance.

We predict the Hudson Super-Six Touring Sedan will be the most popular car in California.

Open or closed in an instant, and with no effort, it is the ideal "all family-all season" car.

Women handle it as easily as an electric brougham. Its luxury and comfort appeal to all.

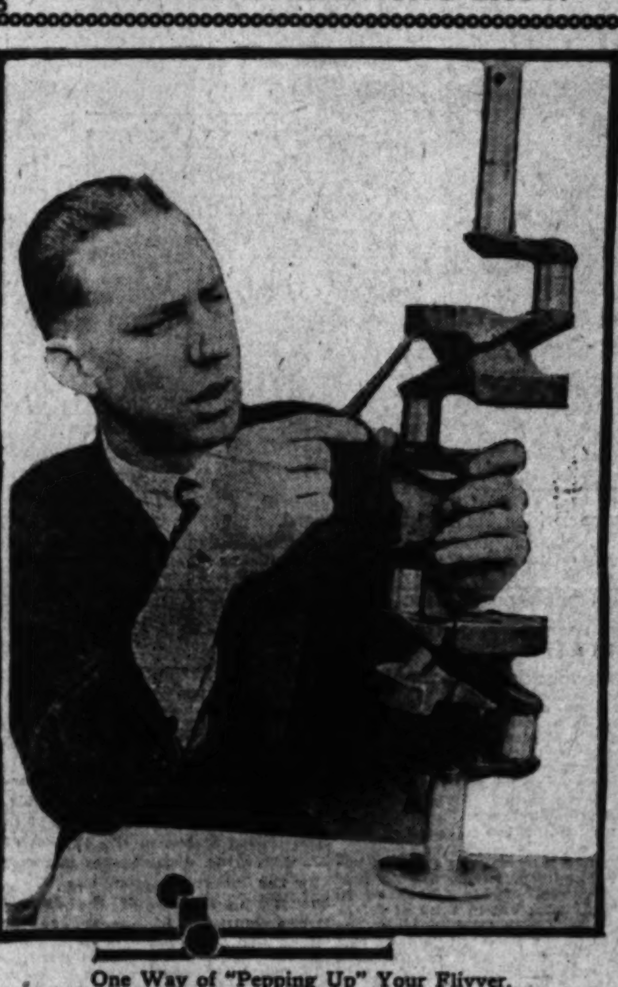
COUNTER-BALANCING EASY.



One Way of "Pepping Up" Your Flivver.

Here we have E. R. Baker, sales manager for the Western Auto Supply Company, showing method of counter-balancing Ford crankshaft.

The value of counterbalancing the crankshaft of automobile motors as a factor in reducing engine vibration has been proven beyond the shadow of a doubt, according to E. R. Baker, sales manager of the Western Auto Supply Agency of South Grand avenue.

"One of the big makers of six-cylinder cars in this country proved the efficacy of counter-weights beyond question," declared Mr. Baker last week. The action of the weights on the crankshaft tends to neutralize the effect of the pull of the pistons in motion, and as a result the "whipping" of the crankshaft is almost completely eliminated. It is to crankshaft "whipping" that the greater part of engine vibration is due.

"It is only natural, therefore, that one of the most successful of the scores of Ford accessories which we handle is a system of counter-balances that have been developed for the Ford crankshaft. As is a common practice in attaching crankshaft counterweights, these are bolted on and the nuts fastened securely with cotterpins.

"It is not even necessary to do more than to take off the bottom half of the crankcase to attach these counterweights. This gives access to the crankshaft so that it is an easy matter to bolt on the weights. Since these weights were invented a comparatively short time ago we have sold hundreds of sets here and in our big stores in the Middle West, and they have given remarkable satisfaction, through their decided success in remedying motor vibration."

PACKARD BUILDS PLANES.

Factory will Produce Airships Equipped with Liberty Motors.

Production of stock airplanes equipped with Liberty aircraft engines has begun at the Packard factory, according to an announcement just made by Earle C. Anthony, Inc.

These planes will be offered for sale to the public through the regular Packard sales organization, of which the Anthony firm is the California representative.

They will be fast-flying planes for carrying two persons and will have self starters, suit-case luggage carriers and a supply of spare parts for emergencies.

This is the first announcement of an airplane manufacturer offering aircraft for sale through a regular dealer organization, and is the start of the manufacture of planes for commercial purposes or private use by the Packard factory.

The entire aircraft will be produced by the factory, using a new model of plane resulting from the experience of Col. Jesse G. Vincent, as chief engineer of the aviation engineering department of the United States.

Vincent has been chief engineer of the Packard for many years, and two years before the United States entered the war he began the development of an aviation engine in an endeavor to excel the best types of motors produced in Europe. His Packard airplane twin-six engine was used as the basic design of the present Liberty engine and was one of Packard's contributions to the war.

One of the Liberty engines has been exhibited at the automobile show during the past week, and has held an interested crowd during every hour that the public was in the big tents. It is the first one to come from the production line to be offered to the public for sale, and followed close on the completion by Packard of the government order for 6000.

While other factories built Liberty motors for the war, notably the Ford and Lincoln companies, Packard has the distinction of having produced a larger number than any other one manufacturer, as well as having been first to start quantity production. This was possible for them as they had gained experience from their own models of aircraft twin-six motors and had built the first 100 experimental Liberty motors.

It was rather remarkable that the changes incorporated by a number of noted aeronautical engineers in Vincent's design had to be eliminated and the changes that were then made were back toward the design of the Packard "905" with which William Rader broke all world's speedway records at Sheepshead Bay track.

Ralph de Palma has also been racing with a Packard airplane motor and holds practically every track record for cars of 300 cubic inches and under up to 600 miles. Also he holds the record for six hours, having made an average of 109 miles per hour for the entire run.

There is only one record of consequence not held by a special Packard racing car equipped with airplane type motors, and that is the mile straightaway of Burman's, made at Daytona Beach, Fla., with the German-made Blitzen Benz car. It is the ambition of many speed drivers to wrest the laurels from the Germans.

Two Los Angeles men have been considering the purchase of a Liberty engine if it proves suitable for fast motor boats, and if they should so equip their craft it would doubtless give the Pacific Coast the speed records. Dustin Farnum is building a hull at present with a six and a half-foot beam and is looking for a powerful engine to drive it.

Frank Garbutt has the fastest boat in local waters, but is planning something still more speedy, with which he can capture some eastern cups. That the Liberty would be speedy in a boat is anticipated, as it has driven a plane at the rate of 172 miles per hour and a flying boat carrying fifty-five passengers attained a speed of eighty-two miles per hour when equipped with a power plant of three Liberty engines.

Caproni, the noted Italian builder of huge planes, has a triplane under construction at present in which he will place three of the engines. Twenty men compose the flying crew, and room is provided for a number of passengers. Two of the engines will fly the ship and the third can be cut in for fast climbing or greater speed.

Caproni anticipates that trans-Atlantic flights will come in the near future and says that the Liberty is the best aeronautical engine he has ever seen.

MAKING SPEECH SCARES AVIATOR.

L. D. Phillips, a member of the service organization of Smith Bros., distributors of the Peerless eight and formerly a lieutenant in the aviation service of the government, during the Auto Show lectured from a platform in the Smith Bros. booth, on the salient features of the Peerless motor and drew comparisons with types of motors used in airplanes. The occasion was the first, according to Phillips, that he ever made a public address.

"Maneuvering in the clouds and getting yourself fit to fight Hun airplanes is a cinch when compared to talking to a crowd, in my estimation. The first time I tried to talk—yes, I say tried—I was frightened to death and wanted to beat it. It requires nerve to get away with that stuff," said the returned aviator.

ROLLS UP MILEAGE WITHOUT TROUBLE.

A tire experience that emphasizes the advantage of using well-known standard tires on a long motor trip is the one reported by Mr. F. D. Watts of the firm of Watts & Rogers, hardware dealers of Weston, Or. After using a set of Goodyear all-weather tread tires in local driving for 1901 miles, he set out in a Hudson car, heavily loaded with camping outfit and carrying three passengers. Traveling via Ogden, Cheyenne, Omaha and Chicago, he arrived at Lansing, Mich., with speedometer reading 4625 miles, and Oregon air in all four tires. After a tour of Michigan he returned to Oregon, with heavier load than before, with a recorded mileage of 9013 as grand total for the set of tires which had made the entire trip without trouble and seemed good for several thousand additional miles.

INDIANS ARE AUTO BUYERS.

Value of Lands has Made Them Wealthy.

Many of Them Own Lots of Good Property.

Queer Stories are Told of Their Deals.

It is not the young fellow who speeds along the Oklahoma boulevards comfortably couched in his low, rakish roadster who is the automobile spendthrift of today. The motor extravagance of the American Indian dwarfs that of his city cousin by a wide margin, according to M. D. Bixby, manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company.

Oklahoma Indians are generously sharing their tremendous prosperity in oil and minerals with the automobile dealers, and the tendency of the red man is toward the high-powered, expensive car, rather than the lowly, small automobile. In Ralston, a town of 750 inhabitants, located between the Osage and Pawnee districts, one dealer sold 242 automobiles during 1918. One Indian bought thirteen cars in twelve months, and according to a tire salesman, discarded one of his new medium-priced autos because the muffler was broken, swopping it and $150 "to boot" for a certain well-known low-priced motor vehicle. Many of the "braves" will have nothing but the best of cord tires.

Indians are realizing staggering fortunes from the mineral wealth of their lands in Oklahoma. Oscar Hardin, a Quapaw Indian millionaire, for some time after he got his allotment of 240 acres in 1896 is remembered by old residents as a ragged Indian who drove a pair of ponies hitched to a rattletrap wagon and who wandered about the country without a dollar. Today Hardin is a lead and zinc mining king and owns twenty farms scattered over Oklahoma and Kansas.

Nearly every Indian family is a prospect for the automobile salesman. One tribe, the Osages, get royalties and bonuses from oil lands, and the government payments average $3000 per year per capita—thus a family of five would have an income of $15,000 a year. Some get as high as $30,000 per year, and some hundreds of thousands.

BETTER CARS AFTER SHOWS.

[illegible] NEW MACHINES MAKES PEOPLE WANT TO DOLL UP OLD ONES.

One sure result of the Automobile Show will be a lot of new "dolled up" cars in Los Angeles. Attracted by some of the smart tops equipped with roller curtains in show exhibits, motorists went direct from the show to the Bentel shops where these jobs were created. There they left orders to have their own cars done over in that fashion.

"A sprucing up always follows an automobile show," said George R. Bentel. "The effect is very good this year for many autoists have decided to put off the long-deferred overhauling no longer. The Auto Show will keep Los Angeles in the lead in special tops. We have received hundreds of congratulations on the cars we prepared for the show. There is more attention being paid to these features for the car than ever before." In the Bentel show room there has been a show all in itself the last week. There have been displayed several cars made over in the Bentel shops. This exhibit was to impress visitors with the possibilities of working over old cars.

LOCAL TIRE FIRM STILL ON THE JOB.

"Since the Oldfield Tire Company has been organized in Cleveland, O., to manufacture the Oldfield tire, many people are inquiring if we are going to keep our place of business here in Los Angeles," said R. R. Colby, manager of Barney Oldfield's tire business here. "We are glad to tell them that this is to continue as a direct branch and distributing place for the Ohio corporation. We are also pleased to tell our customers that our guarantee is still good and will always remain good on all tires sold them in the past, just the same as it will on the new Oldfield tire which we will sell in the future. And the Oldfield tire is going to be some tire."

Brass Springs.

Soft brass can be made into spring brass by hammering both sides lightly with a hammer, using a smooth solid block of some kind as an anvil. This produces a slight hard film, which gives the brass the quality of a spring, but filing or grinding will remove this hard film instantly. This kink is useful in an emergency when a brass spring is needed, and nothing but soft brass is at hand.

Draining the Radiator.

In cases where the drain cock of the radiator is so placed that the water in making its escape strikes the axle and spatters over things in general it is an excellent idea to place the edge of a funnel against the valve in such a way that it will direct the flow of water away from the parts of the car into a pail.

Hupmobile

Not a Perfect Car

We do not claim nor we never have claimed that the HUPMOBILE is a perfect car. There is no such thing in existence. The time has not arrived when it is possible to make a car that will travel over roads that are good, bad and indifferent and often in the hands of drivers who are none too careful of it, that will stand up indefinitely without repairs or replacements. The locomotive which travels on steel rails must go to the shop. We do claim, however, that the HUPMOBILE, the family car, is one of the greatest values for anywhere near the money, ever produced in country or any other.

MPORTANCE OF THE UNIVERSAL.

Working Part of the Automobile.

Seldom Gets Attention from the Owner.

its Work Without Any Fuss or Trouble.

BY BARNEY OLDFIELD.

There are a lot of parts in the mechanical make-up of the automobile that are called upon to do a lot of work, but as to which has most to do, I come pretty close to giving my vote to the universals, the very existence of which the average car owner scarcely suspects. At any rate, from the treatment he gives these double-acting parts you would never guess that he knew they were on the vehicle.

The name universal joint, which is the official title of these parts, is derived from the fact that their action is in various directions. The joint is so made that it can move sideways or up and down with equal ease. And all this time it is revolving at high speed as part of the propeller shaft assembly.

It is scarcely necessary to remind my readers that in the modern automobile a propeller shaft is employed to carry the driving force to the rear wheels. This shaft is fitted with one or more universal joints, so that it can conform to the movements of the rear axle, which develops considerable up and down and side motion as the vehicle travels over the more or less uneven ground. If the propeller shaft didn't have this connecting joint it would snap off the first time the rear axle moved out of its plane of attachment.

It is easy to see, then, that the universal joint has a lot of work to perform. There must be a certain amount of friction generated within and this means that it must be lubricated. It is very important that this should be done at regular intervals, but I am more than afraid that the average car owner never bothers to give these joints lubricant from one end of the season to the other. That these universals stand up under such treatment is remarkable and is a tribute to the effective design and workmanship put into them by their manufacturers. But even the best universal, if it is left unlubricated for long periods of running, will become worn and will finally break. If this part had been given proper care and lubrication it would probably have gone on working as long as the car would run.

Not only will proper care keep the universal joints in service longer, but it will improve their action [illegible]. My readers may have noticed a jerking tendency on the part of their cars when they were operated slowly in high gear. This was probably caused by a badly worn universal joint and in most cases the wear was due to failure of lubrication.

It happens that lubrication of the universal joint is not as easy as it might be, even under the best circumstances. The movement in [illegible], the rapid revolutions, tend to throw the lubricant to one side. There is a certain amount of centrifugal force developed, which has [illegible] effect. Moreover, the lubricant is likely to be squeezed out from between the rubbing surfaces, where it is needed, because of the twisting movements that are set up. For these reasons the lubrication of the joints should be sytematic and at regular intervals.

[illegible] universal joint assemblies [illegible] a metal housing, while in others a leather boot is employed to [illegible] the lubricant. Whichever is the case, the housing should be [illegible] once each month, and, after the joint has been thoroughly cleaned out with kerosense, new lubricant should be packed in. The best lubricant for the universals is [illegible] graphite or one of the non-[illegible]. This is one of the few [illegible] is not best lubricated with [illegible]

[illegible] have been great improvements made in universal joints since the cars I used to drive. In those days a simple cross-piece [illegible] to act as bearings for [illegible] parts. By having two of these moving up and down, and the other moved sideways, universal action was obtained. And these early universals practically always ran without a housing of any kind, so that lubrication was almost [illegible]

[illegible] the ball type of unversal joint has reached a high state of perfection. This amounts simply to a ball resting in a socket. This arrangement furnishes universal action, and in some cases the joints are designed to take up forward and backward thrust—universal indeed. This arrangement is not commonly used, however, and I mention it just to give my readers an insight into what can be done.

It is rather an odd fact, too, that universal joints are not always made of metal, as might seem essential. Fabric joints, leather joints and combinations of the two are by no means uncommon. The great advantage claimed for these types are that they run without lubrication and are more quiet in action than a metal joint can be. The only attention needed by these fabric and leather joints is a monthly inspection and a tightening up of the holding bolts as they seem to need it.

These non-metal types of joints are by no means as common as the metal ones. In fact, in many mechanical designs they cannot be employed. The possibility of using them depends largely on the angle at which the propeller shaft operates. When the shaft is placed nearly horizontal, the flexible universal joint, as these types are called, makes a satisfactory installation. But when the shaft is located at a considerable angle the metal joints are the only ones possible, because it has the proper radius of action needed in such an installation. In cases where the gearset of the car is placed [illegible], separate from the clutch and engine, the flexible joint may possibly be used and it is located between the clutch and the [illegible].

Some of the flexible joints are made out of a single piece of leather, while others consist of a number of pieces fastened together. In one case I know of a universal joint made of a number of layers of fabric, placed on top of each other in such a way that they will [illegible] pull from any direction, thus [illegible] universal action and uniform [illegible]

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Barney Oldfield—Will you please tell me if the Empire car is still made and the address of their factory or offices, and if it is not made any more would it be possible to buy repair parts for same? R. N.

The Empire is still made by the Empire Motor Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

Barney Oldfield—We have a four (4) cylinder International truck made by the International Harvester Company, 1917 model, have trouble in starting same. We use hot water, also must prime same with gasoline or cannot keep it going. She misfires and bucks for the first two (2) miles then she begins to settle down fairly well, but does not develop the power it ought to.

Cannot start it unless priming after leaving her stand a short time after she had been warmed up.

They use a Dixie magneto and Holley carburetor. Have you any idea where our trouble may be? We had valves ground and set with no change.

The compression is not what it ought to be. Would you advise putting in new rings of the leak-proof kind? M. H. D.

First, read my article on hard starting. I think your trouble is in the ignition, and that plus a cold engine makes running erratic for some time. The magneto magnets may be weak or the break poorly adjusted. Be sure the choke works right and that it really shuts off the air. It isn't in the compression. Leak-proof rings are good.

Barney Oldfield—I have a 1917 Ford. Some time ago it started to oil and foul No. 1 spark plug. Took it to Ford service station and had new rings put on No. 1 piston, results the same. I then took it to another service station and they placed a 20-1000 oversize piston and new rings and still it will foul the plug some times after putting in a clean plug and going only six or seven miles.

I have a mail route and each morning I put enough oil in just so it will merely drop out of lower pet cock by the time I get home after driving twenty-four miles. I formerly kept it nearly to upper cock. Do you think the oil could get in by way of the valves not seating properly? I notice one of them clicks or taps a little when running; also I have a weak valve spring noise when cranking.

I first noticed that it was starting to foul plugs right after having it to the garage, where they had taken the engine out to replace brake drum, and also grinding valves next day.

After placing in a clean plug it fires fine. C. A. F.

The trouble may not be with the rings at all, but with a worn cylinder or maybe the pistons are badly out of shape. It takes a good man to properly fit pistons and rings in a cylinder so as to get a gas-tight joint. The parts must be lapped in to make a good joint. Also loosen the cover plate over the valves. Some, say a vacuum is formed back of the plate and that oil then tends to push up through the valves.

SQUABBLE ON OVER BRIDGE.

Riverside City Council is Quite Peeved.

Doesn't Like Agreement of Supervisors.

Wants New Span Where the Old One Was.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 15.—The City Council is not altogether pleased with the recent arrangement worked out by the Board of Supervisors of Riverside and San Bernardino counties for the building of a bridge over the Santa Ana River in order to reopen the Riverside-Rialto road.

The bridge was washed out a few years ago, and the Board of Supervisors of San Bernardino county recently agreed to construct a bridge at a point east of the old location providing the Riverside board would commence proceedings for acquiring a right-of-way for that portion of the ocean-to-ocean highway extending from Beaumont to the San Bernardino county line.

The members of the City Council of this city take the ground that San Bernardino should place the new bridge at the point where the old one was washed out, for the reason that upwards of $60,000 has already been spent in opening up North Main street to make a direct route to Bloomington and Rialto, and that a detour easterly would add two miles to the road, involving an expenditure of $25,000 for improvement, and would in effect provide a highway paralleling La Cadena drive, better known as Colton avenue, into Colton and San Bernardino.

A tentative agreement has already been entered into by the boards of the two counties with regard to the new bridge, and the strong protest of the City Council injects a new factor likely to complicate a situation that seemed well on the way to a satisfactory solution.

FIFTH YEAR OF POLISH HISTORY.

The Damon Specialty Company, manufacturer of Nonolio polish for automobiles is this month celebrating its fifth anniversary. Although the formula was in existence some time prior to that time, the active manufacturing and marketing of the product, which is said to be the pioneer automobile polish, was not begun until five years ago.

The company has definitely decided to make Chicago its eastern distributing point. Nonolio will be shipped there in carload lots and from there distributed to jobbers as far East as the Atlantic seaboard. A sales manager's headquarters will be established in New York, however, early this spring, it is stated.

HOW TO AVOID SKIDDING.

How to Avoid Skidding When Caught Out.

F. H. Osler is here illustrating a good method of cutting down skidding dangers when caught out in the wet with plain tread tires and no chains. By lowering the air pressure a trifle you can minimize the risk, and the extra wear on the tire will be well worth the money saved in avoiding a bump.

When you are caught by a sudden rainstorm on a skiddy street and you find you have left your skid chains at home in the garage, here's a scheme that will greatly help to get you home without disaster. It is offered by F. H. Osler of the Osler-Racine Tire Company, distributors of the Racine Multi-Mile cord tire, and he declares it is very effective help in securing safe traction on greasy asphalt.

"Just deflate your tires about one third," said Mr. Osler last week. "That may sound like peculiar advice from a tire man, but it's better to run a ways on a partially-deflated tire than to have your car smashed in a skidding accident.

"With a smooth tread tire, this will help but little, but in the case of non-skids, which everyone should use in the rear, at least, it will allow the entire corrugated portion of the tread to engage with the road surface, and will greatly decrease your chances of accident.

"If you car has a heavy load, do not let out a full third of the pressure, the best way being to judge with your eye, and just let out enough air so that the non-skid tread will flatten out and engage with the road.

"Of course it must be remembered that I advise this only as an emergency measure, and that the car should be driven slowly when the tires are deflated in this fashion. Furthermore, they should be refilled with air at the earliest possibility after the danger from skidding is over. I have had to resort to this measure once or twice, and I could never detect that my Racine Multi-Mile cords were harmed by it. At any rate, it is a good thing to remember, and may help out sometime."

EDGAR APPERSON HERE.

Prominent Motor Manufacturer Looks Over the Auto Show.

The only automobile manufacturer to personally attend the Los Angeles show was Edgar Apperson, of Apperson Bros. Automobile Company. Mr. Apperson is one of the most prominent figures in the industry. He never had seen an automobile exposition in this city, and declared he was unprepared to see one of such magnitude and splendor. He said that from a decorative standpoint and the number of specially-prepared cars, it exceeded any show in the country. Mr. Apperson, with his brother, Elmer, is the oldest continuous automobile manufacturer in the country, and the many nice things he had to say about the show are to be accepted as coming from an authority.

According to what Mr. Apperson had to say to Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the Apperson factory branch in this city, the automobile manufacturing business is at this time in a situation the like of which never has before confronted it. Naturally, that is principally due to the sudden ending of the war and the consequent turnover in all plans for production. While every factory is striving to get back to building cars as rapidly as possible, it will be a somewhat slow process, he says. That is because many factories still are engaged upon big government contracts and cannot obtain release from them immediately.

"With the Apperson factory, the situation is somewhat different," said Mr. Apperson. "In the first place, we did not try to take on every government contract that we might have had. We, as others, put our plants at the disposal of the government; but what I mean is that we did not tie up on such a large scale that we could not foresee the end some place in the future. The fact is, we have already finished our contract for building truck motors, and as rapidly as possible are returning to the production of Apperson cars. The automobile business has been criticised in connection with aircraft production, but those of us who did that truck work certainly delivered the goods.

"Trucks proved one of the deciding factors in winning the war. There came a time when this country received word that what the armies in Europe needed most was not men nor muntions, but transportation for the men and munitions already available. Then it was that the automobile manufacturers came to the front. The factories in this country turned out trucks so rapidly that all the roads in the East were constantly in use. There was almost one continuous stream of motor trucks traveling eastward from the factories for shipment abroad. Military leaders had said that transportation would win the war before 1919, and as soon as they got trucks in sufficient numbers to advance the fighting forces and their supplies fast enough the end was brought about.

"Now that the war is over, there must be a return to building passenger cars for our own use. This cannot be brought about as rapidly as seems to be the belief of some people. For one thing, there is a scarcity of materials. The same materials that go into automobile building were demanded for war work, and in the expectations that the war would last indefinitely, the material makers produced for war contract specifications. There is absolutely no way to avoid returning to peace-time production consequently, except through gradual development. The car manufacturers can get back to their old swing quicker than the material people can meet the demand.

"It is in connection with the labor situation in the United States that the manufacturers are right now rendering a notable service that in itself is a remarkable display of patriotism. Wages are not being reduced, although there are more laborers than there is need for. Right now, at the Apperson factory, we are paying skilled mechanics high wages and assigning them odd jobs to do about the plant because we cannot use them otherwise. Although the situation would justify throwing thousands of men out of work, we are not doing it. It would be almost criminal to force a reduction in wages upon these men when they are having to pay so high for the necessities of life. Business is not supposed to be charity, but the attitude of the automobile manufacturers today is one of the biggest factors there is in keeping the United States from being involved in serious labor difficulties. The high cost and small supply of materials and the necessity for maintaining the present high wages are points that the Apperson company believes will prevent any general reduction in automobile prices until the situation adjusts itself somewhat."

REVIEW OF WAR REPORTS.

One Company Did a Good Deal to Help Win Over in France.

Judging from one of the latest stories to come out of France regarding the performance of the United States Army Cadillacs the French roads during war times must have been very much like the Santa Monica road race course on a busy afternoon.

During the last year of the great war everything possible was being done to lessen the civic burden to the railroads. One method used was to use Cadillac army cars for mail runs out of Paris. Those runs varied from 150 to 200 miles. The Cadillac made the runs day after day and month after month, averaging fifty-five miles per hour. This meant mile-a-minute traveling all the time. Those French roads were no place for slow going vehicles.

An interesting piece of government motor equipment was the special type of limousine developed and manufactured by the Cadillac company for use overseas. In exterior appearance this limousine, except for the native drab finish, resembles the car in which milady goes shopping, but the interior is especially adapted to the rough and ready uses of war. It is upholstered in leather instead of mohair velvet, the curtains are canvas instead of taffeta silk, the floor is covered with a rough cocoanut mat and the passenger compartment is provided with a desk intended for the use of the officers in referring to their maps and charts, while traveling from one part of the war zone to another. These special limousines are mounted on the standard Cadillac chassis.

The rapidity with which the Cadillac company filled its contracts and its scientific methods of packing and shipping cars and parts for overseas use were highly complimented by representative government officials.

The Cadillac Company not only manufactured a large number of complete Liberty motors, but the services of the company proved invaluable in the manufacture of connecting rods. The Liberty motor connecting rod and the Cadillac connecting rod are practically the same except as to size. A large share of this work was assigned to Cadillac because of its dexterity in handling the tough metal that was required.

A new plant, with an area of 223,000 square feet, was equipped and utilized for Liberty motor production.

The adaption of the "club method" so that it could be practically used for "calibration" or measuring the power of Liberty motors was a product of Cadillac genius, and it proved to be indispensable in accurately determining the horse power. It takes precedence over the old torque stand and the electric dynamo motor, which were the only previous methods, the latter being very expensive to use.

The problem of keeping the cylinders cool when welding on the shoulders was uniquely solved by L. W. Kaufman, of the Cadillac Company and was extremely valuable in speeding up the Liberty engine production at the time when there was a crying need for them.

Early in January, 1918, Mr. Howard E. Coffin, who was then head of the aircraft board, appointed a committee consisting of three eminent engineers to act in an advisory capacity in regard to the improvements to be made in future series of motor production, instructing them to make tests for the Liberty engine and recommendation for changes which they considered necessary to overcome existing defects. D. McCall White, vice-president of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, was named by Mr. Coffin to serve on this committee.

A two and one-half ton artillery tractor of the "track laying" type was designed for government use to negotiate very soft or uneven surfaces impassable to the usual type of power vehicle. Rather than experiment with a new engine, it was found that the Cadillac standard eight cylinder V-type engine with some slight changes was not only capable of doing the work, but that it further demonstrated the most remarkable ability in several astonishing tests. In one of the tests the tractor was tied fast and under the power of the engine the caterpillar tracks were made to slip on a rough concrete base. The Cadillac company was turning out large quantities of engines for this tractor before the armistice was signed.

The Cadillac company was chosen by the government for the delicate task or designing and manufacturing the various gauges for the government inspection of Class B military trucks, known as Liberty trucks. Special accuracy was required in these gauges. The government paid a high tribute to Cadillac engineering genius and the craftsmanship in leaving the limits of measurement entirely to the judgment of Cadillac engineers and designers. More than 1500 of these gauges were made as soon as they had demonstrated their merit after passing a most critical inspection by the Bureau of Standards.

CHANCE TO SEE FINE USED CARS.

The Silver Motor Car Company, a firm of used-car dealers located on Olive street, is introducing quite an innovation in the used-car business in the exhibition of rebuilt and refinished automobiles they they are now holding at their well-lighted salesrooms, where a prospective buyer will find a full line of all makes and sizes of the better class of used automobiles. The proprietor, A. M. Silver, says that he wishes to show the public that they may obtain a used automobile that possesses both quality and elegant appearance as well. Visitors are welcome.

KANSAS CITY MOTOR FOUND.

Car Stolen There Discovered in Los Angeles.

Had been All Fixed up with Nice New Top.

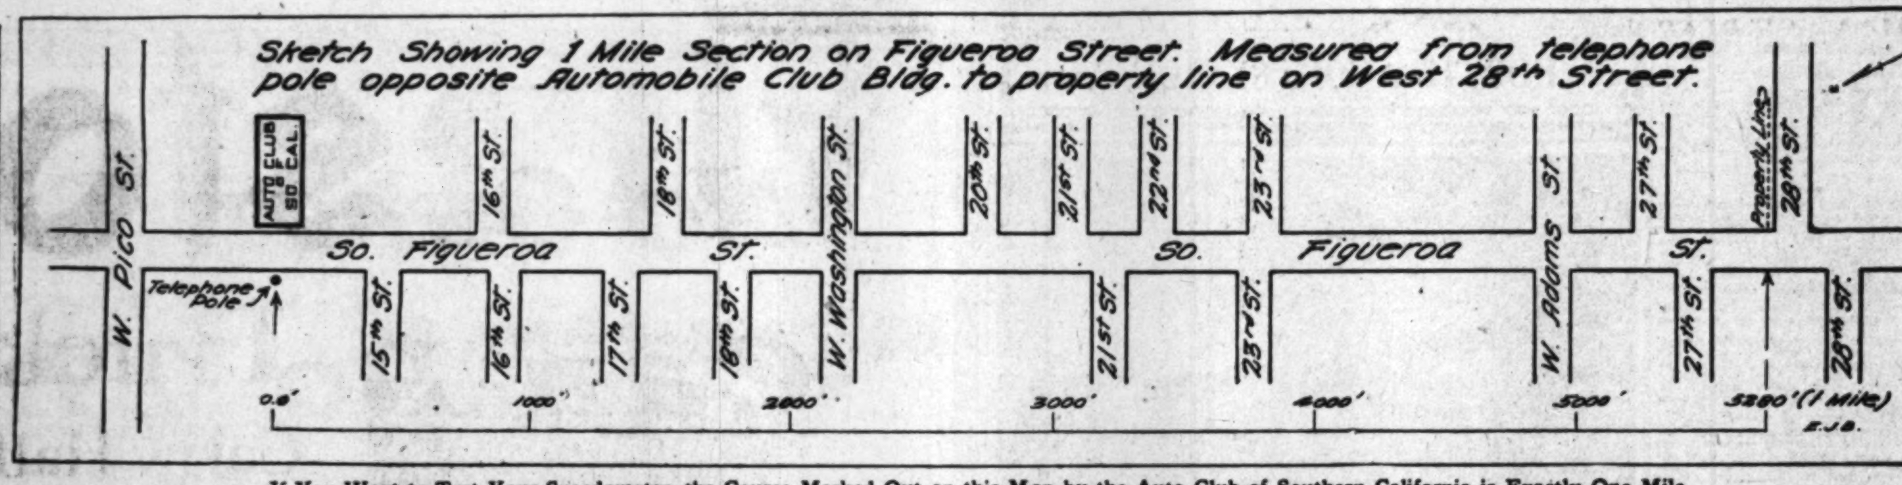
And was Being Covered with a Coat of Paint.

The unceasing vigilance of the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California resulted in the recovery last Tuesday of the machine stolen in Kansas City on November 16 of last year.

This car, a specially equipped Hudson "speedster" of the latest model was the property of Norman Hobart of Kansas City. When the car disappeared the Kansas City police bulletined the loss, together with a description of the missing property.

While going the rounds Tuesday Detectives Powell and Clark of the auto club found the machine in a Los Angeles paint shop. The original top had been replaced by a special one designed to disguise the appearance of the car and a new coat of paint was being applied to further camouflage the booty.

It is the belief of those acquainted with the methods of motor thieves that at least 40 per cent. of all cars stolen in Middle Western and Eastern States ultimately are brought to California. Transcontinental recoveries are an almost weekly occurrence in the work of the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.



If You Want to Test Your Speedometer, the Course Marked Out on this Map by the Auto Club of Southern California is Exactly One Mile.

LOUIS WAGNER MAY RACE.

Famous Foreign Speed King Dickering with Fiat Factory.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 17.—Fiat will signalize its comeback in American racing by making its first concerted attempt to win the Indianapolis 500-mile race. That the revival of the Indianapolis Speedway's classic with the running of the Liberty Sweepstakes, May 31, means the rebirth of auto racing is shown by the Fiat attitude. The Turin factory has advised W. F. Bradley in Paris, European representative of the Indianapolis track, that Italy's colors will be represented by a trio of its fast cars, if present plans hold good.

The most illuminating part of Bradley's message was that Louis Wagner will likely team with Jack Scales as a Fiat driver. This will be the third appearance of the famous Frenchman in America's blue ribbon races, as Wagner won the 1906 Vanderbilt with a Darracq, and the first Grand Prize in 1908, driving a Fiat. It will also be the first time that he has raced for the western fans, the two previous victories being scored on the Long Island and Savannah courses, respectively.

This will be the second time that the Fiats have started for Indianapolis. When the 1917 500-mile race was announced the Turin factory entered its cars and started them for America. When this country went to war the Speedway ownership decided that it would be unpatriotic to run its annual speed classic and called off the event. The Turin factory was cabled news of the cancellation and was able to locate the racers before they were placed on board ship for the voyage across the Atlantic. Since that time the cars have been covered with tarpaulin and standing in the Fiat's racing plant waiting for the day when peace would come and Indianapolis resume its racing.

Wagner replaces the late Antonio Fagnano on the Fiat team, as the latter died last fall after a short illness. Jack Scales is an Englishman, who has been a Fiat engineer for years. If the three fastest of the five Fiats built for the 1917 race are shipped across, it is probable that a third driver will be signed after Scales reaches America. A former American race driver, now an engineering officer in the air service, is known to be negotiating with Fiat for the third mount and may be successful.

That the Fiats will have to be reckoned with on May 31 is a certainty. An American, who, as an army officer, inspected the Fiat plant, took it upon himself to learn something about its race cars when they were shipped back to the Turin factory in 1917, states that the Fiats to be raced here are not the cars which started in the 1914 Grand Prix in France, but new "jobs." The new power plants are said to have shown a test speed on the roads around Turin of more than ninety miles an hour. Scales told the American that the president of the Fiat company stipulated that if the plant could turn out a 300-inch engine that would show better than ninety on the road, the cars could come to America. That figure on the roads in France means that Ralph de Palma's record average of 89.84 for 500 miles at Indianapolis will be shattered May 31, if the Fiats get any of the "breaks" after the race starts.

Don't fail to send the wonderful Midwinter Number of The Times, to be issued January 28th, 1919, to out-of-town friends.

GOOD-ROAD LEGISLATION.

Congress to Vote on a Number of Bills to Improve Highways.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Jan. 17.—Senator John H. Bankhead, chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, to which all highways legislation in the upper branch of Congress is referred, in commenting upon bills now pending, recently made this plea for "roads at home:"

"The war showed what the national strength could accomplish in the swift construction of rapid-transit highways and the use thereon of rapid-transit vehicles.

"The nation trained its Engineer Corps and sent them to Europe equipped for the quick construction of roads. The part which the United States took in the decisive campaign was rendered possible by the use of automobiles and motor trucks over rapid-transit highways.

"Now that the war is over, the question arises, are not highways as vitally important for the conduct of peace as they were for the conduct of war? With half the world going to bed hungry every night and millions doomed to starvation, is not the swift construction of the highway to the acre that produces as urgent a necessity as were the roads in the battle zone? And if the need is as urgent should the nation slacken its effort or permit its road-building equipment to be sold or dissipated? Should it not rather increase its efforts in this direction and proceed with the construction of highways at home on a scale commensurate with the importance and urgency of the need?

"It is for the Congress of the United States to answer these questions. Measures are pending designed to meet the situation, three of which are as follows:

"(1.) Joint resolution 200 authorizing the transfer from the War Department to the Department of Agriculture of all available dispensable and suitable war material for distribution to the highway departments of the several States for use on the highways.

"(2.) Senate Bill 5088, increasing the present unexpended appropriation of about $60,000,000 for road purposes by the addition of $125,000,000 for expenditures to June, 1920, and $100,000,000 a year thereafter for four years. It is also proposed to increase the appropriation for national forest roads of $1,000,000 a year on the present ten-year road-building programme by a sum sufficient to construct 17,000 miles of forest roads, which the government has already planned and which are necessary in order to utilize the vast resources of the national forests. The estimated cost of these roads is $50,000,000. Amendments to the present road act freeing it from undesirable limitations are also planned, one of which will enable the government to construct at its own cost links in important highways which could not otherwise be constructed.

"(3.) House Bill 13308 carries an appropriation of $1,000,000 for an extension of the motor-truck parcel post service. This is an increase from $300,000 provided in the last Postoffice Appropriation Bill, which also authorized the War Department to transfer to the Postoffice Department motor trucks for which it had no further use. Under last year's appropriation twenty-seven motor-truck routes were established, all but one of which were operated east of the Mississippi River. The results, even in the initial stage, are such as to warrant an increase in the number of routes and their extension to the trans-Mississippi region, where rail and water facilities of transportation are altogether inadequate. The proposed transfer of 10,000 motor trucks from the War Department to the Postoffice Department renders it possible to make a great extension of this service at a minimum cost. It is proposed to increase the appropriation for this service to $10,000,000. To store these trucks would cost $600,000 a year. To dump them on the market would be disastrous. To turn them loose to aid agriculture in the movement of farm products to the consumer would be statesmanship. To adopt such a policy would be but to follow historic precedent.

"Senate Bill 5088 has the approval of President Wilson and Secretaries Houston and Baker. The proposition not to lessen the national endeavor in road construction now that peace has come, but merely to transfer the scene of action from Europe to the homeland, is but the response to a universal demand. The public rejoices to see the trophies of war now being brought back from Europe. Equally popular will be the sight of machines that built the United States road to the Rhine at work building connecting highways from Canada to the southern boundary and from the Atlantic to the Pacific through every State in the Union."

Gov.-elect Henry J. Allen of Kansas, while in Washington the other day, was interviewed, and his good roads comment deserves national circulation. Asked how the vote of soldiers could be secured, he promptly replied, "Build good roads." Mr. Allen said that while the men would return from "over there" with the usual diversity of opinion on political subjects, they would return with a single mind on the subject of good roads, as the Governor-elect said that the men of the American Expeditionary Force firmly believed that the good roads of France won the war.

LOCAL TRUCK FEATURES.

This year a most interesting change has been made in the installation of the Liberty truck motor on Moreland four-ton and five-ton chasses; improved radius rods with full universal joint action where it fastens to the frame and also the axle; wider springs on all models; greatly improved motors on the one and a half-ton and two and a half-ton sizes, and general refinements all through each unit.

Watt L. Moreland, general manager of the Moreland Motor Truck Company, has watched the Liberty truck motor from the time it was first designed, in May, 1917, through its exhaustive tests in this country, both on the block and in actual operation, and its final post-graduate tests on the French front. This motor received such a high percentage of efficiency that Lieut.-Col. Horton, assistant to the chief of the motor transport, pronounced it, at a meeting of the Society of Automobile Engineers last November, to be the finest military power plant in existence.

Mr. Moreland's contention is that a power plant that fills the bill perfectly for military work makes an ideal commercial engine. To use his own words: "The engine is the heart of a truck. Without highly efficient operation in the power plant, a motor truck is not a success. Everything else can be 100 per cent., yet a failure in the motive power means a failure in the whole assembly."

Another new feature is the Moreland three and a half to five ton trailer, equipped with air brakes operated by the driver from the driver's seat, and operating at the same instant on the truck breaks and trailer breaks. This system has been perfected by the Moreland Truck Company's engineering department, and means a great step forward in trailer use and control. The Moreland trailer is the first trailer in the country to be placed on the market with a pressed-steel frame and steel wheels, and embodies other features that are of strong appeal to concerns using trailers to any great extent.

CAPT. WADDELL IS BACK IN OAKLAND.

FORMER AUTO EDITOR OF THE TIMES RETURNS FROM OVERSEAS DUTY.

Al G. Waddell, former automobile editor of The Times, and during the last few months captain in the "He Men," the One Hundred and Forty-third Field Artillery, was given a royal greeting when he arrived in Oakland Friday, fresh from his overseas campaign. The Oakland Chamber of Commerce had a delegation on hand to meet Al, and the Chevrolet Motor Company of California, of which he was formerly advertising manager, was also there with a big bunch.

Waddell enlisted in the One Hundred and Forty-third at the outbreak of the war as a private, although he was largely instrumental in organizing the company. He was promoted to a second lieutenancy in short order, and won his way through the first lieuts bars to the rank of captain. He was scheduled to stay in France for some months to come, but on the eve of their departure the men under him clamored for him to accompany them home, so Al was granted an early assignment to the place of his enlistment.

LOCAL POLISH IS NOW GOING EAST.

Whether it is to be used to brighten up some of the dull sessions of Congress or not, the order did not state, but at any rate there is a carload of Duro-Lac on the way to Washington, D. C. According to Frank Webster of the International Sales Company, the carload order from the far eastern point is good evidence of the way the Los Angeles made auto polish is winning friends in the eastern market. "Hitherto, limited manufacturing facilities have kept us busy in supplying the Pacific Coast trade," said Webster last week. "The addition of more equipment for manufacturing Duro-Lac, however, has permitted us to commence to fill large eastern orders, and we will soon have Duro-Lac sales agencies established in all the big cities of the East."

TRUCK MANAGERS ENJOY BIG FEED.

The Moreland Motor Truck Company entertained its branch managers during the last three days of the automobile show with a business convention at the factory, and on Friday evening held a dinner for them at the Athletic Club. There were thirty branch managers, officers and dealers present, and a most enjoyable vaudeville programme was had. The Moreland Motor Truck Company pulls off an affair of this kind each year.

Come Ride in the Essex

Its First Showing—A Light Weight Quality Car

We Want Your Opinion of It

All motordom has waited a year for the Essex.

Dealers have ventured all sorts of descriptions for it. But today it is having its premier showing in hundreds of cities and towns throughout America.

For months the trade papers have given first prominence to whatever news they could get of its details.

Their interest was awakened because it combines the advantages of the light low priced car, and its economy, with the performance, sturdiness and beauty of the large and costly car. One leading writer proclaimed the Essex a new development in motor car transportation.

Don't you want to be among the first in this locality to see the car that has awakened this interest? We wish you would come and ride in it for

You Are To Do Its Advertising

We have long wanted to reveal the details of the Essex. But the manufacturers said they wanted the car to speak for itself. They said no description that could be applied to it would create as favorable an impression as would result from a ride in the car.

Even now we hesitate to praise the Essex since we can say nothing that has not already been claimed in praise for some other car.

So the endorsement it is to receive is such as you and other thousands of motorists volunteer to give. All we ask is that you come see and ride in it.

We Were Surprised— Let Us Surprise You

When we went to the factory to see the Essex we wanted to know in advance something of its detail. But we were told that was for us to discover as we inspected and rode in the car.

Perhaps we would have been skeptical and have concluded there was nothing unusual about the Essex if we had not known the men who are building it. But knowing them as we do and knowing the quality of cars they build, our faith and curiosity were aroused.

What a Ride Proved to Us

Our first experience was a ride over a road so rough that you would willingly go miles out of the way to avoid if you were in the average light car.

We took it at high speed, but the effect in both the front and rear seats was more in keeping with what you might expect in riding over a smooth pavement.

Then we drove into soft sand where the wheels sunk in below the felloes, going through as though it were thin mud.

Every test that reveals performance was shown us. There were no squeaks. The motor did not labor. The car had been in similar service for months and still retained its appearance of newness. These are things we want to show you. A demonstration like that which surprised us is ready for you if you will come to our store.

The Essex is Built To Endure

Every part that wears is adjustable. Hard service can not loosen the body nor twist the radiator. It is so sturdily built that the frame remains solid and rigid over the roughest roads and through the hardest service. The motor is practically free from vibration. If you were blindfolded and placed in the Essex without having seen it and then were given such a ride as we want you to take with us, you would likely say you were in a large and costly car.

After you have ridden in the Essex we will tell you all about it.

Then, we think you will be so enthusiastic you will tell everyone you know that you have ridden in the most surprising car you have ever seen.

WOLVERTON TO MANAGE BEES?

Former Seal Leader may Get Back in League.

Believed He Would be a Great Aid to the Team.

Cliff Blankenship is Also in the Running.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 18.—Harry Wolverton or Cliff Blankenship will manage the Bees next season.

President H. W. Lane of the Salt Lake club is feeling out his friends and local boosters on the two names in an effort to combine their best judgment with his own views before making a selection between the above-named men.

Lane has confided in numerous of his baseball friends that he would prefer the former Seal and Yankee manager, if the latter will talk business on anything that sounds like a reasonable basis, as he considers him one of the best managers the league has ever had and he further believes that, with Wolverton at the head, the Bees would be an immense drawing card, especially at San Francisco and Oakland.

Bill Orr, the Bee shortstop, has put in an application for the job to succeed Walter McCredie and so have Joe Dunn, a 1918 catcher on the Salt Lake staff, and Walter Leverenz, the crack southpaw pitcher. The player-manager applicants appear to have a slim chance with Lane as the Bee executive feels that to appoint any one of them, would surely cause ill-feeling among the others.

The truth of the matter is that Lane banked on McCredie for another year as the Portland boss informed him last fall that he had no desire to return to Portland, even if Judge McCredie should succeed in breaking back into this circuit. Needless to say, he is somewhat disappointed over the sudden reversal of affairs.

The loss of McCredie, the resultant loss of Paddy Siglin and Jack Farmer and the death of Larry Chappell have partially wrecked what looked like a mighty formidable ball club almost ready to open a season. For that reason Lane is not inclined to take chances on a playing-manager or an uncertainty as a bench manager at this late stage.

In Wolverton, Lane believes he would have a manager with good big-league connections and a man who would therefore be in a better position to bolster up the weak spots on the Salt Lake club. Lane is one of those club owners who insists on a winner. We wanted one last season and believed he had one with Walter McCredie at the helm, until the war put the kibosh on a sweet-looking ball club.

The Salt Lake club is really in a bad way for players. It is without the services of a real first-string catcher, although it might weather the storm with Mike Konnick and Butch Byler. The pitching department needs strengthening, although McCredie's successor will find a good pitching-staff nucleus in Leverenz, Dubuc and McCabe, all good pitchers when not worked to death. Adolph Schinkle, who promises to be a real hero and a card on his return from the European battlefields, may also get back in time to join the club. The club also has Ken Penner, although it is evident that the McCredies will try to claim him, and Clarence Smith, the hot-headed Southern Leaguer, who looked good until his rumpus with Umps Frary.

First base is well filled with Earl Sheely, who should have a great year since he has banished his draft and other worries. Second base presents a great big hole, since the McCredies have taken back Paddy Siglin. Karl Crandall, who, in 1917, looked like a major leaguer at third base, belongs to the club and will probably be seen at that station, although there is also Morris Rath, drafted by Cincinnati in 1917. Rath, after leading the Coast League in batting at the close of the 1917 year, enlisted in the radio service and, therefore, did not report to the Reds. Since the Bees have never received the draft money from Cincinnati, Rath will probably revert to Salt Lake. The local club also has Gurd Gislason, Tex McDonald and Jake Daubert on the infield roster. All have been in the army. McDonald, an experienced Southern Leaguer, looked good at third and short near the close of the 1918 season.

In the outfield there is only Buddy Ryan left, and the scrappy little Bee captain has been getting hurt so often that the club is figuring none tod strongly on his services for 1919. Ward Miller was a trouble maker on the club last season, and also a disappointment, as he failed to hit his weight. He will not be retained.

It is plainly evident then that Lane has no time to lose if he intends to give his manager an opportunity to rustle for another good ball club He expects to go to the Coast several days in advance of the February 1 meeting and will then talk with both Wolverton and Blankenship.

In the event that Lane and Wolverton fail to get together, Blankenship will probably have the call. Blankenship managed the local club in 1915 and finished close on to San Francisco's heels. He resigned from the management near the close of the 1916 season, maintaining that he and the president of the club, then Frank S. Murphy, were unable to get along. He has a host of friends here, many of whom maintain that his scrappy nature made him the best and most aggressive manager Salt Lake ever boasted.

George Cline, the Old Standby.

The San Gabriel Country Club star looked good in the Annandale tourney, but was unfortunate in running up against Bill Campbell when William was hitting 'em right on the nose.

ROTARIANS PLAY GOLF AT CULVER.

HOTEL MEN WILL BE GUESTS OF COUNTRY CLUB FOR THE WHOLE DAY.

The club officers and committeemen of the Culver City Country Club are reported to be jubilant over the response of the Rotary Club to Culver's invitation for today. The programme for today's Rotary tournament include four matches of foursomes, for which firsts and seconds have qualified.

At the close of the third flight yesterday, Heilbron of El Paso, Tex., turned in the following score:

Out .... 5 3 5 4 3 4 5 5 5—39
In ...... 5 5 3 6 4 5 4 5 6—42

The following is the Reception Committee for today's tournament: George W. Somerville, Harry H. Culver, H. W. McNutt, J. D. Carson, H. H. Whiteley, H. W. Creighton, Harry S. Carroll, R. V. Couser, G. C. Higbie, Dr. W. D. Gill, J. Ira Moyse and Dr. W. B. Goodfellow.

BASEBALL TODAY AT MAIER PARK.

Tom Kennedy's Hollywood team will try to put over the second game against Dyas Sunday in their five-game series for the city championship, winning last Sunday and putting them in the lead. The game will be played at Maier Park, Vernon. As there has been great rivalry started in this series, Chet Thomas has wagered Tom Kennedy that they don't get another game, and as these two are connected with the movie colony, there is a lot of interest started among the studios. Kitty Brashear will do the umpiring. Bill Piercy will be in uniform for Hollywood, and will probably pitch the game.

AMONG THE FANS.

Fred O'Melay of Hillsdale won the State championship of Michigan in a tournament recently held at Grand Rapids. This is the fourth time Mr. O'Melay has won the State championship and proved his class this time by going through the tourney without the loss of a game.

Harry Lieberman expects to be mustered out of the service by February 1. Harry will probably give exhibitions on his way back to Chicago.

LOS ANGELES TIMES GAME, NO. 650.
(For the beginners.)

Several correspondents have suggested that a game each issue be given to aid the novice in getting started into the mysteries of the game. I am going to give it a trial and if it appeals to you, write and let us know. I often receive letters asking advice on different games. Hereafter those will be answered under this head. Do not hesitate to ask for advice on any game—if it is too hard a "nut for me to crack" I will acknowledge the same. The "Single Corner" opening will receive attention first, as it is a great favorite among non-book players. I would advise all interested in learning the scientific side of the game to first buy Hill's Manual (25 cents,) Lee's Guide (50 cents,) and some good problem book. If more books are desired, then get the British Draughts Player ($1.50,) and the Encyclopedias, which sell at about 65 or 70 cents apiece. If you do not know where to get them I will be pleased to order them for you.

The Franklin CAR

The Many Claims of Light Weight Call for the Scales—also Questions

LIGHT WEIGHT in an automobile is a correct basic principle, else there wouldn't be such a noticeable change of front in the industry—so many claims, where only one existed before.

But the next time this statement of light weight comes up, get on the scales with it, and see how far the claim goes. Is it an actuality or just words? If it makes good, then ask, How did you get it?

That's important, because light weight must not sacrifice strength and safety.

The Franklin is the original and only light weight fine car. It weighs today 2445 pounds.

It began 16 years ago with the principle of Direct Air Cooling, one of the principles which permitted logical light weight, sturdiness, resiliency, and economy, instead of the prevalent heavy weight, rigidity and expense.

This difference has appealed so strongly to the American people, especially during the last three years, that heavy weight, massiveness and rigidity have changed to statements of light weight, trimness and flexibility. The statements are in the right direction, but get on the scales with the weight and on a rough road with the flexibility—and see if the practice bears out the statements.

Then try the Franklin in the same way.

From Statement to Performance

Franklin Light Weight and Flexibility carry through from statement to performance, and the results are worth knowing about.

1. ECONOMY. Franklin economy is the logical result of its light weight and flexibility, and it consists of two parts—economy of operation and economy of depreciation. In gasoline and tires, the Franklin gives a daily delivery of—

   20 miles to the gallon of gasoline—instead of 10
   10,000 miles to the set of tires—instead of 5,000

   And in economy of depreciation, the Franklin, owing to the fact that it does not pound itself to pieces over rough roads, depreciates 50% slower than the average car.

2. SAFETY. A car that is too heavy is an unsafe proposition on rough or slippery roads. And a car that has dropped off weight unscientifically, may have sacrificed safety in so doing. The Franklin's light weight and flexibility enable it to follow the bumps of a road with safety, and Franklin construction and materials mean strength.

3. COMFORT. You cannot realize Franklin comfort unless you ride in the car over a road that would mean hardship in another and heavier car. Franklin light weight and flexibility give a remarkable degree of riding-comfort over all the roads.

4. FLEXIBILITY. Here is the great aid to Franklin Light Weight. Franklin Flexibility, as opposed to rigidity, comes from the use of full-elliptic springs, instead of the compromise type, and chassis frame of tough, resilient ash, instead of the usual unyielding steel. No torque bars or strut rods and braces.

5. SIMPLICITY. Fewer parts mean less trouble as well as less weight. Direct Air Cooling cuts out the 177 parts incident to water-cooling and with them go the frequent annoyance, bother and repairs common to radiators, pipes, water-jackets, etc. Nothing to boil or to freeze.

These are the points about Franklin Light Weight that indicate the carefulness with which it is arrived at. Note what they mean in each item of performance of the car.

Remember these points when next you hear claims of light weight. For they are important to you, as distinguishing between mere claims and actual scientific facts of construction.

Dear Eddie:
Smithy's ma says look out how you advise people or prescribe for them. What is spinach for you might be poison ivy for the other fellow. different people require different things, she says. Some folks love a fight and wallow around in joy over a black eye and a bruised head while others of us would rather have a good chicken dinner and a nice nap, or, go to the movies or a show.

The dash and verve and chic Frenchness of these clever sketches are not what one would be looking for from the office boy, but young Kenneth Taylor, office boy on the Times editorial floor, is the exception that proves the rule. He made these on his typewriter in his spare moments.

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

WHAT tropical fruit will succeed the avocado as the popular novelty in local markets, now that avocados are accepted as a permanent orchard crop? For thirty years avocados have been grown in and around Los Angeles. Not until within the last decade have they become popular. In five years everyone will be eating them freely. What is the next candidate for honors? The mango? We believe such an event not only quite possible, but probable. It has been successfully grown in various parts of California, where frost is not a serious menace. No attempt has yet been made to test a wide range of varieties, to find those best adapted to local conditions. When the same amount of experimental and demonstration work has been done with the mango that has been done with the avocado, we will have first-class California varieties that will quickly place the mango in our list of orchard fruits.

In August, 1907, the writer last had a talk with J. E. Higgins, Horticulturist for Hawaii, at the United States Agricultural Experiment Station for that Territory. Mr. Higgins is a firm believer in a great future for the mango and upon the occasion noted, said: "The mango will unquestionably become a popular fruit in the markets of the temperate zone. Its beauty of form and coloring, its enchanting aroma and delicious flavor make it a fruit universally appreciated where known. The inferior seedling varieties have been responsible for the unenviable reputation it has acquired among some travelers. (The same has been true of the avocado.) The fine varieties have only now been introduced in the American tropics and are as yet known to but few. When these shall have been propagated and widely distributed in Hawaii, Florida, California, the Philippines, Cuba and Mexico, the growing of the fruit will have become an important industry. The demand for it will increase as those who are yet young have seen the markets increase in their capacity for oranges, lemons, pomelos, bananas and many other fruits." Mr. Higgins is thoroughly familiar with local conditions, having made many trips to California in horticultural investigations. In fact, it was at a farmers' institute in Redlands, in July, 1901, that the writer first met him. He firmly believed that fine varieties of mangoes would some day be grown in Southern California. A few young trees have been for sale at local depots for tropical fruits for a number of years, but fruiting trees are rare.

Birds or Fruit.

The two letters published herewith were received in the same day's mail and are but a sample of what every writer receives who expresses a positive opinion on any subject. The editor of the City Beautiful has for long years been a member of the Audubon Society, and has printed more articles on the protection of birds than any writer in Southern California. But there is a limit to bird indulgence and pests of all sorts should be destroyed, and the so-called linnet is one of them, the greatest bird pest in the State. Why should we save the destructive linnet and allow the mourning dove, not only harmless, but beneficial, to be destroyed? Really, "consistency is a jewel," but we are without such precious settings in our bird laws. Large numbers of linnets are each year destroyed by the method advised in the former article; it is not illegal. Here are the letters:

"For a number of years I have read your Garden Beautiful page with great pleasure and I cannot tell you with what regret I read last Sunday your suggestion in regard to poisoning water for birds. The suggestion was not only vicious and wicked, coming from a person of intelligence [we admit it.—Ed.] but strictly against the laws of the State. M. B. C."

"I deem it only fair to you to say that I am heartily in accord with your views generally on the subject of landscape gardening, and always watch for your section in the Sunday Times.

"Your reference to bird pests last Sunday, with special mention of the so-called linnet, was particularly gratifying, because coming from authority (such as is vested in you by virtue of your position and reputation,) it reinforced my radical opinion on this subject, and offsets in large measure the rather maudlin sympathy of bird lovers for anything and everything that is called bird.

A California Redwood.

"My experience in dealing with the linnet has been such as to arouse a positive hatred for it, and had I the means and the power, I would devise ways and means to bring about the total extinction of the brood. Some day I will tell you what I have had to contend with in this connection, and I wish that something definite could be undertaken to wage war against it. H. T. F."

Uprooted Street Trees.

"Would it be within your province to say a few words in your article in the Sunday Times about the street trees which were bent over or blown down by the wind storm a few weeks ago? I have visited several of the city departments that presumably would have such matters in charge, and could find absolutely no one who appeared to know or care anything about the subject of setting up these trees, or trying to save them. It seems the height of stupidity to have gone to the trouble and expense of planting the trees, and caring for them at the start, only to abandon them now. Many of them on Sunset boulevard should have been pruned last year when they made rapid growth, so they would have been stronger to resist storms. It was the prettiest of them, that were just beginning to make the ugly street look well, that went over in the wind. A man at the Park Commissioner's office did say they might have a meeting some day to see what could be done. But, I believe, if they were the right sort of commissioners, they would do something first and have their meeting afterward. When a storm strikes an eastern city, and blockades the streets with snow, they do not call a meeting to discuss ways and means. A thousand men are set to work to clear the streets at once. It may even now be too late to save these trees in their crippled condition. They should have been fixed quickly, when the ground was soft from the rain. Many of us would be grateful if you will use your influence in the interest of the trees. We don't want to lose one of them. HASTINGS."

We publish this letter because it is a just and commendable protest. Los Angeles has reason to be heartily ashamed of the condition of her street trees. This is the largest city in the world having no official street department or that exercises no control over street planting. As one of the Park Commissioners mentioned in the protest and as the one under whom all plants and planting falls, the writer wishes the public to know that said commission has no jurisdiction over streets or street trees. Also that it has not one cent it could legally spend on street trees, even if so inclined. All city departments are likewise situated. No funds are available, at present, for such work.

Another tree gone. It was uprooted in a storm and lost because there was no one to replace it.

Persistence of Redwoods.

No coniferous tree is more persistent in reproducing itself from stump sprouts than the redwood. This is no doubt largely due to its having no tap root. The large main roots lie near the surface, close to the trunk and from the shoulders of these the adventitious buds sprout very quickly when the main shaft has been cut off. These sprouts are so numerous that about a large stump they form a circular thicket of a hundred or more juvenile shafts. This unusual persistence should call for the adoption of the redwood as an emblem by patriotic and other California organizations.

Old Houses and Gardens.

We of Southern California do not sufficiently guard against the destruction of old houses, gardens, and other landmarks that with each passing year acquire a greater value. Ruskin said: "Watch an old building with anxious care; guard it as best you may, and at any cost from any influence of dilapidation. Count its stones as you would the jewels of a crown. Set watchers about it, as if at the gate of a besieged city; bind it together with iron when it loosens. Stay it with timbers when it declines. Do not care about the unsightliness of the aid—better a crutch than a lost limb; and do this tenderly and reverently and continually."

"What's in a Name?"

The poet who said, "What's in a name?" evidently had no idea that, in so far as the important matter of food is concerned, prejudice could be aroused to such a point as to cause a mental aversion to, if not a positive condemnation of a really delectable article of diet. Take the case of the Chinese cabbage, for example. Instinctively the gourmet shudders at the attempt to associate that name with a delicacy. Call it petsai (the Chinese name for it) and most probably his prejudice will change to desire; he will try it; like it.

Petsai was introduced by the United States Department of Agriculture from China. It is now grown in considerable quantities in many sections, including California.

The testimony of unprejudiced people who have eaten petsai is all in its favor, and many who have eaten chop suey and liked it, not knowing of what it is composed, unwittingly have held a brief for petsai—one of the staple ingredients of that well-known and much-enjoyed Chinese-American dish.

To Americans lettuce has become the great leaf vegetable for salads. Throughout the year it is grown in some part or other of the country and shipped from great distances to the nation's tables. California grows it while the rest of the country is shivering.

Petsai can be grown throughout the whole United States. It possesses not only the good food qualities of lettuce, but also it has the advantage of being more economically grown—about one-half the cost of lettuce—by reason of its heavier yield.

Petsai is grown from seed, just as lettuce is grown. It attains the height of twelve to fourteen inches and when ready to serve it resembles the heart of lettuce.

Large numbers of farmers have more money invested in their business than the business men in their county seat town have invested in their stores. Farmers are slowly coming to realize the truth of this comparison and that farming is a business, in connection with which business methods must be used.

Secretary Houston of the United States Department of Agriculture, recommends that Federal food and fertilizer laws be enacted in order to protect consumers against misbranded, adulterated and worthless foods and fertilizers entering into interstate commerce.

The war against the insect Huns of the orchards still goes on

A Better, Cheaper System for Pruning Deciduous Trees.

BY ROBERT W. HODGSON.

THERE is no one operation in the handling of orchard trees of more general interest to fruit growers than the subject of pruning. Nor is there any fruit-growing section in the world where regular and consistent pruning is practiced more universally than in California. And so generally successful has the California system of pruning proven in the past that it has been the custom to regard the form and style of pruning deciduous trees as developed in this State during the last thirty years as a model to which other fruit-producing districts could aspire. Nevertheless it cannot be said that all California fruit growers have been entirely satisfied with the results of the present system of pruning although it is used in practically every county in the State. While on the whole it has given general satisfaction, in particular localities it has not been found to give the results desired and there has always been a feeling among many fruit growers that it is too wasteful of the energies of the trees and may be a contributing factor to the early decline of a large part of our older orchards. But in order to properly understand these criticisms it is necessary to briefly describe the system of pruning deciduous trees as it is now generally practiced in this State.

Four-year-old peach before pruning. Demonstration at La Canada.

For many years, in fact, ever since it was realized that the California sunshine is much more intense than that experienced in eastern fruit-growing districts, it has been the custom to head the trees low. When the young tree is set, it is usually cut back to a height of from eighteen to thirty inches, depending somewhat upon the variety in question. A safe rule to apply has been to cut them back about knee high. This forced out growth from most of the buds along the stem which resulted in a cluster of branches almost from the ground up. The next winter these are thinned out to from three to five, depending on their arrangement, spread out over an interval of from twelve to fifteen inches, an effort being made to have the lower one either on the southwest side in order to shade the trunk or pointing toward the prevailing wind if the locality is windy. The first winter's pruning is finished by heading back these branches rather severely, cutting off about two-thirds of their length. The second season the shoots occurring on these main framework branches are thinned out to two or three per branch and again headed back. Small rosettes occurring further down are left to encourage early fruiting and prevent sunburn as well as to cool the main crotch and trunk. The third and fourth season's prunings are similar in nature and the tree comes into bearing usually in the fifth year when the severity of the pruning is reduced and confined merely to thinning out the fruiting shoots and heading them back about two-thirds of their length.

After the tree comes into bearing regular annual winter pruning continues to be the practice and consists largely in thinning out the fruiting branches, cutting out interfering limbs, and severely heading in all growth left. This in general was and still is the usual system of pruning as practiced in our best orchards. To be sure, it varies somewhat for different classes of fruits and also for different varieties, depending upon the habit of growth and fruiting as well as convenience in handling the fruit.

WHERE PLAN FAILS.

This annual cutting off of from a half to as much as three-quarters of each year's growth (and in many cases it is even more) has for a long time appeared a wasteful process to many growers. A large part of the energies of the tree are used in the production of this wood only to have it cut off every winter. In the minds of some growers this continual drain on the energies of the trees has a definite connection with their comparatively short period of profitable bearing. Moreover, the large number of cuts necessary in this system of pruning makes it impractical to paint them all over with a wound dressing and, as is well known, every uncovered wound presents favorable opportunity for the entrance of wood rot organisms. At the present time a number of eminent authorities consider that more orchard trees are lost each year from wood rot alone than from all other causes, and the prevalence of wood rot has been definitely connected with the severity of pruning.

In certain of the fruit-growing sections of California the trees naturally grow very vigorously and produce a large amount of coarse vegetative growth. While a certain amount of thrifty wood growth is desirable, in some localities too much of the energies of the tree are expended in this kind of effort, at the expense of fruiting. This tendency to wood growth is merely aggravated by winter pruning, for pruning at this time of year has been recognized for decades to be stimulating, the more severe the pruning the greater the stimulation. Heavy winter pruning has, therefore, instead of increasing the yield, thrown the trees even further out of balance and resulted in a forest of riotous growth and a dearth of salable fruit. In an effort to correct this condition summer pruning has been resorted to and with a considerable degree of success. For these as well as on account of the expense necessarily incurred in cutting off so much wood, severe winter pruning has met with objection on the part of many of our fruit growers.

NEW SYSTEM DEVELOPED.

For a number of years experiment stations in various parts of the country have recognized these objections to the current system of pruning and have been experimenting and working toward a system which would obviate them. At last the announcement comes that after having

Winter Lettuce Growing in Southern California.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA lettuce, now invading the eastern market in carload lots, is commanding greater attention and a better price than lettuce shipped from Florida or the gulf coast, according to reports from beyond the Rockies. This is because of the superior crispness, tenderness and color of the product of the Golden State. The price being received is the highest in many years. It is believed that the growers will receive $1 per crate delivered at packing houses. The crop is a little larger than that of last year.

There are about 3600 acres in lettuce in Los Angeles and Orange counties, 2573 acres in Imperial Valley and 130 acres in the Coachella Valley. The yield is approximately 300 crates of from four to five dozen heads to the acre. This yield is gradually getting larger each year as the result of improvement in methods of growing.

Lettuce from the large fields, grown almost exclusively by Japanese and Filipinos, is hauled in large crates from the field to the various packing houses established by the distributors and the crop is packed in smaller crates of about fifty heads in three tiers. Between each tier is placed a layer of cracked ice. The crates are placed in refrigerated cars as an added guarantee of retention of crispness. About 306 crates, or over 15,000 heads, are placed in each car.

Although the growing and shipping of crisp tender Southern California lettuce is getting to be an all-year-round proposition around Los Angeles, the active shipping season has just opened with the rushing to eastern markets of the first cars of the Imperial Valley crop. There was no extension of lettuce planting in Imperial county during the past year, but the crop is above average in quality and will be the equal in quantity, it is expected, of any valley lettuce yield. The Imperial lettuce shipping season, unlike that of Los Angeles and Orange counties, extends over a period of but four months, beginning January 1. This is because of the rapid ripening of the luscious yellow Imperial lettuce under the influence of the spring sun of that region.

The Imperial acreage, as reported by the secretary of the Japanese Farmers' Association of the valley, is as follows: Brawley district, 1023 acres; Heber, 915 acres; Calexico, 138 acres; Calipatria, 121 acres; Poppy, 68 acres; Niland, 40 acres; Keystone, 83 acres; Seeley, 35 acres; El Centro, 40 acres; Meloland, 112 acres. The Imperial Valley crop will total 950 cars, it is estimated. Coachella Valley growers, encouraged by last year's fine returns, increased their acreage 15 per cent. this season.

Icing lettuce for shipment East.

The largest acreage of lettuce in Los Angeles county is grown near Lomita. There are other tracts of from five to twenty acres in Wilmington, San Fernando, Signal Hill, Montebello and Inglewood. Immediately adjacent to Los Angeles a large acreage of lettuce is grown, almost entirely by Japanese.

Many years ago the large grower of lettuce abandoned transplanting of the crop. Growers who have more than an acre plant the lettuce with a one-horse seeder and, when the plants are about two inches high, they are thinned to two rows on the ridge, with the heads about fourteen inches apart.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

World Markets.

JUST as the railroads gave to the farmers of a few decades ago that access to American markets which has made agriculture the industry it is today, so will the new American merchant marine, born out of the war, open to the growers of the United States the markets of the world.

World markets for an infinite variety and tremendous volume of American farm products is one of the outgrowths of the struggle to overwhelm the modern Hun, a struggle from which no nation can possibly emerge quite the same as when it went in. Many things are changed for good in the lands that have been through the fire of the combat and the sooner the peoples in these countries recognize the fact and readjust their affairs and methods accordingly the better it will be for all. And the American farmer is one of those who must begin to think in terms that are new and strange.

For one thing, although it is only one of many things, he will have to begin thinking of markets in terms of ocean highways and continents rather than merely in respect to localized or even country-wide distribution. This seems like an exaggeration, but is it? America will from now on have its own merchant ships, and never before in history has such a demand as now exists across the seas for our food products been even dreamed of. Are the ships to loiter in harbors and is the new market for food products, live stock and everything else raised on our farms to go unanswered? To answer such a question in the affirmative would be to deny that the American farmer had any initiative, and the nation knows better than that. He responded readily enough with an ever increasing production as the railways were one by one radiated out within his reach. And it is less of a stretch of the imagination these days to conceive of our products going regularly overseas to the far side of the earth than it was a generation ago to picture crops getting to our own centers from some of the frontier regions.

To adjust American agriculture to the conditions of international trade will naturally be a tremendous and complicated task. The whole proposition of utilizing our new merchant marine to the best advantage for America's varied industrial interests is bound to be complicated through the very fact of this country's having so long sat supinely around letting the rest of the nations grab all the carrying trade of the world. It devolves upon the American farmer, just as it does upon the producer of manufactured products, to get in behind the merchant marine and help make it the most successful project ever undertaken by the country. That means not only direct support of the whole shipping programme and of the departments of the government entrusted in time of emergency with the creation and handling of new inter-oceanic transportation facilities, but the development of a broad trade knowledge and acumen in the producing centers themselves. It goes without saying that the actual development through private and governmental means of the shipbuilding industry isn't going to get the country very far unless the trade end is taken hold of and put on a permanent working foundation.

The farmer has heretofore been so engrossed in the problems of production that, excepting in California and a few other sections where the co-operative marketing idea has been developed, he has not taken much time to study carefully along trade and distribution lines. As already pointed out, however, a new and changed era is upon us and farming, like everything else, must be conducted on a new and broader basis. In the development of the new merchant marine and world trade, the farmers of America will find it necessary to work and pull right along with the bankers, the shipbuilders, the manufacturers, the capitalists, and the constructive thinkers and doers generally. If he is to get out of the changed conditions the benefit to which he is entitled and of which he can assuredly claim his full share, he will have to get into the game along with the rest.

Government agencies, such as the Bureau of Markets, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and the United States Shipping Board, are doing what they can, securing a mass of information about world markets and American sources of supply. The farmers can co-operate with these agencies right at the start by organizing to study both market and production questions from a community standpoint. They can keep abreast of market demands and then get together and produce in each district and section of the country the things best adapted to export and with which they have the greatest success. Their study, their investigations and their efforts can be directed more and more along the line of world trade requirements. Only in this way can they be assured of the earliest benefits of the new opportunities unfolding before them. And the agriculturists of America, there is every reason for believing, will rise to the situation.

SOIL SURVEY PROGRESSING.

Notwithstanding a certain amount of interruption due to war conditions in the work of the soil survey, carried on by the Bureau of Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture, a larger area of detailed mapping was done during the fiscal year 1918 than during the preceding year, the area covered amounting to 38,136 square miles. Prior to 1918 a total of 445,825 square miles had been mapped, so that the total area covered by the detailed work of the survey at the close of June 30, 1918, was 483,961 square miles. That part of the United States lying within regions where the rainfall is sufficient for crop production or where water is available for irrigation covers approximately 1,750,000 square miles. The area mapped in detail during 1918 was equivalent to 2.2 per cent. of this area, the total mapped in detail to date 27.6 per cent., and the total, both detailed and reconnoissance work much of the latter area calling for no further work, amounted to 54.3 per cent. of it.

American farmers have a big job cut out for them in 1919.

THE FUTURE OF CALIFORNIA'S BARLEY RAISING INDUSTRY.

WHAT is the future of California's important barley-raising industry? Where will the State's barley farmers sell the 1919 crop, estimated at 17,000,000 sacks, after the large amount of barley held over from the 1918 crop is marketed?

Barley is the most important cereal crop of the State. The 1918 acreage was 1,320,000, the production, 34,320,000 bushels, the value, $39,000,000, and the yield per acre, twenty-six bushels. The total production of barley was four times that of wheat. The yield per acre of wheat was nineteen bushels.

Aside from its intimate relation to the general marketing problem now confronting American grains, the barley situation in California has its own peculiar interrogation points when the question of a future market is considered. The growing interest in the attempt to produce in the Golden State enough live stock to supply the demand here is one of the most heatening features of the barley outlook in California, for barley has been declared by eminent Federal authorities even better than Indian corn for growing stock.

Factors in the barley situation which are provoking conjecture, thought and inquiry on the part of the California barley raisers are: (1) Elimination of brewers as buyers by the ukase against the manufacture of beer; (2) increased use of tractors and other farm machinery, decreasing the demand for barley as a feed for work stock; (3) cessation of the manufacture of barley flour by many millers; (4) uncertainty of the availability of Teutonic markets, which before the war claimed more American barley than any others; (5) large stocks of unused barley in California warehouses and barns.

Although confronted with these adverse conditions, the California barley raiser, with his usual optimism and industry, is now seeding what may be the State's largest crop of this grain. Green hillsides and fertile valleys from Imperial to Del Norte give promise of a tremendous crop.

BARLEY AS STOCK FEED.

Men in close touch with the California grain situation agree that the most profitable use for barley grown in this State, especially at the present time, is its inclusion in a ration for the raising of live stock, especially cattle and swine. Grain raised and fed to cattle on the same ranch brings the farmer nearly 50 per cent. more than it would sold off the ranch. The difficulty is that there are not nearly enough beef cattle, dairy cows, hogs, sheep, goats and poultry in the State to consume the enormous average yield of California barley. The opportunity thus revealed to develope one of California's latent resources, the raising of live stock, has been grasped by hundreds who have never before engaged in raising meat and milk animals on a commercial scale, and new stock-raising farms and stockyards are being established. Not one-fourth of the meat consumed in California is raised in California. Every year a considerable amount of grain and roughage is lost on farms where no stock is raised.

Although California usually raises barley which has a greater percentage of protein, carbohydrates and other digestible nutriments than that in Iowa, for instance, (Farmers Bulletin No. 968, United States Department of Agriculture,) the Middle West leads in the production of Indian corn, the principal feed of meat animals in that section. Dr. Harry V. Harlan, Federal agronomist, has determined the relative feed value of barley, oats, wheat and Indian corn, as follows:

Grain.	protein	Carbohydrates and fat.	Total.
Barley	9.0	70.4	79.4
Indian corn	7.5	78.2	85.7
Oats	9.7	60.7	70.4
Wheat	9.2	70.9	80.1

VALUED FOR PROTEIN.

In the raising of live stock up to the fattening stage, in which period it has been determined conclusively that protein is the most important, barley has an advantage over Indian corn, although the latter grain, not a favorite on California soil, is best for fattening. Grain sorghums, especially milo maize raised with such great success in the interior valleys, however, are rich in carbohydrates and fat and have proved as valuable a fattening ration for live stock as Indian corn in Kansas, where almost as much of it is used as corn for cattle and hog feeds.

Los Angeles packers and live stock feeders know the importance of barley in finishing cattle and hogs, and many of them are using barley with cottonseed meal as a ration. However, the majority of these firms make the objection that the price of barley asked by the producer, $50 to $55 per ton, is a little too high. Packers believe that a drop of $5 per ton would see a much larger consumption of barley by stockyard companies in California. The cost to the growers of producing the last crop was, of course, large and the story has its other side.

In the Imperial Valley, many hog raisers are finishing their swine on a ration of cottonseed meal and rolled barley. This grain is a common ration in other live stock sections of California. In Northern Europe barley is the common feed for dairy cows. Danish pork, fattened on barley, is considered the best in Europe.

WHEAT FOR BARLEY LAND.

It is said that less than 5 per cent. of the barley raised in California was used in the making of beer in 1917. One Southern California brewer stated that more California rice was used in beer making than barley raised in this State. Despite these estimates, made by brewers themselves, a considerable proportion of the unsold 1918 barley crop is held by brewing companies in warehouses.

Many portions of the State are admirably suited for wheat growing. Last year there were 200,000 more acres of wheat than the year before. It is believed by many agricultural authorities that if every farmer put wheat on 10 per cent. of the acreage usually sown to barley, he would help the situation greatly. Oats is being raised in increasing quantities and with general success. Other crops may be found to be good substitutes for barley, if the situation should demand it.

The United States is in no mood to ship foodstuffs to Germany and Austria at present. What the California trade with Teutonic countries in barley will be in the future is problematical. Germans and Austrians formerly bought American barley for the making of both bread and beer.

The guaranteed price for the 1919 crop of wheat will be the same as for 1918, according to a proclamation of the Food Administration recently issued. The price is $2.26 at Chicago. This guarantee expires on June 1, 1920. The end of the war has not affected the guarantee for an article of food in such universal demand.

QUALITY OF CALIFORNIA STOCK IMPRESSES RABBIT SHOW JUDGE.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIANS lead the breeders of all other sections in raising rabbits. This is the assertion of C. S. Gibson of Detroit, Mich., secretary of the National Breeders' and Fanciers' Association, who was judge of rabbits at the show of the Southern California Rabbit and Pet Stock Association, held in conjunction with the fourteenth annual exhibition of the Poultry Breeders' Association of Southern California, held in Los Angeles, closing last Tuesday. He ought to know, for, prior to coming to Los Angeles, he judged rabbits in a dozen localities from coast to coast.

"Los Angeles is the center of the rabbit-breeding industry," said Mr. Gibson. "Nowhere in America do the people take such an interest and have such success in developing quality in rabbits. The animals seem to thrive best in this climate. After handling the 300 rabbit entries of this show, I would say that I have never judged better rabbits. The quality is 50 per cent. better than last year. Wilson's seventeen-pound steel gray Flemish Giant was the largest I have ever judged. The fur exhibit of the show is indicative of the enterprise of the rabbit breeders and the bright future for this industry."

The thousands of visitors to the show exhibited great interest in the rabbit department, in which every standard breed was represented. The extent and importance of the rabbit-raising industry of the Southland were reflected in the exhibits. There was an exceptionally fine exhibit of Flemish Giant and New Zealand rabbits, breeds that have rapidly forged ahead in the past year.

The fur exhibit of the Southern California Coney Fur Club, of which Mrs. C. E. Sherman is president and Mrs. C. E. Thayer, secretary, was notable. Garments and pelts of fur-bearing rabbits were attractively displayed. The following breeds are used in the rabbit fur industry established by the women of the club: Himalayas, Snowshoe, Champagne de Argent, Flemish Giants, white, steel gray and black, New Zealands, American Blues, Checkered Giants and Japanese. Imitation ermine, fox and mole furs are made of rabbit skins, but the women of the club do not attempt to mislead purchasers, and finish the furs in their natural state. Following is the list of awards at the rabbit show:

COTTAGE CHEESE.

Both city and country housewives have become familiar with the value of cottage cheese as a meat substitute. If your family is tired of old recipes, in which the cheese is an ingredient, why not try some new approved ones? "Cottage Cheese and Its Uses," Office of the Secretary Circular 109, issued by the Department of Agriculture, will be sent to anyone who writes for it.

In most communities there is an opportunity for marketing eggs and poultry by parcel post. Often this plan gives better satisfaction than the usual method.

Farm News of the Great Southwest.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

EL MONTE.—What is believed to be a record crop with fall potatoes was recently harvested by E. D. MacSweeney of the Pasadena Sewer Farm. On a field of twelve acres planted to the British Queen variety, Mr. MacSweengy averaged better than 120 bags to the acre. This figure represents at least double what is considered a fair yield for the second crop and runs considerably higher than the average for the spring crop. With the possibility of getting a crop like this both in the spring and as a second yield, there is an added incentive to the Southern California farmer who is properly situated to go into the raising of potatoes.

The quality of Mr. MacSweeney's crop was excellent and practically all of the tubers are desirable for seed. Mr. MacSweeney has placed nearly 1000 sacks in cold storage to be used for planting 150 acres to fall potatoes next season. He will have 500 bags left for sale for seed purposes. He does not recommend the British Queen as an early potato such as the White Rose, but as a yielder he claims it can't be beat.

With his 100 acres of White Rose he will only average about sixty sacks, largely on account of the Alternaria blight, which caught them in mid-season. For some unknown reason the British Queens seemed to escape damage from this disease. Mr. MacSweeney is planning to plant thirty or forty acres only to a spring crop this season.

PERSIMMONS PAY HIM.

MONROVIA.—Not content with having one Williams making a success at raising persimmons as mentioned in a recent issue of the Farm and Tractor Section, Monrovia now boasts of another Williams, John O., by name, who is also well pleased with his returns from persimmons this season. From less than ninety trees on the Japanese stock and some ten or twelve years old, Mr. Williams has harvested some eight and one-quarter tons of good salable fruit which brought in the neighborhood of 6 cents a pound.

Mr. Williams is very partial to the Hachiya variety, although he has quite a few Tanenashi trees. With good trees on the lotus stock he does not believe a yield of fifteen tons to the acre is impossible and feels that there is a great future in the growing of this little known and appreciated fruit.

FOR FLOOD CONTROL.

AZUSA.—At the last meeting of the Glendora-Azusa center of the Farm Bureau held at the Foothill Inn at Azusa, the main subject of the evening was flood control. In the foothill citrus belt, the impounding of flood waters by means of checkdams in the canyons and cement streamways further down is of vital importance. In order to properly represent these two important citrus producing localities, as well as adjacent territory, the following committee was appointed to wait upon the Board of Supervisors to the end that flood control work be inaugurated in this district as soon as possible: E. F. Underhill, A. M. Bernhardt, C. C. Warren, C. A. Griffith, W. A. Jones, C. F. Gordon, Henry King, W. W. Wilson and W. C. Hendrix. New officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: E. F. Underhill, Glendora, director; W. A. Jones, vice-director, Azusa; secretary-treasurer, F. H. Nusbickel, Glendora.

VALLEY BEAN MEN MEET.

OWENSMOUTH.—In order to hear the report of the committee of bean growers delegated to consult State Food Administrator, Ralph P. Merritt at San Francisco, a meeting of representative tepary bean growers was called recently at the bank of Owensmouth. The special committee making the trip to San Francisco consisted of M. E. Beckstead, Alex Jeffrey and David Brant. They reported that Mr. Merritt had no immediate remedial measure in view to stimulate the Tepary bean market but that all reports indicated eastern beans were being rapidly cleaned up and that within a month or two the market on California beans would open up in good shape.

An immediate relief is necessary for many San Fernando Valley growers. The main committee, consisting of G. W. Burch, S. E. Goodall, M. E. Beckstead, Alex Jeffrey and J. L. Waring, decided to have a grower representative from the Lima Bean Growers' Association deal directly with the United States Grain Corporation. It is hoped that some relief can be obtained and movement started on the 150,000 sacks of Teparies now lying in storage in this valley.

POULTRYMEN MEET.

RIVERSIDE.—At the annual meeting of the Arlington Poultrymen's Association, officers were elected as follows: President, C. R. Brown; vice-president, J. L. Edminston; second vice-president, Mrs. W. A. Errington; secretary and treasurer, George Sinclair. The board of managers consists of J. M. Davison, president of the Southern California Poultry Producers, Inc.; S. J. Cotter, J. B. Roney, H. K. Martin and Mrs. W. G. Suits.

BALERS KEPT BUSY

IMPERIAL.—The hay baling season for the 1919 crop of alfalfa will begin here about the first of April, declares I. L. Honeycutt, leading baler of this section. Mr. Honeycutt has already baled 6000 tons of alfalfa and barley of the 1918 crop, and has contracts for another thousand tons, which will keep his crew of nine men busy until February 20.

MAY CAN TEPARIES.

VAN NUYS.—The canning of tepary beans by an original process, worked out by O. O. Jones, superintendent of the Vanomar cannery, may open this variety of beans to a ready market and make them as stable a product as the navy or small whites. The experiment, which was conducted under the direction of C. A. Worthington, president of the Vanomar Producers, was undertaken to test the practical value of the tepary beans for canning purposes. The result has been highly satisfactory to the cannery officials from the standpoint of quality, and should the cost of production not run too high, the solution to the tepary problem seems to be solved. They are cooked with pork in tomato puree, which is all the information that has been given out about the process. It has been stated that one eighty-pound sack of these beans will produce 400 standard-sized cans.

The FRUIT GROWER says—
"for tree planting genuine GIANT is most satisfactory"

The Giant Farm Powders—Eureka Stumping and Giant Stumping—loosen and pulverize the soil instead of packing it and throwing it high in the air.

Western fruit growers have used hundreds of tons of these Giant Powders for blasting beds for trees. They have proved that blasting with genuine Giant Powders provides free drainage, increases moisture-storage capacity and insures vigorous growth and early bearing.

"My trees planted three years ago in beds blasted with Giant Powder are 75 to 100 per cent bigger and better than the trees that I planted in dug holes," writes H. H. Smith, Oregon City.

You will enjoy reading "Better Farming with Giant Farm Powders." It describes all the new and money-saving methods of blasting beds for trees, subsoiling established groves and orchards, clearing land, ditching, etc. Write for it now.

The Promising Outlook.

this is an exception, but as this development goes on, many more of such exceptions will result.

SIRE IMPORTANT FACTOR.

A great deal of the improvement of dairy cows has come from the use of sires which have come from good producing ancestry, and the same rule will apply to the buck. It is not enough that he be registered in the association to which his breed belongs, or that he be of fine conformation. While these are very important points, they are not enough unless the milk records are associated with it.

It is a rule in breeding that "like begets like" or the likeness of an ancestor, likeness in purity of blood lines, likeness in conformation and likeness in producing qualities as well, and to me the pedigree of an animal would not be complete unless it contained the amount of production given. The pure-bred buck may be used for improvement on the common or unpedigreed does of the country, and such breeding improves the condition very rapidly as the first cross gives a half-blood, the next cross three-quarter blood, then seven-eights and fifteen-sixteenths.

The principal breeds in California are the Toggenburg, Saanen and Anglo-Nubian and undoubtedly the greatest improvement will take place in keeping each breed in its purity. By generous feeding and proper selection, some wonderful results will be sure to follow.

STOCK MEN TO MEET.

Live-stock raisers of the west end of the San Fernando Valley will meet at the Elliott-Brant Rancho at 1:30 p.m. January 22, to discuss topics of mutual interest. Farm Advisor Scribner will be in charge of the meeting. "Better Live Stock, and Best Methods to Follow" will be the general subject for the afternoon.

"Like begets like" is an axiom that modern stock breeders never forget.

More Eggs? Use Germozone
A hen with bright, rosy comb, active and vigorous, bowels in order, free from colds and roup, and properly fed, is generally a good layer and not bothered with lice. Hen troubles almost always start with colds or bowel complaint. That's Germozone's big help. Regular use, three times a week, does the work. At drug or seed stores or tablet form, postpaid, from here, 75 cents, with free poultry books.

HOMECROFTING

IN CALIFORNIA.

Do not complain of the hardness of your lot or of the times when you can so easily improve them in a climate like this.

UNCLE MARSH.

These are the glorious days!

Plant in January your new deciduous trees, the blackberries and prune the dormant roses; and in February withhold not your hand from the potato plantings.

Those young onion sets which did not size up in time for autumn work must now soon be transplanted.

The New Year has begun: soil preparation, pruning and planting make a complete programme from now until the trout season opens.

There is no rush about it, but a certain small detail of the work must be accomplished each working day or it will soon crowd a rush on you.

We have reminded you of that asparagus row until you may be tired of hearing about it; but it makes a splendid border row down the lot line and we want to see them all over town instead of in isolated places. Tear out that row of geraniums or cannas and go get one or two hundred roots of asparagus. All the seedsmen have them now.

How many will volunteer to cut down one pepper tree and plant an avocado in its place?

Since the development of the solar dryer, recently illustrated in the Farm and Tractor Section, it is possible to make as good prunes in your own back yard, or as good raisins as they can make at Fresno. There is no science in making either of them except the keeping of fogs and rain from them. Therefore, plant one improved French prune tree and about four muscat grape vines. The raisin industry is centered at Fresno because it is away from the ocean fogs. The solar dryer produces you the same result right here in Los Angeles.

I am tickled to death to see that some of the nurserymen have started the propagation of dwarf fruit trees. The Armstrong nursery at Ontario has a good line of dwarf pear trees and the Leonard Coates nursery at Morgan Hill has dwarf apple trees and if the Roeding nursery at Fresno and the California Nursery Company at Niles haven't any drawf peaches it is because my personal friends have ordered all in advance.

I hope we can soon add other nursery names to the dwarf tree honor roll. We do not recommend them for commercial orchards but for the acre-culturist and garden-lotter the dwarfs are, in your Uncle March's opinion, the only tree. The renter can raise them in candy buckets and move them along as he goes. The quality and size of the fruit is superior, but, of course, the small trees yield only a tenth of what the big standard trees produce.

You can stick dwarfs in the most unique corners and nooks in the garden or along border rows or train them like vines over a trellis.

Ask your librarian to install a book entitled "Dwarf Fruit Trees" by Frank Waugh, from the press of Orange Judd Company, Chicago.

HOME-GROWN FIGS REPLACE IMPORTED.

It is likely that before many years the 15,000,000 or 16,000,000 pounds of figs annually imported from Smyrna will be supplanted by the home-grown product, says the United States Department of Agriculture in Bulletin 732, recently issued. The area in the Southwestern States and in California is equally as well adapted to the fig industry, the bulletin adds, as is the Meander Valley of Asia Minor, and is more than extensive enough to produce many times the quantity imported into this country.

The annual production of Smyrna figs in California, which is almost the total yield of this country, is not far from 2000 tons, but within a few years the production likely will be greatly increased, for it is estimated that since the importations were cut off as a result of the war 10,000 acres of Smyrna fig trees have been planted in the Central San Joaquin Valley. When these large plantings come into bearing this country will be independent of importations of this most wholesome sugar-saving fruit, and, it is believed, dried figs by the carload will be as evident in commercial movements as raisins are at the present time.

Two kinds of cultivated figs are commonly grown in this country—the caprified or Smyrna figs and the common cultivated figs which do not require caprification. Until recent years only varieties of the latter kind were successfully grown in America. The figs of the Smyrna type do not set fruit unless the flowers are pollinated—that is, unless the figs when setting are caprified; and this necessitates the simultaneous culture of the caprifig, the male form of the species, which harbors the fig insect and bears the pollen necessary to fertilize figs of the Smyrna type.

About one-third of the production of figs in California is of the Smyrna type and the remainder chiefly Adriatic and Mission, but the first-mentioned type are being planted almost exclusively now. One prominent California grower who has orchards of both Smyrna and Adriatic figs finds that by a liberal supply of caprifigs he gets a ton to the acre more from the Smyrna than from the other variety, while the former sells for about double the price of the latter. A four-year-old Smyrna fig orchard should produce sufficient fruit to pay all the expenses of cultivation, and from that time will yield increasing profits indefinitely, according to the bulletin.

Are you contributing your dollar to the support of the County Farm Bureau? The service it gives is a mighty big dollar's worth for the average farmer.

BETTER FRUIT BY BUD SELECTION.

Two experimental lemon groves were established in the past year by the United States Department of Agriculture in California, where special attention will be given to the development of better fruit-growing strains through bud selection. One of the plantings is located near Corona and consists of eleven and one-half acres; the other is at the citrus experiment station of the University of California and consists of five acres. Both of these experimental orchards were planted with progeny trees propagated from selected parent trees having the best production records. For comparison with trees so propagated other trees that were propagated from parent trees having inferior performance records have been planted.

The plan is to keep accurate records of all trees for a series of years after they come into bearing. From a commercial standpoint the bud-selection work conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture has made great progress in California. The California Fruit Growers' Exchange conducts a bud-selection department, the object being to supply to growers and nurserymen reliable buds of superior strains of citrus varieties grown in California.

NAVEL ORANGE SHIPMENTS.

LINDSAY. — Washington navel orange shipping for the Lindsay district has come to a practical close with the consignment of 800 cars of fruit, with an estimated value to the growers of $1,280,000. While the crop this year was below normal, the total income ranks with the best years in the history of this district. Price conditions continue good, with $5 per box, f.o.b., offered for fancy stuff.

Ornamental and Fruit Trees

Established 1865

For over half a century we have been collecting and developing plants from all over the world. More specimens of our production are to be found surrounding palatial California homes and in public grounds than have come probably from any single source.

WE HAVE the largest experimental orchard of verified and tried varieties of fruit trees true to name of any privately owned orchard in the country and it is from this reliable source that we secure our buds and thus can vouch for the pedigree of our trees.

Write to us about planting plans, giving list of varieties wanted. We will furnish you with an estimate of the cost, together with valuable suggestions.

The Breeders' Association's Superb Show.

THE LAST OF THE SEASON. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

THE fourteenth annual exhibition of the Poultry Breeders' Association was the last of the quality poultry shows that have been so marked a feature in Los Angeles this season. In variety of chickens, water fowl and turkeys it possessed "class" from the fancier and commercial point of view, while the excellent display of rabbits (something like five hundred specimens covering the leading economic breeds) rendered it unusually attractive to a wide circle of people. The display of cured and tanned rabbit pelts and articles of wearing apparel made from rabbit fur was extremely interesting. The decorations were individual in character, the dominant feature being the long fronds of the Phoenix Canariensis palm circling the two rows of pillars in the room, supplemented with other greenery; the effect was pleasing to the eye and in harmony with an exhibit of bird and animal life. Owing to the number of exhibits, the association's standard wooden coops were found short in numbers, hence additional cooping facilities were requisitioned from the Pasadena Poultry Association. This afforded a comparison as between the different patterns of coops. The previous show used Spratt's patent with wire fronts and galvanized iron backs and side; the wooden coops are much on the same plan, three sides boards and open front with round wooden bars. The coops that are all open wire on top and four sides with board bottoms are to our notion by far the best, giving an even light on the bird from all angles, thus showing plumage, head and leg points, type, carriage and "style" to best advantage. We hope the time will come when all our leading shows will use this style of coop, which is alike serviceable to exhibitor and visitor, and adds much to the beauty and educational features of the show.

The vagaries of fashion in poultry culture are no more pronounced than the varying characters of poultry shows. In the two previous fixtures there was scarcely any evidence of the development in the Rhode Island White fancy, while in this show it occupied a prominent place, the class containing something like seventy-five entries. Here improvement in type, plumage, head and leg points was quite noticeable, all of which denotes progress with the breed. Under careful management we can see no reason why Rhode Island Whites may not become equally as popular as White Wyandottes and White Rocks. The winning specimens in type were certainly developed along correct lines, closely resembling their older brethren in Rhode Island Red alley.

In discussing Rhode Island Reds it is interesting to note that we have no breed nor variety that is solid red, the Rhode Island Reds being clearly so excepting in wing flights and tail, which are black. This variety now breeds reasonably true to type and plumage, while in practical points it has long occupied a position of merit in American poultry culture. The Reds have a strong following in Southern California, which always insure good exhibits at our shows. The ribbon winners in this class gave the judge something to think about, as the entire lot was of good quality.

The Plymouth Rocks were again in force and for the most part represented California-bred birds, all of which indicates that our poultry fanciers are keenly appreciative of the fine qualities of the breed. The Barred was the largest entry and really contained some remarkable specimens, with even barring, good under color, clear beaks and good yellow legs. The first cock and hen, cockerel and pullet were good specimens of the breed at its best. The Whites were a smaller class, but an honor alike to the show and their owners.

The Wyandottes came up strong, especially the White, which to our notion are a graceful animation in feathers. The short, cobby and compact body, with moderate close feathering, the square, short back, the full and rounded breast, the small wings carried close to the body, and the posterior part of the bird well developed are all characteristics in the winning birds that denote true Wyandotte shape. These fundamentals were more or less in evidence in all varieties of the breed on exhibition.

Asiatics were a rather small class and limited to the Light Brahma and Black and White Langshan. What has become of the Cochin tribe of fowl? Once the pride of the showroom, are we to see no more of them?

Leghorns a good class, type, good plumage, fine headgear and well "set" on the legs—all characteristics noting stamina and good breeding qualities. The Single Comb White Leghorn cockerel was a sturdy specimen of the breed, evincing "pep" and all the elements of strength and beauty that an exciting state could demand. The winning pullet and hen possessed much the same general qualities.

In Minorcas there was the usual good showing; indeed, the merit of California-grown Minorcas has become national as to recognition. For the most part, these are of one strain, which has attained a popularity equaling that of some of the foremost stock produced by leading specialists throughout the East. The winning specimens maintained this high standard. So high an authority as Franklane L. Sewell has pronounced the California Black Minorca at its best "a veritable work of art." The Whites and Buffs were a rather limited entry, but of good quality.

Blue Andalusians, a good class, well furnished and in good condition. The winning birds were symmetrical, graceful and compact, with good color markings in plumage.

As at two previous shows, Anconas were a strong class, the winning birds being "up" in all essentials that the standard and perfection demands. This breed has gained in popularity during the past few years and as a particolored breed has eclipsed the Leghorns, excepting the Single Comb Whites.

In the English classes all varieties of the Orpingtons, except the Jubilee, were in evidence. In Buffs, Blacks, Whites, Blue and Partridge the exhibits were commendable, all evincing the Orpington type with correct markings in plumage and quality in other sections. The Black, Buff and White male birds gave evidence of virility and were blocky and of good shape. Dark Cornish, not so large an entry as at previous shows. Speckled Sussex, a good exhibit, but small in numbers.

The show was rich and interesting by reason of variety in breeds represented. Among the fancy and less known breeds there were Silver Spangled Hamburgs, Houdans, Silver Campines, Golden Sierras, Black Rhinelanders, Golden Aztecs, Missouri White Fluffs, Buttercups, Translyvania Bare Necks, Java Jungle Fowl, Japanese Games and Golden Gates—surely an interesting array for the student in domesticated races of chickens.

The Bantam alley presented an interesting array, nearly every breed and variety being represented by one or more specimens. The quality on the whole was high, showing skill in the breeding yard and a love for the midgets that is gratifying to the fancier spirit.

Water fowl and turkeys not so large a class as at former shows of this association, nevertheless interesting and of an informative value.

The entire list of association awards in the poultry classes is as follows:

CHERIMOYA FRUIT PLEASES TOURISTS.

SANTA BARBARA.—The wonderful tropical fruits of the Montecito and Goleta districts are surprising the tourists. Few, even of the local residents, know of the large variety of these fruits which reach perfection within a mile or two of the Santa Barbara county Courthouse, though from time to time the wondrous displays in shop windows give rise to questions.

What these districts are doing in the development of the rare, rich fruits of the tropics most of the coast sections of Southern California can do, a fact that suggests what a market could be developed were horticulturists to attempt the growing of some of these fruits on a commercial scale.

One of the fruits, the Cherimoya, or custard apple, is now in the market. The trees grow luxuriantly in this section. The cherimoya does best in a warm, sheltered location. It cringes at the frost. One of the largest trees in this section is in the heart of Santa Barbara, at the home of the Rev. Chester Ferris, Congregational minister. One of the fruits of this tree, weighing three pounds, five ounces, brought 60 cents in the market, and there are now 200 on the tree.

The history of the cherimoya in Santa Barbara harks back nearly half a century. The wife of an early settler named Packard received a few cherimoya seeds from a pueblo near Mexico City. These were planted and bore when but five years old. Mrs. M. M. Yates, a botanist and tree lover, became interested. The families from the East, then coming into the town, held a flower show and some of the fruit of the cherimoya tree were exhibited. They sliced one open and Mrs. Yates permitted the gathering to taste of the fruit. These were the first cherimoya fruits eaten in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Yates gathered the seed and planted them. She now has at Montecito the only cherimoya grove in the United States. It is a grove of forty flourishing trees that have for years supplied luscious fruit to the tourists who throng Montecito each winter. She states that her trees bear throughout the winter season.

The cherimoya tree is now found on the estate of William Griffith Henshaw, on Miss Lolita Armour's estate and other properties at Montecito, while there are quite a number in Santa Barbara proper.

Big Seed Company Is Distributing New Catalog

Aggeler & Musser Seed Company of Los Angeles Issue 26th Annual Book

The Aggeler & Musser Seed Company, the large Seed House of Western America, is distributing broadcast their 1919 Big Annual which is claimed to be the most complete and finest yet issued.

Among the many new features incorporated is a department on "More and Better Potatoes." Important data is given on Home, School, Field and Demonstration Garden Work. Data concerning correct tools and implements to use for best results. Marketing notes on each subject, telling how and where to market. Hints on poultry, spraying, fertilizing and the use of insecticides. It is in reality several books in one, for it includes the important "Garden Manual." 1000 questions are answered and valuable information on all varieties of plants is given

The Aggeler & Musser Seed Company have opened a large store right in the center of shopping district, 620 South Spring street, Los Angeles, a great convenience to rural customers. A special Call Department has been installed to accommodate customers in town for a short time on business. Orders left on arriving are ready when called for. The big Mail Order Department and General Offices are all situated at the new store, while the general milling, cleaning and warehousing will continue at the big warehouse, Sixth and Alameda. A Better, Cheaper System.

tried all conceivable styles of pruning, a system has been worked out which, not only is cheaper to use and much less of a drain upon the tree, but which actually throws the trees into bearing a year earlier and causes them to yield much heavier crops. This new system has been tried out on the University farm at Davis for five years and has proven in every respect more satisfactory than the old system which is practiced on adjoining plots. Los Angeles county was fortunate enough through the efforts of the County Farm Bureau to secure the new head of the division of pomology, Dr. J. C. Whitten, to conduct a series of demonstrations of this new system of pruning during the month of December. The attendance was large and the interest keen and a large number of Los Angeles county fruit growers intend to give the new system a trial.

In brief, the system consists of very little if any heading back after the tree has once become established in place and its head formed, the pruning being confined merely to thinning out.

This system is much easier to start with young trees but old bearing trees can be readily worked over to this style of pruning. Upon planting, the young tree is headed back just as is done according to the old system. After that time, however, unless the tendency is to an exceptionally vigorous growth, no heading back whatever is done. During the summer following the planting of the young tree, it is watched rather carefully and if the main scaffold limbs do not show a tendency to divide at a reasonable distance from the trunk, let us say within a foot or eighteen inches, they are encouraged to do so by a judicious pinching back at the tips. This is all that is done during the growing season. The following winter, the first pruning is done, which consists in thinning out the shoots to three to five, according to their arrangement and desirability. All other branches are cut out entirely with the exception of the smaller rosettes and fruit branches along the main trunk, which are left to protect the trunk from sunburn. Absolutely no heading back is done unless the primary scaffold limbs tend to growth to an abnormal length, when they are cut back slightly to a good lateral. During the second summer the same process of pinching out is used and again the next winter thinning out is resorted to. After the second summer very little pinching back is necessary and winter pruning consists entirely of thinning out. Young trees pruned in this manner will bear some fruit the third season and quite a crop the fourth year. The trees grow larger and more willowy and are less liable to breakage from wind.

With older bearing trees, essentially the same procedure is used. No limbs are headed back unless they are extremely vigorous in character. With trees pruned to the old style and being worked over to the new, considerable thinning out must be practiced at the first pruning. A large amount of healthy fruiting wood is encouraged to grow further down along the main branches, where the fruit can be easily gathered. The essential points in this system can be readily seen in the pictures accompanying this article.

OBJECTIONS OVERCOME.

There are a number of objections to this new system which are always voiced by growers when it is first demonstrated. One of the principal ones is the belief that unless headed back severely every winter, the trees will soon grow so high that it will be unprofitable to climb after the fruit. It has been found in practice that such is not the case, the tendency being instead of growing higher, to fill out below. The tree increases in height but slowly, most of its energies being confined to the bearing of fruit and the production of healthy fruit wood.

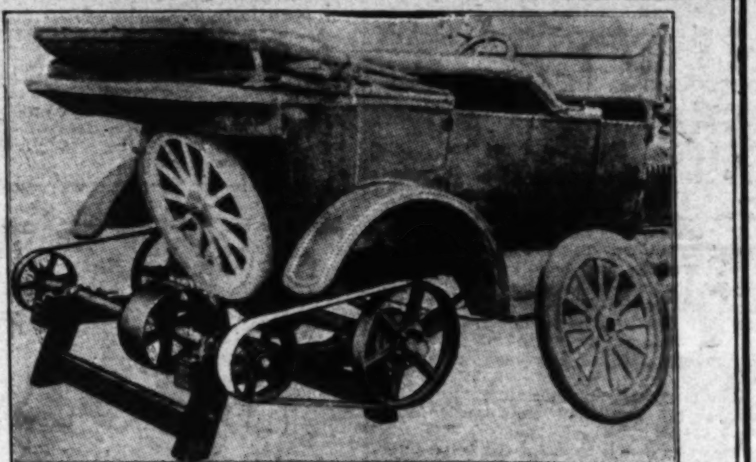
Another objection often heard is that the long limbs left, if not cut back to make them stocky, will get so long that the weight of fruit will cause them to break. It has been found, however, that instead of being rigid and subject to breakage under strains, these limbs take a long willowy form hanging under the weight of fruit in a sort of rainbow curve which swings and sways in the wind but does not break. In addition, the weight on these branches causes them to droop away from the center of the tree, which opens it up to the sunlight necessary to cause the production of healthy fruit wood in the interior of the tree and along the main branches.

And this new system has a number of important advantages. In the first place, once established, it is very cheap to maintain, but a few cuts being necessary each winter. In the second place it conserves the energies of the tree and directs them into fruiting rather than into the production of wood. This is of especial importance in districts where the natural tendency is to a rank vegetative growth. Third, it throws the trees into bearing a year early. And fourth it maintains the proper balance in the tree between wood growth and fruit production, and at the same time does not furnish the opportunity for wood rot infection afforded by the old system.

It is equally applicable to pears, plums, apricots, peaches, and apples and deserves a trial at the hands of Southern California deciduous fruit growers.

CELERY MEN PROFIT.

TALBERT.—The celery crop is now being harvested and the prices are very high. On the Yoshida ranch there are twenty acres and an offer of 55 cents per dozen has been refused in anticipation of better rates. There is a total of sixty-five acres in this crop, which is a small bit compared with the hundreds of acres of some years since. But the few who have stuck to celery are reaping big money this season.



SIMPLICITY POWER PLANTS FOR THE FARM

THE PROMISING OUTLOOK FOR THE MILCH GOAT INDUSTRY.

BY F. H. SCRIBNER,
Assistant Farm Adviser, Los Angeles County.

WITH the dairy situation in Southern California already somewhat "up in the air" and with a shortage of milk for human consumption actually a possibility, because of the failure on the part of dairymen to find the business sufficiently remunerative, there has come about a condition which is most favorable to the extensive milch goat propaganda now being carried on. Those not familiar with the increasing interest in milch goats are always dumbfounded when confronted with the evidence of the wonderful devolpment of this industry.

The splendid development of many of the individuals that have been on exhibition at goat shows and fairs in recent months has been a revelation. That there is a growing demand for animals of this kind is evidenced by the large number of inquiries received by breeders.

A good many persons, like myself, with an interest in dairy cows, have believed that all goats' milk had a peculiar goaty odor and taste. This, however, as I have now learned, is not the case. I will confess that I have been surprised to find the milk has such a sweet, pleasant flavor and that it is so free from anything objectionable. I can see how, as in the case of cows, where objectionable feed has been used, or badly flavored weeds consumed, unpleasant odors or flavors might exist. Provided good feed and care are given the doe, however, and the milk produced under sanitary conditions, there will be nothing disagreeable about the milch goat's product, although it does have a distinctive flavor of its own.

The composition of goats' milk varies as does that of cows' milk, with the breed, period of lactation, and the individuality of the animal, varying in per cent. from 3.5 to 4.5 per cent. butter fat The nature of the milk is somewhat different from cows milk, in that the butter fat globules are much smaller and for that reason stay in suspension better and it does not cream so readily, which makes it a very desirable beverage.

The goat is an extremely hardy animal and not susceptible to many of the ailments that appear among cows. Tuberculosis is very, very rare, and in cases where it has developed, may be traced directly to the animals having come in contact with cows affected with this disease.

GOOD FOR INVALIDS.

That goats' milk is particularly good for invalids and children is attested in an extract from the New York Agricultural Station report which says: "This station has had the opportunity of supplying this milk to a fairly large number of very young children who were in serious physical condition due to their inability to properly digest and assimilate either modified cows' milk or any of the commercial infant foods that were tried. In nearly all cases of this kind the physical condition of the children has been built up and satisfactory growth has been brought about by the use of goats' milk."

In Monterey county there is a condensed milk manufactory where evaporated milk is now manufactured for use almost exclusively in infant feeding. Also the famous high priced Neufchatel cheese is manufactured from goats' milk. That the goat is an economical producer of milk and butter fat is evidenced by the fact, given in statistical reports of 1917, that the feed cost of a gallon of goats' milk was 6.4 cents, as against 8.3 cents for cows; and for pounds of butter fat, 22.9 cents for goats, against 24.4 for cows.

MUST BE FED RIGHT.

There is certainly a wonderful future for the development of the milch goat industry in Southern California, as goats, like sheep, thrive best in a comparatively dry climate, where the soil is well drained. Goats will eat almost anything and sometimes seem to thrive on extraordinary diets. I doubt very much, however, if any real improvement in individuals will take place until goat owners follow along about the same sane and sensible lines that dairy cow men have followed to develop their individuals.

No one ever heard of a man making a 1000-pound butter cow by letting her run to the straw stack, or out in the brush. A cow's or a goat's stomach, instead of being filled with trash, needs to be filled with the very best material that can be had. A scant, stingy feeder never made a world's record, but generous and wise feeding have put the dairy cow where she is today, a most wonderfully efficient dairy machine. The same rule will apply to the goat, for the milch goat is a dairy animal as her make-up goes to show that apparently all her feed goes for the production of milk.

The measure of a goat is often described in terms of a four, five, or six-quart yield. While this is quite an important factor, it is of far more importance to know what a goat can do in a year. She might be a six-quart doe for a short time and in two months be down to one quart. Persistency in keeping up a good flow throughout her lactation period is what counts, and the right thing to do would be to weigh the milk each milking and record it. If she is of the right sort she should be milked at least eight months, and still better, ten.

The imported Toggenburg doe, Fanette, in a twelve month's period gave 2680 pounds of milk, or an average of over three and one-half quarts per day for 365 days. Of course,

Get Your Irrigated Farm From the Canadian Pacific

IN A climate not excelled by any agricultural area in America you can own a fine, rich farm of your own. The Canadian Pacific Railway offers you this opportunity to achieve independence and grow rich—in Western Canada. The lands offered are in the largest and most substantial irrigation undertaking in the Continent. The price is only $50 an acre—some for less.

Twenty Years to Pay

You pay down 10 per cent. and have 20 years in which to pay the remainder. The first crop is often worth more than the total cost of the lands.

$2000 Loaned to Farmer

Loans of $2000 in improvements are made to approved settlers on irrigated farms with no security except the land itself. You can take 20 years to repay this loan at 6 per cent. interest.

Irrigation, Crop Insurance

This land is not arid but production can be greatly increased by irrigation. There is an unfailing supply of water which is administered under the direction of the Canadian Government. The provinces have no control over it and there is no conflict of law or authority over its use. The water is free, the only charge being a fee of from 50c to $1.25 per acre for the maintenance of the system and the delivery of the water. Irrigation here is not an experiment.

Why an Irrigated Farm?

Because irrigation in Southern Alberta
—insures crops every year
—increases crops every year
—makes you practically independent of weather conditions
—produces great quantities of coarse grains, pasture, alfalfa, roots, thus developing the live stock industry which is safer and ultimately more profitable than wheat farming —tends toward close settlement, well cultivated farms, good neighbors, good roads, schools, churches, telephones, mail delivery, co-operative marketing, and a high standard of community life.

The Opportunity for You

The Canadian Pacific Railway knows that its prosperity depends on the prosperity of the settlers along its lines. Because it wants good settlers it is willing to sell its lands at these remarkable prices and terms.

Send for special railway rates and special booklet fully describing all lands and giving all details.

GATHERING OF CROP DATA EXPLAINED.

An outline of the organization developed in the Department of Agriculture through more than half a century of experience in crop estimating is given in the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture.

For collecting original data the Bureau of Crop Estimates has two main sources of information—voluntary reporters and salaried field agents. The voluntary force comprises 32,748 township reporters, one for each agricultural township; 2763 county reporters, who report monthly or oftener on county-wide conditions, basing their estimates on personal observation, inquiry and written reports of aids, of whom there are about 8500; nineteen special lists of co-operators, aggregating 137,000 names, who report on particular products, such as live stock, cotton, wool, rice, potatoes, apples beans and the like; and 20,160 field aids, including well informed men in each State, who report directly to the salaried field agents of the bureau. The total voluntary staff, therefore, numbers approximately 200,000, an average of about sixty-six for each county and four for each township. The reporters, as a rule, are farmers. They serve without compensation, and are selected and retained on the lists because of their knowledge of local conditions, their public spirit, and their interest in the work. All except county and field aids report directly to the bureau, and each class of reports is tabulated and averaged separately for each group and State.

The bureau has forty-two salaried field agents, one stationed permanently in each of the principal States or group of small States, and eleven crop specialists. These employees are in the classified civil service. All have had some practical experience in farming. Most of them are graduates of agricultural colleges and are trained in statistical methods and crop estimating. They travel approximately three weeks each month, the fourth week being required for tabulating and summarizing the data collected. They send their reports directly to the department in special envelopes or telegraph them in code. These are carefully safeguarded until the crop report is issued.

Additional information is secured from the Weather Bureau, the Bureau of Census, State tax assessors, threshers, grain mills and elevators, grain transportation lines, the principal live-stock markets, boards of trade and chambers of commerce, growers and shippers' associations, and various private crop estimating agencies. Specific reports from the field service are assembled in Washington, tabulated, averaged and summarized separately for each source, each crop and each State. The resulting figures are checked against one another and against similar data for the previous month, for the same month of the previous year, and for the average of the same month for the previous ten years; and a separate and independent estimate for each crop and State is made by each member of the crop reporting board, after which the board agrees upon and adopts a single figure for each crop and State.

VALLEY FRUIT MEN DISCUSS PRUNING.

OWENSMOUTH.—The last meeting of the calendar year of the Owensmouth-Chatsworth-Marion-Zelzah center of the County Farm Bureau was undoubtedly the best meeting yet held by this enthusiastic group of thriving San Fernando Valley towns. Seventy-six interested fruit growers assembled at the place of J. C. Craig, one mile east of Owensmouth, on the Van Nuys boulevard, to witness a deciduous pruning demonstration conducted by Farm Advisor Hodgson.

The varieties coming up for consideration during the demonstration included apricots, peaches and pears. To check the excessive wood growth of apricots in the San Fernando Valley Mr. Hodgson advocated either a moderate summer pruning immediately following the gathering of the fruit or a light winter pruning. He stated that a heavy winter pruning merely aggravates the tendency to wood growth, which is already excessive. He does not recommend heading back such as is commonly practiced, but merely a thinning out of the new growth. He reported several cases where failure to prune apricots for a season had resulted in a big yield, suggesting that much too severe pruning has been the common practice in the past.

With the peach he advocated somewhat the same policy in an attempt to cause the growth of fruiting limbs on the main trunk and scaffold limbs. With the pear he advised moderate pruning, both heading back and thinning out, cutting to outside buds or laterals to induce the trees to spread.

DIVERSITY OF CROPS.

RIALTO.—The term "one crop district" is no longer descriptive of Rialto. In 1918 motive of patriotism and progress combined in the production of a diversity of crops by the citrus growers, 2000 acres being devoted sucessfully to grain, a lesser acreage to peanuts, peas, beans, Irish and sweet potatoes. Besides all available space between the rows of trees in young orchards was utilized for growing vegetables. Newest methods of cover crop fertilization have been extensively applied to the lemon and orange groves with satisfactory results. Rialto's honey crop exceeded the average by several hundred pounds.

The fight against the bugs of the orchard and garden must never stop.

GERMAN POTASH UNDER THE BAN.

That there can be no importation of German potash to America before the final proclamation of peace is made plain in a statement issued by the War Trade Board:

"The importation of all commodities from enemy territory is interdicted by the provisions of the 'Trading with the Enemy Act,' approved October 6, 1917, which specifically provides in paragraph (a) of Section 3 thereof, 'that it shall be unlawful for any person in the United States . . . to trade with the enemy.' This statute remains in force until the end of the war. The authority to issue licenses to engage in these prohibited transactions has been delegated by the President to the War Trade Board, and the War Trade Board does not propose to issue any licenses which will authorize the shipment of commodities from enemy territory to the United States.

"The customs regulations, which have been promulgated under the authority of the 'Trading with the Enemy Act,' provide that no importations shall be granted entry except upon presentation of a certificate, duly authenticated by the American Consular officer at the point of shipment, to the effect that the commodities have not originated in enemy territory."

"We Use Modern Methods, Too"

"I haven't had to borrow a cent since I started using dynamite to help me with my work."

"Three years ago I began to work the place with my head as well as my hands. I put up modern buildings and bought up-to-date machinery. But the thing that has helped me the most in getting ahead has been

HERCULES DYNAMITE

"Now-a-days the successful orchardists, like other successful business men, have to make every move count. We can't afford to dig the holes to plant our young trees in. We blast the holes. That method is quicker, cheaper and better for the trees."

"I am advising every one of my friends to send to the Hercules Powder Co. for a copy of 'Progressive Cultivation.' No one knows to how many uses dynamite may be put on the farm or in the orchard until he has read this book. The Hercules Powder Co. will mail a copy free to anyone who signs and sends in the coupon that is printed at the bottom of this advertisement."

Eager students in tractioneering.

The view, which is typical of the scenes at the State Board of Education tractor courses being given in various California communities, shows Prof. A. E. Le Barr of Unit No. 1 of the board's representatives, explaining details of tractor mechanism to farmers at Ventura.

MANY ENROLLING IN TRACTOR COURSE.

SANTA ANA.—Equipment of large value will be available for instruction purposes when the State farm tractor course opens in Santa Ana, February 10, Principal D. K. Hammond of the local High School announces. Farm students of San Diego and Orange counties and part of Los Angeles county, including Whittier, will gather here for the three weeks' course. It is expected that at least two classes of thirty members each will be formed, as a large number of tractors are in use in the territory covered by this school, and much interest is being shown in the course. There will be day classes with six hours instruction daily, and also evening classes. An up-town garage will be used for the lectures and a field near town is to be secured for actual demonstrations in driving and operation. The only cost of the course is a registration fee of $2. Preference will be given farmers and farm employees

The equipment used by the school is valued at $60,000, three freight cars being used in its transportation. Included are four tractors, a Holt 75, a Samson, Fageol, and a Best. There are also several kinds of gas engines, plows, and $400 worth of tools for the use of students. Indications are that several other makes of tractors, furnished by tractor dealers, will be available for the course.

Already Orange and San Diego county residents are enrolling for the school, and a Berkeley man, who has relatives here, has written he will be here to take the course, having heard of the great success of the plan in the Sacramento Valley.

The school comes direct from Ontario, February 10, and probably will go from here to Van Nuys.

TRACTOR COURSE AT RIVERSIDE.

A short course in the management of gasoline tractors will be held at the Citrus Experiment Station, Riverside, February 24 to March 1.

War time conditions have placed upon the farmer not only the burden of producing foodstuffs for America, but of creating a surplus to be shipped abroad. To produce more it has been necessary to change methods of farming and today the tractor is playing an ever increasing part in meeting the world's food needs.

To train tractor operators, the University of California is giving at Riverside a course in tractor management, duplicating the course given for several years at the university farm at Davis. Last year's course at Riverside attracted over 200 students.

Shop and tractor work will be offered on such fundamental questions as lubrication, care and adjustment of bearings and carburetors, grinding of valves, repairs and replacements. Several of the leading makes of tractors will be available for demonstrations and practice work

A registration fee of $1 constitutes the only charge for the course. Any one may register. Applications should be sent to the dean, Citrus Experiment Station, Riverside.

WILL STUDY LANDS.

SANTA BARBARA.—County Surveyor O. H. O'Neill has been requested by the government to secure information relative to the Cuyama country and all that region between Bakersfield and Santa Barbara, in connection with the hunt for lands for soldiers and sailors. The Cuyama Valley lands are very rich, and will provide farms for many hundreds of men, though as a general thing the mountainous districts of the Sierra Madre del Sur range are merely mazes of canyons, overgrown with brush. Hunters and trappers report that there is no farm land in these wild places, or at least very little.

DEALERS BANQUETED.

Washburn Brothers, South California distributors of the Sandusky tractor; William Rabb, Pacific Coast manager for the Dauch Manufacturing Company, and nearly a score of Sandusky dealers of this section were guests a week ago at a banquet given at the Union League Club by Norman Lombard, president of the Western Farm Credits Company of San Francisco, and J. H. Turner, Los Angeles branch manager for the same concern. L. L. Washburn and E. E. Washburn of the Washburn firm spoke on the care of tractors and the necessity of service to farmers and dealers in connection with the keeping and shipping of parts. W. V. Scott, manager for Washburn Bros., spoke of the growth of the Sandusky business in Southern California.

L. H. Pickard, secretary of the Shelby County (Iowa) Fair Association, who is spending the winter in Southern California, commends the spirit of the stockmen of this region in holding the California Liberty Fair under adverse conditions, and urges that a Southern California live-stock fair be an annual event. Mr. Pickard comes from a county in Iowa noted for the number of its live-stock breeders.

FLEXIBLE CONSTRUCTION

Three-point suspension and oscillating crawlers give the Bates Steel Mule unusual flexibility. This prevents internal strains, keeps bearings in perfect alignment and gives a comfort and satisfaction to the operator.

Crawlers that double the tractor's usefulness, Timken roller bearings, hardened cut steel gears, unit construction of power plant and heavy duty valve-in-head kerosene motor contribute to the year-after-year serviceability.

The model "D" BATES STEEL MULE has created more favorable comment than any tractor ever brought into this part of the country. Don't fail to see the one we have here.

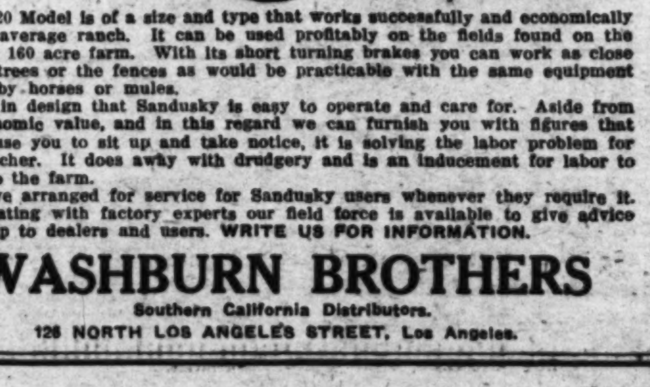
THE SANDUSKY TRACTOR
"THE LITTLE FELLOW WITH THE BIG PULL"



A General Purpose Tractor

The 10-20 Model is of a size and type that works successfully and economically on the average ranch. It can be used profitably on the fields found on the average 160 acre farm. With its short turning brakes you can work as close to the trees or the fences as would be practicable with the same equipment drawn by horses or mules.

Simple in design that Sandusky is easy to operate and care for. Aside from its economic value, and in this regard we can furnish you with figures that will cause you to sit up and take notice, it is solving the labor problem for the rancher. It does away with drudgery and is an inducement for labor to come to the farm.

We have arranged for service for Sandusky users whenever they require it. Co-operating with factory experts our field force is available to give advice and help to dealers and users. WRITE US FOR INFORMATION.

COTTON STANDARDS TO BE SPECIFIED.

The United States Department of Agriculture will soon issue an announcement of new official standards for the staple length of cotton. Nine lengths specified in the standards are represented by physical types, as follows: ⅞, ⅞, 1, 1⅛, 1¼, 1½, 1⅝ and 1¾ inches. A method of measuring cotton which will closely follow the best experts along this line has been devised.

The grades below 1⅛ inches are practically unknown in the cotton-producing regions of Southern California, most of the so-called short staple running 1¼ to 1½ inches, and the Egyptian measuring 1½ to 1¾ inches. The new grade standards for Pima cotton as decided upon by the department, run from 1 7-16 to 1¾ inches.

LIVE-STOCK CONVENTION.

The twenty-second annual convention of the American National Live-stock Association will be held at the Broadway Theater, Denver, January 21, 22 and 23, 1919, opening at 2 p.m. on January 21. The meeting will be an important one, as post-war adjustments will vitally affect the live-stock industry, and many important problems along this line are to come up for discussion.

Among those who are scheduled to appear on the speaking programme are D. F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture; William B. Colver, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and J. B. Kendrick, Senator from Wyoming. I. T. Pryor, president of the association, will deliver one of the principal addresses.

WANT LAW REVISED.

LINDSAY.—Sentiment of the leading orange packers of Tulare county is almost unanimously in favor of a revision of the present so-called "8-to-1" standarization law to require a certain percentage of color as well as chemical content as a basis for maturity of fruit to be allowed shipment in interstate commerce. At a mass meeting attended by practically all the packers, and by State and county horticultural officials, the packers voted their approval of the present law in principle, but it was provided that in case of a revision of the law a clause should be added that at least 40 per cent. characteristic orange coloring should be added. The packers present also went on record as favoring an increase in the salaries of horticultural commissioners. C. W. Cleary, the newly elected assemblyman from this county, who acted as chairman of the gathering, promised to give his support at the coming session of the State Legislature to proposed changes in the law.

WOULD FAN AWAY FROST.

POMONA.—If the ideas of George Adamson of this city can be carried to a successful conclusion there will be a revolution in the methods of orchard heating. He proposes to have fans replace the smudge pots. Knowing that cold air is heavier than warm air and hangs near the surface, thus aiding the frost, he would erect a large number of fans above the trees in the grove and thus force the warmer and lighter air from above to the ground to mingle with the colder air and at the same time create a circulation of air. It is a well-known fact that frost is most effective when the air in the groves is still.

LEMON RETURNS GOOD.

SANTA ANA.—For every hundred pounds of lemons at the tree the past season, members of the Villa Park Central Lemon Association put $4.278 down into their jeans, it is shown by the secretary's report, submitted at the annual meeting. A total of 93,868 boxes, or 237 carloads, of lemons were sent out the past year by this association. The average cost for handling was .9397 per hundredweight, or .7995 per packed box less than the previous year, in spite of increased expenses. Net returns are nearly twice as much per hundredweight as the previous year, when $2.64 was received by growers for each 100 pounds of fruit at the tree.

ARSENATE OF LIME.

Experiments thus far made by the Bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, indicate that arsenate of lime may be used in all situations where Paris green has been employed, and that for pome fruits (apple, pear, quince) it will often be a satisfactory substitute for arsenate of lead, the present cost of which is much above normal, when used with lime or fungicides containing lime.

VALUABLE NUMBER.

The annual review number of the California Fruit News, published in San Francisco, is one of the most interesting and attractive yet issued by this publication. It summarizes the development of the fruit industry on the Pacific Coast during 1918 in a series of excellent articles by experts in their lines.

TOBACCO ADDED TO INGLEWOOD'S CROPS.

INGLEWOOD.—The Centinella Valley territory, in the midst of which is located the town of Inglewood, is a region adapted to the growing of almost any and all crops. A lemon grove under cultivation in the valley has proved quite a bonanza to its owner. A few years ago large returns were realized from popcorn, but in later years this crop gave way to the bean crop. The past year, however, about $20,000 worth of popcorn was taken off of fifty acres. Three thousand acres of lima beans produced some 20,000 sacks, and 500 acres of field corn yielded large returns, some of the crop being raised on the sand hills without irrigation. Lettuce is another crop for which this region is noted, the returns being about $250 per acre.

A new venture, the result of which is being watched with interest, is the growing of tobacco. This will be good news to the lovers of tobacco, as a few plants will produce enough smokes and chews for any man. F. C. Metcalf just south of Inglewood set out some plants for a trial last June. From a plot of ground 20x80 feet he raised enough tobacco to last him all his life, he says. Several cigar makers who examined the texture of the leaves pronounced the growth most excellent. A feature favorable to the raising of tobacco in the region is that three crops can be grown from the same stalk, on account of the long season.

He grows his own "makings."

EUREKA ENSILAGE CORN

A variety of Indian corn adapted to silo-filling purposes; growing to an extreme height, with a luxuriant development of blade and a fine solid and compact ear; a variety entirely free from "suckers." Our Eureka Ensilage Corn grows to an average height of 18 feet.

It easily yields from

75 to 100 Bushels Per Acre

From a field of 9½ acres, two 150-ton silos are regularly filled each year. This corn has been grown by us for four successive years. It is thoroughly acclimated, shelled and graded.

BUY YOUR SEED NOW AS OUR SUPPLY IS LIMITED

We have five tons of this corn for sale. The corn is to be shelled and graded as to size of kernel. This will insure evenness of distance between stalks in the row, a condition favorable to a maximum yield in both grain and stover. Samples and prices on request.

AGRICULTURAL GROWTH SHOWN IN HUGE DEMAND FOR TOOLS.

EXTENSION of agricultural and horticultural activities in the Southwest has created a demand for so many farm tools in the past year that this section has become known as one of the best fields in America for the implement trade. So says no less an authority than U. G. Orendorff of Canton, Ill., secretary and treasurer of the firm of Parlin & Orendorff, makers of universally known "P & O" tools. Mr. Orendorff is spending the winter in Southern California, as has been his regular custom for years.

"Deeper plowing, more intensive cultivation and the spreading of the irrigated area in this favored region have called for a tremendous number of plows, cultivators, seeders, etc.," said Mr. Orendorff the other day. "Our firm's sales in this territory have increased 300 per cent. in the past three years, and I know that other manufacturers have made big strides.

"Pacific Coast farmers are beginning to realize that, ordinarily, they can use the same tools as are used in the Middle West. Plowing is more difficult out here, as a rule, than in the corn belt. We have conformed to special conditions in this region, sometimes making plows stronger for a particular location. We have made a special plow for deep work in the beet fields of Southern California. We also make special listers for Imperial Valley cotton and milo maize. Our tools include also some designed especially for tractor work, including a power lift plow shown to be particularly useful in this section.

"The agricultural outlook throughout the great producing sections is excellent. I have just returned from a tour of many States. Foodstuffs will probably remain high until the next harvest. Pacific Coast agriculture looks better to me every time I come out here. I believe the barley marketing problem will be taken care of by a reduction in the acreage and the growing of other crops. What California needs most is more live-stock ranches."

Difficult Tractor Test Held by Los Angeles County.

It will be of interest to the tax payers of Los Angeles County to know that this county is now running its large farm at Downey with the most improved and up-to-date power machinery.

Having the management of a very productive farm of 450 acres, 275 of which is in cultivation. Mr. Harriman, the superintendent decided that he could greatly increase the production by use of a tractor, which would enable them to plow deeper and cheaper and do the plowing at the proper time.

After securing an appropriation from the county for purchasing a tractor, Mr. Harriman let it be known to the dealers on "tractor row" that they wanted a tractor of about 12-25 H.P. to pull three 14-inch mold board plows, nine inches deep. This would be an easy condition for most tractors of this H.P. to meet, if it was not for the fact that the whole farm is very sandy, a great part of it being a silt sand formation.

Then to make it worse, one field was patched with Bermuda grass sod, so that while the plows would be in heavy Bermuda sod, the tractor would have only deep sand upon which to get its traction.

Three different makes of tractors, (one of which was of the crawler type) went out confidently, with their 3 14-inch bottom plows, and none of these three could successfully pull two of their plows.

Mr. Harriman then got in touch with Mr. Rainey, Manager of the branch of the Avery Company and had them bring out their 12-25 H.P. tractor. After a two days trial the Avery demonstrated conclusively that it could handle the 3 14-inch plows nine inches deep in any of the soil and it also worked perfectly on the belt pulling an eight inch centrifugal pump. As a consequence the Los Angeles County Farm are now another of the ever increasing great number of satisfied Avery owners. The Avery Company office is 237 South Los Angeles St., Los Angeles. —[Adv.

INFERIOR OILS FALSE ECONOMY.

One-half of the troubles experienced with farm machines could be obviated if proper regard were paid to lubrication. This means, says F. A. Meckel of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, that not only enough lubricants must be used, but that they must be of the right kind. There can be no economy in using low-grade oil and grease, nor in applying lubricants in less quantity than the machine requires.

Any machine which the farmer may own is entitled to the very best of treatment. Without that its efficiency is reduced, and this reduced efficiency is just the same in effect as needless expense in any other direction. The more complicated and valuable the items of the far equipment are, the better the care to which they are entitled. Tractors, gasoline engines, binders, and the like, should receive only the best of everything, including lubrication, both in quantity and in quality.

Farmers who own automobiles are beginning to learn the economy of an adequate use of lubricants, but they should not confine the application of this acquired knowledge to their automobiles. Give each machine on the place a chance to do its best. It can't have this unless it is lubricated properly. A bath of the very best oil on a bearing once a day is not the same as the same amount of oil distributed in equal parts to that bearing at intervals of thirty minutes. This implies the judicious use of the best oils that money can buy. To do anything else is false economy.

HEAVY BUYING ABROAD.

Foreign countries, especially France, Italy and England, are now purchasing large numbers of tractors from the United States, according to Manager Rainey of the Avery Company of the Pacific Coast. This condition, coupled with the ever-increasing demand for tractors to replace farming with horses in this country, he says, makes it important that American agriculturists get in their orders as early as possible. The ranchers of California, he declares, have heretofore been fortunately situated on account of the small amount of tractor buying in the East all during the winter months, but this season, he says, the eastern farmers are awake to the fact that they will have to buy early, if they are to be assured of tractors when they need them, and Californians will have to take this condition into consideration.

BRANCH FOR ARIZONA.

Cleveland tractors are hereafter to be distributed in Arizona as well as in Southern California by Smith Bros., according to information just given out by the Pacific Coast representative of the Cleveland Tractor Company. Last week Stanley W. Smith was in Phoenix making arrangements for the opening of a branch there and incidentally looking over the territory. Warehouse facilities are to be secured there and a sales and service department will also be established at that point.

The San Dimas Farm Center has formed a co-operative orcharding association, consisting of H. S. Gilman, Levi S. Taylor, C. F. George, William H. Johnson, B. V. Burditt, C. A. Butler and J. B. Valle. One of the first acts of the association was to make arrangements for the purchase of a tractor, and suitable implements to be used jointly by the association. There is a similar organization at Uplands which has a tractor.

AGENCIES ANNOUNCED.

The [illegible] Company has entered into a contract with the firm of McClatchy & McKnight for the sale of Holder tractors in Imperial county. The first carload was shipped last week. The [illegible] company also reports having made a contract with A. J. [illegible], Bakersfield, for the sale of the Holder tractor in Kern county.

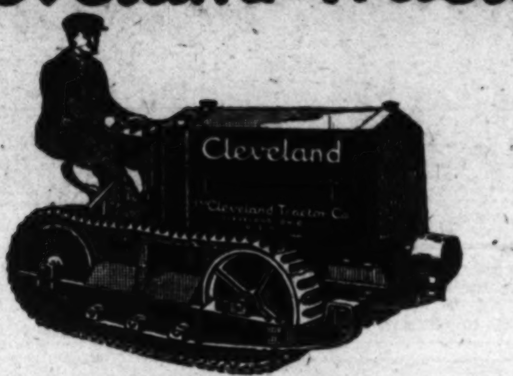
Cleveland Tractor



THE REAL REASON FOR PLOWING is to pulverize the soil and fit it for the harrow or the drag. The plow not only turns the soil over but it pulverizes it by compression and fills up the big air spaces. If the soil is not completely broken up in the act of compressing, the quick turn or rapid throw of the outside moldboard must do the rest.

Right here is where so many Cleveland users report that they do better plowing with the Cleveland than with horse or mule power. Slow plowing simply lays the soil over gently and leaving a lot for the harrow or the drag.

The Cleveland at an approximate speed of 3 to 3½ miles per hour, throws the ground over hard enough, completely pulverizes it, and gives results not possible with slow-moving plowing. The Cleveland not only saves time, but it does a better job and makes for bigger and better crops.

Cleveland owners in our territory are to have the service they are justly entitled to—and that is the best. Service stations have been established by the following dealers:

Barring Injurious Bugs from California's Boundaries.

CALIFORNIA has a complete horticultural quarantine system. At its head is a State horticultural commissioner. Under him are numerous deputies and field agents. Not only is the State guarded against injurious insects and plant diseases around its entire borders, but an internal system is rigidly maintained.

Out of fifty-eight counties in the State, forty-two have active county horticultural commissioners. All of these officials, from the State Horticultural Commissioner down, are clothed with legal power to act.

They are the quarantine guardians of a thousand miles of seacoast and all State and county boundaries. They have control of all horticultural products produced within the boundaries of the State, and of all that are brought into the State.

They have authority to inspect, condemn, fumigate or destroy any product found infested by injurious insects or diseases.

The chief horticultural quarantine office is in San Francisco, where tab is kept, up to date, on horticultural conditions the world over.

PORTS ARE WATCHED.

Subquarantine offices are maintained in all other coast ports; for the great danger of infection comes through these ports. There are five of these coast ports.

On every foreign ship arriving the health officer of the port is the first to exercise his authority; the horticultural inspector second, and the customhouse inspector third. Not only is the cargo of the vessel rigidly inspected, but the dunnage of the sailors and baggage of the passengers is gone through and thoroughly examined.

Especially are all incoming fruits, flowers, vegetables, roots, bulbs and nursery stock inspected with more than ordinary care.

Diseased or infested stuff is ruthlessly held up. Sometimes it gets off with fumigation at the department's fumigating plants, situated on the docks. In other cases it is summarily consigned to the furnace of the donkey engine and utterly consumed.

In the offices of the chief horticultural quarantine officer in San Francisco hangs a map of the world with every infested quarter of the globe marked upon it.

A card system, in connection, tells just what insects and plant diseases infest these points. So, on the arrival of any vessel from these parts, the horticultural inspectors know just what to look for.

Shipments of bananas, pineapples, Chinese sweet potatoes, etc., receive special attention from the sleuths of the department.

Inspecting nursery stock at railroad station.

A tree in transit gets the "once over."

The horticultural inspection is collateral with the Federal quarantine, and the inspection extends to agricultural products.

In a single year as high as 298,768 parcels were inspected.

COTTON PESTS FEARED.

One of the infested products of the world that is receiving especial attention from the San Francisco officers is cotton. It is a historical fact that the only sections of the world which are not infested with cotton boll weevil and the pink boll worm are Southern California and Arizona.

Texas, the great cotton field of the United States, Mexico, South America, China, India and other cotton-producing sections of the world are terribly infested with the pink boll worm, and losses from the ravages of the insect run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Southern California and Arizona, being new, yet promising in the culture of cotton, are very jealous of their immunity from the insect, and are watching their borders with sleepless vigilance, that none of these pestiferous bugs may get within their borders.

Not a pound of foreign cotton is allowed to come into California without close inspection and thorough fumigation. All cotton from India or China coming into the port of San Francisco is sent immediately across the bay to the California Cotton Mills in Oakland, where it is put through a thorough process of fumigation in a powerful vacuum fumigator before being allowed to be used in the California mills or shipped to mills in the East.

So menacing is this pest that four cotton fumigating stations have been established on the Pacific Coast, and a like number on the Atlantic coast.

WHERE IDEA STARTED.

And this great system of horticultural quarantine had its inception in a single mind and developed in a single locality. The mind was that of the late Alexander Craw and the locality was Los Angeles county.

That was away back in the 80's when the cottony cushion scale threatened to destroy the great and growing citrus industry of Southern California.

It was then that Craw, a practical horticulturist and superintendent of a big orange grove, conceived the "bug vs. bug" idea, and, finding another insect, known as the "lady bird," set the latter to work destroying the cottony cushion scale, and thus saved a great industry to the State.

From that beginning sprung the efficient horticultural department of California, and it was upon this that the Federal government organized a nation-wide system of inspection, quarantine, experimentation and extermination of horticultural and agricultural diseases and insect pests.

Incoming cargoes are examined at the ports of entry. Here a horticultural inspector is looking over some bananas.

Sweet potatoes open for inspection at a shipping terminal.

Ranchers Pin Faith to Perennial Pasture Crops.

THAT interest in pure bred dairy stock has been on the increase, despite last year's dry season and consequent shortage of pasture, and of the high cost of stock feeds, has been evidenced by expansion in a number of dairies of Southern California, among which is the herd of pure bred Jerseys at the Woodhead-Warren ranch at San Jacinto. A recent purchase has added thirty-two fine Jerseys to this herd, that many fine animals having been acquired from Brasse and Frases at Baldwin Park.

Included in this purchase were two bulls, one still a youngster, and the other, St. Lambert's Angie's son, now heading the herd. Probably the finest individual among the cows is Pet's Little Pride, with an unofficial record of twenty-one pounds of butter fat in seven days. Among the heifers there are several, Mr. Warren believes, that will distinguish themselves. A number of fine Jerseys were recently sold from this ranch to the Jim Jeffries ranch at Burbank.

The labor problem presents a difficulty here as in all dairies at the present time. The milking is done by hand, and the milk is shipped in to Los Angeles, payment being received according to the butter-fat test. This method proves a satisfactory one to owners of good Jersey herds. The question of labor on a ranch of this type involves the raising of large quantities of grain and alfalfa hay, the greater proportion of the 680 acres being planted to these crops, which are largely fed out on the place.

Much fine, natural pasture land is included in this acreage, however, and Mr. Warren gives it as his conviction that an increase of pasture crops which can be harvested right in the field by the animals themselves the year around in this climate is one of the solutions for the ranch-labor difficulties. To this end he has experimented with a number of perennials including the new forage crop, Napier, or Elephant grass, which he believes promises well as a heavy yielding silage and pasture crop.

A row of plants grown from seed planted in the late spring of 1918, several weeks after the last rain, and which never received any irrigation, made splendid growth. This success from plantings of seed proved unusual from the experiences so far noted in this country, and was no doubt due to the fact that it was planted late in thoroughly warm, moist soil. The young plants stooled out with an abundance of soft, succulent leaves and gave excellent promise as a dry-farmed field crop. Mr. Warren has hopes that this grass will prove itself as a pasture as well as a silage crop and so will add materially to the lessening of labor for the dairy farmer.

A Sheet Anchor.

THE wise man with his money, or, to put it in perhaps a better way, the man who handles his money wisely, does not risk his whole fortune in one single investment or in one sole venture. By thus displaying caution, he may still profit from one business though the others fail.

In other words, it is as the old saying has it: "Never put all your eggs in one basket."

However, it is always possible that every venture upon which a man may stake his chances of gain may fail. And then what is he to do?

Usually, and unless the victim of a general crash be an unusual man, he goes to pieces. Despair seizes him. He falls broken against the iron walls of fate. All too often a man under these sad circumstances ends his troubles by ending his life with his own hand.

As far as the material things of this world are concerned, no man can ever say that he is in control of them. Fortune is indeed a fickle jade. She is no sure mistress, no matter how assiduously and watchfully she may be wooed. The rich man of today has no guarantee that he will not be the poor man of tomorrow.

All this being true, it is therefore plain enough that a man should have something still to fall back upon—something that will be certain to sustain him—though fate were to rob him of his last dollar, and fortune to desert the last rafter of the roof that covers him.

How can he find this something on the roads of this world when the road is denied to him and he stands shorn and beggared by the wayside? There is no way he can find it in the world; there is no place where he may seek it among men.

He must look to the stars for his comfort. Unless he shall have the sheet anchor of his soul cast into the deeps that surge upon him, he shall have no solace in his hour of defeat.

That thing "Which we have as an anchor of the soul, a hope both sure and steadfast" is the only thing that can save us when fortune fails.

When a materialist becomes a wreck he is the saddest wreck of all. Take his fortune from him and he crumbles. His soul has had no anchor.

But, on the other hand, you may take fortune from the man who through all life's vicissitudes kept his soul's anchor cast, and he will survive any blow that fate may deal him. You may strip him bare, but you cannot crush him.

The most noted example of the truth of this is found in the story of Job—that greatest of all poems. God rejoiced in Job. He was a righteous man, a true and faithful servant of the Lord.

But Satan, going up and down the world seeking whom he might devour, derided the integrity of Job. "Take his wealth away from him, take his sons away from him, fill his bones with suffering and disease and make him an outcast among the people, and then you will see that he will no longer be the wonderful person you consider him to be. He will then renounce you to your face," said Satan to God.

God took up the challenge and permitted Satan to do all those things to Job and more. God staked his wisdom on Job, and God won. Job had cast an anchor for his soul in the days of his prosperity, and it proved his sheet anchor in his adversity.

What would you do if half the misfortune came upon you that came upon Job? You have no guarantee against it. Would it not be well, therefore, to provide yourself with a sheet anchor?

Is Money Necessary?

IS THIS stuff we call money necessary, or might it be feasible to do away with it altogether, as advocated by the Bolsheviki and other schools of thought and alleged thought? If we were all agreed not to use money in our dealings with one another and go back to that stage in history when the thing was not yet invented, how would it be in that event at the present time?

The fact is that we couldn't get along at all without the use of money as society is now constituted. Furthermore, there is no substitute for it that would not be far more burdensome and infinitely more unsatisfactory than money is.

In primitive societies man made use of many things with which to barter with his neighbor, but they were all practically the same things as money is now. There were rich men then as there are now, and poor men, too. If they used tobacco, as the American Indians did for money, or flint or hides or bones, it was all the same. Some men, always had more of the medium used as an exchange than others had. There were always those who were more thrifty or grasping than others.

The way it seems to be as regards money is that really the goddess of fortune is continually filling her hands with coins and throwing them in the air. When they fall to the ground those men who are the best and most active scramblers fare the best. The man who is at play or wool gathering at dreams when the scrambling is going on gets few or none of the coins.

We have made a common saying that "Money is the root of evil." This is a corruption of the true saying which was made by Paul when he wrote to Timothy: "For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, which some reaching after have been led astray from the faith and have pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

So, we see it is not money but the love of money that makes the trouble. As far as money itself is concerned there is nothing wrong about it.

Beware the Grouch.

WE TAKE many precautions to guard ourselves against physical ills. We avoid sitting in draughts that we may escape rheumatism and coughs and colds. We take pills for our livers and drink things for our kidneys. But, we never seem to think that it is necessary to doctor our dispositions.

And, after all, it is the way we act and not the way we feel that counts. To preserve a sweet and serene spirit despite our troubles and our ills is, or should be, the main business of life next to the salvation of our immortal souls.

And, of all these ills of the mind that can seize upon us, we believe that this ailment commonly known as "grouch" is the very worst.

If a real, good-sized grouch can once get a firm ingrowing hold on a man, he is then fit for stratagems and spoils. You can take him to all the symphony concerts in the town, you can buy him a seat at a Charlie Chaplin movie, take him to the circus and buy peanuts for him, and do anything else you like, and it is all time wasted.

The man with a grouch wears smoked glasses as a habit and a preference. He starts the day by souring his breakfast with gall. The sun shines on him and he shakes his fist at its genial and life-giving rays. He kicks the bandog at the gate and throws bootjacks at the kindly and useful family cat. For such a man the whole world is turned upside down.

So, whatever else you do, beware the grouch. Avoid it as you would the hissing serpent. Go ten blocks or ten miles out of your way in order to escape it. Take Turkish baths, massages, salts and even play golf sooner than permit this deadly thing to get hold of your mind.

No matter what struggle may be necessary to prevent the grouch, make it. For, if once it gets you, only the angels of heaven can help you then.

Socialism and Children.

THERE are what are called "parlor socialists," and there are many other kinds. In fact it would be difficult to count the endless varieties. There is even a class known as "Christian socialists." But, they are all merely dilettantes.

The only socialist worth mentioning is the real McCoy who goes the whole length of the road with a broadax in his hands ready to swat everything he meets.

This is the fellow who says that all children should become the care and the property of the State. The Bolsheviki and the other schools of the same radical stripe contend and advocate that all women between the ages of 18 and 35 should be compelled to bear children (marriage having nothing to do with the matter) and that the children then be taken in charge of the government so that the parents may not have any concern of them.

Fine business, isn't it? For the benefit of those who contend that the Bolsheviks or any other school of socialism stand the ghost of a chance to run the United States of America, we extend a hearty invitation to Lenine or Trotzky or any of their compatriots to come over here and make their proposition to the women of America. Nobody will have to wait long to see what happens after the proposition is made.

They are surely a squalid lot—these wild, ignorant knaves and fanatics. A wild and Godless lot they are, surely. No wonder that Petrograd is a cemetery and that the great Russian nation is laid in wreck and ruin.

There should be no fooling with these beasts in this country. The very moment they raise their heads they should be promptly and sternly crushed. This is a free country, but there can be such a thing as too much freedom.

The Strenuous Life.

THE recent lamented death of ex-President Roosevelt recalls to us the fact that he was a famous advocate of what is called "the strenuous life." He was a man who practiced that which he preached. He led the strenuous life himself.

There are two ways of looking at it. Whether "twenty years of Europe is better than a cycle of Cathay," as some homesick poet said, or whether it were better to live a long life than a short one, is the question that each man must answer for himself.

Whoever adopts the strenuous life must be prepared in advance to accept the consequences. A candle burned at both ends will not last long. A man cannot wear out the tissues of his brain and body both by day and night and expect also to see many gray hairs on his head.

This killing pace which the American man sets for himself and follows, has always seemed to us a pathetic thing. It makes him a nervous wreck and sends him to an untimely grave. He is dead and gone while his children are still young about his knees.

It doesn't seem to us that it is worth while. Is not peace and quietness better than turmoil and noise and strife? What good are these things to us when they come as the price of life?

No matter how high the heights of fame that men reach, no matter how great the stir they make in the world while they live, no matter how loudly they are acclaimed, they are forgotten almost the day after they are laid away in their graves.

Better, we think, is the peace of a quiet little fireside and the gentle happiness of seclusion. Death comes soon enough, anyway, and there seems to be no sense in running to meet it.

It is claimed that the new Sousa wedding march is stimulating marriages. The old-fashioned Mendelssohn composition has been thrown in the discard and only wedding marches "made in America" are the vogue.

THE LAND OF MEMORIE.

It lies beyond the sunset hills,
Far and beyond them all;
And when the twilight shadows creep,
I hear its voices call.
I hear its voices calling—
And, you will come with me,
We will trudge away together
To the Land of Memorie.

And whither lies the way to go
I have no need to tell;
The way is by the path of dreams;
'Tis you that knows it well.
'Tis you that knows the way to go,
And well I know it, too;
You'll follow where the voices call,
And I will go with you.

The voices there that call us,
We knew and loved of old,
We knew them round the firesides
When winter nights were cold;
The friendly word, the welcome word,
They kept for you and me
Through sunlit days of gladness
In the Land of Memorie.

Many a door is open there
Where beams the kindly smile,
And many an arm in welcome flung,
That waits for us the while.
And, 'neath the whispering grasses
Where dim the shadows fall,
There's some who, lying lonely,
Were the best beloved of all.

'Twill pass and fade, 'twill sink away,
And we must turn anew
To face the burdens of the day,
The tasks we have to do.
But, in some other twilight hour,
You'll come again with me,
And we'll steal away together
To the Land of Memorie.

JOHN S. McGROARTY.

Mission of New Stagecraft.

center of all the arts. Stage producers must not only know how to interpret lines but they must recognise the value of other arts and know how to correlate and synthetize all the arts, for music, dancing, scene design and lighting as well as acting demand the attention of the stage producer.

Proper Lighting is of More Importance than Furniture.

STAGE lighting is an art in itself and today it plays such an important part in stage producing that if I were forced to choose between adequate lighting and proper furniture and setting I would choose the lighting and get along with bare walls and packing boxes for furniture if necessary. The lighting contributes more than any other one element to the emotion of the play.

One of the chief desires of the actor is to get the mood of the play to the audience. Now, lighting properly conceived and properly executed focuses and accentuates the emotions of the play as they appear on the stage. It is a strangely illusive quality which helps to convey the soul to the audience. It is the greatest possible asset to the actor. It should never lessen but always heighten the effect of his talents. It can subtly stimulate the imagination of the auditor without giving him a conscious picture. Through proper lighting all the spirit and beauty of moonlight, for instance, may be portrayed without committing the atrocity of showing a rising moon on the stage.

Finally I would say that the setting of a play should be reduced to its very simplest terms. It should represent the maximum of effect with the minimum of effort. There should be the same sincerity and good taste in our stage settings that we desire in our acting and our playwriting. But always the setting should be subservient to the play, never dominating but always strengthening, never detracting but always enhancing. We should go to see a play not because of the setting but because there is such fine balance in the production that we can get the full spiritual import, the complete mood, without the consciousness of the actor or the designer, the producer or the playwright, and we should carry away with us only the memory of the perfect whole.

Wood Flour.

The Forest Service estimates that American lumber mills produce no less than 36,000,000 cords of waste every year. About one-half of it goes into the furnaces as fuel; the rest is burned as refuse. A comparatively small quantity, 20,000 tons or more, is ground into wood flour, just as grain was ground in old-time mills.

The product is divided between two widely different industries, the manufacture of dynamite and the manufacture of inlaid linoleum. Both require a white or very light-colored flour, which is obtained mainly from spruce, fir, white pine and poplar. The flour used in making dynamite must be very absorptive, so that there will be no leakage of nitroglycerin from the finished product; it must also be white, since lightness of color in dynamite is regarded as a sign of freshness.

In making linoleum, either wood or cork flour is used. The flour is mixed with a cementing material, and is then spread out on burlap and rolled or pressed to a uniform thickness. The cement is the expensive constituent. Cork linoleum is the cheaper because it takes less cement. For inlaid or straight-line linoleum, wood flour is used exclusively. Cork linoleum is always dark and slightly more elastic than that produced from wood flour. The wearing qualities are about the same.

There are wood flour mills scattered over the country from Maine to California wherever the necessary combination of wood and water power exists. Domestic wood flour competes with the Norwegian product, which before the war, cost in Atlantic ports from $12.50 to $15 a ton.

There are many good reasons why there should be a large fleet maintained in the Pacific as well as the Atlantic Ocean. And that will mean well-equipped bases for supply, repair and harbor. The situation in the Far East as between Japan, China and Siberia is likely to often require the presence of an American fleet, especially if our advice on these occasions is backed by a flock of battleships.

Helen and Warren.

"You bet we won't! You'll agree to whatever I say. That settles that!"

"Oh, I will?" as she backed up to be unhooked. "I'm not so sure. No, the ones in the middle—the lining too. It's just dawned on me that I'm entirely too meek—I should assert my opinions as Mrs. Kane does."

"You just try it," jerking her around to the light, "and you'll get all that's comin' to you. There," pinching the pink-silked flesh between the opened hooks, "now scoot! We've been up late every night this week."

"Why, dear, last night we went to bed early—and the night before—"

"Eh? What's that?" he roared. "I said we've been up late every night this week."

"Oh, so we have, dear," repressing a laugh. "I forgot."

"Well, see that it doesn't happen again," with a grin, evading her rumpling caress. "Whatever I say goes double! We'll have no debating societies around this shebang!"

The Unknown Pacific.

There has been discussed the need of a comprehensive exploration of the Pacific Ocean. It is believed that such an undertaking should be on a far greater scale than has hitherto been attempted, and that future work should be broadly areal rather than local, as on single islands, or linear, as in single voyages. The work of the magnetic survey ship "Carnegie," which makes repeated trips over many interwoven sea routes, is an example of the kind of exploration that is wanted. In the opinion of men of science, it should be continuous through ten or twenty years. It has been shown how little definite information the world has about the largest of the oceans. One specialist declares that in the North Pacific there is a tract twice as large as the United States that has been crossed by only a single line of sounding at intervals of 250 miles wide, and that there are a number of tracts as large as this country that are entirely unfathomed.

ARTISTS!

DON'T TALK TO ME—!!

Being
Reflections on the Gentle Art of Painting

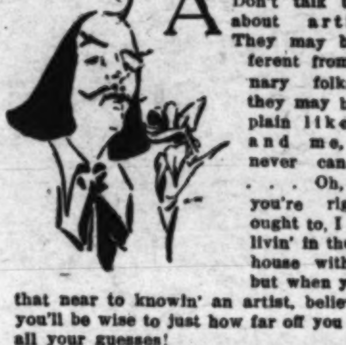
By SADIE MAHONY
(Some Typist!)
as heard and seen by
EDITH HILLES and KATHARINE KAVANAUGH



ARTISTS! Artists! Don't talk to me about artists! They may be different from ordinary folks, or they may be just plain like you and me, you never can tell! . . . Oh, yes, you're right, I ought to, I 'spose, livin' in the same house with one; but when you get that near to knowin' an artist, believe me, you'll be wise to just how far off you are on all your guesses!

She sure knocked sky-wheelin' all my notions of what an Art Student should be! You know I've read a good bit, and I was all primed for a sad-eyed soulful creature with bobbed hair hangin' softlike over her ears an' collar—somebody with a pale vis, an' highbrow taste in food an' music (I kep' thinkin' of the toney stuff she'd play evenin's.) My dear, I could just see her! Kinda glidin' around the house, not makin' a sound an' wavin' them long thin hands, good for nothin' but holdin' paint brushes an' gently ticklin' the ivories!

Mamma an' I was real excited that first evenin' and we had things slicked up to beat the band—an' we thought she never would come—I remember I says to mamma "I bet you a nickel she's got lost or gone off into a trance or something." . . . Oh, yes, she came all right—all I can say is I wisht you coulda seen her! Dark and soulful! She wasn't nothin' but a plain natural blonde—looked somethin' like you, only lackin' your sense of style. (But honest now, she's awful sweet, though I do say I wisht she'd fix up a bit when I go out with her!)

Well you can imagine my feelin's! She give my hand a grip that makes my bones ache to think of—and doleful!—Gee, she'd laugh at a funeral. I will say I was some worried when I seen mamma had clean forgot and put onions in the salad! I just couldn't bring myself to picture an artist eatin' onions! But did she turn it down? I guess nix? She passed up for a second helpin', sayin' if there was one thing she loved, it sure was onions! That was bad enough, but it just about got my goat when after supper she sits down an' begins bangin' out rag-time—"O Johnnie" at that—with never a look at that highbrow stuff I'd borrowed 'special from Sadie McIntyre to have settin' on the piano.

Well, after that, I 'spose I shoulda been ready for anything, but who in Sam Hill woulda thought she'da done her own washin'? An' more'n that she hadn't no feelin' about lettin' folks see her do it! I'da sure thought it was some fish story about her bein' an artist, but . . . say listen, they're queer! There ain't nobody on the Orpheum Circuit that's got anything on them for the lightnin' change!

Las' Sunday she was gettin' ready to go down to the studio. We'd gotten so kinda intimate. (Honest, she is a peach!) I says, "Kid, lemme go 'long. I wanta see if this here is all a bluff you're tryin' to put over on us about bein' an artist." She wasn't real crazy about it at first—said they was all workin' so hard to finish their pictures for the big exhibition on Monday, it wouldn't be no fun for me—an' besides, she didn't know how the master'ud take it. I didn't let on to her, but I was kinda keen on seein' the master myself. I will say for her that she did come pretty near gettin' soulful an' thrilly whenever she talked about the master an' all that guff about him inspiring 'em so. But at las' she come through an' let me go.

Ridin' down on the car I was busyin' my noodle tryin' to fit this plain everyday pal into the dark, rich fixin's of a studio. I had my eye set all right for the studio—heavy tapestry, an' a lot of them big white polar bear rugs slung kinda careless over the furniture—an' big carved easels an' everything kinda dark an' mysterious, with that incensey, alluring' smell, you know! . . . No, I couldn't see Gloria in them surroundin's, but I says to myself, "Well anyway, the master'll fit." I knew all right what he'd look like—Bert McGinnis took me to a show out to the park one Sunday, an' there was a real artist there. He had long, black, slick, shiny hair, an' one of them big flowin' ties, an' he was carryin' a real red rose—(honest, I never see a red rose since, that I don't shiver)—the way that feller looked at you out of them great big soft eyes o' his would give you the woosies.

Well, we hadn't more'n gotten off the car when Gloria grips my arm so I like to yelled, an' she whispers kinda frantic like "There he is! There he is!"

It was kinda early yet an' there wasn't many folks around, an' I says:

"Who?"

An' she says, "The Master!"

I begun to rubber then for sure. "Where?" I says.

"Over there," she says, "by the cafeteria."

I give one look.

"Good Lord," I says, "you don't mean that hod carrier!"

Gloria was hurt, but gee! How d'you think I felt? . . . Good night! you could'a knocked me over with a toothpick!

"Well," I consoles myself, hangin' to the last hope. "Anyhow there's the studio."

But when we begun to climb up four flights of stairs, (there wasn't even no elevator) I had a hunch there wasn't nothing doin' in the spiffy studio line either—and, believe me—

Now I ask you—do you think a studio ought to look like a place where somebody's just moved out? . . . Why there wasn't even curtains, an' you coulda writ your name on the windows for dirt. . . . Rugs? Smears o' paint an' oil was the only kind o' rugs I seen! There was maybe a dozen easels made outa plain wood standin' around in a semi-circle, an' in the middle, the model gazin' half deadlike into space. There wasn't but one chair besides the model's, an' Gloria told me to set in that—but gee! before I could set down I had to dump off some newspapers an' a dirty rag an' a paper napkin fulla old crusts an' apple cores an' banana peels—say, it was awful!

I hadn't more'n set down when Gloria pointed out her easel an' I got up to see.

"Gloria!" I cries, gettin' up close to it, "Somethin's happened to it! It looks like it had the smallpox!!!"

I sure felt bad for her, for it was plain to me that somebody'd spilled things all over it. . . . Oh, it was fierce!!

But Gloria hadn't no time for me—she didn't even hear me. . . . There's your lightnin' change, all right! She wasn't no more the Gloria I'd seen washin' out her shirts that mornin' than nothin' at all She had one of them palettes on her arm, an' a dozen or so brushes, an' she'd put on one of them smocks (like in Cohn's window) only somebody'd smeared paint all over this one so's you couldn't for the life of you tell what it had looked like first.

I thought to myself in the beginnin' she was clean crazy, poor kid, on accounta somebody spoilin' the picture. She stood off, put her head way back an' looked at it hard, then she begun to kind of attack it, violent, fillin' her brush an' just makin' splotches. I thought she sure was crazy when I seen her land one brush o' fiery red on top o' what you could just make out was meant for an eyebrow! But she kept right on, makin' splotches o' different colors in different places, an' I swear I was so scared I couldn't stop her; besides, she did not pay no attention when I tried. I might a been in Halifax for all o' her.

After a bit I took a look at the rest of them, an' after I had give all them canvases the once over, you can take it from me, I was some changed in my notions of art. There wasn't only but one there that was paintin', but she was doin' it nice an' pretty; but the rest of 'em didn't pay no attention to her.

Honest, I never see such goin's on. . . . Sometimes one would go slinkin' forward close to the model, kinda stealthy. (It give me the willies) or one'ud go off in a corner with a little mirror. . . . (Huh-huh, nothin' doin' in the nose-powderin' line though the Lord knows she needed it) . . . just makin' signs in it. . . . Or one of them 'ud go stand somewheres lookin' through holes in pieces o' cardboard.

Well, I set down in the chair, feelin' real weak. Honest. I felt like I didn't know where I was at. But then it come to me—my dear, they was hypnotizin' the model! Believe me it was creepy. You know Mme. Benzal—she done just that way when she was "gettin' anybody under"—slink up an' wave her hands an' lean way back an' look—well, I guess they had the model under, all right, for she never moved, hardly winkin'. But I sure felt relieved when after a while somebody spoke out loud an' the model gets up, with the spell off her.

The master come in then (I could hardly bear to look at him) an' all he did was to go round an' say "rotten", in front of each of 'em—an he says it twice to the old lady who was doin' the only real paintin' there, as I could see. I couldn't get no words he said, nothin' but "rotten" an' somethin' about "values" an' "form"—an believe me, I didn't see nothin' very inspirin' about that. An 'after he'd go by they'd all go on doin' just the same, just slingin' paint around,

THINGS FOR EVERY HOUSEKEEPER.

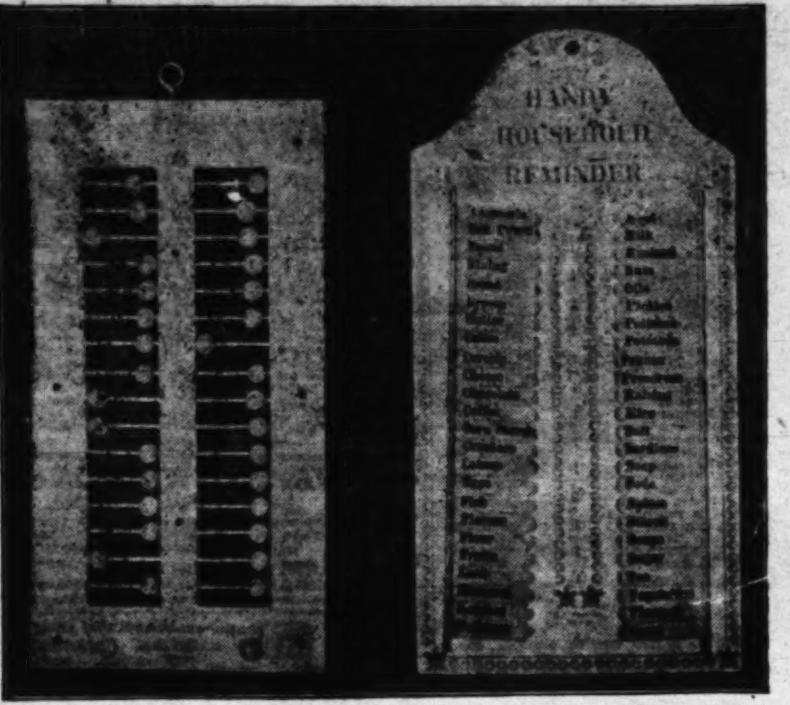
BY RETTA BADGER.

[Any information regarding things illustrated or described on this page gladly given. Suggestions from readers are always welcome. Address all communications for this department to Retta Badger, The Times, Los Angeles.]

IF YOU have scallops to stamp on a rough material, it is often difficult to get a clear, even outline. Try my plan and see how easy it works.

Stamp five or six scallops on a heavy piece of paper, cut with scissors along the lower edge. Lay on the goods where you wish your scallops and simply draw along the lower edge following the outline with a pencil, shift your scallops as you go along. You will find this a quick and easy way of stamping scallops, and it will be easy to see just where you are putting them.

An easy and quick way to pad scallops is to fasten the loose end of a spool of white darning cotton when you begin embroidering. As you work along simply guide the padding to follow the line of the scallop. You will find that you can make them twice as fast as compared with the old way of sewing all the padding in place.



Handy reminders.

If you want to sew a piece of lace on a round doily, first roll the lace up, tie in the middle with a string; dip the side that is to be sewed on the doily in hot water, being careful not to let it get wet beyond the string. Unroll and hang out to dry, sew on and then press. You will find that the one side has shrunk and will follow the curved line of the doily without puckering.

POTATO CORNMEAL CRISPS.

One-half cup of mashed potatoes; sift together and add one-half cup cornmeal and one teaspoon salt. Chop in one tablespoon fat, work into a dough, adding more cornmeal if necessary. Roll out very thin, cut in oblong straw shapes and bake in a quick oven until brown. Serve either warm or cold. Very delicious and crisp.

TO MEND A LEAKY PAN.

To mend a small hole in a leaky sauce pan, take a little piece of egg shell from a freshly broken egg and stick the side that is coated with albumen inside the pan and over the hole. Hold down firmly with the bowl of a spoon or a pad of cloth, place over the fire a moment, just long enough to cook the albumen that makes the shell stick.

Although a sauce pan that is mended in this way will not hold permanently it will last for weeks and can be easily renewed if the pan is old and not worth the expense of having it soldered by the repair man.

COVERING SPOTS.

Spots that cannot be removed can often be covered so do not feel too badly about that lovely waist or dress that "is simply ruined."

A beautiful silk waist had several unsightly spots in front that could not be removed and were the despair of the owner until she hit upon the idea of embroidering over them. She made several embroidered motifs in delicate colors and when completed not a spot was to be seen, and the waist was prettier than before and the joy of its proud possessor.

A silk dress that was not at all worn had an ugly spot on the front width of the skirt. Since it could not be removed it had to be covered, and this was done by adding a panel in soft Dresden coloring (a left over from another dress) that harmonized beautifully and enhanced the appearance of the gown. A deep fringe was added to the panel which was loose and came nearly to the hem of the skirt.

There are numerous ways of covering such spots, depending, of course, on where they are located. Lace medallions, braiding, band trimming, perhaps a cleverly cut pocket or two, and many other similar ideas will occur to the clever woman.

TO CLEAN SPOTS.

Mud spots on clothes can be easily removed by rubbing them with a piece of raw potato.

Keep benzine or gasoline in a bottle, add one tablespoon of talcum powder or cornstarch to a pint of liquid. When you need to clean your white gloves or shoes, shake thoroughly until the mixture looks milky and use. The addition of the powder makes a softer, whiter finish to the article when cleaned.

This solution is only for white articles and should NEVER be used in a room where there is a fire. The safest place is out of doors in the shade.

AMERICAN CHOP SUEY.

Fry one-half pound hamburger and one chopped onion until a golden brown. Add one-half cup cooked rice, three medium sized potatoes which have been diced, one and one-half cups tomato pulp, six olives and a dozen raisins. The last two ingredients may be omitted if the flavor is disliked. Season with salt, pepper and a teaspoon of chili powder; simmer forty-five minutes and serve.

MACRONI? SPAGHETTI? HAVE SOME?

"Macaroni and cheese; spaghetti and tomato sauce; how tired I am of those combinations," sighed a housekeeper.

She did not know, and perhaps many other housekeepers do not know that there are many other delectable ways to cook these excellent foods which are so nutritious and rich in food value. Try some of the recipes given below the next time you feel yourself growing tired of the familiar combinations. Either macaroni or spaghetti may be used in any of these dishes.

MACARONI MEAT LOAF.

Cook one cup macaroni in salted boiling water. While this is cooking fry one-half pound hamburger or any chopped left over meat of equal amount, to a golden brown, adding a chopped onion, salt and pepper.

When the macaroni is cooked put half of it in a casserole, over this put half of the meat, then the rest of the macaroni and the rest of the meat. Pour over this one-half a cup of hot water. On top put a layer of bread crumbs and bake thirty minutes. Serve hot.

SCALLOPED MACARONI AND PEANUTS.

Cook one cup macaroni; put half of it in a flat baking dish; over this put a layer of chopped peanuts; add the rest of the macaroni, another layer of peanuts and over this pour a cup of milk in which an egg has been beaten. Sprinkle a few bread crumbs on top and bake thirty minutes. This dish is a good meat substitute as the peanuts are rich in food value.

CREAMED SPAGHETTI.

Cook one cup of spaghetti. Make a cream sauce out of one cup of milk thickened with one tablespoon of flour rubbed into one tablespoon of melted butter substitute. Season and pour over the spaghetti and serve.

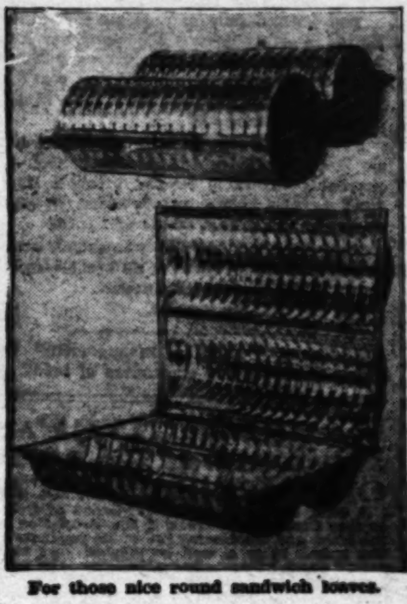
MACARONI SALAD.

Something new and delicious. Cook one cup of macaroni. When done pour off the water and plunge the pan in cold water. Let stand until the macaroni is cold. In this way the macaroni will be firm instead of flabby.

Chop two bell peppers, one-fourth a cup of celery and one small onion. Add this to the macaroni, tossing together lightly with a fork. Season and serve with a mayonnaise dressing.

INEXPENSIVE NAPKIN RINGS.

Can be made out of an ordinary mailing tube. Cut as many as needed and cover.



For those nice round sandwich loaves.

Your scrap bag will furnish you any number of odds and ends that will be suitable for this purpose, such as cretonne, Dresden ribbon, bits of linen, etc. Linen with the monogram of each member of the house embroidered on would be very dainty. These covers can be tacked on with a few stitches and in a moment ripped off when necessary to launder.

By the way a gift of these napkin rings would be a dainty offering to a bride.

Whenever I used the food chopper I noticed a mar on the edge of my kitchen table where the clamp rested. Not wishing to spoil the looks of my table or to mar the sink board, I found that an ordinary quilted pot holder slipped over the edge of the table just before clamping on the food chopper prevented any mar or nick whatsoever.

Tinware can be made practically rustproof by this method. Grease thoroughly before using; put in the oven and bake for an hour; when cool wash, and the pan is ready for use.

THE REDISTRIBUTION OF AN EMPIRE.

FRANK G. CARPENTER.

WASHINGTON (D. C.)—Germany's island empire of the Pacific is to be laid on the table of the peace conference at Paris, and its future ownership and administration determined. Australia has already announced that she expects to have a say as to the status of German New Guinea, the Solomon Islands and the Bismarck archipelago.

The Japanese, who have conquered the islands to the north, expect to be considered in the disposition of the Marshalls and the Carolines, and the United States will want to know what is to be done with the Ladrones, so closely associated with Guam, and German Samoa, which is just over the way from our port of Pago-Pago and the American territories there.

The greater part of this empire is German New Guinea, the Bismarck archipelago and the other islands of that neighborhood. I learned something of the Kaiser's plans concerning them during a trip I made to Australia and the South Seas not long ago. I then stopped in Torres Strait, south of New Guinea, and skirted some of the islands to the eastward.

I traveled with German officials and merchants and the information which the Australian government had was thrown open to me. Later, I crossed from Australia to New Zealand, and steamed northward to Apia, the capital of German Samoa, where I saw something of the natives and their administration under the Kaiser.

New Guinea Belongs to Three Nations.

GERMAN NEW GUINEA is known as Kaiser - Wilhelmsland, having been named after William Hohenzollern, retired. The island, which is larger than any other in the world excepting Greenland, belongs to the British, the Dutch and the Germans. Its western half is owned by Holland and the southeastern fourth by Great Britain. The remainder is the property of Germany and has the title of Kaiser-Wilhelmsland. It is about twice as large as the State of Indiana and comprises the best part of the country. It has more than 500,000 natives, which is over twice as many as are to be found in the territories of the Dutch or the British.

The country of Kaiser-Wilhelmsland is wild and rugged. It is well watered and covered with such dense vegetation that the roads have to be cleared with hatchets. A day's march through the wilderness is often little more than one mile. The climate is hot and moist and the rainfall is heavy. The island has a great deal of fine timber, and among the trees are the famed banyans, which form a labyrinth with roots running up to and upholding the limbs. Much of the country is still unexplored, although the Germans have had their scientific parties going over it and making surveys of one kind or another.

There are a number of cocoanut plantations near the coast, and little settlements have been built at the principal harbors. In 1914 the European population was only 300 Germans, and the amount of land cultivated was less than 17,000 acres. Of this, 14,000 acres were in cocoanut palms, and the balance in rubber and cocoa.

A Rich Land Yet to be Developed.

THE land is said to be rich in mineral wealth, but the mines have not been worked on account of the difficulty of getting machinery into the wilds. Native labor is used for the plantations, and the planters rule after the usual method of the Germans. Some of the land is irrigated by the natives who use tubes of bamboo to carry the water from one level to another. Many of the tribes carry on farming. They are growing yams, sweet potatoes and bananas, and, of late, Indian corn.

The German colonists have been experimenting with cotton and tobacco. They have planted several plantations about Astrolabe Bay, one of which has produced an average of about a bale to the acre. I am told that the planters have great trouble getting labor. They say that the native races are dying out and that some means of legislation will have to be introduced to regenerate them.

The natives here, and on the islands of the Bismarck Archipelago adjoining, are wild to an extreme. Some of the tribes go naked, save for breech cloths of bark for the men and short petticoats of woven grass for the women. Along the extreme northern coast the natives are entirely nude, with the exception of a shell necklace and feathers of the bird of paradise which they stick in their hair. Some tribes wear only stripes of white, red, yellow and black paint, and others decorate themselves with scars made by burning, as the Japanese burn themselves with the moxa.

The different tribes have different sorts of dwellings. In some parts of Kaiser-Wilhelmsland they have what might be called apartment-houses, built upon poles. These are of enormous size. The framework is of poles, with mats of woven leaves or grass fastened to them. The mats are so arranged that they may be raised or lowered to keep out the mosquitoes. Other tribes build their houses in trees in order to defend themselves the more easily in times of danger.

The natives of New Guinea like to fight as well as the Huns. I met a missionary who had spent his life in the island. He told me of a system of vendetta among certain tribes which goes on for ages. He said that cannibalism exists in some localities, and that it is common in the Bismarck Archipelago. He spoke of the natives as natural beer drinkers and as using a beer made by chewing the root of the kava plant and fermenting the spittle-soaked mixture. Laid away, it soon becomes intoxicating and is then used in ceremonial feasts. In British New Guinea, over the way, it is against the law to sell intoxicating liquors.

I have before me a report of one of our consuls describing the queer customs of the Bismarck Archipelago. This man says the inhabitants are principally Papuans. The men are frequently over six feet in height; they are of a dark brown complexion, have thick, black curly hair, large flat noses and symmetrical bodies.

Where the Girls Are Shut up in Cages.

IN THE Island of New Britain, which the Germans know as Neu Pommern, the natives have a custom of confining the girls in cages from the ages of 6 or 8 years until they are married. The cages are made of the sprouts of the palm tree. They are sometimes built inside the houses. The girls are never allowed to leave the cages except one a day when they are taken out to be washed. The girls are said to thrive under these conditions. They grow as fat as the penned-up geese used for making pate de fois gras. They mature early and are ready for marriage at 11 or 12 years of age. A girl who is not married at 15 or 16 is an old maid.

The Island of Neu Pommern is the principal one of the Bismarck Archipelago. It is 350 miles long and about fifteen miles wide. It is more or less rolling. The natives are among the wildest of the South Seas. Both women and men go naked and cannibalism is said to be common. Most of their eatables are consumed in the raw state, although pork and human meat are cooked. The people live in small huts of a beehive shape, surrounded by bamboo fences, and the young unmarried men have clubhouses, where they live together. The girls are confined in the cages.

A Land Which has Been Exploited by Germany.

BOTH New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelago have been exploited by the Germans. They have been increasing their cocoanut plantations and the export of cocoa and dried cocoanut meat has now reached a value of $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 a year. In 1912 phosphates to the amount of more than $1,000,000 were exported, and skins of the bird of paradise valued at more than $100,000 were sent to Germany. The imports then amounted to more than $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, all from Germany, and the trade was increasing.

As soon as the war broke out, the Australian navy sent its vessels northward to capture New Guinea. They landed men in Neu Pommern and put the wireless station there out of commission. They took the town Herbertshohe, notwithstanding the Germans had a network of mines along the shore and had built trenches from which they fought the Australians.

The Germans had also native soldiers hidden in the jungle, and these fired on the invading party. Within less than a week, however, the various settlements were captured, and the Australians took possession of New Guinea and the other islands about. It looks now as though they had come to stay. They have begun to reorganize the administration, and are building roads throughout the territory. They have taken over the little fleet that belonged to Germany, and have their officials moving about from island to island, keeping order.

I understand that trade is already increasing and that the government revenues are rising. At the time that the Australians came in, the German authorities made a wholesale distribution of the public moneys. They destroyed much of the property and attempted to wreck the colony. Notwithstanding the change in ownership the German settlers have concluded to stay. They are buying and selling and increasing their holdings.

An Enterprising American Girl Did This.

THE development of the Bismarck Archipelago and German New Guinea was largely due to an American girl. This was Emma E. Coe, the daughter of Jonas M. Coe, a former American Consul to the Samoan Islands. Coe married a Samoan princess and Emma was the result of the marriage. She was born in Samoa and married an Englishman, named Forsythe. After her husband died she resided for a time in San Francisco, and then went back to Samoa, where she helped her father by acting as his interpreter, and amanuensis. She had some money and became interested in the trade and commerce of the South Sea Islands.

Along about 1879 she bought of the natives, in the Bismarck Archipelago, large tracts of land, on what is now known as the Island of Neu Pommern, and established a trading house there. She had many plantations, one of which included about 15,000 acres. Her holdings, which were extended to Kaiser-Wilhelmsland, were soon increased to 150,000 acres, and within a short time she had almost monopolized the trade of the islands.

She grew rich. She employed thousands of natives and knew how to handle them. They loved her and she denounced the cruelty of the Germans toward them. Mrs. Forsythe got the title of Queen Emma, and was known as such when she again married, taking this time a young German officer, named Kolbe. She went to Europe with him and became popular at the court of Berlin. She died in 1917 in Monte Carlo.

Returning to the German colonies in Samoa, they consist of a group of islands just west of those that belong to the United States. The area of the protectorate is a little less than the size of Rhode Island, and its population is about 40,000. In 1914 it had about 600 whites and 2000 Chinese. Of the whites, 373 were Germans, consisting chiefly of officials and planters.

A Little Allied Fleet Made a Big Victory.

WHEN war was declared a New Zealand expedition started out for Samoa. They were soon joined by three British cruisers, and the little fleet called first at New Caledonia, belonging to the French. There it was joined by a French fleet and two Australian ships, and all moved on in force toward Apia, the capital of the Island of Upolo, the chief German stronghold of that part of the world. The Germans were looking for their own fleet, and were surprised when they saw this squadron come in. They surrendered without fighting, and a moment later the German flag was torn down and the Union Jack went up in its place. Since then the islands have been managed by the New Zealanders, and New Zealand will surely insist that they be given over to her as one of the terms of peace.

The Samoan Islands formerly belonged to Great Britain, and when they were given to Germany, New Zealand protested. This was along about 1900, when we got possession of Tutuila and the other islands adjoining. At that time Dr. Solf was administrator of the German interests in Samoa, and he may be depended upon to protest against any surrender of the isidans. At the time the islands were given up, Richard Seddon, then premier of New Zealand, denounced the action, saying that the surrender of Samoa had "disheartened the natives, disappointed the peoples of Australasia, and lowered the prestige of Great Britain in that part of the world."

I visited Apia, the capital of German Samoa, shortly after the country was taken over by the Kaiser. The Germans had been there as merchants and planters for years preceding their actual ownership, and the trade was practically controlled by a firm of Hamburg known as the D. H. & P. G. Its real title was the Deutsche Handels-und-Plantagens-Gesellschaft der Sued See Inseln zu Hamburg Hauptagentur in Apia. This firm was an agent of the German government, and its business was to stir up trouble and finally get the islands for Germany. For years the trade had been divided between the Germans and Yankees, and the Germans had encouraged the revolt of 1887 in which King Malietoa, who had been recognized by Germany, Great Britain and the United States, was opposed by Tamasese, who claimed the throne.

America has Always Helped the Down-trodden.

DURING the revolution King Malietoa was captured by the Germans and taken to the Marshall Islands in a German man-of war. The United States protested and sent Capt. Leary and the American gunboat Adams to Apia. As he came into the harbor, the German war vessel Auler saluted the Adams, but the Adams did not return the salute. To this the German captain objected and Capt. Leary replied that the United States did not salute vessels which were engaged in the slave-carrying trade. Later, he denounced the Germans for their violations of international law, and for a time it looked as though we might have war with Germany on account of this trouble.

During my stay in Apia, the Germans were offensive and dictatorial to foreigners. They had possession of the trade, and most of the plantations, including that of Robert Louis Stevenson, who had set out some thousands of cacao trees from which he expected to make his fortune. I took a carriage and rode up the mountains to the Stevenson home. I found it in the hands of a German, who had bought it for about half the amount that Stevenson had spent upon it. He was rebuilding the house and destroying all vestiges of the author. He had a sign over the entrance gate printed in a half dozen different languages beginning "Eingang verboten," and going on to say in English, French and Samoan that strangers were prohibited from coming inside the gate. I climbed up to Robert Louis Stevenson's tomb and found it overgrown with weeds.

American Samoa is close to German Samoa. We have three good-sized islands and the best harbor in the neighborhood, so that, at the Peace Conference, Australia and New Zealand can hardly object to our administering the whole group, if we desire to do so. So far, our methods have been civilising and uplifting, in contrast with those of the Germans. We have a naval station and wireless station there, and the naval commandant is the Governor and practically supreme, although he works through the natives.

We Have Made Our Possessions Almost a Republic.

WE HAVE organized our islands into three political divisions, each of which has a native Governor and under him; native chiefs, who, in turn, have village chiefs under them. This makes the country, practically, a republic. We have established village courts with a supreme court of appeal. We are organizing schools, and doing all that we can to better the condition of the people. At the present time, we have only about one-third as many natives as the islands belonging to the Germans, but our natives are by far the more prosperous and happy.

The New Zealand government is now administering the affairs of German Samoa, and the Australians have taken charge of the Marshall Islands, which are away off to the westward, not a great distance from the German possessions in New Guinea. The Marshalls, as well as the Carolines and Ladrones, farther west, were captured by the Japanese at the beginning of the war. They administered the islands for a time, but about a year ago they handed part of them over to the Australian forces. As it medicine, but I had a treatment every day. In about three months my eye straightened back and so did my mouth, but I never got very strong.

"A year ago my stomach commenced again throwing up bile. Also my stomach was burning up with acid and this time my mouth slightly drew over. So I went to another osteopathic doctor. He said he was not going to make the mistake that all of the other doctors had made in my case. So they pumped the stomach and had the contents analyzed and then he told me I had ulcerated stomach and I must have an operation right away, or I would soon die of malnutrition. So of course he sent me to a hospital, and he and another osteopath operated on my stomach. He said they found the appendix badly inflamed, so they removed it. He said if I would have another operation in six months I would be a well woman—that I could eat anything and would never have any more trouble—but I have never got so that I could eat as he said, and for the past six months there has never been a day that I have not thrown up bile.

"I also have trouble with my left ear and with my throat. There is a ringing in the ear and sometimes pain. I went to a throat and ear specialist. He said my tonsils are in a bad condition and should be removed. He says they affect my ear. Another operation in sight. But I am not going to have it done."

This woman passed from the extreme of medical butchery to the other exertme of Christian Science.

Even the osteopaths drugged and operated.

Is it not passing strange that none of these learned medical men recognized the symptoms as due to an acid condition of the blood and that due to acid forming foods?

Blind leaders of the blind! Poor humanity!

Wet Packs.

THE most powerful, simple and safe method of alleviating pain and drawing impurities to the surface is water—just plain water—used as a compress or pack.

In Europe, for fifty years, the water cure has been in general use. Hydrotherapy is here altogether too much neglected. It is too simple for the "regulars." Yet it is not so simple as you think, for the use of water is a science. With water, hot or cold, used in various ways, in sprays, and packs, and sitz baths at various temperatures, the skilled hydrotherapist can play on the human body as a musician on an organ.

While hydrotherapy is a science, all should understand the simpler forms of water treatment.

When you have a sore throat, wrap around it at night a wet linen cloth, over which put a covering of a warm dry cloth, and wash off with cold water in the morning. Do the same for the chest, when there is pain there, being careful that all of the wet cloth is covered up. Then in the morning sponge off with cold water.

The whole pack is more heroic. It must be carefully given. It is exceedingly effective. After you have taken a Turkish bath, a wet pack for a couple of hours will bring out odors and dirt from your body that will convince you that it is doing its work.

The T bandage is another effective way of utilizing the great power of water.

Where there is much pain, you may use a hot compress, later followed by a cold one. This relieves congestion, the cause of pain.

Gall Stones.

REV. DR. J. WILBUR CHAPMAN, noted as an evangelist, died in New York on Christmas Day, a few days after he had been operated on for gall stones. This was the third operation for gall stones to which he had submitted during the past two years.

This shows the folly of believing that a disease may be cured by cutting out the symptoms, or the offending organ.

Gall stones, like cancer and several other diseases, are due to the ingestion of more proteid food than the system can assimilate.

After an operation, if the patient continues the same diet the trouble will, of course, return, until the patient dies.

How is it that "medical science" cannot or will not recognize this simple fact?

A Brave Man.

ON THE evening of Christmas Day, dying alone under a heavy freight elevator, which had caught and crushed him, Albert Durand, 60, janitor for a department store in Portland, used his last agonized strength to pen this farewell Christmas message to loved ones:

"After a merry Christmas Day, that brought with it the promise of world peace on earth and good will to men everlasting, I am dying alone and crushed. Let it not dampen the joy we all felt together this day."

This was the note found scribbled in a dying hand with the body. It is thought Durand became entangled in the machinery while hauling rubbish into the basement.

A brave man. One finds courage outside of the trenches.

Health Insurance.

NOTWITHSTANDING the decisive defeat by a vote of three to one, of the "made-in-Germany health insurance plan," the political doctors are still seeking to bring the project before the California Legislature.

As I have said, this so-called health insurance would compel every one to pay for the services of a member of the guessing, drugging, serum injecting and carving medical school, whether the person believes in the practices of that school or not. Then, you may be sure that he would not even be a first class practitioner, for they could not be hired at the price paid, although the aggregate cost of the State of California would be about $40,000,000 a year.

This is like paying for one church when you are a dissenter, an imposition that has been the cause of bloody wars in Europe.

And what kind of "health insurance" would you get? Serums and gauze masks?

The best health insurance is to read the Care of the Body and some good books on health.

Any legislator who should insult the people by voting for such a measure will have an unhappy hour after he gets home.

Health insurance has been decisively rejected in five States, but the political doctors still keep at it.

Sugar.

ALL restrictions on the use of sugar are now removed. So much the worse for the American people.

The normal consumption in the United States is eighty pounds per capita per year, as compared with twenty-three pounds in Southern Europe. Also, it happens that dyspepsia is more common here than in any other country.

According to reports from my consultants, no one dietetic reform produces such remarkably favorable results within a short time as the entire abandonment of cane sugar, in every way, shape and form.

This does not include wholesome grape sugar, as found in fruits of all kinds—except dates, which contain cane sugar.

Try it for three months.

We need "scientific management" between producer and consumers of foods.

RADIO-ACTIVE PAD RESTORES HEALTH OR MONEY BACK

A Safe, Sane and Scientific Method of Overcoming Disease by increasing the circulation of the blood and eliminating the waste products of the body. It is a well established fact that nearly every known ailment is caused by poor circulation (sluggishness.) The Radio-Active Solar Pad imparts energy, restores vitality and overcomes disease by increasing metabolism and causing a healthy circulation of the blood. Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout, Neuralgia, Nervous Prostration, High Blood Pressure, and diseases of the Stomach, Heart, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys and other ailments quickly and permanently relieved. Many complicated and chronic cases that have failed to yield to other forms of treatment, have been quickly and permanently benefited by the use of the Radio-Active Solar Pad. To prove the remarkable restorative and vitalizing effects of this wonderful appliance, we will send it on ten days' trial with an absolute "money back" guarantee if it fails to give entire satisfaction, you to be the sole judge of its merits. KNOW-DOC
INFLAMMATION TABLETS
Greatest Healing Treatment

In internal irritation and ulceration, Inflammation Tablets are practically the only recognized treatment. They are indicated in all stomach, kidney, liver and intestinal disorders. Inflammation of the mucous linings causes indigestion, gastritis, even appendicitis. There is not one time in a hundred that any of these troubles are due to other causes. Don't delay. Inflammation Tablets will relieve the worst of them. They restore the organs to an active and healthful condition and there is not a single ill effect in any way associated with their use, their great specific value lying in their power to relieve inflamed or diseased tissue. Put out by Knowlton Laboratories, Coast Distributors, Pasadena, Cal.

The most careful liver needs help at times. Keep the linings healed with Inflammation Tablets.

WHY ARE THERE HIGHWAYWOMEN?

BY WALTER VOGDES.

THE night is dark and a business man, on his way home after the day's work, passes along a lonely street. Suddenly two figures appear before him. "Throw up your hands!" says a feminine voice in deadly earnest. And the man feels the cold steel of an automatic against his side.

He obeys. While the first figure threatens him with the gun, the second goes through his pockets and removes his money and watch. Then the women with a final warning not to call for help, leave their victim, jump into an automobile that has been waiting in the shadows near by, and move off swiftly.

This is not a passage from a blood-and-thunder novel, it is not a description of a hold-up by feminine and legendary bandits in Paris. It is a realistic description of a happening in the decidedly western city of Los Angeles.

If it had happened only once recently there might be little occasion for comment. But hold-ups by feminine bandits have been occurring with alarming frequency in western cities lately: police reports give the names of numerous victims, mostly men, who have given up their valuables to highwaywomen. And the only clews the ladies leave are memories of feminine voices and sometimes a faint odor of perfume.

Why Have the Ladies Taken to Banditry so Lately?

WHAT'S the cause of it all? The psychologists who make a business of explaining such things say it is the unrest which has existed among women during the past few years. Sometimes the unrest shows itself in constructive ways. And sometimes in the ways here set down.

The average person, who recalls the bad man of the Old West, is tempted to ask whether the highwaywoman of today is trying to revive the picturesque (but sometimes uncomfortable) brigandage of bygone days. For not a week passes without its hold-up by women of the West. Los Angeles alone has had five or six recently.

The dramatic affair of Charles Forbes and Marie Celano, bandits who were killed in a gun duel near Arcadia, Cal., is still vivid in the public mind. There we find the Celano girl, who was only 18, fighting to the last by her companion's side, after both had eluded the police of the West for months and taken part in many spectacular hold-ups. A few days after Marie Celano's death Eva Lewis, another 18-year-old girl, and a member of the famous Lewis gang, was sentenced to a prison term in Colorado, for taking part in gun battles and highway robbery.

On September 26 G. H. Farlin, a storekeeper of Los Angeles, was robbed of $175 by two women. On another night not long ago two women, who are described as being fashionably dressed, robbed a man named Lewis Valdora. And recent newspaper accounts tell of a woman, reputed to be wealthy, who had a hand in robbing a bank in the Westlake district of Los Angeles. While Susie Hartman, another 18-year-old girl, was sentenced just the other day for burglary. Newspapers of other western cities have carried articles on the doings of a mysterious and dexterous young woman who earned for herself the sobriquet of "the blonde burglar," and who is still at large.

It is interesting to find how closely the findings of Lombroso and other famous criminologists fit in with descriptions of the modern highwaywomen of the West. They are often decidedly masculine, according to the criminologists, and this holds good of the Lewis girl, who is described as having rather a masculine look, a masculine voice, and considerable physical strength. It holds good of Susie Hartman, who has a penchant for men's clothes. When Susie was first arrested two years ago she was dressed in the attire of a man, with a check cap and gorgeous silk shirt. She was put on probation, and as punishment her male attire was taken from her. But that stringent and repressive measure proved useless. She was said to be the leader of a gang of boy bandits at one period before her capture and that aspect of her case is especially interesting in view of the many famous women bandits of history who have done likewise.

Women not Great Respecters of Other People's Things.

ACCORDING to Lombroso regard for other people's property is not so strongly developed in women as in men. This frequently accounts for the prevalence of shoplifting among women, a form of brigandage. Many shoplifters are women of wealth and excellent social position, as any store detective will tell you. Some readers will remember a remark of Mary Turner, the store girl heroine of Bayard Veiller's play, "Within the Law." Said Mary, "If a rich woman steals in a store she's a kleptomaniac, if a poor girl steals she's a thief." One authority says that of every hundred woman for ninety-nine rich or well-to-do. His deduction is that women who have luxury are less able to resist it—they want things, so they take them.

Lombroso's statistics show that the brains of women brigands often weigh more than those of normal women. They are generally precocious; and the roundness and beauty of their faces often hides the brutality, which, however, shows itself when they grow older. They are more deliberate than men; they lay their plans with more cunning. But on the other hand he finds that their tendency to gossip is often their undoing.

The case of Charles Forbes and Marie Celano, already mentioned, will no doubt become historical. Reportorial attempts to create sob interest in them could not gloss the grim facts; the quantity of drugs found in their homes was far more characteristic and explanatory than the sentimental Victrola records found. Yet the Celano girl is described by her family as being a home-loving girl. And much stress was laid on her donations to the Red Cross. It is interesting to note that she and Forbes had enough respect for the conventions to marry, and the minister who performed the ceremony thought them commonplace young people.

The fact that the Celano girl could be both cruel and sentimental is by no means unusual. The two emotions often run parallel with each other, and are often intermingled. Anyone who has visited prisons knows that habitual criminals are the first to weep at a sentimental song. One famous Italian highwaywoman, a sweetheart of Cerrato, the brigand, wrote verses and dedicated them to her lover. Statistics show that women thieves are often religious, and when they are incarcerated they write sentiments that are often beautiful on the walls of their cells, sentiments in marked contrast to the things men thieves write on their cell walls.

Some Women Who Have Marked up History.

ONE of the first women brigands of history was Messalina, who caused the death of numerous rich citizens of Rome so that she could inherit their villas and wealth. Here again is an apparently paradoxical side to the female offender; investigators find her more cruel than the man brigand. Her joy in wanton destruction is greater; her revenge diabolical.

The Old Woman of Palermo, a famous woman thief, poisoned people by pouring a concoction on their heads so she could rob them. She conceived the idea when she saw a liquid poured on a child's head to remove insects.

Perino of Oneglia used to rob houses by climbing trees, jumping from the tree tops to the roofs of near-by dwellings and effecting an entrance. She escaped in the same way and evaded detection for years.

Only a woman of tremendous athletic prowess could do that. French women thieves, pals of the Apaches, are said to have practiced fencing constantly to keep in condition for encounters with pedestrians. The Bonhour sisters wore masculine garments and sometimes killed their victims with axes. A woman called Fernande K. by the Paris police, organized a gang of highwaywomen in Paris and ruled them like a general. She was a German. Zelia, a French woman thief, led a gang in Paris and later came to this country to pursue her work in the West. She is said to have been beautiful and intelligent, and she spoke three languages.

Lombroso tells of a Mrs. Lyons, an American, who was of superior intelligence. She followed a career of robbery in this country and then went to Europe to continue the same system out of sheer love for it. When arrested by the Paris police she obtained her liberty by the intercession of British and American ambassadors.

In England in the old days the fate of the robber who was captured was death, and because of that the courage of Margaret Catchpole, a servant maid, who stole a horse and took to the road to join her lover is all the more unusual. This was in 1797, and Margaret set out for London dressed as a boy. She was captured and condemned to death, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Her lover, a smuggler, assisted her in an attempt to escape, and he was killed just when the scheme seemed about to succeed. Then Margaret was deported, and she married and lived quietly until her death years later.

A Romantic Figure in the Annals of Crime.

PERHAPS the most romantic figure among highwaywomen was Bell Star, the American girl who led a gang of outlaws in Texas. She is described as intelligent and good looking, though of a decidedly masculine appearance. She was the daughter of a guerilla chief who fought for the South during the Civil War. She grew up in the midst of fighting and became an expert with the revolver, carbine and lasso at the age of 10. Once at a horse race she appeared as a jockey and rode two horses, winning both races. In one race she wore boy's clothes, in the next she changed quickly to a woman's attire.

At the age of 18 she became the head of a gang of outlaws. Her great personal charm helped her to dominate the men. Her lovers were chosen from among the men, but at any sign of cowardice she would discard the chosen one. Bell Star organized attacks on cities and she led attacks on government troops. She was careless of her personal safety, and after one attack on a town entered it alone and in male attire.

One night she slept at a hotel where a judge of the district was staying. She heard him boast that he meant to arrest her and she promptly lashed his face, mounted her horse and rode off. She lived to write her memoirs, but died at the head of her gang while attacking United States troops.

La Maupin was probably the only woman brigand who has been immortalized by a great novelist, but the "Mademoiselle de Maupin" of Theophile Gautier portrays her as a heroine of charm and beauty. That Gautier's heroine was idealized considerably is the opinion of most painstaking historians.

La Maupin was a singer at the opera in Paris at the end of the seventeenth century. She had married a man named Maupin while only a girl, and after living with him a few months she ran away with a fencing master named Serane. The latter taught her the art of the foils, and La Maupin arrayed herself in man's clothes and traveled through France with her companion. They made their living giving fencing lessons and by acting with strolling theatrical companies. La Maupin always played the male roles.

But the life proved too tame, and La Maupin, in her male clothes, gained the affections of a rich daughter of a Marseilles merchant. She persuaded the girl to elope with her, and when they were pursued they took refuge in a convent.

Once in they found it exceedingly difficult to get out, but La Maupin overcame the difficulty when one of the nuns died, by substituting the living body of the girl for the nun's body. In this way the girl was carried out, and then La Maupin set the buildings afire, and escaped during the excitement.

The two went to a near-by village and remained in hiding, although the girl was thoroughly disillusioned by this time and only too anxious to escape. But La Maupin kept her prisoner, and when an attempt was made to arrest the two, La Maupin killed one man with her sword and wounded two others. Then the girl escaped and La Maupin was captured and condemned to be burned alive.

In the face of this terrible impending punishment La Maupin never lost her nerve, and by intrigue she was able to set the law aside and before long she was back in Paris as an opera singer. Things went smoothly for awhile, then her love of excitement proved her undoing. She went to a ball as a man, insulted a woman, was challenged by three men, and promptly ran them through. Then she returned to the ball.

This escapade was too much even for pleasure-loving, easy-going Paris. It was willing to overlook her early indiscretions, her propensity for taking things that did not belong to her, but there was a limit. So she left the country and lived under the protection of King Albert of Bavaria. Later she returned to Paris and tried to take up her work as an opera singer once more. But she had lost her popularity and her beauty, though she was only 30, and she left the stage and returned to her husband, Maupin. She was rich, so he overlooked her past.

One of her historians says this about her: "The church, too, accepted her—and her riches—within its sheltering portals. By the aid of a tolerant priest she got absolution, and two years after her retirement from the opera she died in a convent in all the odor of sanctity."

New Use For Corn Cobs.

Experiments conducted in the Carbohydrate Laboratories of the Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., show that corn cobs contain 30 per cent. of adhesive gum that can be extracted profitably with hot water. By treating the residue, after the gum has been removed, with acids 37 per cent. of glucose, 3 per cent. of acetic acid, and 5 per cent. crystaline xylose was obtained.

The yearly crop of corn in the United States is from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels and amounts to 75 per cent. of the world's production.

Japan has prohibited the manufacture and sale of food and beverages containing wood alcohol and the sale of any [illegible] of which it forms a part, unless so stated on the label.

A cork extractor patented in England comprises an awl-like stem with a loose crossbar, which is passed through a cork with the stem, turning against the cork as it is withdrawn

McCoy, M.D., Washington, D. C., V. B. Murray, M.D., Assistant Surgeon United States Public Health Service, and A. L. Teeter, intern, Stanford University Hospital, San Francisco:

"The necessity for accurate, controlled observations on preparations that are used as prophylactic agents for influenza is our reason for presenting the subjoined data.

"The bacterial vaccine used in the present investigation was kindly furnished by Dr. F. O. Tonney, chief of the laboratory of the Chicago Health Department. While we are not intimately acquainted with the process of the preparation of the vaccine, we believe that it is an agent that should exhibit the immunizing properties, if any exist, of the micro-organisms used in its preparation.

"The persons vaccinated were patients at a State institution for the insane. Only patients of 41 years of age or under were vaccinated, as it was anticipated that if influenza appeared in the institution the great majority of cases would be in persons in this age group, and furthermore there was not sufficient vaccine at hand to provide material for a larger number of persons.

"In each ward of the hospital a list was made of all patients aged 41 or under, and each alternate patient was vaccinated, the remainder being considered as controls. Each group numbered 390. The vaccination was completed November 15 and fortunately the institution remained free from influenza until November 26, when cases began to appear, although at this time the epidemic had almost disappeared from the community at large. The cases were clinically like those that have been observed elsewhere, and there was the usual percentage of severe cases and of cases with serious pulmonary complications, some terminating fatally.

"The accompanying tabulation shows the results in the two groups up to December 9, 1918.

"Incidence of influenza and pneumonia in the vaccinated and the controls.

	Vaccinated.	Not Vaccinated.
Persons in group..........	390	390
No. developing influenza....	119	103
No. developing pneumonia..	23	17
Deaths	10	7

"It appears clear from the evidence afforded by these observations that no protection was afforded by the vaccine."

Yet the uses of vaccines against influenza has been insisted on by hundreds of "health" authorities, and in some cases has even been made compulsory.

When shall we have legislation against the experimental injection into the body of dangerous foreign matter?

Surely, even the insane have some rights that physicians are bound to respect.

Together in Death.

IN THE East, recently, an old couple who had been married sixty-five years died on their anniversary, within an hour of each other.

Nowadays, unfortunately, cases are rare where married people live together for sixty-five years. It is, however, not uncommon for those who have lived many years in wedlock to die within a short time of each other. They gradually become alike, in mind and in body, and even in appearance.

This, however, only happens when there is true affinity—mental and physical affinity. This is a subject that is shamefully neglected. We pay great attention to the mating of domestic animals, but none whatever to the mating of human beings. Hence unhappy marriages and frequent divorces.

In New Zealand.

JUDGING from a copy I received of the Wellington (New Zealand) Evening Post of November 16, the influenza epidemic appears to have been much worse there than here, although it is now summer in the Antipodes. In one district 25 per cent. of the population was reported affected.

The treatment there consisted of inhalations—with whisky on the side. "Inhalation chambers" were established everywhere. Inhalations will, of course not cure, but they give temporary relief, and are less dangerous than serums.

Regarding serums for influenza, the Minister for Public Health of New Zealand acknowledged receipt from the government bacteriologist of a statement "that it is impossible to make an efficient serum for that purpose."

Yet, enterprising manufacturers anxious to meet the demand did the "impossible" in America. Medicine has not yet become so commercialized in the British Empire as it is in the United States.

The Minister for Public Health announced that all hospital boards throughout the Dominion had been advised that alcoholic liquor was to be made available for them for use by the people upon medical prescription. They were instructed to purchase, and if necessary, steps would be taken to commandeer supplies, the liquor to be sold at the cost of the article and distribution. Local health boards were to be made the sole bodies for the purpose of this distribution. The Minister stated that before coming to the decision he consulted the highest medical authorities available, and the decision was come to with their full advice, one medical man only dissenting.

Thus we see in every country—and indeed in every city in the United States—different experiments being made by "medical science" so-called. And all this while nature's way is so simple and so sure.

Most of the deaths from influenza and pneumonia have been sacrifices to "medical science." Natural healers have had scarcely any fatalities.

"Nature's Chemistry."

ON A box of a widely advertised brand of baking powder I read: "Nature's Chemistry; the Chief Ingredient Comes from Grapes."

Also, it may be said that the only ingredient of brandy "comes from grapes."

Yet, brandy and baking powder are quite different from grapes.

When products have been so distorted—not in nature's laboratory, but in man's laboratory—it makes comparatively little difference whether the original substance was grapes or glue.

Typhoid and Tuberculosis.

OLLOWING is by Charles E. Page, M.D.:

"One-fourth of all past typhoid patients die finally of tuberculosis. That is why, in application blanks, the question appears: "Have you ever had typhoid fever?" And the mortality from typhoid fever is due to wrong treatment of the primary fever, so readily aborted by right treatment, namely therapeutic fasting and hydrotherapy, as attested by some of the busiest practitioners during the past thirty-odd years, myself included."

Self Denial.

IT IS easy to give up what you do not care for. Many are willing to sacrifice their wife's relatives on the altar of their country. A coffee drinker may be willing to give up beer—or force others to give it up—but if you should propose to take away his favorite dope, he would howl.

So it goes, most reformers are too ready to see the mote in the eyes of others, while ignoring the beam in their own.

The Liberty League.

NOW that "liberty" is a watchword, it is appropriate that we should have a liberty league, to secure to everyone the right to call a physician of his choice, as he calls his priest of the faith he believes in—or dispenses with one altogether. A medical trust is a real menace. Benjamin Rush, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence declared that medical liberty is as essential as religious liberty. Do not forget that.

Following are the demands of the American Liberty League:

"Medical liberty on the same basis and with the same legal guaranties as religious liberty.

"Democracy, freedom and equal rights in medical matters, as against usurpation of power by the few.

"Laymen skilled in sanitation at the head and in control of all public health boards and bureaus.

"A public school system free from doctors, nurses and clinics.

"A positive and aggressive policy in seeking the restoration of natural rights wrected from the citizens by a medical conspiracy.

"A campaign of education to inform the citizen of his rights, and to expose the deceptions and fallacies now systematically fed to the public by various instrumentalities controlled by the Allopathic Medical Association."

Membership in the League is $2 a year, which includes subscription to the "Truth Teller," a live, semi-monthly paper, published at Battle Creek, Mich. The temporary office of the league is in Room 1305, No. 27 East Monroe street, Chicago.

From One Extreme to the Other.

HERE is a sample letter from one of those unfortunate women who are passed around from one form of medical malpractice to another:

"I was a nervous wreck, with nervous prostration, stomach trouble and female troubles, and the doctors gave me a bushel of medicine. They told me I must have a change of scene and change of climate, so in 1900 I came to California.

"Four years ago I became sick with stomach trouble. I threw up bile for days. My right eye drained and the pupil turned toward my nose and it seemed to affect my whole left side, but I never lost the use of any of my limbs. I had a medical doctor, and, of course, he gave me all sorts of medicine. I got a little better and left him and took osteopathic treatments for six months. During this time an eye specialist operated on my eye and straightened it back and prescribed glasses to control the double vision.

"I got along for two years, but never felt very well, so I was induced to try Christian Science. The practitioner told me to eat anything I wanted and to eat all I wanted. She said if I didn't it would show that I doubted God's power to heal me. I was constipated, yet she would not allow me to do anything for it, not even take an enema. So of course I commenced to throw up bile again and the eye drained again and my mouth drew over to one side.

"Then I was taken to an osteopathic hospital. I was there seven weeks. They kept me propped up in bed with ice on my head day and night. They did not give me much

Baldness Conquered

RECIPE MAILED FREE

A veteran business man, who was almost completely bald and had tried numerous tonics, lotions, shampoos, etc., without benefit, came across, while on a journey, an Indians' recipe by which he grew a complete crop of healthy, luxuriant hair that he now possesses.

Others—men and women—have reported remarkable hair growth by the same method. Whoever wishes the recipe may obtain it free by writing to John Hart Brittain, Station F, New York, N. Y.

When Bald

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth

In a vast number of cases, when hair falls out, the roots are not dead, but remain imbedded in the scalp, alive, like seeds or bulbs, needing only fertility. The usual hair tonics, etc., are of no avail in such cases. The Indians' method is purposed to nourish the hair and stimulate the growth.

Wonderful results reported. For men's, women's and children's hair. If you are bald, or losing hair, or have dandruff, you should get the recipe. It is a pleasure to observe the starting of new hair and its steady increase until a prolific growth supersedes thin hair or baldness. Cut out this notice; show to others who want beautiful hair. The recipe is free. This is genuine.

Please Observe

The sick frequently do not improve like they wish. It is often a gain which is not appreciated when the person does not grow worse, particularly in complications of diseases bad weather interferes with the cure.

When a person after years of taking medicine has not good results he should have judgment enough to quit and help himself. As a rule the doctor knows only that which the people tell him. The diagnosis of the case is a great art and very few doctors possess this art.

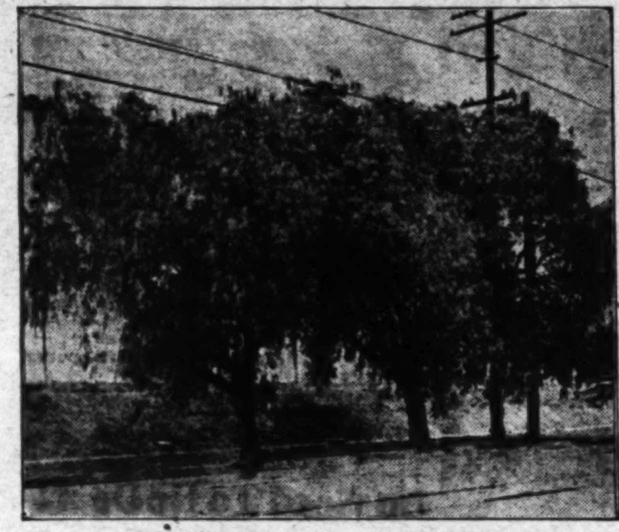
THE UNAPPRECIATED PEPPER TREE

BY CHARLES FRANCIS SAUNDERS.

IN THESE times of forced economies many sources disregarded in palmier days are being drawn upon for such values as they can be forced to yield. Among subjects of usefulness unsuspected by most Californians the ornamental pepper tree of our city streets and country roadsides occupies a not altogether negligible place.

This familiar tree is not native to our State, but was introduced here perhaps a century or so ago from the outside, probably from Mexico, where it has been widely established for over three centuries. But neither is it native to Mexico, which had it in turn from Peru, where it still grows wild in Andean valleys and on mountain slopes. It quickly attracted the attention of the Spanish conquerors of that country, both because of the grace of its foliage and general habit and also because of the numerous uses to which the aboriginal Peruvians put it.



These beautiful trees are always green.

Old Padre Joseph de Acosta, a Spanish Jesuit who spent several years in Spanish America in the latter part of the sixteenth century, and whose quaint and learned book "The Natural and Moral History of the Indies" is an authority that has been largely drawn upon by latter day historians, describes the tree with respect as one "of many virtues."

To another writer of that early day, the Ynca Garcilaso de la Vega, whose mother was a Peruvian and whose father a Spanish hidalgo, we owe a more detailed account of those virtues of the Molle, as the Peruvians then called and still call the pepper tree.

Prominent among its ancient uses was the part assigned it in the healing art of the time—the resinous, sticky juice, which is so evident a characteristic, being applied to fresh wounds with results so wonderful, the Ynca records, as to seem almost supernatural. A liniment made by boiling the leaves in water was in common use for cutaneous diseases, such as the itch, and for the curing of chronic sores.

The wood was a favorite source of charcoal, and because of this, large areas of virgin timber were denuded during the first few decades of the Spanish occupancy of Peru "I remember the Valley of Cusco," writes Garcilaso plaintively, "when it was adorned with innumerable quantities of these useful trees, and in a few years I saw it with scarcely any." The heart wood of the trunk is very solid and tough, as anyone may verify by examining old trees when cut down in our California thoroughfares, and this has been turned to account in some parts of South America for such purposes as the making of wagon axles, porch pillars and corner posts.

It is about the clusters of beautiful currantlike, red berries, however, which adorn the pistillate trees, in autumn and winter, that popular interest in the pepper tree in its Peruvian home has centered from pre-Spanish days to ours; and that not for their esthetic value, but for quite another reason. Curiosity has occasionally impelled a Californian to bite into a pepper berry, but one who has so adventured has even less praise for it than for a raw olive fresh from the tree. Besides being unconsciously bitter, the pepper berry is hot and insistently resinous even to nauseousness. I am told that in Mexico, the sinzontles or mocking birds feed with avidity on these berries; but I am glad to say that so far as my observation goes no California bird is so depraved in taste.

In face of all this, the fact is the pepper berries are the basis of an ancient and still cherished beverage in Peru, which is popularly known as Chicha de Molle. If you will examine a pepper berry in the first plump stage of its maturity, you will find that the bitter resinousness is overlaid with a coating of sugary sweetness—a natural instance of sugarcoated pill—and it is at that stage that the berries are gathered for chicha manufacture. There is a certain quality about this brew, aside from its cheapness, that is of particular appeal to the Peruvian taste; but it is by no means a temperance drink. Indeed, its consumption in some parts of Peru has gotten to be something of the same sort of vice that pulque drinking has become in the valley of Mexico; and according to Mr. Harry A. Franck in his recent book "Vagabonding down the Andes," intoxication from Chicha de Molle is more or less a chronic state among Peruvian cholos.

The Spanish conquest of Peru, which introduced the white potato to Europeans, also sent the pepper tree on its travels. While the date of the first seeds "or specimens" reaching the Old World is still undetermined, the tree seems to have been known to growers of new and curious plants in Spain, Italy and England at least half a century before the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock.

In Great Britain it went by the name of the Peruvian or Indian mastic tree, because of the gummy exudation from the broken leaves and branches. As both the true mastic tree and the rhus that yields the famous Japan lacquer are botanical cousins of the pepper, it would seem as though the latter's sticky juice might be turned to similar uses.

The term by which Mexicans know the pepper tree is Peru, Perul, or arbol del Peru—that is, tree of Peru, a name which attached to it upon its introduction by the Spaniards into Mexico, as recorded by Padre de Acosta "because it came from Peru." If you ask a Los Angeles Mexican, however, what the Spanish for pepper tree is, he will in all likelihood answer you "pimiento." This is an interesting instance of etymological swinging around the circle, for "pimiento" is Spanish for the capsicum or pepper plant that supplies the familiar cayenne of our tables; and the California peon, hearing his tree of Peru called pepper in the land of his adoption, has ingenuously translated that word back into literal Spanish and produced for the tree a new name that would be unrecognizable in either Mexico or Peru.

Artists!

careless, sometimes on the picture an' sometimes on the floor.

Well I just set there thinkin' if this was art, it was some changed from the way the books tell you. They sure had their nerve to call it art—but I should worry!

I felt so bad for 'em, the exhibition comin' the next day—I was wonderin' how I could sympathize with Gloria, when she come up all smilin' again an' natural, an' she says, "Are you tired? I'm so glad this is ready for the show!"

I give it one more look—way off it seemed like I seen somethin' like a head, but its eyes was deep red with purple above, an' its nose an' hair was green.

I coulda cried. I kinda shivered, an' Gloria says:

"What's the matter?"

"I wanta get out," I says, "I feel like I'd been seein' things."

"You do?" she says, "Oh don't you love it? Ain't it all wonderful?"

Honest, I couldn't do nothing but swallow—I'm awful fond o' Gloria—I couldn't tell her—

I felt like I'd been doped till Gloria gives me a shove toward the door an' I heard her sayin':

"Get a wiggle on—me for a good hefty meal!"

Lightnin' change again!—

. . . .

"Gee kid, beat it. . . . There's the boss an' I ain't got none of these letters done! . . . But say, I wisht you'd find out for me who paints these swell pictures I see 'round town—I used to think it was the artists!!!"

The Doughboy.

"Some weeks ago I helped bury a young doughboy—just a boy of 18 or 19, a handsome, black-haired little fellow. He fell with his face towards the Hun, one hand gripping the small of the stock of his Springfield. They knocked the life out of the little fellow, but they couldn't knock that smile off his face. He died with it there.

"Such is the way they fight, and such is the spirit in which they make the supreme sacrifice, and give their all to the cause."

So writes a coast artilleryman—unconsciously phrasing as fine a tribute to the infantry's work in this war, and the spirit in which that work was done, as ever the most gifted writer could pen.—[Stars and Stripes

WHILE Lou Guernsey was examining a witness in Superior Court he chanced to ask him about the character of the dead man who figured in the case, to which the witness replied:

"How did you learn that," demanded the judge.

Worthless Relic.

LAYING down a harsh criticism of the work of a fellow novelist, Robert Chambers laughed, and said:

"We writers get a terrible deal from the public. Did you ever hear the story of the playwright? It's typical of what we all get.

"A playwright sat in the front row for the premier of his new play. The first two acts went over splendidly and it looked as if the play were a real hit.

"At the close of the second act a little lady sitting directly behind the dramatist reached in her handbag, took out a tiny pair of manicure scissors, and, reaching over, calmly snipped off a lock of the author's hair?

"But the last two acts went badly and in the end the applause for the author became hisses. As the curtain fell on the finale the lady leaned over and tapped the playwright on the shoulder.

" 'Allow me to return this,' she said contemptuously, handing back the purloined lock."

Welcome News.

MAYOR WOODMAN was speaking about the results that have accrued from the merging of the two telephone systems. "It's a wonderful improvement," he remarked, "and I laugh when I think of the old days. It reminds me of the man who was called out of bed at 3 o'clock in the morning to answer a phone call.

" 'Hello, hello,' he yelled, all wrought up.

" 'There is nobody on the line now,' said central sweetly.

" 'Glad you woke me up and told me about it,' retorted the man, 'it's the first time I ever knew this line to be idle.' "

The Wrong Shade.

AT A GHOST story seance of the Denver Psychical Society, Dr. Paul Mullane, the nerve specialist, said:

"Our best ghost stories come from the South. There's one about a southern wake:

"An old colored man had died, and the night before the funeral a dozen of his friends sat in the moonlight in front of the dead man's cabin, telling ghost stories. Suddenly from out the darkness above them they heard strange noises—a flapping, as of great wings—menacing cries—and they dimly perceived a formless black mass hovering near.

"All but one man fled. This one, as he cowered on his stool, was seized by the grapnel of a falling balloon, for that was what the black shape was.

"The grapnel, going at a great pace, caught up the darky, and whirled him through the air at fifteen miles an hour, eight or ten feet above the ground.

" 'Oh massa, massa,' he yelled, squirming and kicking in that weird nocturnal flight, 'I'se not the one, I ain't de cahpse! Dick's in de house, he's in de house back yonder!' "

Can't Escape.

"THE Kaiser's future uncertain? Oh, no. There's a certainty about his future that delights me," said Congressman Fess of Ohio. He went on:

"An Ohio hired girl said one day to her mistress:

" 'Can I have the afternoon off three weeks from next Monday, ma'am?'

" 'I don't know, Mary. Why do you want to get off?'

" 'I want to attend Bill Scraggs's funeral, ma'am. Bill was my fiance?'

" 'What nonsense is this,' demanded the mistress. 'You want to go to a funeral three weeks from now. Why, you don't even know he's going to die. That's something none of us can foretell—the date of our own death.'

" 'Maybe not, ma'am, but I know about Bill. He's going to be hanged.' "

The Point of View.

"WHAT the Germans get, and what they ought to get, are two different things," declared Secretary Lansing recently. "In signing the armistice instead of continuing the fight Germany reminds me of a certain lion tamer.

"One night he was entertained by his friends, who refused to allow him to depart until the small hours of the morning. As a result on his homeward way, thinking that his wife would not receive him as cordially as he deserved, he spent the night elsewhere.

"In the morning he tried to slip into the house unobserved, but alas! a voice from the top of the stairs greeted coldly:

" 'Where have you been all night, John?'

" 'Well, my dear, I was afraid of disturbing you, so I slept in the lion's cage.'

"There was a moment's pause, a gritting of teeth, then down the stirs floated one word:

" 'Coward!' "

Why They Fail.

DURING a dinner in Detroit, Henry Ford was congratulated on his audacity in setting up a chain of water power mills, where men will make tractors in winter when the water power is good, and then run these same tractors for the farmers while the water power is slack.

"An audacious conception," said the Ford admirer, "and such audacity deserves to win."

Ford smiled modestly.

"Well, you can't win without audacity," he said. "Lots of men fail because they've got their wishbones where their backbones ought to be."

Like Babylon.

SEUMAS O'ROURKE, the Irish poet, said in a lecture in Chicago:

"Ireland would have done her duty better in this world war if it hadn't been for her so-called patriots. These men sowed discord everywhere. Yes, they sowed it everywhere but in Connemora.

"The one part of Ireland that has always kept peaceful and loyal is Connemora, for there the peasants don't speak English, and the patriots can't speak Irish."

Not so Slow.

THE recent Turkish armistice led George Cohan to say:

"The Turk has well been called unspeakable. I met one once at Pera. 'I have seven wives,' he told me, calmly, blowing perfumed clouds from his hookah.

" 'Merciful powers,' I exclaimed, 'how do you manage to pay their dressmakers' bills?'

"The unspeakable Turk waved his hand:

" 'I married dressmakers, son of an infidel,' he said."

Too Wise.

"THERE'S such a thing as being too wise," said Chief of Police Butler the other day. "Indeed, that is how we catch many thieves. They are too clever and it gives them away. They remind me of the new clerk in the seed store.

"Someone, just for a joke, asked for some sweet potato seeds. The clerk hunted all through the seeds but could find no sweet potato seeds and finally appealed to the boss.

"The latter explained that he was being kidded and cautioned him about not letting smart Alecks put anything over on him.

"A few days later a lady entered the store and asked from some bird seed.

" 'Aw go on,' grinned the clerk, 'you can't kid me. Birds is hatched from eggs.' "

Misunderstanding.

JUDGE WHITE tells a good one on a colleague who is a justice of the peace in a small town near Bakersfield. The two friends were talking shop and the justice of the peace said:

"I don't know for sure what the trouble is, but in the last two weeks I have had to punish twelve men and four girls for fighting. I begin to fear that a misconstruction has been placed on the work or fight order."

Not Interested.

THE change in fares on the Pacific Electric has brought about many an amusing occurrence but none funnier than the encounter on a Santa Monica car between a woman passenger and the conductor.

"I shall have to ask you for a ticket for that boy, ma'am," insisted the conductor.

The woman declined to even listen to him.

"If you don't pay his fare I'll have to put him off the car," persisted the conductor. "You know what the rules of the company are."

"Well, put him off," snapped the woman. "You ought to know your own rules. How old is the boy? Why ask me! I never saw him before!"

Not His Fault.

A METROPOLITAN matron once ventured to ask James Lane Allen, "Are you a bachelor from choice?" "Yes," came the answer promptly. "But isn't that—er—rather ungracious and ungallant?" protested she. The novelist smiled. "You must ask the ladies," he suggested gently: "it was their choice, not mine."

Trying to Save Him.

"AMERICA, for quite a period before the war, had relations with Germany which were similar to an episode which occurred in Frozen Dog," remarked Senator Lodge the other day.

"Seems a dentist strayed into town and one of his customers was Broncho Bill, a gunman.

" 'Will you take gas to have that tooth pulled?' asked the dentist.

" 'Will it hurt if I don't?' demanded Bill.

" 'Yes without the gas, it will be quite painful,' admitted the dentist.

" 'Then,' said Bill, 'for your sake, maybe I'd better take gas.' "

Two Better Reasons.

THE beautiful Gaby Deslys was walking in Fifth avenue in one of the very full and very short skirts of the new fashion.

Her patent leather boots had very high gray tops. Above her high gray boot tops her skirt—so fashionably short it was—afforded a view of her rich and lustrous gray silk stockings.

"It takes a mighty good nerve to wear a skirt as short as that," a comedian remarked to Mlle. Deslys.

She glanced down and smiled with a certain pardonable pride.

"A vairy good—" she said—"a vairy good—a vairy good nerve? Did you say nerve, monsieur?"

And glancing down again, she shook her head and smiled.

"Ah, no, monsieur; it is not a vairy good nerve that is required; not at all."

Never Hesitated.

"THE man who can meet emergencies, who can rise to the occasion, is the man who will succeed," declares Charles M. Schwab, "like the chap who was one evening suddenly confronted by a discontented wife. She said:

"Before we were married you used to bring me flowers every day, but now you never think of getting me even a bunch of violets."

"But my dear," he protested, without a second's hesitation, "the pretty flower girls don't attract me now, as much as they used to."

And of course she told him that on second thought, she really didn't care for flowers.

A New One.

UP AT the Good Samaritan Hospital they are having a good laugh at the expense of a certain physician who had sent a patient home as convalescent. He instructed the man's wife to call him next morning at the hospital and report

In due time she called up and said "He has been feeling very badly. I do everything I can to please him, but nothing seems to satisfy him."

"But you wouldn't say his condition was critical, would you?" demanded the doctor. To which the woman replied:

"It's worse than critical, it's abusive."

Up Against It.

"THE war and soldier training sure have developed some wonderful appetities," declared Manager Sibald of the Alexandria, recently. "You ought to see the boys in uniform eat. I can readily sympathise with the father who shouted to his wife:

" 'Mary, the baker's here. How many loaves of bread do we want? Two, as usual?'

" 'The idea,' retorted his wife. 'Have you forgotten that John comes home today, on leave?'

" 'Of course,' said the man, and mentally picturing his sailor son he called to the baker:

" 'Back your cart against the door and tie her up.'

Latest Sport.

CLERKS in busy stores do have hard times of it, and their nerves get frazzled, but sometimes they do make some terribly stupid remarks and ask very foolish questions. For instance a clerk in a certain Broadway drug store.

The customer, obviously fearing he'd caught the 'flu, dashed in and asked for a dozen two-grain quinine pills.

"Do you want them put in a box?" asked the clerk to the customer's amazement.

"Certainly not," he answered sarcastically, "I was thinking of rolling them home!"

Lone Wolf.

Lone wolf, sick of the city and the ceaseless tramp of men,
Packed his palette and brushes and turned to the wilds again;
He heard the nicker of horses and he heard the south wind call,
And he smelt the sage in the morning with the sun on the canyon wall;
He breathed the tang of the desert and he saw the sand-storm rise,
And his heart was filled with gladness, and gladness warmed his eyes.

He built a lodge in the forest where the pines run straight and high,
And he lighted his lodge with sunshine and roofed it with the sky,
And he sang a song of his fathers when the stars were low and white,
And a flame flashed out of the darkness and shattered across the night,
And after the flame a vision—no prophet nor maid nor saint,
But a band of the desert horses—the kind that he loved to paint,
And high in the stars a 'rider with riata swinging strong,
Running the desert horses and singing a phantom song,
And Lone Wolf dreamed of his fathers and murmured a magic word,
And the gods of his vanished fathers stooped to the earth and heard;
They sent the winds of the mesa, the winds of the South and West,
And they scattered a thousand colors in the doorway of his rest;
And Lone Wolf woke in the morning when vision and dream were gone,
And set to painting his picture in the light of the upland dawn;
The magic of hill and desert and a rider breaking through
Swinging his swift riata in the haze of the desert blue;
And a scattering band of horses, beautiful, strong and swift,
And far in the outer distance the black of a canyon rift,
Colors that flashed and faded—colors that sang with life,
Soft as the blue-veiled mountains, keen as a whetted knife;
And his picture lived in the making faithfully wrought and bold,
From the stride of the desert horses to the shadow of beaten gold
That swept from their hoofs behind them, crawling aloof and curled
To the last thin edge of nothing—to vanish across the world.

When the eyes of men beheld it they knew that it did not lie,
One said "this thing is magic—the desert and hills and sky!"
But Lone Wolf turned from their talking and smiled like a whetted knife,
And said to himself: "not magic—it's greater than that—it's life!
For I know the stride of the horses and I know the desert land,
And I hold the gift of my fathers in the curve of my hollowed hand,
A thousand times have I lived it—the picture they come to praise,
What know they of men and horses these people of city ways?
Of heat and the thirst and hunger, of peril and toil and strife?
And did they know could they paint it and give it the soul of life?"
And Lone Wolf turned from the city and the ceaseless tramp of men
And packed his palette and brushes and took to the wilds again.

MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN AND WARREN

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

A Discordant Evening Attends the Bickerings of a Disputatious Couple.

"ONE of them good glasses is nicked," announced Nora, as Helen came into the dining-room to inspect the company-set table.

"Not one of the goblets? Oh, Nora, I've told you and told you—"

"I didn't do it," defiantly. "It was like that when I took it down."

"And we've only nine of those!" examining the nicked glass. "Nora, you simply don't care! Last week you broke that good plate—and now—"

But Nora, mutteringly mutinous, had swung through the pantry door.

Helen's first impulse was to call her back, to reprove her sharply for her insolence in leaving the room. Then came the restraining dread of a clash before a company dinner. It was no time for enforcing discipline.

The telephone! Surely not the Kanes so soon! It was not near 7 o'clock.

"Hello? . . . Ask them to come up." Then as she darted out to the kitchen, "Nora, they're here! They can't go into Mr. Curtis's room—he's dressing. You'll have to take their wraps in the hall."

Hurriedly switching on all the lights, she flew back into her own room, where she waited while Nora went to the door.

With dinner guests, Helen found it less awkward to make her appearance after they were relieved of their wraps and ushered into the front room.

And now, as she entered, any stiffness of greeting was dispelled by Pussy Purr-mew, who was coyly evading Mrs. Kane's advances.

Helen's first glance took in Mr. Kane's faultless evening clothes. And Warren had not wanted to dress! Did he know they were here? She was nervously apprehensive lest he shout out for a mislaid tie or cuff button.

"Yes, she's Persian. Four years this spring."

"My sister has one just that shade," observed Mr. Kane, snapping his fingers, an overture which Pussy Purr-mew haughtily ignored.

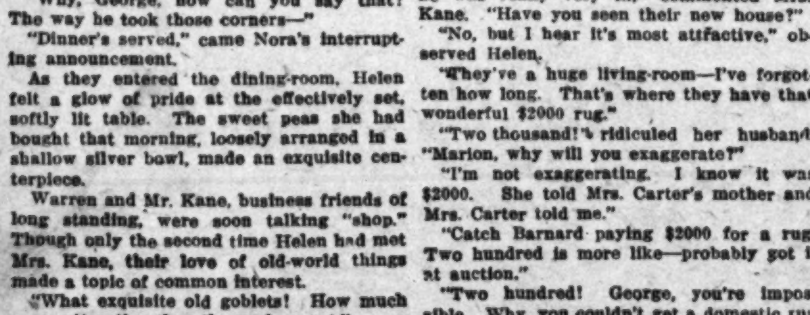
"No, Fluff's much darker—not at all that shade," corrected his wife.

"Darker? How d'you make that? Her ruff's even lighter."

"Why, George, that's absurd! She's at least three shades darker."

This argument was interrupted by Warren, who now strode in, greeting his guests with hearty cordiality.

"I'm afraid we're a little early, but we've a new chauffeur," explained Mrs. Kane. He drives like mad! It makes me nervous—he's so reckless."



"Not a bit reckless," combated her husband. "Best driver we ever had."

"Why, George, how can you say that? The way he took those corners—"

"Dinner's served," came Nora's interrupting announcement.

As they entered the dining-room, Helen felt a glow of pride at the effectively set, softly lit table. The sweet peas she had bought that morning, loosely arranged in a shallow silver bowl, made an exquisite centerpiece.

Warren and Mr. Kane, business friends of long standing, were soon talking "shop." Though only the second time Helen had met Mrs. Kane, their love of old-world things made a topic of common interest.

"What exquisite old goblets! How much more attractive than the modern cut."

"Yes, I think most of the modern cut glass is hideous. Why don't they reproduce more of the old designs?" Then regretfully, "I try to be so careful with these, but just this evening I found one nicked."

"What a shame! It really discourages you from having anything good. Last week our waitress broke one of my old decanters—this lovely ruby glass."

"It wasn't an old one," cut in her husband. "Get all you want down at Cleaver's. Saw them in their window yesterday—forgot to tell you."

"That shows how little you know about it," bristling. "That was a genuine old decanter. I got it at an antique shop—paid eighteen dollars."

"And Cleaver's have the very same thing for half that. Good Lord, you're easy, if you think all the stuff in those antique shops is genuine."

"George, why do you insist on being disagreeable? You know very well—"

"Won't you have some of this grape compote?" asked Helen, hoping to divert the rather heated argument.

"Indeed, I will," accepted Mr. Kane, helping himself liberally for the second time. "This is great. What's in it? Nuts?"

"Yes, it's just grape jelly with English walnuts and raisins."

"Why, George, we used to have that. Aunt Ellen sent it to us."

"Not that I know anything about."

"Why, the first year we were married she sent us a dozen glasses."

"Oh, that was no more like this—"

"You've forgotten. It was exactly like this—she sent me the recipe."

"Kane, let me give you some of this breast," Warren carved into the other side of the duck.

"Look here, I'm supposed to be on a no-meat diet."

"Now what's the use of saying that?" challenged Mrs. Kane. "You eat meat whenever you want it—a great deal more than I do."

"How d'you make that out?" belligerently.

"Why, you often have bacon for breakfast and goodness knows what you have for lunch. Why keep saying you're on a diet, when you know you're not?"

"Oh, most of this diet business is all bunk," shrugged Warren. "There's Barnard, been on a diet six months. Looks all in—and grouchy as a bear."

"Yes, Mrs. Barnard told me the other day he was really very ill," commented Mrs. Kane. "Have you seen their new house?"

"No, but I hear it's most attractive," observed Helen.

"They've a huge living-room—I've forgotten how long. That's where they have that wonderful $2000 rug."

"Two thousand!" ridiculed her husband. "Marion, why will you exaggerate?"

"I'm not exaggerating. I know it was $2000. She told Mrs. Carter's mother and Mrs. Carter told me."

"Catch Barnard paying $2000 for a rug. Two hundred is more like—probably got it at auction."

"Two hundred! George, you're impossible. Why, you couldn't get a domestic rug for that."

"You couldn't? Just go down to one of these rug auctions. You know as much about rugs as—as that cat there."

"Pussy Purr-mew would resent that," laughed Helen, to relieve the tension. "She thinks she's quite an expert. When we get a new rug she has to sniff over every inch of it."

"George is always so positive," persisted Mrs. Kane, not even smiling at Helen's attempted diversion. "He always—"

"Not any more positive than you, my dear. And I happen to confine my statements to things I know something about."

"Oh, you do?" satirically. "Well, I've failed to notice that fact."

Here Nora's entrance with the burning pudding proved an effective distraction. Even Mr. Kane's, "Been a long time since I've had a chance at an old fashioned plum pudding," did not call forth a denial from his wife. She forgot to be disputatious in her interest in the flaming platter.

When a little later they left the table, with the pretext of showing her some old lace, Helen tactfully piloted Mrs. Kane into her own room.

Away from her husband there was no trace of combativeness. Instead she was all charm and interest, and Helen genuinely enjoyed the hour they spent alone.

But when they returned to the library, a chance remark of Mr. Kane's about the new subway near their suburban home brought on another argument.

"They'll have it open in June," he announced.

"Why, no George, not so soon as that! Not before September."

"It's to be opened in June, I said. Holton told me the other night."

"Mrs. Burns told me. Her brother's in the company—he ought to know."

"But apparently he doesn't. We'll be riding on that subway by June!"

"You're going to have it—that's the main thing," conciliated Warren. "A few moons more or less won't matter. Big boom for your lots out there. You ought to make a killing on that corner plot."

The discussion now turned to suburban real estate. Fortunately the Kanes' car was announced before another subject of contention came up.

"Now, if you can't come before—you must get out in June," urged Mr. Kane as they waited for the elevator. "The place is at its best then, and by that time you can come out on the subway."

"We want you to come out any Sunday," emphasized his wife. "But don't count on the subway before September."

They were still contending this point when the elevator shot them down.

"Oh—oh, what makes them do it?" dismayed Helen, re-entering the library.

"Do what?" yawned Warren, reaching for a cigar as he dropped into his chair.

"Oh, that constant arguing! Disputing everything the other says."

"Yes, that did sound pretty bad. If that's their company manners, their home life must be miscellaneous hell!"

"Dear, we don't do that, do we? We don't have those squabbling arguments in public? Oh, we must be careful never to get into that habit."

OPPORTUNITY'S AUTHENTIC MESSENGER
OF THE PACIFIC SOUTHWEST

THE ILLUSTRATED ANNUAL MIDWINTER NUMBER
—OF—
The Times
Will Be Published
Tuesday, January 28, 1919

It will carry the glad tidings of the Southwest's golden offerings to a million readers.

Opportunity in every line of industry; in the richest agricultural and horticultural pursuits, in stock and poultry raising, in fact, every field of endeavor will be noted in its pages.

Your friends in other States will want to know of these opportunities and also of Southern California's climate and scenic attractions, its resorts, its mountains, streams and ocean. Its recreations as well as its big workaday doings will be skillfully depicted by master writers.

They will glean this information from the beautifully illustrated Midwinter Number of The Times.

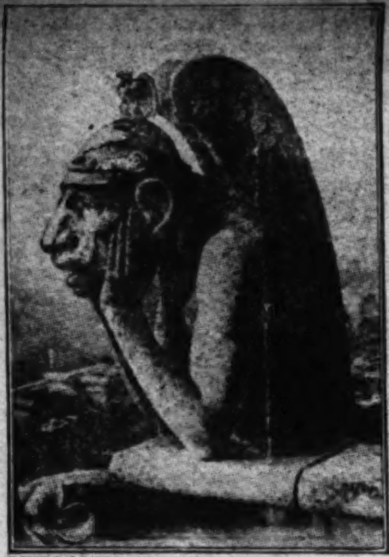
THE PROPHECY OF THE GARGOYLES.

BY BRENDA FRANKLYN.



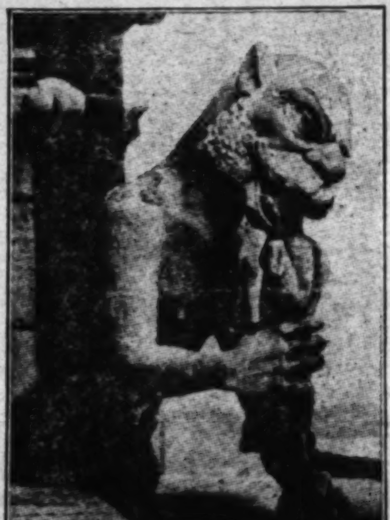
GUILLAUME II—"Watching in meditative silence."

IN BRUCE BAIRNSFATHER'S "Fragments from France" three Tommies are depicted discussing in a demolished building, midst bursting shells, a suitable fate for the arch-originator of their miseries. "I wonder what they will do with Bill when the war's over," asks one grimly. "I don't know; 'ave 'im filled with concrete and sunk somewhere I expect," is the weary rejoinder of another of maritime England's sons.

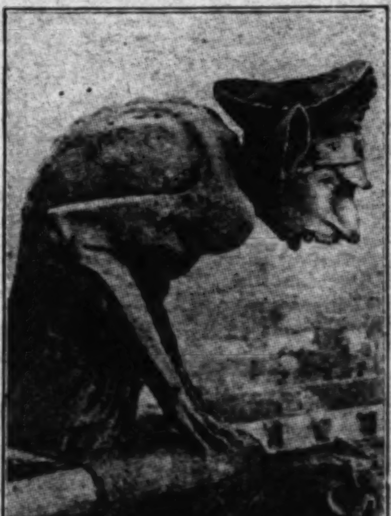
By a curious coincidence, 800 years ago this thought was actually anticipated and carried out in stone by the rugged sculptors of old France, who gazing with prescient vision into the womb of time, brought forth and reproduced with chiseled accuracy the likeness of the Arch Fiends, who nearly 1000 years ahead, were to threaten the safety and ideals, not only of France, but of the world.

For years and centuries devout pilgrims having climbed the cathedral stairs of Notre Dame in Paris, have been puzzled, amused, and vaguely troubled by the grinning diabolical monsters leaning out from the cathedral roof above the city, seeming to gloat in inhuman satisfaction over some secret wickedness brewing in the regions from which they evidently came, and which when the noxious stew should be complete they hoped would be delivered to them to pour upon the crowds beneath.

Some had thought that perhaps these gargoyles were meant to represent those demons of Pride, Ambition and Success whose subtle suggestions tried to tempt even the Christ to cast Himself from the pinnacle of the temple, and which so often beset those who, falsely imagine themselves, indispensable co-partners of the Most High—the "Me und Gott" variety that have been known to exist in other lands than Prussia, and in other times than these. By many these unpleasant gargoyles were merely regarded as curious and amusing aberrations of early artistic talent. Not until the Great War had been in progress some little time, however, did the truth dawn on the people. It was so stupendous and so miraculous! Why there, carved in stone, leaning in arrogant nonchalance over the parapet, watching, grinning, staring and mocking, were the very beings who had plunged their beloved country in blood, and who were seeking to enchain them in an insolent slavery. There on the pinnacle of France's beloved cathedral was perched "Guillaume II," his wings already sprouted, watching in meditative silence the proper time to ascend one step further and relieve "Gott" of his throne!



FRANCOIS JOSEPH—"Gnawing the head of a human being."



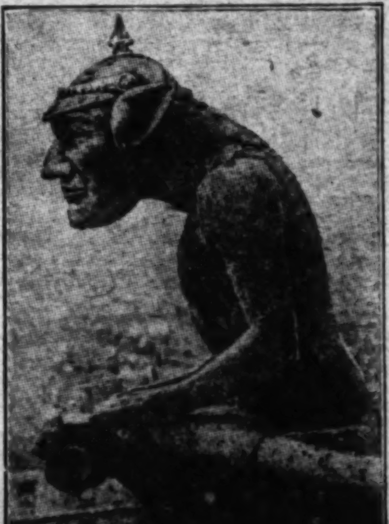
LE KRONPRINZ—"The figure of a degenerate faun."

"Der Kaiser of dis Fatherland
Und Gott on high all dings command,
Ve two—ach! Don't you understand,
MINESELF—und Gott."

"In fact I humor efry vhim
Wid aspect dark und visage grim,
Gott pulls mit ME und I mit him,
MINESELF—und Gott."

A little further along making a nasty mess of the parapet on which he leans, stood Francis Joseph of Austria, gnawing with infinite contempt the head of a tiny defenseless human being. "Quel horreur! La Serbie! Mais oui, certainement, c'est lui! c'est Francois Joseph—is he not hiding behind a pillar!"

At a prominent corner, bending far over, back hunched in catlike caution, crouched the figure of a degenerate faun, his large nose, wilting chin and predatory claws typifying the son who hoped to some day inherit the joint throne of this world—and the next. "Put a cap on his head—Et Voila! Le Kronprinz!"

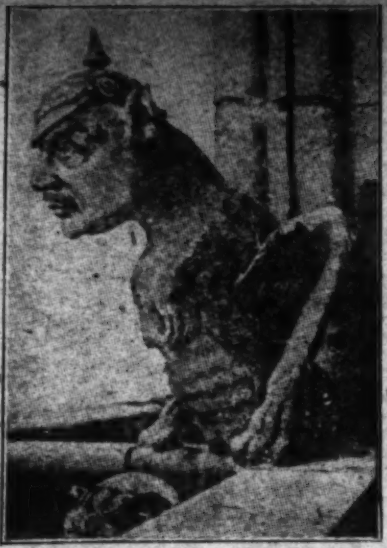


VON MOLTKE—"The armed brigand who pillaged Belgium."

At the next corner grinning in murderous satisfaction stood the image in stone of Von Moltke, the scales on his thick neck representing the armed brigand, the predatory Hun, whose hordes were even then at his command murdering, pillaging and overrunning Belgium.

Defeated at the Marne, defied at Verdun, with anxiety plainly depicted on his sullen face, behind the shelter of another pillar crouches the image of Von Kluck, who to translate his description on the post card "was chief of the band who ordered the ravages in Northern France and who so pitilessly bombarded Soissons."

To complete the group, meditating in sullen silence by himself, was found the image of Von Bulow, the fiend who capped the climax by destroying the marvelous cathedral of Rheims.

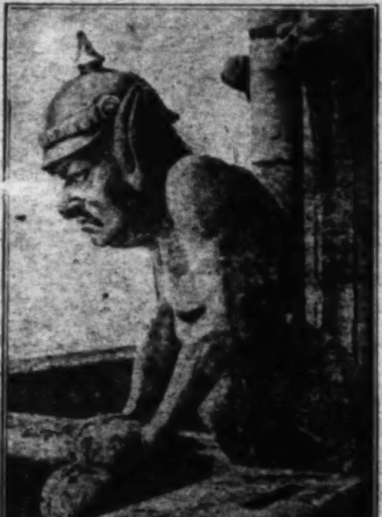


VON KLUCK—"With anxiety depicted on his sullen face."

A truly cheerful company! However, at last the riddle had been solved and—now they knew! What marvelous genius had these masters of old shown in the carving of these prophetic Gargoyles! Truly art is eternal and knows not time, past or present it matters not to her. That which shall be is, and that which is past ne'er had existence!

In one sense William's fate has already been decided. It has been incorporated in the stone of ages, an object lesson to all mankind. In placing him on the pinnacle of an earthly temple those artists of eternity have already signified the manner of his end.

Now is demonstrated why the cathedrals were the especial object of German hate, as the French would say—"C.Q.F.D!" (ce qu'il faut demonstrer.) As Euclid hath it, Q.E.D.



VON BULOW—"The fiend who destroyed Rheims."

Redistribution of an Empire.

is now, the islands south of the equator are administered by the Australian commonwealth, and those north of it by Japan. The Carolines and Ladrones are of especial interest to us, as Guam belongs to the Ladrones, and we are, as it were, in the very heart of that otherwise German archipelago.

Germany has Always Wanted the Carolines.

The Germans bought the Carolines and Ladrones at the close of the Spanish-American war, when we took possession of Guam, and they were about establishing wireless stations there when war was declared. They had tried to seize the Carolines as far back as 1885, when they hoisted the German flag over the Island of Yap. The Spanish protested and the question of the ownership of the islands was submitted to the Pope, who decided in favor of Spain. The result was that Spain held these islands until after the Spanish war, when they were sold to Germany for about $4,000,000.

The Ladrones were discovered by Magellan in 1521, and were taken over by the Spaniards in 1688. They were bought of Spain at the same time as the Carolines and are now in the hands of the Japanese. None of the islands is of any great importance. They consist, for the most part, of little patches of coral which have been built up from the sea, and their products are chiefly copra and other tropical fruits. Some of them yield, also, pearls and shells. The people are a mixture of Chinese, Malays and the aborigines, who have largely mixed with the others.

The United States has, in Guam, about the largest and best island in that part of the world. It has a good harbor, and its people are more civilized than those of the other islands. We have established a naval station there and have a garrison of marines and a shore naval force. We have a wireless telegraph station, and cable connections with all parts of the world. Our army transports, going from San Francisco, via Honolulu to Manila on their way westward, call monthly at Guam, but the port is closed to foreign vessels of war and commerce, and permission to visit the island must be obtained of our Navy Department. The people are far better treated than those of the German possessions. They have good schools and an excellent judiciary system. The trade of the island is increasing and it is more prosperous than it was under Spanish rule. It would be of great advantage to the remainder of the Ladrones and the Carolines if they could come under the administration of the United States.

(Copyright, 1919, by Frank G. Carpenter.)

Stories of the doings of the colored troops in France still pour in, but one of the best comes from Maj. Walton of the Medical Corps, who was attached to one of the base hospitals.

"Boss, how does you-all do yoh cookin' in thah?" demanded the dusky doughboy.

"Well Sam," explained the major, "we have all the new fangled equipment here. It's quite different from the field hospitals. Fact is, we do our cooking by electricity."

"Hum. By electricity, huh? Major, beggin' yoh pardon suh, but yo sho' ought to have given dem beans another shock!"

How Coins Wear Out.

Attention has been called to the effect of grease derived from the sweat of the fingers, or from other sources, in accelerating the wear of coins, which is usually attributed entirely to abrasion. It is said that the fatty acids of the grease have a corrosive action upon the metal. Copper, in particular, even if present only in small quantity as an alloy for gold or silver, is converted into an oleate, stearate, or other salt. An official of the Utrecht Mint found by analysis that the dirt on a bronze coin contained 36 per cent. of copper in the form of powdered compounds of the fatty acids. When the coin is handled the dirt is in part detached, and the coin undergoes a loss of weight. Gold or silver is not readily converted into salts, but removing the copper leaves the less easily attacked metals in a spongy form that offers little resistance to abrasion. In new coins the rapid loss of weight that occurs is doubtless caused at first by abrasion, but when the rough edges have been removed, chemical action may prove to be of the first importance in the succeeding deterioration.

MISSION OF THE NEW STAGECRAFT.

BY NEELY DICKSON.

CLOTHES may not make the man, but stage investiture may make or unmake a play. With those trained in music the auditory nerve is more sensitive than the optic, but with the majority of people "Things seen are mightier than things heard." For this reason, the stage setting for a play should be of the kind that will supplement the appeal of the play, that the audience may be reached through the eye quite as surely as through the ear.

We hear so much talk these days about "new stage setting" and "new stagecraft" that we sometimes wonder just how much the terms are being abused and how often anything that is bizarre or noisy is being hidden behind the cloak of so-called "new art." Certain it is that radical changes in stage producing have been wrought in the last few years and the end is not yet. We are still in the experimental stage and no one can at this time measure the full significance.

Henry Irving once declared that the seventeenth century was a century of great play writing, the eighteenth century one of great play acting, and the nineteenth century one of great play mounting. However accurate this division may be, we know that at least the last of the nineteenth century saw the beginning of what gives promise of being the greatest play mounting the world has ever seen.

It is a far cry from the early Elizabethan settings with their few crude blocks and benches to the present realism of David Belasco with his perfectly appointed drawing-rooms, or the wonderful distance-giving draperies found in the imaginative settings of Gordon Craig.

The painted canvas drop with its flapping sides and billowing undulations that responded to every gust of wind like a wheat field in a breeze, or the set trees and wood wings with the huge tormentors used to screen the sides of the stage and painted a vivid cerise or carmine red to represent draped curtains—these same painted drapes held back by elaborately painted gold cords and tassels—are not so far in the distance. There were few variations in the painted sets and one could quite easily order by name or number and be reasonably sure of the result.

Small Choice of Scenes in Early Days of Stage.

I REMEMBER in the early days of my work bringing down upon my head the anathemas of a certain scene painter in Chicago. I objected to a particular set that had been given to me for an American garden because it had a formal stone wall, clipped bay trees and a marble fountain, all beautifully painted on a flapping canvas background. I timidly asked for more irregularity, a suggestion of New England trees and the absence of the marble fountain. "Well, then, what you want, madam," said this scene painter, "is a woodland set. Why didn't you say so? You told me a garden." When I mildly ventured to inquire what was his definition of a woodland set he said, "Why, it has big trees, a road winding through, on one side and a stream of water on the other."

There was no middle path with him. I must choose a garden or a woodland set; a formal drawing-room with its pink and gold decorations or a kitchen done in dingy brown. He assured me that he had been in the business for forty years and had painted scenery for some of Maude Adams's early productions and that I would learn that with "scenic artists" you ordered either by name or by number and that I would save much trouble by following that rule. I gave up, for I was in no mood to defy the whole scene painters' union. I compromised by using a few plants and shrubs and some simple draperies, but I resolved that if scene painting meant what that experience seemed to indicate I would keep away from it as far as possible.

David Belasco with his penchant for reality has done much to relegate painted canvas to the lumber-room. He is the one who has stood for accuracy. He has introduced us to real mahogany doors and panels, rare old beamed ceilings, hardwood stairs and imported lace window drapes. No detail is too unimportant to demand his attention. I once heard a man say that for historical accuracy in furniture or interior decoration he would go to a Belasco play in preference to the public library.

If the Belasco stamp is on it we know that no photograph could be more correct crest engraved on the stationery that was to be on a desk in one corner of a room during a scene in a recent production—said stationery not to be used nor even referred to during the action of the play. It was this same desire for reality which caused him at great expense to have the family coat of arms blown into the wine glasses that were to be used in a simple scene in one of his plays.

This mind for detail is a source of great joy to many people. It is an immense saving of gray matter to the man who buys his seat for a Belasco production, for he knows without question that his thinking has all been done for him. He will have no use for his imagination for he is about to have a panorama of reality spread out before him. He likes to think he is getting the truth, that there is nothing for him to do but to settle back and let his mind and his eye feed upon realism, with everything prearranged and predigested.

In witnessing certain melodramas I have wondered sometimes why they didn't use real bullets and make an end of it. Something might also be done to make the time element more real. Some such desire must have been in the mind of one of our dramatic critics in Los Angeles this year when he said in speaking of a certain Chinese playlet that had been presented—with the scene, by the way, laid in San Francisco Chinatown—that he wondered if the players didn't realize that a Chinese play usually lasted from noon until midnight. Voila! Again we see the desire for accuracy. And the play was no doubt spoiled for him because the incident lasted only half an hour.

Mr. Belasco has long had the respect of both the theater and the public for his has been a great contribution to the advancement of the stage. Even so, we cannot fail to be amused at the many stories that are told of his frenzy for reality. The following one a stage director in New York told me and said he was quite willing to vouch for its truth.

Mr. Belasco once had a play to stage which called for a bronzed and weather-beaten young sailor, son of a sea captain lost at sea ten years before the opening of the play. Said young sailor to be minus his left leg as the result of a shipwreck.

Even the Proper Leg Must be Cut Off.

MR. BELASCO searched untiringly for a young man answering the description. Various applicants were brought before him but none exactly fulfilled the requirements. Finally a friend came to his office one morning highly elated, saying, "Mr. Belasco, I've found your character, a sailor whose father was a sea captain lost at sea ten years ago. He is bronzed and weather-tanned and has lost a leg in a wreck!" Mr. Belasco, tremendously excited, said, "Bring him in! Bring him in!" The young man was brought into the office but at the first glance Mr. Belasco threw up his hands in despair and exclaimed, "My God! It's the wrong leg."

In direct contrast to Mr. Belasco with his accuracy, we have Gordon Craig and his followers with their attempts to free us from realism and give us so-called imaginative stage settings. Gordon Craig may have been the first to enter the arena in this contest for a new art of the stage, but he has been followed by so many others that already we have quite an army, some agreeing, some disagreeing, but all struggling for a new form of expression.

Some of the Men Who Have Followed the New Art.

A FEW of the best known American disciples of the new art are Livingston Platt, Joseph Urban, Robert Jones, Sam Hume, Rollo Peters and—bless my soul, so many others that I don't know where to stop.

Livingston Platt is Margaret Anglin's discovery. He was experimenting in a very modest fashion in the Toy Theater of Boston purely as a labor of love. When Miss Anglin saw his work, she immediately gave him an order to design the settings for her Shakespearean plays. The result so justified her confidence that he sprang into instant popularity.

His methods of simplification and suggestion have made his work of inestimable value in designing the costumes and settings for Miss Anglin's Greek plays. She has given him a free hand and his graphic imagination and poet's style have produced results that whether they were viewed in the Greek Theater in Berkeley or in Carnegie Hall in New York have been nothing short of marvelous. In the recent productions of Greek drama in New York he was called before the curtain and given as much hearty appreciation as though he had been the author or the leading lady.

Mr. Joseph Urban was first known for his work as a stage director and designer at the Boston Operahouse, although he had his early training in Vienna. He studied to be an architect before entering upon the work of the theater, and his architectural training shows in many of his designs. There is a dignity and massiveness not found in the work of any of the other stage artists. It lacks the simplicity of outline and the high poetic treatment that we see in the work of Robert Edmond Jones, for instance, but it has a breadth and power which commands our admiration.

A Man Who Submerges Himself in His Art.

MR. ROBERT JONES is doubtless the most imaginative of all the American artists working in the theater. One is conscious everywhere in his designs of the extreme sensitiveness of his feeling. His art is never bizarre nor vulgar. He it was who designed the much talked of sets for Granville Barker and he also made the designs for Percy Mackaye's "Masque of Caliban." Arthur Hopkins, that rare producer-manager who has had Robert Jones designing his scenes at the Plymouth Theater, says that Jones is a true artist who wants nothing for Jones but everything for the play.

Personally, I am a great admirer of the work of Sam Hume, who was first heard of in Cambridge but who for the past two years has been director of the Arts and Crafts Theater in Detroit. He had the rare talent for getting masterly effects with the simplest means possible. One has a sense of satisfaction in viewing his settings which one gets from but few stage designs.

Among the even more recent artists is Rollo Peters. He has been connected with the Washington Square Players for the past year. During his single year of professional scene designing he has made more sets than any other two artists in New York. Aside from the Washington Square and many others he designed the sets for Mrs. Fiske in "Madame Sand," Ethel Barrymore in "The Lady of the Camellias" and Arnold Daly in "Josephine."

New Stagecraft Must Stimulate Imagination of Audience.

THE new stagecraft as a whole may be summed up in the theory that as it is impossible to produce absolute reality, rather try for the most stimulating illusion, believing that it is more important to offer the audience something which will lead them to imagine the setting than to erect upon the stage buildings which could not be historically correct.

Too often in the past there has been little connection between the mood of the play and the stage surroundings. The setting has not aided us in a more intimate approach to the soul of the play. The new workers are those who believe that the setting should be the result of an artist's spiritual impression of a time and place and not the labored result of a scholar's knowledge.

Lord Dunsany in a letter to Stuart Walker of the Portmanteau Theater, in discussing the setting of his beautiful little play, "The Golden Doom," which was so charmingly produced in New York by Mr. Walker, said, "The 'public' must needs know exactly 'when it all happened,' so I never neglect to inform them of the time. Since man does not alter it does not in the least matter what time I put, unless I am writing a play about his clothes or his motor car, so I put 'about the time of the fall of Babylon,' it seemed a nice breezy time, but 'about the time of the invention of Carter's Pills' would of course do equally well. Well, the result was that they went to the British Museum and got the exact costumes of the period in Babylon, and it did very nicely. There are sure to have been people who said, 'Now, my children, you shall come to the theater and enjoy yourselves, but at the same time you shall learn what it was really like in Babylon.' The fact is, the schoolmaster has got loose and he must be caged, so that people can enjoy themselves without being pounced on and made to lead better lives, like African natives being carried away by lions while they danced." No better example of imaginative drama has come from the pen of any recent writer than the plays of Lord Dunsany, but he pleads to have them set not historically but imaginatively.

Creating an Atmosphere Without Using Much Furniture.

BUT what of the plays that are written realistically and not imaginatively? Even so, much can be done by suggestion. I remember once having a long argument with a university woman who was assisting me in the setting of a New England comedy. She had collected such a multiplicity of things that I felt sure there would be no room for the actors to even get on the stage, much less to indulge in any action. Her constant plea was, "They have this in a New England sitting-room, I've seen this in a New England house. It is correct." Which was all true, but I could not have my play spoiled by such an elaborate collection of wooden rockers, crocheted antimacassars, rag rugs, patchwork quilts, wall mottoes, chenille table covers and haircloth sofas.

I hired two drays to return the stuff and then set the room with a couple of small rugs, three or four simple chairs, and some muslin window curtains. I felt justified afterward when I heard a woman remark, "How restful! I could seem to see my grandmother's old home in Massachusetts, and yet there was no furniture on the stage like hers. It was more in the atmosphere."

I should say that in setting a stage, the best effects may be secured by process of elimination. Our slogan should be not "what can we put on" but "how much can we leave off." In this connection I am reminded of the story of the French milliner who was endeavoring to sell a hat to an American woman. When the customer objected to the price by saying, "What, $40 for that simple hat? Why, there is nothing on it but a bow." The reply was "Oui, madame, but you pay for what is not on ze hat."

And so it is with stage setting. The art lies in what is not on the stage. The test is in the ability to know how much should go into the discard and how much remain to be gambled with.

Not many summers ago I took a friend to see a new play in Los Angeles that had been much advertised because of the "new stage setting." Surely there was nothing left for the eye to desire, unless it were space and rest. In the second act especially, I remember the stage was dressed with such a glory of articles as I have never beheld outside the art section of a large department store. As the curtain went down at the close of the act my friend clutched me frantically and said, "I hadn't finished seeing all the things yet"—although the act had lasted almost forty minutes.

Matching up Things Confuses the Audience.

EVEN the next day, I could not recall a line of the play, but my mind and eyes for weeks afterward kept recalling the multiplicity of new art things I had seen and I kept wondering if they matched the parrot to the props or the props to the parrot—for everything was matched. Oh, yes, indeed! from the blue and gold ribbons on the housekeeper's wrist to the blue and gold floor dolls and the sheen on the parrot's wings—or were there two parrots—I recall everything was in twos, so doubtless there were two parrots.

Concentration of attention and sustained dramatic mood are absolutely impossible in such a setting. There is such a mad frenzy for novelty these days that we are in serious danger of losing sight of established values.

The setting should form the atmospheric background of the play; it should reflect the mood of the drama and augment the value of the acting rather than be a detracting element. This should be managed so subtly that the audience is conscious only of perfect harmony. This can not be done if there is any point on the stage which catches and holds the eye or if there is any point in the acting which overtops and throws the rest out of balance.

The theater from being the place for the expression of one art has now become the
